BURTON'S

DIED

MRS. OLIVE BELL MEANS

Mrs. Olive Bell Means, wife of Lawrence H. Means, died at her home on Wilson street Monday morning, March 16, at 5:00 o'clock, following an illness of several months.

Mrs. Means was a daughter of Mrs. Mary M. Nethken and the late Thomas A. Nethken, a Civil War veteran, and was born in this county June 19, 1883. She was aged 58 years.

Mrs. Means was a member of the Methodist church and also belonged to the Pythian Sisters, Justus Temple, No. 67, at Newburg, West Va. She was the mother of eleven children.

Surviving are her mother and husband, eleven sons and daughters: Lawrence E. Means, Canal Zone, Panama; Frank Edward Means and Jean Means, of Oakland; Mrs. Daisy Lambert, Benton Harbor, Mich.; Mrs. Beatrice G. McDaniel, Newburg, W. Va.; Mrs. Vera E. Markley, East Chicago, Ind.; Mrs. Mabel Shaufer, Crown Point, Ind.; Mrs. Mary Allen, Davistown, Pa.; Mrs. Hazel Kincell, Mrs. Betty Constable and Mrs. Geraldine DeMiss, Morgantown, W. Va.; also three sisters and two brothers, Mrs. Hattie Miller, of Crellin; Mrs. Fannie Crostan, Austin, W. Va.; Mrs. Nellie Shaffer, Oakland; Nelson A. Nethken and Norman G. Nethken, Oakland, and eleven grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted on Wednesday afternoon at one o'clock from the Bolden Funeral Home with Rev. Olonzo Fike, Baptist minister, officiating. Interment was in the K. of P. cemetery at Newburg.

MRS. ELIZ. A. FRANKHOUSER

Mrs. Elizabeth A. Frankhouser, 73, widow of M. N. Frankhouser, of Cranesville, W. Va., died last Thursday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Maude Grove, at Laytonville, Md. The remains were taken to Terra Alta, W. Va., on Friday to the home of another daughter, Mrs. Cloyd Friend.

The funeral was held Sunday morning from the Methodist church of Cranesville, of which she was a member. Rev. A. Ryan, Brandenville, and Rev. B. Anderson, Cranesville, officiated. Interment was in the Cranesville cemetery.

Mrs. Frankhouser was a daughter of the late Notley and Susan Browning and a great great granddaughter of Meshach Browning.

She is survived by a brother, B. Frank Browning, of Terra Alta; four sons, Reed, Clarksburg; Harry F., Morgantown; and Notley and Wade Frankhouser, Terra Alta; and three daughters, Mrs. Maude Grove, Laytonville; Mrs. Mabel DeWitt, Warren, Ohio; and Mrs. Iva Friend, Terra Alta, and eighteen grandchildren.

REV. W. W. BARNES

Rev. W. W. Barnes, former pastor of a Methodist church in umberof a Methodist church in Cumberland, died in Baltimore last Saturday. Funeral services were conducted on Tuesday.

A native of Barton, he had been retired a number of years. He was a brother of Mrs. Clara Creutzburg, Bluefield, W. Va., formerly of Oakland.

MRS. CHARLES E. KISNER

Mrs. Anna May Kisner, 53, wife of Charles Edward Kisner, died Sunday evening at her home in Kitzmiller following an illness of several months. She was a patient at Allegany Hospital, Cumberland, for six weeks and had returned to her home Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Kisner was a daughter of the late John and Elizabeth (Sharpless) Lee and was born near Swanton. She was a member of the Wilson-Fidler American Legion auxiliary and had been a resident of the Kitzmiller community for many years.

Surviving are her husband and one daughter, Leona Kisner, at home. Her brother, George Lee, died two months ago.

Funeral services were conducted on Wednesday afternoon from the Nethkin Hill Methodist church with burial in the Nethken Hill cemetery at Elk Garden. Rev. G. W. Burkhart officiated.

NATHANIEL BOYD HARVEY

Nathaniel Boyd Harvey died at his home near Eagle Rock, on Tuesday, March 17, after an illness of about six months.

He was born in this county October 31, 1875, and was aged 66 years. He was a son of the late James W. and Elizabeth Harvey.

Surviving are his widow, who was Bertie Lipscomb; four children, Mabel Evans, Vindex; Alma Evans, Kitzmiller; Paul Harvey and Carl Harvey, at home; four grandchildren; also one sister, Mrs. Carrie Harvey, Swanton; four brothers, Dorsey Harvey, Crellin; Tilden Harvey, Deer Park; William Harvey, Kitzmiller; Edward Harvey, Sand Flat.

He was a member of the Kitzmiller Methodist church. Funeral services are being conducted this afternoon from the Methodist church at Deer Park with Rev. J. E. Johnson, Oakland, officiating. Interment will be in the Deer Park cemetery.

THE REPUBLICAN

VOLUME 66. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, MARCH 26, 1942. NUMBER 5.

Let's Go, America! . . . . .

By WILFERD A. PETERSON, Editor, The Silver Lining

The time has come for Uncle Sam to roll up his sleeves, spit on his hands and begin working like a Titan!

Uncle Sam is you, he is me, he is all of us. He is the steel worker, with rippling, sweating muscles glowing in the light of a blast furnace. He is the engineer humped over a drafting board. He is the test-pilot roaring toward earth like a bat out of hell. He is the farmer plowing his fields. He is the man on the assembly line; the guy at the punchpress. He is the cowbody riding the plains. He is the man of God in the pulpit; the teacher in the little red schoolhouse. He is the husky driver of a truck. He is the radio announcer; the newspaper man. He is the miner working in the dark depths of the earth. He is the doctor making calls. He is the policeman on his beat. He is the carpenter and the bricklayer. He is the Army, Navy and the Marine Corps. He is the President of the United States and the bootblack around the corner. He is a molten mass of Scotchmen, Irishmen, Englishmen, Germans, Italians, Swedes, Poles, Russians, Frenchmen, Hollanders, Jews, Chinese, Portuguese, Spaniards, Turks, Greeks, Danes, and Negroes thrown together, stirred-up and cast into a Man of Iron; he is one hundred and thirty million people who hold in their hands the destiny of democracy.

Americans all, we must bury the hatchet of discord and dig up the faith of our fathers;

We must make the Eagle scream in the fight for freedom;

We must recognize that the only way to pull ourselves out of our difficulties, is to pull together;

We must blend hands, brains, muscles, talents, materials, machines, into a mighty symphony of action;

We must drown out the shouts and threats of tyrants and dictators with the thundering crescendo of a Great Nation arming for victory;

Let's go, America!

MEN 45 TO 64 MUST REGISTER ON APRIL 27TH

Marylanders to Get Three Days In Which to Sign Up, Same As Last Month, Governor Says

The government has ordered the oldest group of men under selective service law—45 to 64 inclusive—to register on April 27 for possible non-combatant service in the future.

The new registration date proclaimed by President Roosevelt will leave only one group not yet recorded, those of 18 and 19 years. Estimates of the total registration for the 45-64 age group range around 15,000,000.

While none of these will be taken into the fighting forces, there is the possibility that some or many of them will be assigned to essential war work. General Lewis B. Hershey said that the registration would give an "accurate and systematic appraisal" of the supply of man power.

To Be Given Three Days

Maryland men will be given three days, April 25, 26 and 27, to register, Governor O'Conor announced, following a conference with Col. Henry C. Stanwood, Maryland director of selective service.

O'Conor said they expected approximately 200,000 registrants compared with the 138,000 previously unregistered men between 20 and 44 signed up last month. He said the same system would be used as was used the previous month.

Details of the registration, the fourth under the selective act of 1940, and the second since the United States entered the war, would be announced later.

The first draft registration since the World war was held on October 16, 1940, when about 17,000,000 men from 21 to 35, inclusive, registered. The second registration, of those who had become 21 since the first draft, was held last July and totaled about 750,000. The third group registered on February 16 and the lottery for that group was held last Tuesday. Estimates before the February 16 registration were that about 9,000,000 were in that age bracket.

No men over 45 were registered in the first World war, but Congress determined last December that use of older men for non-military work would be essential and the President declared it was necessary "to insure victory, final and complete."

The war department is planning a training course to put about 100,000 men and women in war work this year at civilian pay. The trainees, ineligible for active military service, would serve as overhaul and repair mechanics, production workers and inspectors at government factories, arsenals and depots.

T. B. Clinic Schedule

The tuberculosis clinic for Garrett county will be held on April 8, 1942, at 9:00 A. M. at the Health Department Office in the Court House, Oakland.

This is one of the clinics that are held every month in all the counties of Maryland by the Maryland Tuberculosis Association. All of these clinics are free.

Dr. Salkin, of Hopemont Sanitarium, will be in charge of the examinations.

Thirty-Five People On Preferred List For Tires This Week

Certificates Issued for 45 New Truck and 13 Passenger Car Tires

Thirty-five people came under the preferred list this week in regard to tires of all kinds, according to W. W. Dawson, chairman of the tire rationing board, as certificates were issued for 45 new truck tires and 26 new tubes, 13 new passenger tires and 5 tubes, 3 obsolete tires and 1 tube, and 6 retreads. Four was the highest number obtainable, Paul Sisler, Deer Park and Randall Wilburn getting that number of truck tires and tubes.

Others getting anywhere from three to one truck tires included Jonas Sines, Oakland; Floyd H. Jones, Gormania; G. O. Janoske, Oakland; Edward Tasker, Deer Park; C. A. Ringer, Grantsville; Pauline Frazee, Friendsville; Roy M. Myers, C. C. Goehringer, Accident; Ernest N. Selby, Selbysport; Judson Glotfelty, Accident; Francis Sanders, Oakland; John Rawlings, Kitzmiller; Gerald Glotfelty, Clarence Long, McHenry; Dale C. Harvey, Deer Park; Foster Frazee, Friendsville; Grantsville Coal Company; Harry F. Paugh, Deer Park; Arnold Humberson, Howard Evert Shahan, Oakland; William C. Roth, Oakland.

Passenger tires and tubes were obtained by the County Commissioners, the Health Department; Albert Baker, Swanton; Iva May Lytle, Friendsville; Dr. Calandrella, Kitzmiller; J. William Owens, Oakland; Rev. A. C. Curran, Bittinger. Retreads were obtained by Isaac E. Hardesty, Grantsville, Half Price Stores, Oakland, and Monheim Produce Company. Obsolete tires were obtained by Hervey W. Wolf, Oakland, and John Haenftling, Accident.

Mr. Dawson stated that there had been some misunderstanding with regard to retreads for passenger cars. Instructions from the State rationing administrator are to the effect that applications for retread passenger tires may be received from list B eligibles April 1 to 20, but certificates for list B eligibles may be issued only between April 25 and May 1. Applications of list A eligibles should be issued certificates for retreaded tires if these tires are capable of being retreaded or recapped. If not, they may receive certificates for new tires.

Public Schools Return To Normal Schedule Wednesday, April 1

Public schools of the county will return to normal time schedules on Wednesday, April 1, according to the plan put into effect several weeks ago when the nation switched to Eastern War Time.

At that time F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent, said that on account of the large number of farm boys and girls who came to school by bus, that school would open at 9:30 instead of 9:00 until April 1, when classes would begin again at 9 o'clock.

This adjustment gave the farm boys and girls an opportunity to do their chores in daylight hours before coming to school. Days have now lengthened considerably from the day when Eastern War Time first went into effect.

ACCIDENT AUDITORIUM IS NOW OFFICIALLY OPENED

Public Meeting Saturday Night Attended By Large Crowd; Many Speeches Are Made

The new auditorium for Accident school which was just completed, was officially opened for use last Saturday evening at a public meeting, when it was duly presented to the County Board of Education by the citizens' committee who had charge of the project.

The new auditorium fills a long-felt need for the Accident community and provides them with an auditorium said to be the best in the county at the present time.

B. O. Aiken, principal of the Accident school, served as chairman of the program committee. There were quite a number of speeches in regard to the opening and the presentation of the addition was made by Henry M. Speicher and accepted by Walter W. Dawson, president of the School Board.

Senator Clifford Friend gave a brief talk and members of the building committee, Frank E. Spoerlein, chairman, Henry Speicher, William Miller and Henry Harmon all expressed their appreciation to those responsible for passing the necessary legislation and to the Commissioners for securing the finances needed for erecting the auditorium. Also making short addresses were C. H. Browning and Paul M. Friend, commissioners; R. E. Guard, member of the School Board; Harry W. Altman, architect; W. A. Petry, contractor; C. O. LaClair Grover C. Stemple, W. W. Savage, and Ruth Scrogum, member of the senior class.

Music was furnished by the Accident Community band under the direction of H. A. Skidmore and the Accident girls' glee club under supervision of Mrs. Evangeline Glenn. A large crowd attended the meeting.

Mr. Aiken announced that the auditorium was open for inspection during school hours from Monday to Friday inclusive. Authority for construction of the addition was obtained by an act of the legislature and called for the erection of the auditorium and equipment of the same at a cost not to exceed $38,000.

Season for Grass Fires Under Way; No Damage Thus Far

The dangerous season of grass fires apparently has begun, with five calls for the Oakland Fire Department within the past week. Damage thus far has been negligible, but the fire chief issued a warning to all who planned to burn grass or brush to be extremely careful.

These people were urged to select a day with little or no wind, and to have plenty of water available for use the minute any fire appeared to be getting out of control.

Firemen were called last Thursday to a field adjoining the Ward Hinebaugh property, at the north end of Third street. Another call came as the result of a blaze in the field east of the town reservoir and back of the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Offutt.

Three calls were answered yesterday, one at the home of Richard Glotfelty, near town, another one near the George Moon property in Rosedale; and another one near the Kemphfer place, east of Oakland.

A brush fire west of Oakland was extinguished by CCC enrollees.

Load Restrictions Placed On Two County Roads

Load restrictions due to frost breaks in the road have been placed on two Maryland highways and both are in Garrett county, the chief engineer of the State Roads commission announced.

A 10,000-pound limit has been placed on route 42, from Blooming Rose to the Pennsylvania line and on route 219, from its junction with route 42, to Oakland.

In 1940 sixty-five sections of the highway were restricted to travel.

Red Cross Activity

Working at the Red Cross sewing room this week were Mrs. E. I. Baumgartner, Mrs. Hanson Friend, Miss Gladys Beckman, Miss Mabel Skipper, Mrs. F. J. Connolly, Mrs. Alvin Casteel, Mrs. Mae Lewis, Mrs. Harry Stemple, Mrs. O. T. Graser, Mrs. W. Hugh Teets.

Ninety-nine girls' skirts were completed and returned to Mrs. E. Z. Tower by the ladies of Deer Park. Mrs. Olive Lewis returned 24 pairs of booties and 12 baby slips. Four patchwork blankets were returned by Mrs. Emma Specht. Mrs. Alvin Casteel completed 23 pairs of booties.

Older Youth Group Installs Officers

The Older Louth group held its regular meeting in the Accident School building last Friday evening at which time the following newly elected officers were installed: George Porter, president; Roseanna White, vice president; Mildred Wensel, secretary; and Susanna Porter, treasurer.

Miss Marianna Lee Long, new home demonstration agent, spoke to the group on Victory Gardens. Following the business meeting a farewell party was given for Cecil Kight, who will leave for service in the armed forces in a few days.

The Older Youth Group is sponsored by the Extension service representatives. The president said the group was trying to do everything it could to help with national defense.

Rabbit Quota Will Be Short This Year

Garrett county is not expected to receive its full quota of rabbits for stocking purposes this spring, according to Joseph A. Minke, regional game warden.

The county was supposed to receive 600 but up to the present time has received 120. Allegany got 240 out of a scheduled 1,500. Neither county is likely to receive any more, Minke reported, because of the lateness of the season.

He explained that an early spring in the west and middle west, where the rabbits are obtained, had resulted in the trappers' returning to their regular occupation of farming, since trapping is just a sideline with them. A number of does died in transit also, he added.

The game warden reported that new turkey corrals have been placed in operation in both Garrett and Allegany counties for breeding purposes. About 300 bob-white quail are expected to be received next month, he said.

Twelve Gas Dealers Agree to Cooperate With 72-Hour Week

All But One Garage In Oakland Agree On "No Sunday Sales" During War Emergency

All but one garage and service station in town have agreed on similar hours of dispensing gasoline, to comply with request of the Federal authorities to confine their business hours to 72 hours per week, with no Sunday hours.

An announcement to this effect is being made by twelve establishments in this week's issue, and they state that no gasoline will be sold at all on Sundays, and that the week-day hours will be from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m.

Those who are cooperating with the wishes of the Federal government and helping in the war and defense effort include Sharps Motor Company, A. G. Hesen's Garage and Service Station, Leighton Brothers Garage, Whites Garage and Service Station, Blue Sunoco Service Station, Ralph Pritts Garage, Garrett Truck and Implement Company, Reckard and Glotfelty Garage, Ringer Independent Oil Company, Taylor Motor Company, Savage and Sanders Garage, East End Service Station.

Jaycees Ask Aid In Bringing Industry To Garrett County

Members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce have petitionel the representatives of this area in Congress, for help in working out a solution of the present economic conditions in Garrett county, and in bringing a small industry to Oakland.

Letters have been sent to Mrs. Katherine E. Byron, representative, and to Senators Millard E. Tydings and George Radcliffe.

The Jaycees point out that the only industries are coal mining and farming and that inducements for a small industry to locate include being on the main line of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, with overnight service to Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York, an adequate gas, electricity, water and fuel supply at reasonable rates.

The organization feels that a small industry would employ our own citizens and have a weekly payroll for the community. The next meeting of the Jaycees is on April 7 and it is the desire of the officers that a reply be made at that time.

VICTORY GARDEN LEADER WANTS PEOPLE TO AVOID MISTAKES OF LAST WAR

Emphasizes That Only Farmers And Those With Proper Knowledge And Facilities Should Grow Gardens

Emphasizing that every farmer and others with proper knowledge should grow a garden this year in the Victory Garden campaign, James A. Towler, county chairman, pointed out that the amateur gardner without proper facilities should hold his misguided patriotism in check as it would hurt rather than help the war effort.

But he urged all those who have some experience in gardening to continue that work and to enlarge their garden space this year in the campaign to grow more food.

An enrollment of members will be started soon but he said that people should not wait for that. They should select their garden plot, get the seed and fertilizer as soon as possible as both might be scarce this spring.

"Not since the first world war will we see as many vegetable gardens as this spring. Millions of people will make this contribution to victory. Their effort will take a load from an already overburdened transportation system. It will release canning capacity and allow more food to flow to our allies.

"In Garrett cuonty," he continued, "we hope to avoid mistakes made in 1917. At that time five million people planted victory gardens. They plowed up lawns, public parks, flower beds and city lots. Often as not the produce was negligible. We can't afford to duplicate these costly errors. The Government would prefer to see the amateur without proper facilities hold his misguided patriotism in check. It will hurt rather than help to buy $20.00 worth of tools, seeds and fertilizer and harvest 40 cents' worth of vegetables. He will be depleting the already scanty supply of seed and wasting valuable fertilizer. So only qualified people should plant gardens.

"Every farmer, however, in the county and all others who have suitable soil and the proper knowledge and facilities should grow a garden. Not too large a garden but large enough to grow what you need for your own use, at least. So plan now to join the Victory Garden Campaign," he concluded.

Order Numbers for Recent Registrants Are Being Made Up

Will Not Be Announced By Local Draft Board Until Next Week

Order numbers for the 1,112 people who registered in the third selective service draft in Garrett county will not be announced until next week, it was announced this morning by Harland L. Jones, clerk to the county draft board.

The master list of the March 17 lottery was received several days ago from national headquarters and the clerk is now at work rearranging the numbers, eliminating those which are greater than the number which registered with this board, and assigning order numbers as they apply locally.

Garrett county men are not expected to receive their questionnaires before May, but if classified in 1-A will be ready for military service in June.

As soon as the official order number list is completed it will be published in The Republican and also posted at the board's headquarters.

Mr. Jones said there were enough 1-B men on file at the draft office to care for all calls up until May.

Pupils of St. Peter's Church Are Grateful

Just a word of thanks to the business men and women of Oakland for their generous donations and prizes which helped to make the annual card and bingo party of St. Peter's school such a success. The pupils and sisters in charge wish to extend their heartfelt thanks.

Now In Who's Who

Among the 18 people from Delaware who were added to the 1942-43 edition of the American Who's Who, was the name of Rev. Samuel E. Wicker, D. D., of Wilmington.

Rev. Wicker, former pastor of the Lutheran church here, has been in Wilmington for quite a few years where he has been an instructor in DuPont high school. He has also kept active in the ministry and is engaged in Christian Education work in Philadelphia.

Much of his summer vacation is spent at the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. M. M. Ashby, on Third street.

Twice As Many Tires And Tubes Will Be Available In April

In Maryland 22,762 Tires and Tubes Will Be Obtainable

There will be almost twice as many tires and tubes available for rationing purposes in Maryland during April as were available this month, according to Louis C. Burr, State rationing administrator.

He disclosed that 22,762 tires and tubes will be available as compared to the March quota of 11,418. The chief reason for the increase is the release of 6,486 passenger retreaded tires. The OPA declined to issue permits for the purchase of retreaded passenger tires in March.

Garrett county's allotment includes:

Passenger vehicles: eleven new tires, twenty-four new tubes and thirty-eight retreads.

Trucks and buses: sixty-three new tires, fifty-nine tubes and fifty-six retreads.

Nearly 500,000 recapped tires will be made available throughout the nation for limited numbers of taxi drivers, defense workers, traveling salesmen and certain other civilians. In addition the April quota will release 101,636 new tires for passenger cars. For trucks 275,523 new tires and 246,442 recapped tires will be made available.

The passenger-car quotas in April will permit tire replacements at less than one-fifth of the rate replacements were made a year ago.

County-Wide Sewing Project Is Resumed

A county-wide sewing project, sponsored by the County Commissioners and under the women's division of the WPA, which was discontinued several months ago, was resumed on Wednesday with thirteen assigned to work.

The women assigned to work are being furnished transportation by the Commissioners and they are coming from Kitzmiller, Shallmar, Deer Park, Vindex and Hutton. Arrangements for the resumption of work were made by Mrs. Catherine Dwyer, state superintendent, who is in the county this week.

Miss Gertrude Browning has been named local supervisor with Mrs. J. G. Robinson as timekeeper. The women will be engaged in sewing various kinds of garments for distribution on the surplus commodities program and will work 120 hours each month. The sewing room is located in the Court House.

10,000 Tools Needed For War Effort Found In 125 NYA Centers

The Baltimore Sun in a copyrighted story reported that nearly 10,000 new machine and metal-working production tools of medium and heavy calibre are scattered throughout the country in 125 of the National Youth Administration's latest-model training centers.

More than half of these new machine and metal-working tools in these master centers are on the "critical" and "very critical" priority lists of the War Production Board.

The disclosure has started many Federal investigations.

Labeled as "critical" were engine lathes, spot and arc welders, drill presses, metal band saws, surface grinders and universal grinders of which there were 4,350.

In the "very critical" class ars milling machines of which the NYA centers have 250. The Sun quoted Aubrey Williams, NYA administrator, as saying the tools largely were taken "from backyard junk piles and re-conditioned" for use. Some of the tools were still in crates, according to the story.

CRIMINAL TRIALS COMPLETED IN CIRCUIT COURT

William Wilson And Harold Harvey Given Five- and Two-Year Sentences For Armed Robbery

With all of the criminal trials concluded, but few sentences pronounced, the March Term of the Garrett County Circuit Court continues in session today with two or three civil cases to be heard, which may run over into Friday, it was said by Court attaches this morning.

The two most important cases disposed of was the one of armed robbery against William Wilson and Harold W. Harvey, who were jointly indicted on the charge, and the one against C. C. Showe, apprehended on a worthless check charge growing out of his negotiations as manager for the Accident Stock Yards a year or more ago.

Wilson and Harvey Plead Guilty

Wilson, 19, and Harvey, 14, entered pleas of guilty to the charge of holding up James B. Collins, of Cumberland, on the Deer Park-Kitzmiller highway on Monday evening, February 9, with a sawed-off shotgun, robbing him of a small amount of cash, forcing him to surrender his automobile, which they drove off.

Both Harvey and Wilson were captured a few days later where Harvey lived with his father. The automobile was also recovered.

Wilson is an escaped prisoner from a West Virginia road gang and was under sentence in the West Virginia Penitentiary.

The Court sentenced Wilson to five years in the Maryland Penitentiary and Harvey to two years in the House of Correction.

Showe Guilty; Sentence Suspended

In the case of C. C. Showe, who was tried before the Court and a verdict of guilty pronounced and sentenced to serve two years in the House of Correction, but sentence was suspended upon condition he produce the sum of $400 before the next term of court and appear again at that time for further restitution.

Court officials are authority for the statement that Showe had written checks to the amount of $1000 to $1200 payable to farmers of the county for cattle sold at auction by Showe at the stock yards.

Sentenced for Jail Break

William Wilson also pleaded guilty to the offense of breaking jail and was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary for this offense, the sentence to run concurrently with his sentence for armed robbery.

Wilson escaped from the hospital room of the jail on Monday, February 23, along with Leroy Wilt, of Bear Hill, apprehended on a larceny charge. Wilson was captured the same day but Wilt still remains at large.

Chauncey Lowdermilk and Albert McCombie, pleaded guilty to the charge of aiding and assisting in the prison break of Wilson and Wilt, but have not yet been sentenced. Both admit that as "trusties" at the jail they purchased hack-saw blades which they turned over to Wilson and Wilt, with which the latter two sawed their way to freedom.

Swauger Found Guilty

Albert Swauger, charged with assault with intent to kill, was tried by a jury and found guilty. Sentence has not yet been passed. Swauger was charged with shooting his wife in the leg with a charge from a shotgun at their home near Jennings last fall.

Earl Wilt and Mark Wilt pleaded guilty to larceny and receiving stolen goods on two separate indictments. Sentence has not yet been passed.

Harry Warnick, tried before the Court on a bastardy charge, was found guilty and sentenced to pay $5 per month for sixteen years.

Lewis Kiser, pleaded guilty to the charge of non-support of his child and was ordered to pay $12.00 per month for such support.

Jasper Sisler, tried before a jury on the charge of unlawfully cutting timber near Sang Run, was found not guilty.

On a criminal appeal case from Friendsville, Charles A. Wilt, teacher in the Friendsville elementary school, was found not guilty of a charge of assault, brought by Walter Nicklow, a student in the high school there.

On the bench this week are Associate Judges William A. Huster and Joseph D. Mish.

The WPB intruded into the personal matter of male whiskers and ordered the manufacture of razors and blades sharply curtailed.

Teachers' College Head Speaks To Senior Groups

John L. Dunkle, president of the State Teachers' College at Frostburg, made his annual visit to the high schools of Friendsville, Accident and Oakland last week.

In talking with the senior classes at these high schools, he pointed out the opportunities at the college to complete the four years of work in three years, a plan which has been agreed upon by the State Board of Education and the teachers' colleges in order to meet the present emergency in staffing the public elementary schools.

Maryland will be short more than one hundred elementary teachers this year, even after using both its June graduates and making its juniors available for cadet teaching for the coming year, Mr. Dunkle said.

He urged every high school graduate that possibly could afford to enter college either at the summer term opening on June 22 or in September to extend his training so as to be of greater public service. He showed how a great number of students are using the college at Frostburg for pre-preparation to other professions and then transferring with full credit to other institutions.

The summer term at Frostburg will open Monday, June 22, and will close Friday, August 28. Tuition will be $35.00.

What to Do About Fencing and Roofing

It takes a lot of steel to fight a war. Some of it is coming from the steel roofing and fencing you had planned to buy this spring. There may be a little steel roofing left in some places, but if you find it consider yourself lucky. Instead of steel you can turn to heavy grade roll roofing with a high quality felt base for long life. Choose Unico Roll Roofing. It will stand the rain, sleet, wind, snow and sun for years without cracking, checking or drying out.

You can prolong the life of old paper roofs with Unico Liquid Asbestos Roof Cement. It will stay put in hot weather and yet not crack in cold weather.

As for steel fencing . . . You can make your three-strand barbed and smooth wire fence go three times as far with a Southern States Electric Fence Controller. The low-cost battery type will serve any farmer who does not yet have the farm wired. For sure-fire service there is the combination battery and house current model. String a single wire and hold back almost any livestock. They respect an electric fence, and your fencing problem is solved at a saving to you.

Cheer Up -- Paint Up

One farm supply you CAN get is paint. Ask for UNICO paint. It's made by your cooperative on the same high-grade specifications reached by test and experience before war broke. Unico paint will add as much as 16 years to the life of metal and wood buildings if thoroughly applied. There's nothing like UNICO paint to brighten things up.

Summer Camp Owners Must Get "Permits"

Health Department Requires That Sanitary Conditions Be Fulfilled

Owners and operators of all kinds of "summer" camps—tourist, trailer, recreational and labor—have been notified that permits, showing that the camps meet the sanitary requirements of the State Department of Health must be obtained before the camps may be opened for the season. This requirement applies to all camps—to those that have been established for some time, as well as to new ones just starting. Last year's permits do not hold over for this year.

Supervision of the camps is under the immediate direction of the county health officers. Operators are accordingly reminded by Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, that applications either for renewal of permits for camps already in existence, or for new ones, should be forwarded as promptly as possible to the county health officer of the county in which they are situated so that the necessary inspections may be made before the season opens. All camps that meet the State requirements will be duly certified and placarded. No camp may be operated without a license.

To be certified, each camp must comply with the regulations of the State Board of Health with regard to the water supply and toilet facilities; the general cleanliness of the buildings and grounds and the disposal of sewage, garbage and other wastes. Satisfactory arrangements must also be made for the proper handling of milk, cream, ice cream and other foods, sold on the premises.

Dr. Riley explained that the regulations apply to every camp or picnic ground that is used for six days or longer and that accommodates ten or more persons. In applying for permits, operators are requested to state the exact location of the proposed or existing camp, and to indicate the type—tourist, labor, trailer, recreation, etc. They must also indicate the approximate number of persons to be accommodated and the proposed duration of the camp season.

There has been a steady increase, year by year, in both the number of camps established and the number that have met the State requirements, since 1926, when the present regulations went into effect. In 1926, 48 camps were placarded. Over six times that number—310 camps—met the requirements and were duly certified, in 1941.

Of the 310 camps certified last year nearly half—160—were for tourists; 76 were used for recreational purposes; 54 as picnic grounds; 2 as labor camps, and there were 16 trailer camps.

Anne Arundel with 76 camps had the largest number certified in any one county; Harford came next with 33; Baltimore was third with 30; Washington was fourth with 28, and Prince George's followed with 24. Harford, with 25 camps for tourists, had the highest number of camps of that kind in any one county; Washington county had 22; Prince George's, 18; Allegany and Worcester 16 each, and the rest were scattered throughout the other counties.

FRIENDSVILLE

First Aid and Nutrition Classes

A meeting sponsored by officials of the Red Cross and Civil Defense organizations was held Thursday evening in the Friendsville school for the purpose of organizing classes in "First Aid" and "Nutrition." Delbert Davis, Oakland, was the principal speaker. Miss Dorothy Emerson, University of Maryland, College Park, discussed "Victory Gardens." Steel-Piercing Eye

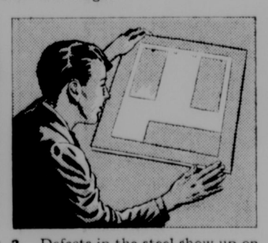
Steel used in vital parts for war machines—planes, tanks, ships, guns—must be flawless, because America's fighting men must have weapons that are both accurate and tough.

1. The new million volt X ray built by General Electric saves precious hours in finding flaws. It is so powerful that its rays can pierce thick steel castings.



2. Defects in the steel show up on X-ray film. Therefore faulty materials are tossed aside before costly hours of machining have been spent on them.

3. A regular check-up on pieces of X-ray film worn on workers' wrists helps guard against prolonged exposure to the rays given off by the X-ray tube.

4. X-ray exposure needed for 5-inch-thick steel is now 2 minutes instead of previous 3½ hours! Whole days are saved in examination of even thicker castings.

General Electric believes that its first duty as a good citizen is to be a good soldier.

Little Things That Will Help To Produce Big Crops

Seven simple, inexpensive measures are recommended by soil specialists of the extension service and soil conservation service as things farmers may well carry out in the situation which confronts them. Maryland farmers, they say, face their greatest responsibilities—to produce food to the absolute limit of their ability without over-expanding and without serious damage to their natural resources.

The simple recommendations were approved by supervisors of soil conservation districts throughout the State at a conference held recently at the University of Maryland.

Farmers are advised to plow, plant and cultivate across the slope, leaving the gullies in sod. The second measure is to follow all cultivated crops with a cover crop. Other recommendations are to keep all land covered during the winter; to lime and fertilize pastures and provide mid-summer pasture; to prevent crop losses on wet land by providing adequate drainage; to protect forest lands, and in selling timber to cut only mature trees and protect young trees. In the effort to meet production goals, it is recommended that it be accomplished as far as possible by more intensive use of the better lands, rather than by plowing up land that should not be cultivated.

It is recognized by the specialists that other measures than these simple practices are necessary to prevent loss from the soil, such as terraces, contour strip cropping, tile drainage, improved pasture and woodland management. While it is desirable that as much as possible be accomplished in carrying out the more extensive practices, it is the belief that practically all farmers can save much of their soil during the period of heavy production by following the recommendations. For assistance, farmers are advised to consult their county agent or soil conservation district supervisors.

DIARY OF THE WAR

FRIDAY—Japs were trying overland invasion on New Guinea in long thrust toward Port Moresby. There were violent air struggles as Allies bombed enemy held bases on outlying islands around Australia. Japs bombed Port Moresby and Darwin. Enemy troops were moving on British in Burma who were withdrawing to fixed lines. Much was said to depend there on Chinese troops as British were greatly outnumbered. Reds were beating on against powerful German counter-attacks. Hitler called back most of his high officers for conferences on a spring "offensive." Richard G. Casey, Australian minister to Washington, was named to the British war cabinet as minister for middle East. A Yugoslav freighter was sunk by U-boat off Atlantic coast.

SATURDAY—Allied accent was on impending offensive action in Pacific. MacArthur said he was organizing for such an offensive and for relief of Philippines. British and Chinese were in sharp actions in Burma. Japs raided Port Moresby twice but ineffectively. Allied and Jap planes were struggling for mastery of the air. Reds announced capture of another German defensive center in Staraya Russa region and reduction of fifteen German fortifications around Sevastopol by Soviet Black Sea fleet and coastal batteries. Germans admitted Russian attacks above Orel had broken Nazi lines. A Jap cruiser was blasted in New Britain by 2 U. S. bombers. Australia was seeking an equal voice in war plans of allies.

SUNDAY—Allied planes sank one Jap cruiser and damaged another, making 28 sunk or damaged around approaches to Australia. Japs again bombed points around Darwin. Allied planes increased offensive patrols and made attacks from Timor island to Solomons. They looked for an enemy armada. Tokyo claimed Jap troops had reached southern side of New Guinea. Headhunter tribes were said to be on warpath there against both sides. Sharp skirmishes took place along Bataan front in Philippines with Japs apparently getting ready to strike again. Many cruisers and destroyers were around islands. Japs also were massing for drive on Sittang line in Burma. Red divisions were training in Siberia for their own offensive against Nazis. Two Axis ships were sunk in Mediterranean.

MONDAY—Allied airmen struck at nests of Jap warplanes wrecking 23. Bases on New Guinea, New Britain and Timor all felt the offensive. Japs raided northern port of Darwin. Singapore's conqueror demanded surrender of Bataan by noon Sunday. Gen. Wainwright said "no reply was necessary and none was made. Jap big guns roared at Manila Bay fortress. British were holding in Burma. RAF made devastating raid on Jap base north of Rangoon. Japs replied with attack on central Burma airport. American volunteer pilots destroyed 15 Jap planes at Moulmein. Russia's armies pressed slowly forward against stiffer German resistance. Soviet sent American Airacobra fighter plane, to front one nAfrica British columns swept 25 miles from Tobruk and shelled airdromes and raided Axis outposts. Sir Stafford Cripps arrived in India to try to win India's full cooperation in war against Axis.

TUESDAY—British reported only light skirmishes in Burma but Chinese troops on the left had broken the Jap attack along Pyu river. Japs caused damage on Burmese airdrome with eighty plane assault, but British bombers raided Jap airdrome and destroyed ten planes. Jap planes also raided Wyndham and Port Moresby with little damage. Allied planes continued their patrol and bombed Dili on island of Timor. MacArthur spent day in conference with Australian leaders. In Philippines no major action was started despite surrender ultimatum of Japs. British subs in Mediterranean had knocked off 2 Italian subs, a troopship and eight other transports. Nazis caused casualties with dive-bomber attacks on British town on southeast coast. Russians indicated that Nazi resistance was stiffening but reported local successes. Nazis claimed their troops were on the offensive. U. S. subs reported sinking 3 Jap ships and hit a Jap airplane carrier.

WEDNESDAY—Port Moresby, in Southern New Guinea, was under violent bomber attacks as Japs strove to knock out that point in order to get into position to attack Australia. Corregidor fortress and Bataan line were under assault by fifty-four heavy Jap bombers. Damage was slight and three were shot down. There were sharp ground encounters. On Mindanao, Filipino troops caused tremendous loss to enemy motor column. In Burma the Chinese were engaged below Toungoo and allied air bases were damaged. American volunteer fighters raided enemy bases in Thailand, damaging forty planes on ground and smashing ten others. British damaged Italian battleship in Mediterranean. England had more overnight air raids. Russian front was unchanged as Germans were hurling reserves into the fray.

THURSDAY—Japs occupied Andaman islands in Bay of Bengal to creep closer to India. Land forces were advancing in central Burma. There was ineffective raid over Port Moresby by Japs. In Philippines there was further bombing attacks of allied line and more Jap reinforcements arrived. But Filipino lines remained strong and forces on Mindanao were keeping up effective resistance. U. S. Navy reported two powerful attacks on Wake and Marcus islands, latter just 950 miles from Tokyo, where they sank patrol boats, destroyed seaplanes and damaged airdromes, runways and defense batteries. Tokyo ordered blackouts. British gave details of victory in Mediterranean which damaged bit Italian battleships and two cruisers. British had cruiser and three destroyers damaged but got convoy safely through to Malta. War department awarded congressional medal of honor to MacArthur. Friction between Rumania and Hungary was growing. Subs sank two more ships off Atlantic coast.

AURORA-EGLON

Dr. and Mrs. Forest Stemple of Morgantown, were callers in Aurora, last Saturday.

Members of the Eglon Ladies' Aid Society will serve lunch at the public sale of Mrs. Bessie Evans, near Horse Shoe Run, on Saturday, March 28th.

Miss Jessie Trotter, retired teacher, of Shepherdstown and Aurora, has spent the past few weeks in Orlando, Florida.

A wreck occurred recently, when a Packard car, driven by Ralph Elliott, of Morgantown, who was accompanied by several friends of Aurora, went out of control when rounding a curve while decending Cheat mountain, and crashed into the guard rail. Fortunately no one was hurt, but the car was almost completely demolished.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Schrock, Aurora, entertained with a dinner Friday evening in honor of Charles Falkenstein, a draftee, who will leave soon for army service. Gilbert Arnold was also a guest at the dinner.

Some new farm machinery was delivered Monday to A. W. Fike and Nelson Harsh, both farmers, of near Eglon.

"Bud" Winters and daughter, Miss Hilda, of Mt. Lake Park, who returned Tuesday from an extended trip to Lakeland, Fla., visited at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Thurman Selders, Brookside, and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Winters, Horse Shoe Run, Wednesday.

Mrs. Lester Bachtel, of Gnegy church, is a patient in the Meyers Hospital, Philippi, where she underwent an operation on Wednesday.

Mrs. Lephia Gustafson, Eglon, received word that her daughter-in-law, Mrs. John Gustafson, had landed Wednesday, in California, enroute from Honolulu.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Martin, of near Brookside, went to New Jersey, March 17, where they plan to remain for some time.

Paul Myers, who has employment in Baltimore, spent last week at his home, at Aurora.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Gnegy, and Mr. and Mrs. Lester Wilt and baby, all of near Eglon, and Mrs. Harold Harsh and baby, of Stemple Ridge, went to Huttonsville, Sunday, where they visited Mr. and Mrs. John Beckman and family. The Beckmans were formerly of Eglon.

Mrs. Homer Fike, of Cash Valley, accompanied her husband on Monday, for a few days' visit, to Fairmont, where he has employment.

Mrs. Julius Arnold, Horse Shoe Run, went to Wenzel Hospital, Meyersdale, Pa., Thursday, March 19, for treatment.

Mrs. Arthur Jackson, of near Red House, is a patient in Memorial hospital, Cumberland, where she underwent an operation, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. "Doc" Burger and family have moved from Davis to the former Roy Teets' farm, near Eglon, which is now owned by Norman Walters, who is now a draftee in the U. S. army.

Artenis Harsh, Eglon, who has been employed in Morgantown for several months, is now home, due to lack of work.

R. J. Arnett, of Clinchburg, Va., spent several days recently with his aged mother, at Aurora, who is indisposed.

Revival meeting is being held at Aurora M. E. church, by the pastor, Rev. E. J. Johnson.

Willard Feather, Eglon, went to the Tucker County Hospital, Tuesday, for examination and treatment.

Graduates From Air School

Mark L. Schaefer, son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Schaefer, Grantsville, has been graduated from the world's largest air corps technical school at Sheppard Field, Texas, where he had been attending classes for the past several months.

Private Schaefer, attached to the 318th Technical School Squadron while in school, was graduated on March 22. He is now qualified as one of the eight specialists necessary to keep one plane in the air.

GRANTSVILLE

To Buy Timber Land

Arrangements were completed Friday by the Petit Wood Products Company of Grantsville, for the purchase of one hundred acres of timber land belonging to Clarence Beachy, two miles south of here. The company expects to begin operations in the near future.

The Petit Company, of which H. L. Petit is manager, is one of Grantsville's new enterprises. The company located here about six months ago, occupying the premises of the former P. W. Plumley Corp., and began the manufacture of ten pins, duck pins and candle pins. The product is turned out in the rough at the Grantsville plant and then sent to Cleveland where the pins are polished and distributed.

Party Is Held

Mrs. Hayward F. Broadwater and Mrs. Allen Rodamer jointly entertained at a desert bridge party last night at Mrs. Broadwater's home. Three tables of contract were in play. High honors went to Mrs. Julius Renninger and Mrs. Edwin Elias, Jr., and Mrs. Joseph F. Fahey received the floating prize. Other guests were Miss Kathryn Speicher, Accident; Miss Margaret Renstrom, Miss Emma Caulk, Miss Lucy Palmerino, Mrs. George B. Shields, Mrs. F. J. Getty, Mrs. W. C. Grimm and Mrs. Benny Epstein.

Students Organize

With the organizing of numerous classes in the community in connection with the local civilian defense program, the Grantsville school has not been idle in this respect. Edwin Elias, Jr., teacher of the seventh grade has been appointed as Air Raid Warden for the school. He has already organized the students and conducted two practice drills. A first aid corps, composed of seventh grade students, is being trained to act in emergencies and supplies for first aid kits are being provided. In addition the pupils in Mr. Elias' room have formed a Victory club to collect magazines and newspapers in this community.

Brief Mention

Mr. and Mrs. George D. Edwards have heard from their son Verl Edwards, on active duty with the U. S. Navy on the west coast, to the effect that he was well. This is the first message since November.

Still Useful . . . Because She's Been

Kept in Repair

She was launched in an almost forgotten era, but she does duty today as a training ship for young sailors, and she's sound and seaworthy as ever, because she's never been allowed to deteriorate. If you will apply the same principles to your electric appliances, keeping them in good working order, you'll find them still useful when the day comes that will make new ones available.

ASSIGNEES' SALE
—OF—
VALUABLE REAL ESTATE

Under and by virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage executed by Alva R. Martin and Nina F. Martin, his wife, bearing date the 15th day of August, 1938, and recorded in Liber No. 115, folio 580, Mortgage Records of Garrett County, Maryland, default having been made in the payment of the indebtedness secured by said mortgage as provided by the terms thereof, and the same having been assigned to the undersigned for the purpose of foreclosure, we hereby give notice that we will, on

SATURDAY,
The 18th Day of April, 1942,
At the Hour of 2:00 o'clock P. M.,

in front of the Court House in the town of Oakland, Garrett County, Maryland, offer and sell at public auction what is known as the A. R. Martin Farm, situate about 3½ miles South of Oakland, along U. S. Route No. 219, and described as follows:

All that piece or parcel of ground, situate, lying and being in Garrett County, Maryland, which was conveyed to the said Alva R. Martin by William H. Smouse and wife, by deed dated July 25, 1921, and recorded in Liber No. 82, folio 295, Land Records of said Garrett County, to which deed reference is hereby made for a description of said property by metes and bounds, courses and distances.

This farm contains 105 acres, 100 acres of which are cleared and in cultivation, and is one of the most desirable farms in this section of the County, particularly suitable for stock sale and dairy purposes. It is improved by a good, two-story frame house, with running water and bath, electric lights and a basement under the entire building; also two large, practically new concrete-block and frame barns, in excellent condition, one of which is also arranged for a machinery building and office, and has living quarters above.

The barns are properly partitioned and finished, inside and outside, having running water and electric lights; and form one of the major assets of the property. There are also other sheds and outbuildings. The farm is fenced and well watered.

Lying along a main highway, close to market, schools and churches, no better location can be found by anyone wishing to engage in farming or stock raising.

TERMS:—$500 cash on day of sale; balance upon ratification of sale and delivery of deed.

FRED. A. THAYER,
ERNEST RAY JONES,
Assignees of Mortgage for the Purpose of Foreclosure.

A reception was held in honor of Rev. and Mrs. H. Kearney Jones at the Episcopal Parish House on Tuesday evening, which was attended by a number of persons representing all congregations of the community. Rev. Jones was recently appointed rector of St. Matthew's parish, having arrived here with his family two or three weeks ago.

Dr. A. B. Leamer, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church, who has been at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Sadler, in Allentown, Pa., for the past three weeks convalescing following a serious operation in Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., will return to Oakland this evening. He will continue to be assisted in his regular church duties during Holy Week and Easter by the Rev. Charles R. Stevens, who has been supplying here during Dr. Leamer's illness.

Woodmen Circle Discusses Plans

Mrs. Henrietta Snider, of Richmond, Va., Maryland State Manager of the Woodmen Circle, met with officers and members of Crellin and Oakland Grove No. 3, Woodmen Circle at a special meeting last Thursday, March 19.

Local and state problems, along with plans for the year, were discussed by Mrs. Snider and the local officers and members of the Woodmen Circle.

During the evening "Gamma Rho," Tau-Phi-Lambda chapter, organized a degree team with the assistance of Mrs. Snider and spent some time in practice.

This group of girls hopes to be able to assist with the floor work at the next District Convention which will be held in Cumberland early in May.

The Grove is doing its share of home defense work. More than 300 garments have been made by the different members, together with a quantity of knitted articles. Many of the members also attended the first aid and nursing classes.

Miss Louise Casteel spent yesterday in Fairmont, West Va., with relatives.

Methodist Choir To Present Cantata On This Sunday Evening

The choir of St. Paul's Methodist church will present a musical program for the public on Sunday night, singing J. H. Maunder's Lenten cantata, "Penitence, Pardon and Peace." Mrs. Frederick A. Thayer, Jr., is director of the choir, and Julius B. Littman is organ accompanist. The presentation Sunday night will climax many weeks of preparation to make this cantata an inspiring part of the church's Holy Week program.

The cantata follows the thought of its title by leading the hearer through the three successive stages of spiritual regeneration: first penitence, the divine pardon, followed by a sense of forgiveness leading to inner peace. It does this by the use of various scriptural passages set to sympathetic music, with moving choruses, mood-changing solos, and some very impressive organ background. Rev. Minor Sprague, pastor, explained.

Solos, or solo parts, are sung by Mrs. Thayer, Virginia Lawton, Roseanna White, Nancy Lou Dawson, Frederick A. Thayer, Jr., Mrs. Minor Sprague, Rev. Sprague, Barbara Smith, Florence Sisk, Donna Littman, Susanna Porter, Mrs. Susanna Porter and Mary Claudice Fraley.

After a stirring chorus of praise, the cantata closes with mighty unison ascription to the Father, Son and Holy Ghost that amounts to a benediction from the hearts of singers and hearers alike.

The service begins at 7:30, and is for all who care to attend.

MARRIED

MAROTTE—WRIGHT—Mrs. U. S. Wright, Lonaconing, has announced the marriage of her daughter, Dorothy Elizabeth Wright, to Edwin Campbell Marotte, of near Scranton, Pa. The ceremony was performed Wednesday, February 25, at the Methodist parsonage in Winchester, Va., by the Rev. T. R. Swann.

The bride is a graduate of Central High school, Lonaconing, 1936, and of Dickinson College, 1940. For the past year and a half she has been a member of the Garrett County Welfare Board and has resided on Alder street. Mr. Marotte is also a graduate of Dickinson College and for the past year or more attended Dickinson Law school.

Mrs. Marotte's father was the late Rev. U. S. Wright, and resided in Mountain Lake Park.

KEEFE—PERDEW — Announcement has been made of the marriage of Joseph W. Keefe, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Keefe, of near Grantsville, and Miss Eleanor C. Perdew, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Perdew, of Frostburg. The wedding took place last November 1, at St. Michael's Catholic church, in Frostburg, with the Rev. Fr. Montgomery officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Peter J. McGee were the only attendants.

The bride is a graduate of Beall High school, Frostburg, and of Allegany Hospital School of Nursing, class of 1941. Mr. Keefe was graduated from Grantsville High school. The couple will reside in Cumberland, both being employed in that city.

Public Concert Is Arranged By Glee Club and Orchestra

High School Organizations to Present Free Entertainment Tomorrow Evening

Members of the Oakland High School Glee club and Orchestra have arranged a concert for public presentation on Friday evening, March 27, beginning at 8 o'clock, in the Oakland High school auditorium. There will be no admission charge and everyone has been invited to attend.

The program includes the following numbers:

Aida March, by orchestra.

Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag, glee club and orchestra.

Winter Song, House by the Side of the Road and Water Boy, by the glee club.

Evening Star, cello solo, by Mary Claudis Fraley.

Goin' Home, Shout Aloud in Triumph, by glee club.

List the Cherubic Host, and Now the Day is Over, by the glee club.

The program will conclude with everyone singing the Star Spangled Banner.

Navy Begins Extensive Drive Throughout Entire State

Navy recruiting officers are now being sent to every section of the State. Because of various reasons, many men have found it difficult to visit the recruiting stations in the larger cities. By the announced method, the Commander hopes to reduce the amount of traveling necessary on the part of applicants. Mobile units are being sent to every community and town in the area. Draft boards and postoffices are cooperating also, special stamp free post cards are being sent to these agencies to be given to men interested in the Navy. Upon receipt of these cards, the recruiting officers will contact the interested applicant personally.

Anyone desiring any information about the Navy may inquire at their nearest postoffice or draft board.

Cumberland "Y" Boys Visit the Stanton Maple Sugar Camp

Thirty-two boys from the Cumberland Y.M.C.A. spent last Saturday at the sugar camp on the Guy S. Stanton farm near Grantsville. The boys were accompanied by William Lewis and Edwin L. Kuhn.

A visit to this camp has been an annual event for the Cumberland group, their arrival being timed with the making of syrup and sugar in progress.

Mr. Stanton opened his sugar camp about three weeks ago and from 375 barrels of sugar water thus far has made between 275 and 300 gallons of syrup.

Government approved a price increase on gas and fuel oil of half a cent a gallon in 17 eastern and southern states and the District.

Holy Week Services To Be Held In Mountain Lake Park

Special services will be held at the Bethel Methodist church in Mountain Lake Park every night during Holy Week except Saturday.

Rev. C. E. Brandt, of Romney, Superintendent of the Moorefield District of the Methodist church, will preach Sunday night. Rev. Garrett H. Evans, minister of the charge, will preach during the week, using the Lord's Prayer as a background for a study of Christ's message to the world.

All the churches of the charge are uniting for these services. Special music will be furnished by choirs from Bethel church, Wesley chapel and White church.

Miss Ruth Ann Poling will appear twice as soloist, singing "The Palms" and "The Lord's Prayer." Miss Florence Sisk will also appear as a soloist.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be celebrated on Thursday night.

A Shortage of Maple Sweets

About all we hear of late is "Wonder where I can get some new maple syrup and maple sugar." In fact, we even get letters asking the question.

Last week we made a quick survey. Found in one store there was some—not much—then we learned that if we got in touch with a certain producer we just might be able to get a small amount. When we began to question why there wasn't much of this Garrett county sweet we were told that first the weather had a great deal to do with with the "runs"; next that quite a quantity was shipped to Vermont and there put up under the Vermont name. Somehow we just couldn't take that in. Why sell there when Garrett county could make a real industry out of it for the producers here at home?

We don't know much about it, and after all we were only interested in locating it for friends wanting to buy.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Bleakly and son Billy, of Cumberland, have taken up their residence here in the Bleakly home. Mr. Bleakly is now employed on the Savage River dam project.

Mrs. E. L. Winchell, who has been ill for several weeks, is improving, though unable to be out.

C. B. Speicher was a visitor to Keyser on Tuesday.

Among those here for the funeral of the late Mrs. Wiley W. Welling Jr., on Wednesday were Mrs. Elza Nave, of Cumberland; Mr. and Mrs. Lee D. Saunders and family, Lewistown, Pa. who were guests at the Wiley Welling, Sr., home. Others here were Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Meadows, of Packaneck, N. J., and Harry Meadows, of New York City.

C. O. Thayer, Fairchance, Pa., was a Park visitor on Saturday.

Miles Poindexter III, of Lynchburg, Va., was visiting Mr. and Mrs. Bushrod Grimes over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. John Stevenson, Sr., Mrs. F. M. Deane and Mrs. Florence Murphy were visitors in Cumberland last week.

MY MOTHER'S PRAYER

My country calls me—I must part
From loved ones, with an aching heart,
But this I know, where'er I be,
My mother's prayers will follow me.

To foreign lands I now must go
To help to conquer our deadly foe—
I'll sail across the great wide sea,
And mother's prayers will follow me.

I have no fear, whate'er betide,
For my dear Lord is at my side:
He's on the land and on the sea
And mother's prayers will follow me.

He'll guide me through the thickest fight—
He'll be with me by day and night,
He's Captain of the brave and free,
And mother's prayers will follow me.

And when this awful conflict's o'er
And peace shall reign forevermore,
Oh, how our hearts will throb with joy
For mother's prayers have saved her boy.

A GOOD NEIGHBOR POLICY

and party-line service

NOW that we can no longer get all the copper we need for telephone lines, more and more families will find it necessary to accept party-line telephone service. In doing so they will help to conserve a vital war material.

Party-line service is good service when users on the same line are considerate of each other—when they answer their calls promptly—hold the line no longer than is reasonable and always replace the receiver when they have finished.

A good neighbor policy "along party lines" will give better telephone service to more people.

IMPORTANCE OF NUTRITION

The public has been hearing a great deal about nutrition in the past few months. Perhaps you are one of those who have turned aside saying "Just another fad," or "I don't need that." You're wrong: the science of nutrition is here to stay and all of us need to learn more about the foods we eat.

Nutrition is more important than you realize. You are probably spending a large part of your income for food. But are you spending that money wisely? Are you buying illness or health? Are you perhaps buying a toothache for Johnny, a poor complexion for Mary, and a headache for yourself? The science of nutrition can answer these questions for you.

Do you realize that you may be getting too much to eat and still be poorly nourished? Many cases of malnutrition (poor health associated with improper eating) are found among the wealthiest children. They get plenty to eat but not enough of the right kinds of foods. They eat what they want, and so their growth is stunted, they tire easily, they are susceptible to infections and their school work suffers.

Teachers have found that a large percentage of backward children are not properly nourished. When the diet is corrected they become healthier and many are found to be just as bright as other children. Poor diet in early childhood results in underweight, listlessness and inattention on the part of the child. Can you wonder that he fails to keep up with the well-fed children?

Many disorders are associated with wrong feeding. The so-called deficiency diseases are good examples. Scurvy, rickets and pellagra, for example, are the result of extreme vitamin deficiences. It is unlikely that any of my readers have a diet as low in vitamin as to contract these disorders. However, it is extremely likely that you are not getting enough to give you buoyant health. So many people live in a twilight zone between illness and health. They are neither sick nor are they well. They suffer with vague ill-defined disorders. Perhaps they have headaches, nervousness, constipation, sallow complexion and are always tired. They could be much healthier and happier if they would just improve their diet.

Did you know that your disposition is affected by the foods you eat? The chronic grouch may be largely a matter of incorrect diet. Give him the right foods and perhaps the bad disposition will disappear. One dietary necessity which affects our disposition is calcium. You probably know this mineral as lime. The source of calcium in the human diet is milk.

Other dietary deficiencies may affect your youthfulness. We all want to stay young as long as possible. We want to defer old age if we can. A famous chemist, Dr. Henry Sherman, has said that the prime of life can be extended in both directions. That is maturity is reached sooner and the prime of life is retained longer on a well selected diet.

Growth too is dependent on diet. You have gradually built your bodies for the foods you have consumed. The glass of milk you drink today will be a part of you tomorrow. How well you have built depends largely on what you have eaten, for our foods must contain the chemical elements of which our bodies are composed. Not only do we eat to build our tissues but also to repair them. Our bodies are constantly wearing out and being rebuilt. The little cells of which we are composed are always being destroyed and new ones must be made to take their places. A good example of this is the skin. You yourself can see how your skin peels off and new skin appears. All our other tissues are likewise replaced.

The foregoing may sound complicated to you. However, don't worry; you don't need to be a nutritionist to eat correctly. A simple diet in terms of foods has been worked out for you. Check your menu every days to see if you have included the following:

One pint milk for adults and 1 quart for children; 1 egg (or at least four per week); 4 servings of fruit or vegetables (not including potatoes). One of these must be a citrus fruit, as orange or grapefruit, or tomatoes; another must be a green leafy vegetable or carrots.

At least one serving of meat, fish or cheese. Once a week the meat should be fish and once a week liver must be used.

One serving whole grain cereal or whole grain bread; 2 to 3 tablespoons butter or vitamin fortified margarine.

To round out the above diet and to supply needed energy, other foods may be and should be added. Fish liver oils and vitamin D, milk (irradiated) may be needed to supply additional vitamin D as a supplement to sunshine.

In future columns the recommended diet will be discussed in detail, and suggestions made as to methods of incorporating these foods in the family meals.

Any questions dealing with nutrition, food preparation, in short, any household problem, may be sent to me at the Extension Service, Oakland, Maryland. If the problem is of sufficient general interest, the answer will appear in this column. Otherwise, a personal letter will be sent to the reader submitting the question.

J. E. Harned Discusses His Book at Cumberland Meeting

Joseph E. Harned, Oakland, discussed his book, "Wild Flowers of the Alleghanies," and illustrated it with colored slides, at the dinner meeting of the principals of the Allegany county elementary schools on Monday evening at Cumberland. He generally described the families to which they belong, and how to identify them as well as where they may be found. He related numerous legends of the flowers and how they received their names, describing those that are becoming rare as well as the common ones.

Mr. Harned explained some of the technical things about the flowers and the way to satisfy the natural curiosity of children on the subject. He spoke of the insects and birds, showing slides of their nesting places among the flowers.

Extra Battle Fleet

The American people could have an extra battle fleet of 195 ships if Senator Byrd's demands to cut out 2 billion dollars of peace-time frills are followed and the money devoted to the nation's defense.

We could have 10 battleships, 20 heavy cruisers, 5 aircraft carriers, 60 submarines and 100 destroyers.

Senator Byrd has recommended abolition of the CCC, NYA, WPA, farm-tenant program, farm security administration, public works and road projects not connected with national defense, reduce overhead and other administrative expenses of non-defense departments and agencies, defer all agricultural department land purchases and cut the Agricultural Department's overhead expenses.

Such an additio to our navy would make it the most powerful in the world.

But will Congress do it? There's a chance if the citizens demand it.

* * *

While the government hollers to save paper, the federal agencies continue to send it to this office almost faster than we can throw it in the waste basket.

Just this week we got a few sheets of paper 8x11 inches. It was mailed in a heavy kraft envelope size 11x16. At about the same time a paper salesman happened in the office. He told us that envelopes like that cost about $30.00 a thousand—three cents each.

How many three-cent envelopes were sent out that day we have no way of knowing but we'll wager the number was considerable.

"Sugar-Coated Pills"

Since we are to be called upon soon to reduce our use of sugar, these statistics might be considered:

Every time a 16-inch gun is fired on a battleship it eats up the distilled product of a fifth of an acre of sugar cane; 1,000 field pieces in an hour's firing burn up as much sugar as could be refined from a field two-thirds of a mile square; from nine-tenths of a pound of sugar is made enough alcohol to make, together with nitric acid and ordinary gun-cotton, a pound of smokeless powder.

Sugar alcohol is also used to make "dope" for airplane wing fabrics, and explosive in bomb and shell fuses.

Householders will be glad to cut down on sugar if it is needed for the war effort. Will the whiskey drinkers be willing to do likewise?

GORTNER

You are invited to attend church services Sunday morning and Sunday evening.

The fiftieth annual reogranization of the Union Sunday school took place last Sunday morning with the officers of last year reelected, as follows: Superintendent, S. W. Slabach; assistant superintendent, Jacob Swartzentruber; treasurer, Paul Welch; secretary, Mrs. Elwood Schlossnagle.

Mrs. W. E. Spoerlein will entertain the April Brethren Ladies' Aid upon her return from Lakeland, Florida, shortly after Easter.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Swartzentruber spent the week-end at Hartville, O. Mrs. Swartzentruber is remaining for a week with her son Merle, who is employed in that town.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Gortner, who were employed in Baltimore and are enroute to their home in Mazon, Ill., were guests of the Gortners here on Tuesday.

Mrs. Hervey Roth visited with her mother at Red House on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Swartzentruber and children and Mr. and Mrs. Harold White and daughter spent last Thursday evening at S. W. Slabach's.

Elwood Beckman, who has been employed at the Beckman sawmill at Altamont, is at his home recovering from an injury sustained when he was attempting to crank a tractor.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Coblentz, of Springs, were guests on Sunday of Mrs. Ira Yoder.

Mrs. Harold White and Mrs. Harvey Swartzentruber and daughters visited Mrs. Alma Bell at Loch Lynn.

George Lohr spent one day last week with Mrs. Robert Paugh and Mrs. Osborne Beckman at Lynndale.

Sam Slabach, Miss Lena Slabach, Mary Ellen Kitzmiller, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Spoerlein and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sisk were entertained very pleasantly at the home of Mr. and Mrs. August Killius, Loch Lynn, on Saturday evening, the occasion marking the birthday anniversaries of Mrs. Sisk and Miss Mildred Killius. Other guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Olonzo Fike and children, of Mountain Lake; Miss Florence Cook, of Loch Lynn, and Mrs. Jennie Forman, of New York.

Mrs. Harry Beeghley, Mrs. Otis Swiger and Mrs. Mary Burkholder attended a quilting party at Mrs. Hubert Martin's at Sunnyside.

Mrs. Paul Welch and Mr. and Mrs. Eli Beachy and members of their family spent Saturday with Sam Beachy and family at Salisbury, Pa. Mr. Sam Beachy remains quite ill.

Recent visitors at the home of Otho Friend were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Miller, Rowlesburg; Mrs. Harland L. Paugh and daughter, of Loch Lynn; Mrs. Harvey Swartzentruber and Miss Bertha Davis, of Hutton.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Swartzentruber had as visitors on Sunday Mrs. Myrtle Durban and son Charles, Max and Helen White, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Beckman and children, Mr. and Mrs. William DeBerry and Harold White and family.

Sugar Sales to Be Halted April 27th For 1-Week Period

Dates Set for National Registration, Necessary Before Rationing Books Are Distributed

All sugar sales in the United States are to be halted at midnight, April 27, for approximately one week, according to government officials, who also set six days in April and May for the nation-wide sugar rationing registration.

The national registration will be the biggest in history of the country, as it involves every man, woman and child in the country. It will also be a basis for rationing of all kinds, if that is necessary.

Individuals or family consumers will register May 4, 5, 6 and 7 at public elementary schools and wholesalers, retailers, bakers, confectioners and other industrial users will register April 28 and 29. Teachers will serve as registrars.

It has not been determined definitely whether the weekly individual ration will be one-half pound or three-quarters of a pound.

One member of a family can register the entire household, filling out and signing an application, giving name, age and address of each applicant and the amount of sugar on hand. Each person will receive a war ration book which will contain twenty-eight stamps. Each stamp will represent a two-week sugar allotment.

The registrar will tear out of the book a sufficient number of stamps to cover the amount of sugar in excess of two pounds per person on hand at the time of registration.

Consumers will give stamps to storekeepers when purchases are made, and the storekeepers will use the accumulated stamps in turn when they buy fresh supplies.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS . . . .

By FRANK R. KENT

BLOCKED AGAIN?

Washington, March 21.

Again the power of the labor lobbyists with this Administration has been demonstrated. At the moment when Congress once more appeared to enact legislation relaxing the 40-hour week and other hampering provisions of the law, the President has stepped in to stop it.

* * *

This is not the first nor the second nor the third time that that has happened. At any time in the past twenty months Congress would have passed modifying labor legislation had not the weight of the White House been against it. Actually the House has twice passed such a bill, but both times the White House influence has succeeded in burying it in the Senate committee.

* * *

The developments of the past week are significant. First, there was the strong movement among members of Congress, prodded by their constituents, to establish the forty-eight instead of the forty-hour week for the duration of the war. When this movement was at its height a conference of the labor lobbyists with the President was held at the White House. From there the former emerged declaring that labor voluntarily relinquished the right to strike and that no legislation was necessary. Immediately, the President declared against relaxing the forty-hour week and urged that Congress take no action.

* * *

It has all the appearance of a deal—a deal by which, in return for the statement against strikes, the President would block the proposed legislation. From the standpoint of the national interests it seems a poor deal. In the first place, this statement about giving up the right to strike has been made before. Yet strikes continue. Last week there were twenty-five strikes, slow-downs and other disputes, holding up production and involving 6,684 employes. In the second place, the reiterated declaration was clearly timed to head off Congressional action.

* * *

Mr. Roosevelt, on his part, was not content with declaring against extending the forty-hour week and dismissing strikes as not as serious to production as the common cold. In addition, a formidable group of his aides went before the Senate committee to oppose the pending legislation. Among them was Mr. Knudsen, who some time ago endorsed the St. Lawrence waterways project because "they asked me to," and Under Secretary of War Patterson, who last Labor Day, for the same reason, sent messages to Mr. Murray and Mr. Green congratulating them on the splendid record of labor, though millions of man days had been lost through strikes on defense contracts of Mr. Patterson's own department—and, as he well knew, millions more were to be lost. As a climax to this merging of labor leader and Administration interests came the great "production drive" announced by Mr. Donald Nelson, of the WPB. The shape this drive took was a "recommendation," amounting to an order, from Mr.Nelson to the heads of defense plants to organize labor-management committees in their establishments. The labor part of these committees consists exclusively of union men, and the practical effect is to advance them toward partnership in the plants.

* * *

Mr. Nelson's publicity department did a fine job of sugar-coating the pill and Mr. Nelson put the industrialsists in a position where they could not reject his recommendation by telegraphing them that "I count upon your patriotism to cooperate." Nevertheless, despite the disclaimers, it is clear this plan originated with the labor leaders and is being forced upon industry.

It is a modified adaptation of Mr. Murray's ideas as presented in a recent magazine article and moves toward that management participation which is the labor-leader goal. One claim is that it will increase production. The other is that the reverse will result—that production will be slowed down by long, messy conferences; by weakening of discipline and by disputes over policies. What seems the fact is that Mr. Nelson is opposing extension of the forty-hour week, which would certainly increase production, and is insisting upon a confused and dubious scheme, first suggested by bombastic CIO leaders and aimed in the direction of industrial socialization.

* * *

All these implications are denied by Mr. Nelson and his publicity directors. But the facts sustain them, and no better evidence can be asked than the gloating speeches of the labor leaders about Mr. Nelson and his "production drive." Their publicity forces joined with his and supplementing those of the White House, combine to make a very strong ballyhoo, indeed. But only the undiscerning are deceived. The truth is that this move plays the union game and greatly disheartening to the men upon whom responsibility for production really rests.

* * *

Whether Congress can stand firm against all this is questionable. It is a stiff aggregation to defy—the President, the heads of his war agencies; his legislative leaders and the labor lobby. There is enough here to take the steam out of those who have been demanding remedial legislation. Probably, once more Congress will wilt under pressure. However, there is a chance it may not. An election looms and most members know there is strong popular resentment "back home" over failure to deal firmly with this foryt-hour-a-week business.

Regional Traffic School To Be Held In Cumberland

A regional FBI traffic school is to be held in Cumberland beginning on March 30 and continuing through April 4, it has been announced by E. A. Soucy, special agent in charge of the Baltimore office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The school is for law enforcement officers, traffic accident investigators, local, county and State highway engineers from Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties, Maryland; Bedford and Somerset counties, Pa., and Berkeley, Grant, Hampshire, Hardy, Mineral, Morgan and Jefferson counties, West Va.

Instructors will be Nelson Watson and C. O. Forrester. Topics to be taught include bomb damage to building, streets, electric systems during air raids; accidents during blackouts, handling crowds during and after air raids, traffic control of pedestrians and motor cars during raids and blackouts and a number of other subjects.

Government to Take Railroad Land Right Away Near Dam Site

Federal Judge R. M. Gibson in Pittsburgh signed an order last Thursday authorizing the government to take possession immediately of and title to 72.5 acres of land, comprising the right of way of the Confluence and Oakland branch of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, from Confluence, Pa., to the Maryland state line.

The land will be used as part of the site of the Youghiogheny river flood control reservoir, near Confluence.

The railroad branch extends from Confluence to Kendall, Md. Condemnation proceedings in the district court in Baltimore have been instituted to take the road's right-of-way in Maryland. The Maryland Public Service Commission and the McCullough Coal Company opposed Maryland action, contending abandonment of the road would deprive the company of shipping facilities. The government contended immediate possession of the land is needed to avoid a delay in completion of the reservoir.

Last week information was released saying that demolition of the road would be delayed until April 1st to allow the company to fulfill existing contracts.

Turning Over An Old Leaf

By Phillip A. Gladheim

"There were faces to remember in the Valley of the Shadow;
There were faces unregarded, there were faces to forget;
There were fires of grief and fear that are a few forgotten ashes;
There were sparks of recognition that are not forgotten yet."

If someone were to propose that you sell your home for a certain amount of money with the stipulation that the new owner would convert your personal property, together with the house and real-estate, into a noisy tavern, and that you, with your family, must remain as servants—you would say that any man who made such a proposition would be insane—and any man who accepted it would be a moron.

The spoilation of our forests can be simply accounted for. Our men have less honor, backbone, the will to work, and more greed for money. And what a pitable small amount they receive for such immense natural wealth; a kind of wealth that leaves the land when the trees are felled.

This county is our larger home. It is being 'raped' and we stand mute in the presence of its increasing desolation. We were horrified two years back when we learned that the policy of the State Forester allowed for the destruction of a tract of virgin oak, which, as we know, was turned into staves for whiskey barrels. We have more recently been appalled by the attempt to remove the beautiful garment of trees in Mt. Lake Park, and expose her nakedness. Last week it was learned from direct sources in a mill in the lower Yough Valley that many of our priceless maple groves were hearing the whang of the axe instead of the bore of the augur—and that these great trees were being turned into ten pins for bowling alleys.

The Maple Sugar crop, according to the papers, has been below normal during the past five years, due to weather conditions. On top of this the owners complain that labor is scarce. Thus they propose rather than let these groves remain idle to sell them—because they think money is more important.

When financial obligations become so pressing that a landowner must despoil his land—money has become far too important. There is still plenty of labor to be had for such seasonal work as making maple sugar. The real truth of the matter is that many owners of maple groves are not as much interested in preserving a valuable industry, and an ornament of beauty, as they are to get hold of some ready cash. They very likely made no particular effort to locate labor thru the proper channels. They are using this as an excuse so that the public will be less apt to criticise them for selling their maple groves. The owner of such groves has full rights to his property; there is no law that can enforce upon him a wisdom that he does not possess himself. It is tragic to conclude that this generation has lost its proper sense of values—that to many of our people money is so important that they will virtually sell themselves unto a slavery and their lands unto despoilers.

One would think that because of the increased scarcity of sugar every Maple Sugar grove in the county would have been tapped this March—but according to reports not more than sixty percent of the camps were in operation. Is the time almost here that a maple grove will be as scarce as a mill and water-race? Is the Maple Grove just a useless hangover from the past? We can't turn back the pages of the calendar—but we can be sorry that we live in a day when our neighbors prefer whiskey staves for an Oak forest and ten pins for a Maple Grove.

AVILTON

There will be Sunday school at Cherry Grove church, Sunday morning, March 29, at 11 o'clock.

Get Regular Service According to Factory Standards to Make Sure Your Car Lasts as Long as It Should

THESE days it isn't enough to get service from someone who "knows automobiles."

You need the help of someone who knows your automobile and its special needs.

For example: Maybe your Buick should have a new oil filter element. There are six definite steps to be followed if this is replaced by a standard equipment filter. Five entirely different things must be watched if other equipment is used.

Our service Conserves Your Car by knowing what to do and how to do it—and by doing it in time. Can you be sure of as much elsewhere?

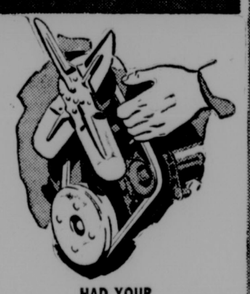
Better not take chances. Attention by our authorized factory-trained mechanics costs no more than good work anywhere.

We make no charge for a check-up on your car by authorized factory-trained mechanics. Drop in for one soon, and let us explain C-Y-C Service in detail.



HAD YOUR SPRING COOLING CHECK-UP?

Engine efficiency, and with it gas and oil mileage, calls for a cooling system that functions properly in all seasons and all parts. Just flushing the radiator is only part of the job.

Now is also the time to drain out worn winter oil, refill with the proper spring and summer oils, give the chassis a spring lubrication, change transmission and differential lubricants.

"Ye Shall Live Also" . . .

By REV. MINOR SPRAGUE, Pastor St. Paul's Methodist Church.

A world in the throes of war pauses at the miracle of a life that could not die and a grave that opened. The roar of motors, the screams of bombs and their victims, the marching feet of men, cannot erase the memory of a wonderful hope planted in human hearts by Jesus Christ on a day long ago.

Death and the possibility of death are the constant companions of man today. That is why he pricks up his ears at mention of everlasting life; why he takes hope amid present horrors. For he wants to believe that his life and efforts are not in vain; that the good in him will live on.

To the man of today—poor, baffled, beleaguered, aspiring man—Jesus Christ brings the one thing he can hold to. "Because I live ye shall live also." And, "Be not afraid, I have overcome the world."

SPECIAL EASTER SERVICES TO BE OBSERVED HERE

All Churches of Oakland to Celebrate Christ's Resurrection With Worshipful Meetings

All churches in Oakland and throughout most of the county are having special services in observance of the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ.

During the Lenten season union services have been conducted by the Protestant churches and these services will be concluded with a Good Friday afternoon service from 12 o'clock noon until 3 p. m., in the Lutheran church for the Methodist and Lutheran congregations, while there will also be a three-hour service in the Episcopal church and the Catholic church.

Protestant churches are having communion services in their own churches this evening. The final sermon of the union Lenten Services was preached in the Methodist church last night by Rev. Charles Stevens, Lutheran supply pastor.

The various churches will have services as follows:

Plans Complete For Easter Dawn Service In Trout Cave, W. Va.

Trout Cave, reputed to have the largest room of any cave in West Virginia, will be the scene of a unique event on Easter morning, April 5, at seven o'clock, Eastern War Time.

"An Office of Joy and Faith for Easter Morning," taken from ancient sources, has been prepared by the Institute of Worship and Church Music and will be used by the minister and those present. Mimeographed copies are to be furnished.

This service is under the auspices of the National Speleological Society of Washington, D. C. In its bulletin to members issued last week, it instructed people to "bring candles, meet at Mack's Cabins, one mile south of Franklin, on Route 220, at 6:15 a. m." The party will proceed to the cave about two miles south.

William J. Stephenson, president of the society, explained that "Trout Cave is about 300 feet off the main road and at least 200 feet above it. The entrance is greater than 50 feet wide and 20 feet high and faces due east. The rays of the morning sun coming over the mountain and across the South Branch of the Potomac River, will fall directly into the cave's entrance at the approximate time for starting the service. The cave is large enough to easily accommodate all who may attend. As for cave exploring, three previous parties have failed to find the end of it." Mr. Stephenson said he was looking forward to the event with considerable enthusiasm.

The following order of service will be used: Invocation; opening versicles; Psalm 110; the lesson from John 20:19-29; the responsory; the address; the hymn and possibly an anthem by the choir; the Litany of the Resurrection; prayers of remembrance; the benediction.

Rev. Felix G. Robinson, Oakland, director of the Institute of Worship and Church Music, will conduct the service.

TRAIN ON OAKLAND AND CONFLUENCE ROAD MADE ITS FINAL TRIP TUESDAY

Last Regularly Scheduled Train Ran Tuesday Over the 19.7 Mile Strip of Railroad

The more than half-century old Confluence and Oakland branch of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad ran its last regularly scheduled train Tuesday. The railroad runs from Confluence, Pa., to Kendall, a distance of about 19.7 miles.

The railroad company had notified shippers that effective April 1 no more shipments would be received on the line. The notice was in accordance with permission granted by the Interstate Commerce Commission nearly two years ago for abandonment of the rail line.

Meanwhile the validity of this order had been in litigation, the case having finally reached the Supreme court of the United States where the authority of the commission was sustained.

Approximately eleven miles of the roadbed of the line will be flooded by the waters of the new flood control dam on the Youghiogheny river, when completed.

The McCullough Coal Corporation and the Public Service Commission of Maryland protested in the courts the order for abandonment as the order is depriving the coal company of transportation facilities necessary to market its product.

The next nearest shipping point is about eighteen miles from its operation. It has more than a quarter million dollars invested in property and equipment. The company, according to R. E. Guard, manager, will cease to operate and steps will be taken to dissolve the corporation. The approximately sixty-five persons employed have been working five and sometimes six days a week.

Women Workers Leave For Jobs at Elkton

Employment Service Accepts 25 Of 27 Applications After Interviews

As a result of a Clearance Order for female workers to work in the plant of National Fireworks Inc., at Elkton, a pooled interview was held in the Oakland office of the United States Employment Service, on Friday, March 27, by Mr. G. M. Bell and Miss Anna Markanyche, representing the company.

A total of 27 applications were filed and 25 were accepted. These workers will load and assemble detonators by hand and machine, and will receive 50 cents per hour. They will work 48 hours per week for which they will receive $26.00. New dormitories have recently been completed which will house the workers.

The first group left Oakland on Sunday via chartered bus which stopped at the Cumberland Employment Office to pick up a group of workers from Cumberland. Other groups from Lonaconing, Frostburg, and Cumberland left on two other buses, as a result of interviews arranged by Mr. Daniel R. Staley, Manager of the Cumberland office.

It is expected that a second group of workers from Allegany and Garrett County will be employed before May 1, 1942.

The workers who left Oakland on Sunday were as follows: Oakland, Esther B. Stark, Josephine M. Dunihan, Hilma E. Rodcheaver, and Delora E. Uphold: Altamont, Verna Camp Junkins and Helen R. Woods; Thomas, W. Va., Jacqueline S. Tephabaugh, Viola V. Likins, and Elizabeth J. Luzier; Kempton, Anna U. Markovich, Mary K. Raines, Mildred R. Raines and Elizabeth H. Geroski.

Maryland Farmers To Increase Crop Acreage

Maryland farmers announced their intentions to plant greater acreage of corn, oats, barley, soybeans and tame hay, according to the Crop Reporting Service at the University of Maryland. Farmers were expecting to plant 455,000 acres of corn, about two per cent larger than 1941, but eleven per cent less than the ten-year average of 510,000 acres. Average yield per acres is 31.6 bushels with 34 bushels in 1941.

An increase of 9 per cent in oats was indicated, 35,000 acres, compared with 32,000 acres last year and a ten-year average of 47,000 acres.

Farmers estimated they would cut about 423,000 acres of tame hay; would plant 20,000 acres of potatoes.

An increase of 21,000 acres in soybeans was in prospect.

Association Wants To Know How Many Mothers Are Working

School teachers are cooperating with the Maryland Congress of Parents and Teachers in an attempt to make a survey of the needs of school children whose mothers are working as a result of the national or state defense effort.

The organization wants to know how many mothers are working and the hours spent out of the home, whether or not there is any other adult in the home to look after the children, whether or not the children have to work after they get home from school and if any provision is made to take care of the children of working mothers after school until the mother returns.

Answers were to be returned to the Board of Education by today, where the results will be tabulated.

Four-H Clubs Plan National Rally Week

To Spur Members to Greater Effort and Add New Members to Group

Four-H clubs are holding a national mobilization week throughout the nation, to rally the million and a half members, spur them to greater efforts in the cause of freedom, and to bring more rural young people into active participation.

The Extension Service which sponsors 4-H club work here, is having special programs with the local clubs during this period of April 5 to 11, according to John H. Carter, county agent.

Interested persons from Vindex and North Glade have also asked that clubs be formed in those communities, and plans for such organizations are being made by Mr. Carter. He said more would be formed where there was a desire expressed.

President Roosevelt has sent a message to all 4-H club members pointing out that their activities in producing, preserving, and preparing food; in making clothing, and other practical experiences in farming and homemaking have prepared them for many tasks important in peacetime and indispensable in wartime. "Let your head, heart, hands, and health truly be dedicated to your country, which needs them now as never before," he declared.

The Homemakers of Garrett County Plan Clothing Schools

Will Encourage Home Construction of Work Clothing, Agent Says

As a part of a county-wide program to encourage home construction of work clothing, Miss Marianna Lee Long, home demonstration agent, has announced a number of clothing construction schools, to be held during April, under the sponsorship of the Homemakers' clubs of the county.

Patterns are to be suggested by the Extension Service from those designed for utility by the Bureau of Home Economics of the Department of Agriculture. Garments made will include house dresses, aprons and coveralls.

The following schools have been scheduled:

Vindex, March 24, 25 and 26.
Grantsville, March 30, April 1 and 2.
Kempton, April 8.
Deer Park, April 10.
Oakland, Mt. Lake Park and Loch Lynn, April 13 and 14.
Bittinger, April 15 and 16.
Accident and Hoyes, April 22.

Miss Long explained that the clothing construction schools were not limited to members of the Homemakers' clubs, and that outsiders could come into work so long as space and equipment would allow. The work of the school will include instruction in new techniques and assistance in personal fitting problems.

To Observe Holy Communion At Mountain Lake Park Church

The Sacrament of the Holy Communion will be observed at the Bethel Methodist Church, Mountain Lake Park, this evening (Thursday). The young people's choir will sing "The Children's Prayer," by Englebert Humperdinck.

Friday night Miss Florence Sisk will sing a solo and Rev. Garrett Evans will sing the prayer-song, "Just for Today," by Seaver.

Little Change Noted In Number of Needy Cases Being Helped

Mrs. Ogburn Says Need for WPA In County Is Now Materially Reduced

That the need for WPA in the county had been materially reduced in the past few months since much employment was available throughout the state, but that there seemed to be little change in the needy cases served by the County Welfare Board, was announced yesterday by Mrs. Dorothy Ogburn, executive secretary.

Mrs. Ogburn added that this was understandable because the County Welfare Board did not give assistance to families where the head of the family is employable.

She gave the following figures on the number of people being assisted:

Old age assistance.....404 persons
Dependent children.....161 families
Needy blind.....8 persons
General public assistance, 147 families
Children in foster homes..34 persons

There have been two staff resignations from the Welfare office in the past week. Miss Frances Grimes, Mt. Lake Park, who had been an agency worker, accepted employment in Morgantown in the School of Aeronautics. Mrs. Margaret Hamilton, who worked as stenographer, is moving out of the state to accompany her husband, who has employment. Mrs. Hamilton is being replaced by Henry Dwight Gauer, Mt. Lake Park, who completed the commercial course in Oakland High school last year. Mrs. Vera Mussard, Oakland, will be employed as a worker. She was with the agency several years ago.

A new member to the County Welfare Board was named recently, Milton E. Pritts, of Kitzmiller. Mrs. Ogburn said Mr. Pritts was much interested in the work being done by the agency.

Seventeen people came under the preferred list this week in regard to tires of all kinds, according to W. W. Dawson, chairman of the tire rationing board, as certificates were issued for 16 truck tires, 3 passenger tires, 15 truck retreads and 4 passenger retreads.

Trucks—Theo. A. Uphold, Friendsville, 2 tires and a tube; G. O. Janoske, Oakland, 2 tires and tubes; Paul Glotfelty, McHenry, 2 tires and tubes; David W. Sharpless, Kitzmiller, 1; Raymond Steyer, Deer Park, 2 tires and tubes; Kenneth L. McRobie, Kitzmiller, 4 tires and 1 tube; Samuel Thomas, Gorman, 2; Clarence Sisler, Friendsville, 1 tire and tube.

Passenger—Rev. R. L. Greynolds, Friendsville, 1; Rev. H. Kearney Jones, Oakland, 2; Dr. E. I. Baumgartner, 2 tubes.

Truck retreads—W. C. Roth, Oakland, 4; Paul Welch, Oakland, 3; Delmer Wotring, Oakland, 6; Emery E. Nail, Grantsville, 2.

Passenger retreads — William Owens, Oakland, 3; Rev. Milton B. Miller, Grantsville, 1.

To Speak at Meeting of Southern Chiropractors

Dr. and Mrs. C. Oscar Hall, Mt. Lake Park, have gone to Atlanta, Ga., where the former will be a guest speaker at a convention of the Southern States Chiropractor's Association, which starts tomorrow. Between three and four hundred chiropractors and their wives are expected.

Dr. Hall will speak on "The Proper Cooperation Between the Chiropractic and Medical Profession for the Best Interest of the Patient." Mrs. Hall, former army war nurse, may also address the ladies.

Dr. and Mrs. Jack Danks, Lonaconing, are also attending the convention and Dr. Danks will give his "Chalf Talk," which was given sometime ago at a meeting of the local Rotary club.

Civic Club Meets

The Oakland Civic club met Tuesday afternoon in the Red Cross room with Mrs. Robert Hoffman, chairman of the Consumer committee of the county, giving a talk on the aims and objects of the organization. She also discussed girls' clubs in the schools and the importance of the foods program in relation to the war effort.

Mrs. E. I. Baumgartner reported on the war session of the College of Surgeons of the Baltimore area, held in that city last week. The special need at present is for blood plasma.

There were three new members and refreshments were served at the conclusion of the business meeting by Mrs. Harold Harned and Mrs. Paul Naylor.

Elgin Extends Time For Securing Plates For Maryland Autos

The week-end storm around Baltimore brought one blessing to Maryland motorists.

W. Lee Elgin, state commissioner of motor vehicles, said that in view of the heavy snowfall and traffic delays he would extend the time for obtaining new automobile tags one week beyond the April 1 deadline.

Elgin has urged state and local authorities to refrain from making arrests until after April 7.

Court Concluded and Sentences Pronounced

Albert Swauger Given Year In House of Correction for Assault With Intent To Kill His Wife

The March Term of the Garrett County Circuit Court was concluded last Friday evening with the completion of several civil cases and the sentencing of the rest of the traversers by the Associate Judges, William A. Huster and Joseph D. Mish, who were on the bench throughout the week.

Offenders were taken to the House of Correction and the Maryland Penitentiary this week by J. W. Owens, Sheriff, and J. W. Mitchell, his deputy officer.

Sentences were passed on Albert McCombie and Chauncey Lowdermilk for assisting in a jail break.

Albert Swauger for assault upon his wife with intent to kill, and Earl Wilt and Mark Wilt, found guilty of charges of larceny in a number of cases.

Lowdermilk and McCombie were trusties at the Jail, having been arrested for committing a minor offense at Friendsville, and were due for release shortly after they smuggled back saws into the Jail and gave them to William Wilson and Leroy Wilt. Wilson and Wilt escaped and Wilson was recaptured. The two trusties later confessed to their part in the jail break. Lowdermilk was given a suspended sentence pending his enlistment in the armed forces; McCombie was sentenced to a year in the House of Correction.

Swauger was given a year in the House of Correction, Earl Wilt was sentenced to three years in the House of Correction, and Mark Wilt to two years upon being convicted upon several charges of larceny committed in various sections of the county.

Wilson and Harold Harvey were previously sentenced, Wilson drawing five years in the Maryland Penitentiary and Harvey to two years in the House of Correction. Wilson and Harvey entered pleas of guilty to charges of armed robbery.

War Time Will Not Affect Trout Fishing

In reply to inquiries from anglers in this and other sections anticipating the opening of the trout season, State Game Warden E. Lee LeCompte has announced that the new "war-time" will not affect the fish and game laws. The state law permits trout fishing from 7 a. m. to 8 p. m., these hours being based on the time the sun rises and sets.

If the new time were observed the fishermen would start before day break and be forced to stop just about the time the fish begin their evening feeding. Consequently the State Game and Inland Fish Commission has ruled that the old, or standard, time will be observed in this respect and anglers will start fishing at the hour of sunrise and quit late in the evening which would make the hours 8 a. m. to 9 p. m., Eastern War Time.

To Address Rotarians

C. Ellwood Smyrk, assistant engineer of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, will be guest speaker at the weekly meeting of the Oakland Rotary club on Friday evening.

The annual nominations for members of the board of directors of the club were made last Friday and include the names of W. L. Gibson, C. A. Fleegle, Dr. W. W. Grant, R. C. McComas, A. G. Gortner, C. C. Reckard, Russell Pancake, Lester C. Yutzy and W. O. Davis. From this group three will be elected on April 17. The three thus elected and the four hold-over members of the board will then meet to select their officers in time for the district meeting on May 3 and 4, it was stated.

The club is planning a rural-urban meeting for April 24 when each member of the organization will have as his guest an agriculturalist of the county.

ORDER NUMBERS ARE ARRANGED BY DRAFT BOARD

List of Recent Registrants In County Has Been Completed And Checked With Master List

The official list of order numbers given to the 1,113 citizens who registered in the third selective service draft in February, were announced this week by the County Draft Board.

These order numbers start with 10,000 and the serial numbers which were announced after the registration have a "T" in front of the numbers signifying "third selective service draft."

The order number, serial number and name of the 1,113 registrants are being published in The Republican today on page seven, for the benefit of the many who are vitally interested in learning when they may have to report for possible service in the armed forces.

H. L. Jones, draft board clerk, announced that the local board had received orders to begin early in April in sending out questionnaires so that the new registrants can be classified. All those in 1-A will be subject to call first.

May Be Called Early

Draft headquarters served notice yesterday that some of the men who registered February 16 might be summoned to training camps in May and that June most probably would see a portion of them in the service.

Those who registered then were men 35 to 44 and 20 and 21.

Local draft boards were told to start classifying the new registrants immediately and prepare to fill the June call and possibly the May call in part from them.

This clarified an uncertainty as to whether these men would be lumped with the earlier registrants and become subject to early call or whether the army would exhaust the first group before tapping the second.

Questionnaires for classification are to be sent out an average of fifty each day and registrants must return the questionnaires within five days. Questionnaires will be mailed to registrants according to their order numbers, those with the lowest numbers getting theirs first. Local boards will classify registrants on the basis of information furnished on the forms.

Drivers Uninjured As Cars Sideswipe On U. S. Route 40

Seven states and the District of Columbia were involved in an accident yesterday morning on U. S. Route 40, near Meadow Mountain, east of Grantsville.

State Trooper Harry Harrison who investigated, said an automobile driven by Sam Hazo, Daytona Beach, Fla., and a machine operated by William Short, Emporia, Kan., sideswiped on a hill approaching the mountain.

Short was not injured nor was the owner of the car, Henry Brylawski, Washington, D. C., who was asleep on the front seat. Hazo was also uninjured. The left sides of both cars were damaged to the extent of $100 to $150. Each operator was fined $1 and costs by Magistrate Charles Zeller, Grantsville, for reckless driving.

Short, who has a Kansas driver's license, was hitch hiking to his home in New Jersey when picked up in Ohio by Brylawski, carrying a D. C. license, but whose home is in Colorado.

Hazo, a salesman, works in Florida and has Florida tags but resides in Pittsburgh. The seventh state involved was Maryland, where the accident occurred.

Trustees of Schools To Be Chosen April 16

Residents of school communities of one- and two-teacher schools are scheduled to meet Thursday, April 16, at 4 p. m., for the purpose of selecting one, two or three residents of the school communities to be recommended to the Board of Education before May 1 for appointment as trustees as vacancies may demand in each particular school, it was announced by F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent.

Where meetings are scheduled and no interest is shown, the teacher may recommend the number needed to fill vacancies. The newly appointed trustees will assume their duties the third Saturday in May.

Health Department Gives Out Advice On Spring Tonics

Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the Maryland State Department of Health, calls attention to this advice from the Nutritionist of the Department:

"Some of you will remember when it was fashionable to dose ourselves in the spring with sulphur and molasses. We did not realize that this let-down feeling in the spring was due to a deficiency of fresh fruits and vegetables in the winter diet. As a result of improved shipping and of transportation facilities we are able to combat some of this feeling thru including a wider variety of foods in the diet.

"The farmer has been encouraged to plan and plant a year-round-garden so that fresh carrots, parsnips and greens are available. Wild greens, such as cress and dandelion greens furnish Vitamin A which helps to build resistance against infections and helps growth. A half-cup of these greens will provide more than enough of this vitamin for our daily need. These greens, too, are an excellent source of iron which is necessary to help build good red blood. Turnip tops, beet tops, cauliflower greens, kale and carrot tops are good 'year-round-tonics.' Let us try to have at least one serving a day throughout the year.

"Before cooking greens, the leaves should be washed thoroughly to remove sand or dust. Cook in the water left clinging to the leaves after washing. Ten to twelve minutes is sufficient. Vinegar, salt and pepper are the usual accessories.

"Fresh rhubarb, a good spring tonic, is in season and can be sweetened with one and a half cups of syrup to one pound of rhubarb, or if honey is used, allow three quarters of a cup for one pound of rhubarb, which makes delicious tarts or pies. When sugar substitutes are used the rhubarb should be stewed longer than usual to permit evaporation of part of the liquid.

"In order to provide 'all-the-year-round-tonics' in your garden consult your county extension service for bulletins, which will help you 'plant wisely and well.'"

Gets More Foolish Every Hour!

Some of the orders of the WPB seem to get more foolish as each day passes. Just as if they have nothing to do but issue orders. A patriotic appeal and a little urging would be all that is necessary.

They are taking the voluntary part out of this war business and apparently seeing just how far people will be ordered around without raising any fuss.

The great majority of Americans do not want to appear unpatriotic, but some things seem just too silly.

For instance, limiting razor blades so there will be one blade each week for every shaver. Why not try a little persuasion and ask people to turn in razor blades to a central location from which they could be returned to the manufacturer and made over into new blades. The supply then would remain constant and everybody could use as many blades as he wanted.

And the order compelling persons to turn in a container in order to buy a new tube of tooth paste, shaving cream, etc. Have they given the people a chance to contribute their empty containers voluntarily?

An agency asks if we are good citizens by slowing down our automobiles gradually, remembering that the less rubber we use, the more there is for tanks and planes and ships. When the rubber we now have on our cars is gone, it's gone and we can't get any more. So just how would conservation affect anyone but ourselves?

An agency asks if we have cut down on sugar consumption, remembering that every spoonful of sugar we use could have gone into the production of smokeless powder. But they carefully avoid asking the whiskey drinkers if they have cut down in order to save sugar and alcohol.

The Government says one thing we will have to do without is new Juke boxes, vending machines, pinball games and weighing machines.

Well, it is said there are a lot of illegal gambling machines around in this county and probably in a lot of other counties. If they want metal from these machines, why not issue an order to authorities to start collecting? The machines could be found without too much sleuthing.

The President intimates there is a "sixth column" in the country, people who unwittingly help the enemy in many ways. I wonder if he has thought any of them could be within the hundreds of agencies in Washington?

* * *

A "sixth" sense tells me that all the waste in Washington is harder on morale than activities of the mass of people scattered throughout the country.

Sure To Please

It's an old saying that in purchasing gifts, if you buy what you would like to have yourself you are sure to please.

In our Sunday school the classes were fixing up Easter boxes to send to boys in the service. Some teachers asked their pupils to bring cookies or candy bars. John and George, however, spied some Easter bunnies (chocolate) and a chicken on a nest (marshmallow). So some of our fighters in the armed forces will get chocolate Easter bunnies and marshmallow chickens. And hard to tell, maybe they'll get a lot of enjoyment from them. At least the boys admitted they bought them because they wanted something like that for themselves.

I thought I was getting to be an old-timer. Looking at my daughter through the glass at the hospital in Cumberland didn't give me any special thrill and I thought the young fellow who peered through the glass at his, pecked on the window and said "hello there," and giggled, was going a bit to extremes. But when we prepared to leave Tuesday and I saw her on the bed being made ready to make the journey to Oakland, my expression must have changed, for a young mother there said, "Why you have just as silly a grin as my husband has who comes here every day to see our daughter." They are a young couple. It's their first baby—and they wanted a boy.

* * *

Maybe we're all alike. Maybe I did look silly. The tiny bundle is pretty cute.

P. S.—(Wednesday) There is nothing the matter with her lungs.

Eleven Yugoslav airmen have arrived in Washington to seek American aid for the Serbian Chetniks still harassing Axis forces by periodid raids from mountain highways.

Garrett Laughs At Baltimore

Once more Garrett county had the laugh on Baltimore and the lower altitude regions of the state. With twenty-two inches of snow in Baltimore on Palm Sunday, Garrett county had an inch or less. Telephone executives, who had trouble galore in that area, couldn't believe it when they inquired of local manager Pancake how many circuits were down up here and he reported none.

Due to the blizzard motorists get an extra week of grace on obtaining licenses.

I can see the Commissioner giving motorists an extra week if Garrett county had had the snowstorm.

DIARY OF THE WAR

FRIDAY — British planes were active over Ruhr industrial valley, and over Malta the RAF destroyed or damaged 30 German dive bombers. Chinese in Burma were standing off Japs around Toungoo. MacArthur pledged the blood and power of the United States to an unremitting crusade for freedom. Troops on Philippines withstood a six-hour bombing raid by Japs and shot down four bombers. There were sharp skirmishes between patrols on land. There were large increases in German aerial strength and multiplying Nazi counter-assaults on the ground. A big air battle was on over Murmansk, Arctic seaport. An American freighter ran down and sank an enemy sub in Caribbean.

SATURDAY — Australian troops who fought in Greece, Crete, Libya, returned to Australia. There was no conclusive fighting in Burma. Japs stepped up power of aerial attacks on Bataan peninsula and increased patrol activity. Red troops landed behind Nazis on Murmansk front in surprise move. Hitler ordered six main areas must be held at any cost. Fifty Chinese cadets in Arizona got their wings as aviators. They will be commissioned in Chinese army. Cripps representing Britain, talked with Gandhi in plan for relations between India and British government. U. S. air and desert forces were ordered expanded. British continued strong air raids on continent.

SUNDAY—British ship, filled with explosives rammed the St. Nazaire U-boat dock in France, smashing main gate, only dock capable of taking the battleship Tirpitz. Nazis claimed the raid was repulsed. Burma fight was growing more intense. New Zealand troops and flyers joined Australian and U. S. troops. Allied bombers struck against Timor base and Darwin had its seventh raid by Japs in weakening bomber formations and Port Moresby was also raided. Bulgaria was pledged in principle to war against Russia but use of the army was not promised.

MONDAY — Great Britain offered India dominion status immediately after war but any province would retain its present status if desired, such as the 77 million Moslems who do not want under thumb of Hindus. Heavy fighting continued in Burma with Japs paying heavily for every gain. Counter-attack in Philippines restored all dislodged outposts and anti-aircraft fire at Corregidor kept Jap planes out of reach. Jap air attacks on Australian outposts seemed to be weaker. Russians advanced in Ukraine. Thousands of Canadian troops reached Britain. British confirmed great damage on U-boat base of Nazis in France.

TUESDAY—American and Australian air superiority over northern approaches was proclaimed. It was officially claimed 10 percent of Japan's cruiser strength had been knocked out of action in attacks around New Britain and 48 Jap bombers and fighters destroyed in recent days. Japs however bombed Darwin and Port Moresby. Floods in New Guinea forced Jap land columns out of Markham valley. Chinese were still holding on around Toungoo and British were striking south in counter-offensive. Japs were using poison gas. Action in Philippines was confined to patrol clashes. Nazis claimed they sank a transport with American tanks and munitions, enroute to Murmansk and acknowledged loss of destroyer. British planes sank two German ships off Norway. Reds reported recapture of 20 communities around Smolensk. An anti-aircraft gun on Bataan barged a Jap plane at five-mile height. British announced sinking of a cruiser.

WEDNESDAY—Allied position in Burma was critical despite improvement on Chinese left. British were counter-attacking to free some tank units. Lack of air support was apparent and Burmese were generally aiding the invaders. Principals in India indicated they would reject Britain's offer of Dominion status. Harbor defenses in Manila Bay were under bombardment with little damage. Enemy bombers over Bataan attacked a hospital base. New Allied bombing attacks on Jap beachheads on New Guinea and Timor were carried out. Japs bombed Darwin again. In sea engagement British said German attacks were beaten off by Russian and British forces with five Nazi warships either sunk or damaged. Two damaged British warships reached port. Russian troops recaptured points in Leningrad area. Hitler was reported sending one hundred divisions of troops into Russia for offensive in southern sector.

THURSDAY—American resistance was rising in Philippines with a major enemy attack defeated. Filipino troops made two raids on Mindanao and demolished 22 Jap warehouses. U. S. navy announced that naval and army forces had destroyed total of 28 subs, mostly in Atlantic including three announced yesterday. Allied bombers raided Jap bases on Timor near Java and also on New Guinea, damaging number of planes. In Burma Japs held complete control of air and things were not going very well there for British and Chinese. Two groups, the Skihs and Hindus, rejected Cripps' offer in India. Russians and Germans were in Titanic battle all along gigantic front. Three of ten Norwegian ships were sunk in an attempt to get to Britain. Rumania declared it would fight Russia to the finish. Britain warned allies that Hitler planned to launch drive in middle east.

Easter In War Days . . . . .

The RT. REV. HENRY ST. GEORGE TUCKER.
Presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church.

As we approach the anniversary of the death and Resurrection of Christ, during these war days it is well for us to consider the application of the principle they teach, to our own lives. It is a principle that lies behind all progress even in the material, warring world. As we look out into Nature we see that growth takes place by a dying of the old to make way for the new. Success in our earthly work is attained only by a sacrifice of the present for the sake of the future.

Christ showed that this principle, so familiar in our earthly life, holds good also in our spiritual life. The two foundation pillars of character are holiness and love. The first comes only through the sacrifice of our lower physical impulses and interests for the sake of the demands of our conscience. The second requires the sacrifice of ourselves, our own individual interests, for the sake of others.

The Resurrection of Christ shows us that our sacrifice will lead to a real victory. If our sacrifice were only a process of setting our human strength to work for high purposes, then it would accomplish but little. But the same power of God that was revealed in the Risen Christ dwells in the hearts of all who have accepted Christ. Our sacrifice is the opening of the door through which that power can reveal itself in our practical lives.

If we approach this Easter, as our Lord did, by the path of sacrifice, we too will experience the glory of the Resurrection and the satisfaction that comes from knowing that we are of use to God in the fulfillment of that divine purpose for which Christ died and rose again.

SOUTHERN STATES COOPERATIVE
FARM BULLETIN

GROWING CHICKS is not quite as simple as A B C, but if you'll be careful of these three things your worries with poultry will be few and far between:

FIRST, give your chicks really adequate care, and keep a complete record of growth, costs, and profits. (Southern States will be glad to furnish you free helps.)

SECOND, feed them balanced, high quality feed—with plenty of vitamins, balanced minerals, and proteins. (Southern States feed has already grown 100 million chicks.)

THIRD, buy chicks with good breeding—healthy, disease-free chicks. (Even if they live, poor chicks aren't worth the feed it takes to raise them.)

HYBRID CORN. There will be a critical shortage of some of the outstanding hybrids that Southern States supplies.

Add to this the farm labor shortage and you can see that it's far more important than ever to use high quality seeds, so that maximum results can be obtained from the land that CAN be farmed.

Will Address Lutheran Church Meetings

DR. EARL S. RUDISILL

The Lutheran congregations within reach of Red House will unite in a service to be held in St. John's church next Wednesday evening at 7:45. Rev. Earl S. Rudisill will make a brief address on "The Schools of the Church." He will then conduct a discussion period, answering questions and showing how parents and teachers may make the most of the opportunities presented to the Christian forces of America.

The speaker for this occasion is one of several men sent out by the United Lutheran church to give help where help is needed, according to Rev. A. K. Jones, Red House. He is a man with special training and experience in school work. He has been a lover of young people and comes in touch with them in all fields of activity and experience. He knows their problems, and the most important need of our American homes during these days of trouble and sorrow. His book on "The Problems of Youth," published several years ago, has been read by thousands of parents and young folks of all denominations.

The Aurora, Davis and Oakland parishes are especially invited to send large delegations to hear Dr. Rudisill, and to bring their most troublesome questions on home and school for his round table. This is expected to be a helpful evening for all who can arrange to be present.

CHRIST AND LIFE AFTER DEATH (EASTER)

LESSON TEXT—Mark 12:24-27; I Corinthians 15:50-58.

GOLDEN TEXT—But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.—I Corinthians 15:57.

V for Victory! By that sign have many peoples indicated their confidence in a victory to come. It is well to have a victorious outlook, but it is even better to be able to look back to victory already attained. That is just what we are able to do as we consider man's great and final enemy—death. That victory has been won on behalf of all who believe, by the risen Christ of whom we think in a special way on this Easter day.

He is the Lord of the living, not of the dead; those who, even though they may have left this world, have only laid aside the corruptible body for the incorruptible. They are victorious, even as we are, over death.

I. Living, Not Dead (Mark 12:24-27).

The Sadducees, a rationalistic sect of Christ's day, denied the resurrection, and so they were much distressed by His plain teaching of that truth. They therefore devised an intricate hypothetical case (see Mark 12:18-23) and sought to set a trap for Him. But they only caught themselves, for He pointed out to them and to the people that what was wrong with them was that they did not understand the Scriptures nor the power of God.

That is precisely what is wrong with the modernists of our day—they misinterpret God's Word, and they deny His power.

Then Jesus turned to them and in place of their fantastic "supposing" story He spoke of three real characters from the books of Moses which they taught. He said that God still calls Himself the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, because though they had long been in their graves, they were still alive. God's fellowship with His people is not merely for the brief life span of this earth, but for eternity. That fact, of course, carries with it the truth of the resurrection.

II. Incorruptible, Not Corruptible (1 Cor. 15:50-54).

Man knows that his earthly body is marked for decay and death. That fact is written in its very members. He also knows that such a body would be entirely inappropriate for heaven—for eternity. Is he then barred from God's eternal kingdom? No, indeed, for there is to be a glorious change — the corruptible shall put on incorruptibility.

Whether we shall tarry until Jesus comes and be transformed without dying, or whether we shall await His coming for a time among those who sleep, there will come that trumpet sound, and in the twinkling of an eye we shall be clothed upon with incorruptible bodies like unto His glorious resurrection body (Phil. 3:21). There we have an assurance of victory already won on our behalf, which can and does strengthen our souls against the trials and sorrows of life.

III. Victorious, Not Defeated (I Cor. 15:55-58).

When Satan after a long struggle finally had Christ's body laid away in the tomb, he thought he had the victory, but just then came his great hour of defeat.

"Up from the grave He arose,
With a mighty triumph o'er His foes."

"Death could not hold its prey," for it sought to hold one stronger than itself—the Lord of Life Himself. He had broken the bonds of sin by His sacrifice on Calvary; and since it was sin (the violation of the law) which brought death in the first place (Gen. 2:17; 3:17-19), there was now a complete victory over both sin and death.

The one who knows Christ need no longer fear death. For him it is not a leap into the dark, or going as a trembling wayfarer into an unknown land. President John Quincy Adams was right when, aged and frail, he replied to a question as to his welfare: "Quite well, thank you. The house in which I live is tottering and trembling, and I may soon have to move out, but I am quite well." He was ready for the departure into a better land and a better body.

Such a hope has a splendid practical application, which Paul stresses in verse 58. With victorious assurance the believer stands steadfast and unmovable at the center of life, while always abounding in the joys and duties which come at its circumference. Like the wheel which can be useful only as its center is established and steady, so man can serve the Lord and enjoy a satisfying life only as he has the steadfastness of which Paul here speaks.

We trust that it is your possession by faith in Christ. If not, make it so on this resurrection Sunday!

Homemakers' Column

"ENERGY" FOODS

This question was once asked by a mother: "I have been wondering if I could help my son have more energy by serving him more energy foods? He already eats a good deal of sweet, starch and fat, which I understand are energy foods. Do you think he would be more energetic if he ate more of these foods?" Nutrition scientists think not. They say most Americans eat all of the sweets, starches and fats they need, and many eat too much of these foods, and too few of the vitamin and mineral foods. The term "energy foods" is often misleading. A more understandable term is "fuel food." The sugars, starches and fats provide the fuel or energy to keep the body active and warm, just as gasoline keeps an engine running and warm. But the body can use only so much fuel, just as an engine can use only so much gasoline. If you load your car up with more gasoline, you don't make it any more energetic. If you load a human body up with sugar, starch and fat, you don't make that body more energetic. In fact, just the contrary is likely to be the result. The energy foods which the body doesn't need it stores as fat. So if an individual eats more energy foods than he needs he may become fat but not more energetic.

Actually, the vitamin and mineral foods are the foods that usually make a person more vigorous and energetic, because they keep the body in good working order. One nutrition authority often explains that vitamins work with the energy foods as ethyl does with gasoline. They make for easier and more efficient running. So any child who seems to lack energy may need more fruit and vegetables in his meals, or more milk, more eggs, whole grains and other protective foods rather than more energy foods. Occasionally physicians find a child who is not able to absorb enough vitamins from his food to keep him in best health. Such a child often improves in health after taking vitamin concentrates. But most normal children and grown-ups can get the vitamins and minerals they need for feeling "energetic" from a good diet.

Sugar Is Not Needed

No normal person needs sugar every day if he eats other energy foods. Sugar is only one of the energy foods. You can use starches or fats in place of sugar. In fact, for many thousands of years the human race prospered without ever tasting sugar as we know it. It was only a few hundred years ago that the process of refining sugar was worked out and gave us the white concentrated sugar we now use in such quantity. Before that, human beings took their sweets in natural form—in sweet fruits, in honey when they could find a wild bees' nest, and sometimes in sweet juices from plants such as the sweet sap of the sugar-maple tree discovered by the American Indians. Physicians and nutrition scientists today generally agree that Americans have been eating too much sugar—in candy, sweet drinks, pies, cakes, cookies, and so on. They believe Americans would be healthier and have better teeth and figures if they ate less sugar.

Recipe of The Week

Do you dye eggs for your children at Easter? Since the dyes used are of vegetable origin and consequently nonpoisonous, the eggs can be used for food.

The March-April Sealtest Food Adviser carried a recipe which I should like to pass on to my readers. I think children might accept this as a special treat. Add a glass of milk and you have a complete lunch or supper for the little ones:

Creamed Eggs and Tomatoes

Two and a half tablespoons of butter, 3½ tablespoons flour, 1¼ cups milk, 1 No. 1 can tomatoes (about 1½ cups), salt and pepper, 6 hard cooked eggs, 6 slices whole wheat toast (cut in fancy shapes).

Melt the butter in a double boiler, add the flour and mix well. Add the milk graudally and cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Drain the tomatoes and stir the liquid into the white sauce gradually. Add ¾ to 1 teaspoon salt and a few grains of pepper. Fold in the tomatoes and the sliced eggs. Reheat and serve on fancy toast shapes. Six servings.

Turning Over An Old Leaf

By Phillip A. Gladheim

"There were faces to remember in the Valley of the Shadow;
There were faces unregarded, there were faces to forget;
There were fires of grief and fear that are a few forgotten ashes;
There were sparks of recognition that are not forgotten yet."

The very center of the cycle of the Christian calendar is Easter Day. All the other important dates in the Christian year have been measured by this date because it represents the most imporatnt event, not only in the life of Jesus Himself, but for the Church and the world.

All of nature and man has been implanted by the Divine to yearn always for life. Springtime in nature, the begetting of children, remain natural wonders or miracles to the race.

The resurrection from the dead, apart from the myth stories of Attis, Adonis, Tamuz and Osiris, has been noted but once in history. This was on the third day after a man who claimed a special relation to God, was crucified by the secular and ecclesiastical authorities, accused of demonolgy by important people and pronounced insane by his family. He was pierced in the side of his body by a spear while nailed on the cross. He was taken off this "tormenting beam," wrapped in linen, placed in a rock tomb, and the opening was sealed by a heavy stone. A guard was placed at the entrance of the tomb. In spite of every conceivable means of destroying this life, and making most careful precautions even after His death, this Person was seen alive by certain people for the duration of forty days. As this miracle of the Resurrection occurred in the spring of the year it was natural that it be associated with the festivals of the nautral resurrection of the earth.

It was customary for centuries, and even practiced in many parts of the world today, to observe the return of spring and the coming of children, by certain rites and festivals. Food and children were what primitive man sought (rather than the accumulation of money) to procure by the performance of magical rites for the regulation of the seasons.

In the first Christian centuries the religions of Attis, Adonis and Osiris were still immensely popular and had far more adherents than the followers of the Nazarene.

The priests of the religion of Attis accused the Christians of imitating their belief and practice of the resurrection. It was exceedingly difficult for the Christians at that time to inform the followers of Attis that his resurrection was based on a myth and that its only purpose was to reinforce the necessity of operating a priestly magic to insure the fertility of the soil. Over against this tradition of resurrection-of-fertility was the resurrection-from-the dead (physical and spiritual), and that this actually happened to a Person who embodied not only the God of fertility but of all created things in time and eternity.

But the Christians went even further, because it was the teaching of this Person and the experience of all who contacted Him, that each person had to die, both physically and spiritually (the order being sometimes reversed) in order to be born again. Whenever this occurred that person, like Jesus Himself, became immune to every conceivable kind of death. Even to present-day Christians, surrounded b ytoo many materialistic and scientific concepts, this Resurrection of Jesus and its consequences for those who relate themselves to Him, like branch to Vine, sounds as mythical as the religion of Attis appeared to the early Christians. In fact a modern Easter as practiced by the Church and society is an unrelated event of one day's duration. In the church one hears about the resurrection only as a tradition, and this thought is in most instances confined to the one sermon of the preacher on this particular day. It has no antecedents, neither does it engender anticipation. It is unrelated to the cosmic experience of fertility and the universal desire for immortality. In society it is a fashion show on Fifth Avenue in New York and the Boardwalk in Atlantic City. The only real meaning that can be attached to this fashion show is "I am a success; I am prospering; my outward appearance has changed." We laugh at our primitive ancestors, but their idea of change was both the interior of nature and human nature. Change in fashion has been substituted for a change of heart.

The first anniversary of Jesus' Resurrection His disciples gathertd together in one place and waited with certainty for the Parousia, which means His Return in physical form to judge and redeem the world and set up a Divine Dictatorship. But Christ did not return. This anticipation of the Parousia pre-occupied the Church less and less and the teaching of taking on the spirit of Christ, and this as individuals being clothed with immortality became the central emphasis. Although ever since that first anniversary of His resurrection there have been Christian groups somewhere in this mysterious world waiting for thhe Parousia. We have such an anticipation in organized form under the name of Jehovah's Witnesses. There are some fine people in our own community who are faithful to this teaching.

It was also the custom in the early Church to baptize new converts on the day before Easter, known as the Easter Vigil. In the first four centuries, Easter did not always occur on Sunday. The anniversary was determined by an invariable date in the Jewish religious calendar, the date of the Passover, which was the 14th day of Nisan. Easter would occur three days later. The 14th day of Nisan did not necessarily occur on Thursday. Polycarp, Bishop of Smyrna, enjoined upon his congregations to keep Easter by reckoning it from the 14th day of Nisan (our April). He went purposely to Rome, trying very hard to persuade the Bishop of Rome that it was paramount to the spiritual welfare of the whole Church that it be undivided with respect to a uniform observance of Easter and that the Jewish calendar should be adopted rather than the Julian (Roman) calendar.

This was around 150 A. D. The differences arising as to the observance of Easter were not settled until 172 years later at the Council of Nicea when the Bishops adopted the following law, which has been universally adopted by the Church since that time: (1) Easter must be celebrated on a Sunday; (2)This Sunday must follow the 14th day of the Passover moon, so that if the 14th day of the Passover moon falls on Sunday, then Easter must be celebrated on the Sunday following; (3) The Passover moon is that on which the 14th day falls or on next following the vernal equinox; (4) The equinox is invariably fixed on the 21st of March. These rules are now fixed according to the epacts. But Easter can never come earlier than the 22nd of March or later than the 25th of April.

At first the Christians called this date "The Day of Resurrection" and "The Christian Passover." The name Easter has an undetermined origin.

The venerable Bede said it was deriver from "Osiris" the name of the Egyptian god who was very popular in the Roman Empire. The resurrection rites of Attis, Adonis, Tamuz and Osiris occurred in the spring—to be exact—March 25th. Osiris being the most popular, everyone spoke of the day as Osiris Day. And after the Church had determined the date the popular name prevailed throughout the Empire. Others have asserted that it comes from the old Saxon "urstan", "to arise." And still others claim its derivation from "yeast," meaning new leaven. However, none of these derivations are to be accepted until a more adequate study has been made.

The most important artistic forms of this principle in modern times is Richard Struss' tone-poem, "Death and Transfiguration"; Gustav Mahler's Symphony No. 2; Edna St. Vincent Millay's poem "Renascence," and Walt Whitman's "The Mystic Trumpeter."

GORTNER

Members of the Union Sunday school at this place had a pleasant surprise on Sunday morning when they entered the church and discovered a nice bookcase, made and donated by Lester Moon, of Sunnyside. The school as a body expresses its gratitude to Mr. Moon for this useful gift.

Charles Vought, of Eglon, was the preacher on Sunday morning, choosing as his text one fitting present day conditions. Mr. Vought was accompanied here by Mrs. Vought and two children, all of whom were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Martin at Sunnyside.

C. W. Dunson, of Hopemont, was the preacher on Sunday evening. He brought an Easter message.

ASSIGNEES' SALE

—OF—

VALUABLE REAL ESTATE

Under and by virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage executed by Alva R. Martin and Nina F. Martin, his wife, bearing date the 15th day of August, 1938, and recorded in Liber No. 115, folio 580, Mortgage Records of Garrett County, Maryland, default having been made in the payment of the indebtedness secured by said mortgage as provided by the terms thereof, and the same having been assigned to the undersigned for the purpose of foreclosure, we hereby give notice that we will, on

SATURDAY,

The 18th Day of April, 1942,

At the Hour of 2:00 o'clock P. M.,

in front of the Court House in the town of Oakland, Garrett County, Maryland, offer and sell at public auction what is known as the A. R. Martin Farm, situate about 3½ miles South of Oakland, along U. S. Route No. 219, and described as follows:

All that piece or parcel of ground, situate, lying and being in Garrett County, Maryland, which was conveyed to the said Alva R. Martin by William H. Smouse and wife, by deed dated July 25, 1921, and recorded in Liber No. 82, folio 295, Land Records of said Garrett County, to which deed reference is hereby made for a description of said property by metes and bounds, courses and distances.

This farm contains 105 acres, 100 acres of which are cleared and in cultivation, and is one of the most desirable farms in this section of the County, particularly suitable for stock sale and dairy purposes. It is improved by a good, two-story frame house, with running water and bath, electric lights and a basement under the entire building; also two large, practically new concrete-block and frame barns, in excellent condition, one of which is also arranged for a machinery building and office, and has living quarters above.

The barns are properly partitioned and finished, inside and outside, having running water and electric lights, and form one of the major assets of the property. There are also other sheds and outbuildings. The farm is fenced and well watered.

Lying along a main highway, close to market, schools and churches, no better location can be found by anyone wishing to engage in farming or stock raising.

TERMS:—$500 cash on day of sale; balance upon ratification of sale and delivery of deed.

FRED. A. THAYER,
ERNEST RAY JONES,
Assignees of Mortgage for the Purpose of Foreclosure.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS . . . . . .

Choked With Publicity

Washington, March 31.

The Government-financed publicity with which this war is being conducted by the United States has reached a stage that is beyond all reason or excuse. If it did not have its serious side it would be utterly ridiculous. No other nation, either with us or against us, has any such sprawling, foolish and inept propaganda setup.

* * *

The cost and size of these subsidized and leaderless publicity forces have never been approximated at any time anywhere. The accompanying duplication, overlapping, waste and confusion are staggering to contemplate—as bewildering to those who man the machine as to those who are wholly detached from it. But, as the product is observed, even more appalling is its steady growth in volume, in futility and in silliness.

* * *

Existing conditions are such that recently there has been an outbreak of comment—some exasperated, some amused and some genuinely concerned—from widely separated quarters representing various points of view. There is, for example, the pregnant statement of a writer, favorably inclined to the Administration, in one of the weekly news magazines, that "the Postoffice is complaining that the war flood of Government publicity releases, official booklets, etc., has become so huge that it actually slows the handling of regular mail."

* * *

Then there is the series of expensive pamphlets depicting army life and emanating from the "Women's Interests Section of the War Department Bureau of Public Relations" which so enraged Miss Dorothy Thompson that she characterized it as "unmitigated bilge" and expressed the hope that the series would not fall into the hands of the Germans and Japanese. For them, she declared, they would be very valuable as a morale builder. From an entirely different angle, Mr. Walter Lippmann last week, commenting upon the reasons the Administration publicity neither inspired confidence nor carried conviction, pointed out that its incurable defect is that it is essentially a handout, unchecked for accuracy and untested for truth.

* * *

Still another indictment came a few days ago from the Washington Evening Star, which printed a group of publicity department pictures showing our soldiers in Puerto Rico dancing with the local beauties; having a grand time at the local race track; feasting at heavily laden banquet tables, and listening to the banjo playing of the Puerto Rican senoritas. With completely unconscious humor, all these pictures are labeled by the publicity department as showing "the precautions our Government has taken to insure complete defense against any enemy."

* * *

The Star states further that the newspapers of the nation are being literally smothered under the load of pictures from army publicity agencies. It estimates that it—a single newspaper—receives weekly from these agencies pictures costing approximately $100. It asserts that it has received, all told, 157 separate army ski pictures, some 28 of which were duplicated by the commercial picture services to which it subscribes. The facts tell the story and comment is hardly necessary. Here is a state of affairs which everybody knows to be wrong, which no one, except those on the pay roll, defends, and which, according to News-Week, is actually impeding the normal postal operations.

* * *

The question is—how long is it to continue? Drastic curtailment both in size and cost is part of the Byrd committee's program and a determined move along these lines will be made. How far it will get is uncertain. One certain thing is that the resistance will be very strong. The publicity agents whom the Byrd committee would like to reduce will play a leading, though undercover, part in the effort to sabotage the whole Byrd economy report.

* * *

Conceding that much Administration publicity is valuable—and even, indispensable—no unprejudiced man can justify the extent to which it has been expanded under this Administration. No one can defend its development into what is one of the most wasteful and absurd of all governmental activities. No one can excuse the failure to coordinate and control its output. It is distressing, if ironical, that the agency supposed to do the coordinating is, itself, adding to the volume of war publicity—and not improving it. This is not the way to bolster the national morale—rather the reverse. Even the best products of this uncoordinated machine are drowned in the overwhelming confusion.

* * *

So bad is the present state of affairs that recently the President ordered a survey to be made with another "reorganization" in view. He is now being urged to coordinate all propaganda and publicity under a single head and several new men have been suggested. The fear is that this will not result in the greatly needed shrinkage and may result in lessening the effectiveness of the foreign propaganda, which is being well done under the Donovan organization, but which logically should be under the War Department. It is an essential part of the military machine and should be directed by the military authorities.

MT. LAKE PARK

HOLY WEEK—Certainly this week is needed by each and everyone.

The nation and the whole world is going through a tremendous struggle. It is necessary that we gird ourselves with faith and draw all spiritual strength that will come through the observance of this greatest of all religious events.

We have just finished reading a little booklet, "His Last Week"—from the day Jesus went up to Jerusalem, Palm Sunday, the Triumphal Entry. Monday, the Day of Authority; Tuesday, the Day of Controversy; Wednesday was a Day of Retirement, and there is no record of the events of the day other than that He spent the day with friends at Bethany. On Thursday (this day) it was a day of Fellowship and preparation for the Passover; Friday, the Day of suffering and agony in Gethsamane; Saturday was a Day of silence and sorrow.

Then Sunday—the climax—the Day or Resurrection.

And so it is fitting that Christian or non-Christian, we should realize that we are fighting a war to keep our right to celebrate Easter—a religious festival—and to do that we must have spiritual aid.

A Happy Easter!

Personals

Mrs. Clarence J. Koontz, of Philadelphia, was a Park visitor on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Stahl, Long Island, N. Y., announce the birth of a daughter, on Monday, March 30. Mrs. Stahl is the former Dorothy-Stevenson Hamill. The maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. John Stevenson, Sr.

Love Your Work . . . . . .

Carved in the heavy oaken door of the Roycroft Inn, East Aurora, New York, are these immortal words of Elbert Hubbard: "The Love you Liberate in your Work is the Love you Keep."

To do great work one must fall in love with his task. Cellini, the goldsmith, pouring his whole soul into his creations, achieved masterpieces, and the love he thus liberated brought him the praise of Kings. I've seen the designer of a piece of machinery pat it with pride, like he might pat the head of a son. It was a part of him. He had built his personality into it. That's why it was such a fine machine.

Luther Burbank's devotion to an ideal brought him the thrill of new plant creations. Henry Irving, practicing for more than thirteen years to perfect his acting of Macbeth, a part he loved, found that love coming back to him in the applause of his audience.

Work that is done in a spirit of love glows with a mystic quality no one can explain. And the worker feels as did Robert Louis Stevenson, who said "I know what happiness is, for I have done good work."

Every morning tell the man in the mirror: Today I am going to do good work.

CITY COUNCIL RE-ELECTS D. M. DAVIS PRESIDENT

Council Reorganizes and Makes Appointments at Regular Meeting Monday Night

Reorganization of the City Council was effected Monday night at the April meeting as the newly elected members met for the first time with hold-overs.

Delbert M. Davis was re-elected president of the Council and other officials were re-appointed as follows: Arthur Lawton, clerk-collector; Lewis R. Jones, attorney; James Compton, water and street superintendent; Robert W. Lohr, assistant water and street superintendent; George Fulk, truck driver; Lee R. Mason, weighmaster; B. B. Nethkin, night police; J. J. Sweeney, police chief. There was just one applicant for each job, it was stated.

Committees were named by Mayor L. M. Fraley as follows:

Water and street: Dr. E. I. Baumgartner, chairman; Prentice DeBerry, Earl Shartzer. Fraley is an ex-officio member of this committee.

Golf — Delbert Davis, chairman; Harry L. Stemple, A. G. Hesen.

Finance—Delbert Davis, chairman; Harry Stemple, A. G. Hesen.

Regular Business

During the regular business session the street committee was authorized to sell the old steam roller and other junk to some junk dealer.

Collections for March totaled $1,193.69, which included water collections of $303.37; taxes of $480.29 and auto taxes of $310.75. Regular bills amounted to $1,252.60 but also due was Community building bond No. 2, of $1,000; and coupons of $227.50, making a total of $2,480.10. The treasurer was authorized to borrow $670.00 from the First National Bank to meet current running expenses until receipts were increased.

The water committee reported both pumps were in good condition and that the reservoirs had been full all month. Dirt was hauled from the streets and a number of them washed with the assistance of the fire department. The Sunday movie tax for March amounted to $61.70.

The Mayor and Council will have a special meeting next Monday evening at which time the members will study the budget for the following year. The tax rate will be set at the May meeting.

Empty Tubes Needed When Buying Shaving Cream or Tooth Paste

"Don't forget your empty tube," is the advice merchants are giving out to their customers since the new government order went into effect last week.

The order prohibits the sale of tubes of shaving cream or tooth paste unless an empty tube is turned in for a new one. This is because of the tin content in the tubes which is listed as vital to the war effort.

Some persons who wanted to make purchases knew nothing of the ruling and clerks turned them down until they could produce the empty tube.

Many men are expected to turn to lather obtained from a mug, while others will use brushless cream, packaged in a jar. For toothpaste, people can swith to tooth powder or liquid, if they should happen not to have an available empty tube.

Spring In the Air

Spring was very definitely in the air this week with the temperature for several days being above 70. The hottest day of the year thus far was recorded on Monday when the thermometer climbed to 79. It was 77 on Easter Sunday and about 75 on Tuesday.

Rain on Tuesday night brought cooler weather on Wednesday and rain continues today.

J. Clarence Miller Re-Elected Mayor Of Grantsville

Mayor J. Clarence Miller was re-elected Monday, for another two-year term as mayor of Grantsville, but two incumbent councilmen were defeated.

Miller received fifty-four votes and his opponent, Harry C. Edwards, had thirty-seven. There were ninety-one votes cast out of a total of approximately 165 eligible voters.

Hayward F. Broadwater, who polled forty-eight votes, and Harvey Gortner, who received thirty-seven, were named to the council, replacing Dr. T. O. Broadwater and Fay L. Miller, incumbents. Broadwater and Miller received twenty and eighteen votes, respectively.

Other candidates for council and their votes were Ira L. Huff, 31; and Leonard B. Schaefer, 19. Olin H. Yoder and C. Lee Beachy, candidates for council, withdrew before the balloting.

Gortner and Hayward Broadwater will serve with two hold-over councilmen.

Twenty-Four Added To Red Cross Roll

Additional Members Bring Total To 779 With $915.00 Collected

Twenty-four more members have been added to the Red Cross roll call since the report the first of March, making the total enrollment 779 members, and $915.00 collected, according to Mrs. Paul B. Naylor, roll call chairman.

As the quota was $1200.00 there is still $285.00 to collect to reach the goal.

Mrs. Naylor pointed out that anyone caring to join could give his membership fee to Mrs. E. Z. Tower, president; J. M. Jarboe, treasurer; herself as roll call chairman, or with the solicitor for the community.

Those joining since last report included the following: John Bell, Oakland; Mrs. Jane S. Kneass, Mt. Lake Park. Mrs. D. R. Hinebaugh, Deer Park, added these names to her list: auxiliary of the Episcopal church, Young People's class of the Methodist church, the 4-H club, Thomas Loar.

Mrs. Ernest Townshend, Water street, added four to her list, Mrs. Robert Collins, Mrs. Tilden Harvey, Combination school, M. V. Kildow.

Mrs. Charles Wilt, Accident, added William Miller, Mrs. William Miller, Miss Lena Miller, Miss Rose Miller, Miss Hazel Brenneman and the Sixth grade of the Friendsville school, to her list.

Mrs. Humes, Swanton, turned in the following: Mrs. Hale Wright, Mrs. Lenuel Friend, Mr. Lenuel Friend, John Bateman, Mrs. John Rhodes, Mrs. John B. Friend.

Mrs. Willard Elliott, Oak street, added the names of Misses Barbara Smith and Palma Lucente to her list of over sixty.

Fire Destroys House At Crellin Thursday

Fire of undetermined origin almost completely destroyed one of the company houses of the Stanley Coal Company, at Crellin, last Thursday night.

The house was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Silas W. Sterling and their little granddaughter and all had retired for the night when the blaze was discovered. The fire evidently started in the kitchen.

The Oakland fire department was called but the fire had gained too great headway to prevent the destruction of the house and contents.

The house was covered by insurance but it was stated there was no insurance on the household furnishings.

The local firemen were also called Tuesday evening to extinguish a grass fire near the Teagarden home at Mt. Lake Park.

ENROLLMENT UNDER WAY FOR VICTORY GARDENS

County Chairman Towler Says 1,500 Registration Cards Now In Hands of Enrollment Committee

Enrollment in the Victory Garden campaign in Garrett county got under way this week, according to James A. Towler, county chairman.

Mr. Towler said that over 1,500 registration cards under the caption "Food For Freedom" had been distributed to the community chairmen who make up the enrollment committee for the county.

The members include O. T. Graser, Oakland; B. O. Aiken, Accident; Harry Edwards, Grantsville; Charley Miller, Friendsville; O. P. Jones, Kitzmiller; J. Edward Helbig, Deer Park; Mrs. Herbert Buckel, Bittinger; J. H. Turner, Avilton; J. Frank Browning, Sang Run; Rev. A. K. Jones, Red House.

Each member of the committee is acting as chairman in his respective community and is working through the schools, homemakers clubs and other organizations to get the enrollment.

Mr. Towler pointed out that if a person expected to have a garden, no matter how small, and had not already signed an enrollment card, he should go to the nearest chairman and sign up. As soon as the cards are in, garden bulletins and other information will be sent out from headquarters. Mr. Towler urged those qualified to join the army of "Food For Freedom" growers and help in winning the war.

Fifteen People Get Tire Certificates

Rationing of automobile tires continued this week with certificates issued to fifteen people for 16 truck tires and 11 tubes, 2 passenger tires, 14 truck and 2 passenger retreads, and 2 obsolete tires.

The certificates were issued by the tire rationing board of which Walter W. Dawson, Oakland, is chairman; W. L. Thomas, Grantsville; and Norval Speelman, Friendsville, other members.

Authorization to purchase was given to the following:

Trucks—Arnold E. Fox, Friendsville, 2; H. Ward Hinebaugh, Oakland, 4 tires and tubes; Asa J. Orendorf, Grantsville, 2 tires and tubes; Marquette Bailey Lumber Company, Grantsville, 2 tires and 1 tube; Kenneth L. McRobie, Kitzmiller, 1 tire and tube; James R. Turner, Avilton, 3 tires and 1 tube; Thomas Glenn Cuppett, Mt. Lake Park, 2 tires and tubes.

Passenger—Rev. H. K. Jones, Oakland, 1; Lloyd Miller, Accident, 1.

Observe Twelfth Anniversary Of McVeigh Holy Cross Club

Members of the McVeigh Holy Cross Mission club held their twelfth annual birthday anniversary celebration at the home of Miss Julia A. Rowan on Tuesday evening.

The club was organized April 8, 1930, for the purpose of sponsoring the support of a young student in India and to help the Holy Cross priests in their India Mission.

Those present Tuesday night included Rev. John C. Broderick, pastor of St. Peter's Catholic church, Oakland, and president of the club; Rev. William F. Sauer, former pastor of St. Peter's, and also a former president of the club; Edward A. Shaffer, F. R. Shaffer, W. R. Browning, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Clatterbuck, Mrs. P. J. Garrett, Mrs. Estella Treacy, Miss Zaidee Browning, Mrs. John J. Sweeney, Mrs. George Kerins, Mrs. William Eggers, Miss Bridget Maroney, Miss Josephine Shaffer, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony DiSimone, Mrs. Helen Hughes, Miss Mary Harsch, W. H. Rowan, and Miss Julia Rowan.

Rev. Fr. Sauer is at present the pastor of St. John's church at Frederick, and spent several days this week as a guest of Rev. Fr. Broderick.

Speaks At Lions Club

At the regular meeting of the Oakland-Mt. Lake Park Lions club on Monday evening, Ralph R. Davis, president and general manager of the Securities and Equipment Steel company, was the guest speaker.

Mr. Davis is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Davis, of Oakland, and has been away from Oakland for twenty-three years.

Kitzmiller Man's Back Is Broken

Charles W. Davis, 33, of Kitzmiller, suffered a broken back on Tuesday afternoon in the Vindex Coal company mine when a huge boulder fell on him as he was passing below on a motorized mine car.

According to fellow workers Davis was hurt badly but quick thinking on his part evidently saved him from death. While pinned atop the car by the boulder Davis was able to reach the controls and he put the car into reverse to move from under the heavy boulder.

An ambulance took him to Memorial hospital, Cumberland, where X-rays showed he suffered a fractured vertebrae. He was placed in a cast.

How to Obtain Sugar Ration Books

Preparing for the gigantic job of registering every man, woman and child in Maryland for war ration books, State rationing officials attempted to clear up some of the questions that are being asked with the following answers:

Q.—When are the ration registration dates?

A.—Wholesalers, retailers, bakeries and other industrial users of sugar will register on April 28 and 29. Individuals and family consumers of sugar will register on May 4, 5, 6 and 7.

Q.—Where will the registration be held?

A.—At all public schools.

Q.—Who must register?

A.—Everyone who wishes to get a ration book.

Q.—Is it necessary for each person to go to the registration place and register individually?

A.—No. One person, preferably the head of the household, may register for his or her immediate family which lives in the one household.

Q.—May the head of the house register and get the ration book for a maid or servant who lives in and eats meals at the house?

A.—The maids or servants should register individually and get their own ration books. A person may register only for "members of the immediate family."

Q.—Then what is to be done about buying sugar that is consumed by the maids or servants?

A.—It will be up to the employer and the servants to work out that problem between themselves. If the servant has all meals in his employer's house, it has been suggested that the servant get his own ration book and turn it over to the employer so long as he continues to get his meals there. The ration book, of course, would have to be returned to the servant if he leaves the house and takes employment elsewhere. If the servant gets only some meals at his employer's home and the rest of his meals at his own home it will be up to the servant and employer to make an agreement between them.

Q.—How long will it take to register?

A.—It is estimated that it will take between five and eight minutes for each person to register.

Q.—Can one person get more than one ration book?

A.—No. Only one ration book will be issued to each individual. However, if a person registers for more than one person he will get a ration book in the name of each person.

Q.—Who will serve as registrars?

A.—All school teachers will serve as registrars. The principals of the various schools have been placed in charge of organizing the registrars.

Minister Resigns

Rev. A. F. Richardson, pastor of St. John's Lutheran church at Davis, W. Va., and Trinity Lutheran church, at Elkins, for the past 20 years, submitted his resignation on Sunday night, to take effect April 12. Ill health has prevented his holding services for several weeks.

Rev. Richardson is the dean among Lutheran clergymen of the West Virginia Synod which includes Garrett county, having been in the ministry for the past 55 years during which period he served a number of congregations in Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia. For several years he was pastor of the Aurora charge.

Elementary Pupils to Present Operatta

The Oakland elementary pupils will present an operetta in the elementary school auditorium on Wednesday and Thursday evenings, April 22 and 23, at 8 o'clock.

The operetta selected is "Polly Makes Believe," in two acts. There will be a number of choruses in addition to the speaking parts. Rehearsals are now under way.

Candidate for Congress

Henry C. Triesler, Hagerstown investment banker, announced last night he would be a candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress from the Sixth Congressional district of Maryland.

The seat is now held by Mrs. Katharine Byron.

Triesler is Western Maryland chairman of the Salvage for Victory committee. He is the first candidate of either party to announce for the congressional seat.

4th Registration Is Scheduled April 25-27

Men Between Ages of 45 and 64 Are Affected and Must Register

Three days have been set aside for the registration of all men between the ages of 45 and 64 inclusive in the fourth registration of American manpower.

All men who have attained their forty-fifth birthday on or before February 16, 1942, and have not attained their sixty-fifth birthday on April 27, 1942, will be required to register.

All men in this registration are exempt from military service and therefore no lottery will be held and no order numbers assigned. They will receive a card with a serial number instead.

The first day for the registration is Saturday, April 25, and the hours will be from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. The same hours will be observed Sunday while the last day, Monday, the registration will be from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m.

As in the last registration the work of enrolling men will be done at the schools of Garrett county with teachers acting as registrars. No pay will be received by the teachers who are donating their services.

Two Drown in Potomac When Boat Overturns

Lawrence Watts, 3, and Sheridan Harvey, 30, Lose Lives Last Friday

A three-year-old boy, Lawrence Theodore Watts, and his uncle, Sheridan Harvey, 30, were drowned in the Potomac river near Shaw, W. Va., last Friday, when the boat in which they were riding capsized.

The circumstances surrounding the tragedy could not be learned as no one saw the accident and it was not until the two did not appear at their homes for dinner that any search was started.

Both live in Garrett county, across the river from Shaw, about 8 miles below Kitzmiller, and grocery and other miscellaneous purchases are made at Shaw. Harvey had a homemade boat in which the trips to Shaw were made. Officers investigating the drowning learned that Harvey and the lad had already made a trip to the store last Friday morning and that the former had remarked about the boat being leaky.

The boat was found capsized by Mrs. Harold Watts, mother of the boy and search for the two was begun in the afternoon. About 5:30 o'clock two young men by name of Nelson discovered the body of the boy in a pool some 50 yards below where the accident supposedly occurred. Further search failed to reveal Harvey's body, and it was not found until Tuesday evening about 5 o'clock, the same two Nelson boys being the ones to discover him somewhat further downstream and under about three feet of water.

Dr. E. I. Baumgartner, county coroner, who was called to the scene following the finding of both bodies, declared that the deaths were caused accidentally by drowning and that no inquest would be held.

The boy was buried Tuesday in Mt. Zion cemetery. Harvey was buried Wednesday. Watt's father was killed several years ago on the Western Maryland railroad.

West Virginia Youths Are Returned to Industrial School

Two young escapees from the West Virginia Industrial School for Boys at Pruntytown, were apprehended at Keyser, W. Va., over the week-end, one of them having caused some excitement on train No. 12.

James Henderson, 14, was taken from the Baltimore and Ohio passenger train Friday night after he was allegedly found rifling packages in the baggage car. The other one, Olen Arbogast, 20, was recaptured Friday night at a farm in the Stoney Run section by Mineral county officers. Henderson was said to have boarded the train at Terra Alta.

Trout Streams In County Are Stocked

Some 7,700 large-size trout have been placed in Garrett and Allegany county streams so far this spring and an equal number of smaller ones will be stocked about May 15, according to Joseph A. Minke, regional game warden. The fish stocked to date range from nine to twelve inches.

In Garrett county Minke listed the following streams as stocked to date: Bear creek, 2,000; Savage river, 1,100; Salt Block, 600; Puzzly run, 500; Laurel run in Potomac state forest, 500; Lost Land run, 400; White Rock, 400; and Mill run on Keyser's ridge, 400.

The trout season opens Wednesday, April 15, and extends to July 15.

Harland L. Jones, draft board clerk, said that 75 questionnaires had been sent out this week to those who registered in February, and that 75 would be sent out each week until the entire number of 1,113 had been reached. Registrants are given five days in which to fill out and return the questionnaires to the draft board.

Home Hygiene Pupils To Get Certificates

Sixty Women in Four Classes to Get Awards at Public Meeting

Sixty or more women who have been taking a course in Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick, under the direction of Mrs. Samuel Cole, health nurse, will receive their certificates at a public meeting, to be held in the Oakland High school auditorium next Thursday evening, April 16.

Mrs. Cole has conducted four classes, an afternoon class and a night class in Oakland, and also classes at Bethlehem and Combination schools. The classes have consisted of twelve lessons of two hours each.

Certificates are to be presented by Edith M. Pettock, nursing consultant of the American Red Cross, of Washington.

Music is to be furnished by Mickey's new band of Mt. Lake Park, while the class from the Combination school has prepared a skit, "Bathing the Baby," which will be presented for entertainment.

Advisory Council to Meet

The regular meeting of the Garrett County Advisory Council of the State Inland Game and Fish Commission will be held in the directors' room of the Garrett National Bank, Oakland, on Thursday evening, April 16, beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

Anyone interested is welcome to attend, according to Jesse J. Ashby, Jr., secretary of the organization.

Dr. Gonder to Close Office on April 11th

Dr. Thomas A. Gonder, Jr., is planning to close his office on Saturday, April 11, as he has received orders to report to the army at Camp Shelby, Miss., as a member of the Army Medical Corps.

Dr. Gonder offered his services several months ago and was awaiting his call, which just came through on Monday of this week.

LEROY WILT IS CAPTURED AFTER MONTH AT LARGE

Bear Hill Man Escaped From County Jail on February 23 Along With William Wilson

The chance stopping of a Ford automobile traveling west on U. S. route 40, several miles east of Grantsville last Thursday on a speeding charge, resulted in the capture of Leroy Wilt, who sawed his way to freedom from the Garrett county jail on February 23, while jailed on larceny charge.

Wilt was discovered in the back of the car, on the floor and under coverings. Everett Wilburn, 23, of Bear Hill, was driving the car and he was also brought to the county jail. Search was underway in that vicinity at the time of capture by Troopers Graydon S. Dunlop and George M. Browning, Lieut. Carl Dillinger and Sgt. J. H. Doud, and they happened to spot the speeding car and gave chase. Wilt said he was enroute to his home from Pennsylvania, where he had been visiting.

Wilt was suffering from a wound in the second toe of the left foot, the result of a shot being fired at him Monday, March 23, by Corporal Thomas Currie and Trooper M. Frank Beamer, while Wilt was leaving the George Fazenbaker home at Bear Hill, according to Lieut. Dillinger.

Out Again—On Bond

Wilt's stay in jail this time was of short duration, but this time he left by the front door, and legally.

His Bear Hill relatives and friends came to Oakland on Tuesday and furnished bond in the amount of $3,000, for his appearance at the September Term of Court. He is under three separate indictments and was held under $1,000 bond for each indictment. The bond was furnished at the office of A. G. Ross, clerk of the Circuit Court.

Wilburn, driver of the car, was released from jail also. He was being held for investigation but due to insufficient evidence he was not charged with aiding and abetting Wilt's escape.

Wilt was first brought to jail on February 16 but previous to that, while being detained in Memorial hospital, Cumberland, because of an injury to his hand, he escaped from the hospital, clad in a nightshirt and although he injured his back in falling from a second-story window he succeeded in making his escape to Ridgeley and later to his home where he was captured. He was placed in a cast on account of his back injury and brought to the local jail where he was placed in the hospital room at that time occupied by William Wilson, jailed for armed robbery.

Wilson and Wilt sawed their way out with hack-saws on Monday morning, February 23, Wilt leaving his cast behind. Wilson was captured that same day but Wilt fled when confronted and officers had conducted an incessant search since that time. That he was almost apprehended on March 23 is attested by the wound in his foot.

Special Session Of Legislature Is Held Likely

Maryland's legislative council late yesterday voted to study the advisability of recommending that Governor O'Conor call a special session of the general assembly.

Heads of departments have stated the need for legislative as well as financial adjustments to meet conditions of the war emergency. The chief complaint is that due to appeal of higher paid war industries, they are having difficulty in maintaining operating staffs.

4-H Clubs Are Having Special Programs This Week

Special programs and meetings are being held this week by county 4-H clubs in observance of the 4-H National Mobilization week. The purpose of the observance is to rally all 4-H club members, spur them to greater efforts in the cause of freedom and to bring more rural young people into active participation.

The enrollment in the clubs in the county has not been completed but Miss Marianna Lee Long, home demonstration agent, stated that the Extension service was anticipating an increase in membership. The Kitzmiller and Mt. Lake Park clubs are being reorganized and a new club has been established at Vindex, she said. A new club is expected to be formed at Friendsville.

The 1942 Elections

Washington, April 4.

As they approach the 1942 elections members of Congress are full of uncertainty and concern. Nor does the concern stop with them. It extends into the White House itself and occupies the minds of various of the higher Government officials, as was evidenced recently by Attorney General Biddle.

* * *

At the moment the Republicans appear to look toward the campaign with more confidence than the Democrats, though it is difficult to see why. True, the latter are disturbed over manifestations of popular feeling against the Administration for failure to deal firmly with the labor situation; for yielding to the farm lobby; for the boondoggling absurdities of the OCD; for the general waste, confusion and inefficiency of the war effort. The causes of irritation are numerous enough to make a formidable total and create real apprehension on the Democratic side. This was attested last week by declarations against the forty-hour week from such consistent supporters of the President as Speaker Rayburn of the House and Senator Claude Pepper, of Florida, on the other side. However, clear as the Democratic weaknesses are, the Republicans are not equipped to take full advantage of them. On the contrary, they are handicapped in a number of ways.

* * *

The suggestion that the election be called off was abandoned long ago as foolish, futile, impractical and not in the national interests. It was neither made nor taken seriously except by the unthinking and the Republicans cannot be justly charged with unpatriotic partisanship by nominating candidates in the usual way. They have no right to do otherwise. To abandon the custom would be a negation of the Democratic process and a withdrawal from a free people of one of the rights they are fighting to preserve. Nor would it in any way strengthen us against the enemy. This is neither a Democratic war nor a New Deal war. Millions of Republicans are in the armed forces and defense plants. Millions of them are buying defense bonds and stamps and paying taxes to support the Government. Millions of them supported the President's foreign policy before Pearl Harbor, and it is accurate to say that dissent from Mr. Roosevelt's domestic policies comes even more strongly from Democrats than from Republicans.

* * *

Nevertheless, the latter are not in a favorable position. In the first place, they have no party record upon which to appeal to the country. Before the war most Republicans in Congress tended strongly toward the isolation attitude. Only a few, like Representative Wadsworth, of New York, and Senator Austin, of Vermont, were enlightened enough to support the President's foreign policy in Congress as Mr. Willkie was doing outside. True, since Pearl Harbor, Republicans in Congress, including most isolationists, have supported Mr. Roosevelt as heartily and demonstrated their desire for national unity as convincingly as the Democrats. They have responded to every Presidential request for money and power with enthusiasm equal to that of his own party. They have not lagged behind the Democrats in support of any war measure.

* * *

Where they have fallen short is in lack of vigor and intelligence toward the governmental policies which not only could be opposed without damage to the war effort but to which opposition was amply justified on patriotic grounds. On these they have miserably muffed the chance to be a constructive force toward increasing the competency of the Government. On these they have added to the confusion and cost rather than diminished them. The majority of Republicans in Congress have shown the same disposition to yield to the organized labor and farm lobbies as has the Administration. They have flinched from modification to the forty-hour-a-week law. They voted to exempt the farmers from any form of price control. With few exceptions they have exhibited no zeal for the Byrd economy taxation policy and they connived in the self-pensioning vote.

* * *

By even approximate party solidity in standing against Administration waste and incompetency and in opposing Administration weakness in dealing with the farm and labor issues the Republicans could have strengthened themselves and strengthened the nation, too. They have not measured up to the opportunity and if the gains they anticipate in November materialize it will not be because of public resentment against the sitting Democrats. Democratic fears are wholly based on this resentment.

* * *

None of these things, however, justifies the plea which the New Deal political strategists are beginning to use—to wit, that the election of Republicans would give aid to the enemy and be a repudiation of the President. That is nonsense. It is worse than that—it is a deliberate distortion of patriotism for political purpose. It is hoped that Mr. Roosevelt will not lend himself to that. It is also hoped that he does not carry out his idea of making an "inspection" tour of the country next summer. He did that in the middle of the 1940 campaign and aroused deep indignation because it was so clearly a camouflaged campaign trip. Now it would be even less defendable. There was never a greater necessity for American voters to study the records and qualities of the candidates and vote for the best men, regardless of party.

DIARY OF THE WAR

FRIDAY—Japan was spreading out in Burma and there was a report that forces landed at Akyab under cover of Jap naval forces. Aerial blows were in progress in Australian area, with Japs attacking Port Darwin for 11th time. Cripps' plan was rejected by India congress but the latter offered counter proposals. Isolated detachments of Dutch were still battling Japs in Indies. Japan had landed thus far on only 5 islands of 7,000 in Philippine group and writer asserted U. S. flag was still flying over most of islands. Russians claimed slaying of 12,000 Nazis in Leningrad area in 8 days with intense fighting all along northern front. Japs broke through the Bataan line but a counter-attack closed the gap and trapped large number of foe. Over Malta 14 Axis planes were destroyed. Britain lost 15 bombers in night raids.

SATURDAY — U. S. Navy announced Japan had sunk 3 U. S. ships with loss of 700 lives. A new Jap push on Bataan was thrust back. Allies lost more ground in Burma on both British and Chinese lines. The British-German air war was rising in intensity. British raided Paris industries while Nazis hit at south and southeast English coast. Russian offensive was slowed down.

SUNDAY — Unrest is reported growing among Danes and Norsemen as Germans complete two years of conquest there. U. S. subs hit two Jap cruisers, sank one, and damaged two other war vessels. Daylight air raids over German territory lost 11 planes for British but they bagged 5 Nazi planes and caused extensive damage. The Russian thaw began, putting the country into a sea of slush which is favorable to Russians. U. S. gave formal recognition to Gen. Charles DeGaulle's control over French Equatorial West Africa and Cameroons. Japs tried a new type of bomb on Corregidor. Chinese and British in Burma took up stronger new positions in attempt to hold off Japs. Japs had control of the air there.

MONDAY —British defenders of Ceylon surprised the Japs who were bent on a bombing expedition there, destroyed 27 and possibly 32, and damaged 25 others. U. S. and Australian fliers destroyed 18 and damaged 20 in two days in raids on Jap bases. Darwin and Port Moresby were raided weakly by Japs. Furious fighting raged in Philippines with Japs trying both land and sea. U. S. guns destroyed number of Jap barges and turned others back. Fighting increased in northern Russia. Germans claimed bomb hits on four Soviet capital ships. Reds claimed major gain in Moscow area. Three time bombs exploded in a Belfast movie in Ireland after British and American soldiers had left the building.

TUESDAY—Japan bombed mainland points in India for first time with planes from aircraft carriers. Japs made some gains in Philippines in seventh major assault in recent days. Enemy patrols were busy in Burma in flanking attempt. Allied airmen made heavy raids on Jap bases at Rabaul and on New Britain island near Australia. American subs sank three Jap ships near Caroline islands. Japs made small new landings on Solomon islands. In west more than 300 British bombers hit at Cologne and other points in Rhineland and industrial suburbs of Paris. Slow but general Russian advances were reported. Germans made claim of offensive action on front west of Moscow. Russia claimed bagging 415 German planes in eight days.

WEDNESDAY—Japs were making progress in Burma and also in Philippines. British in Burma had fallen back to new lines just 65 miles short of oil fields. Losses were heavy on both sides as Japs pounded the lines on Bataan with increasing intensity. Allied position around Australia was good with planes bombing Jap positions about Lae in New Guinea. Soviets reported recapture of 30 communities west of Moscow and claimed Hitler had been using forces intended for spring offensive. Cripps program in India was met with another setback, despite a British offer to accept an Indian as defense minister. RAF was crippling Nazi arms production. British announced probable loss of sub. U. S. sub bagged 2 Jap cargo ships in China sea. Knox reported decline in U-boat attacks off coast.

THURSDAY—Allied line on Bataan was pushed further back toward Corregidor fortress and the situation was critical with Japs sending fresh troops into battle at regular intervals. A radio report this morning said Bataan had fallen to Japs. No action of consequence was reported around Australia. Allied airmen reported that exclusive of recent days they had destroyed 135,000 General Marshall and many stroyed 157 invader planes. In Burma Hopkins conferred in London with the new line offered possibility of British. Action was heavy along Rus- continuous and narrowing front. In Asian front, particularly in center middle east Malta and Alexandria where Reds crossed Dnieper river in bombed and activity was resumed by move to flank Vyazma salient. Two Axis armies in Libya said to number more ships were sunk in Atlantic.

To Find, Treat and Conquer, Is Program In "T. B." Campaign

"Find it—treat it—conquer it", as it applies to tuberculosis, sums up the underlying motive of this year's, nation-wide "Early Discovery—Early Recovery" campaign sponsored by the National Tuberculosis Association. The campaign is held regularly, each year, during the spring season and is participated in by all tuberculosis activities throughout the country.

Accordingly, Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, said that a special effort will be made at the chest clinics, which will be held as usual, throughout the Counties of Maryland, to find early cases of the disease and to see that remedial measures are started without delay.

"As a matter of fact," Dr. Riley continued, "this year's challenging slogan, expresses what has become the basis of all of our tuberculosis activities, all the year-round, not only for a given season. Those who have had long experience in the fight against this disease have necessarily learned many things, two of the most important of which are these: (1) Every case of tuberculosis is contracted from some other case; (2) The earlier the discovery of the presence of the disease, the greater the possibility of control or of complete cure. The present plan of attack is based on this knowledge.

"A great deal has been accomplished in the fight against tuberculosis. But tuberculosis is still a source of great danger to young people, boys and girls, young men and women, older men and women in the very prime of life. The disease is very treacherous and often does not show easily recognizable signs of its presence until it is firmly established. On that account, it is necessary to guard against it at all times and to get experienced medical advice whenever suspicious symptoms occur.

"Chest clinics for the examination of persons—young or old—who show indications of tuberculosis, or who have been in contact with it, are held monthly, or oftener throughout the counties, under the joint direction of the Maryland State Health Department and the State Tuberculosis Association. The clinics and the X-ray outfits used in the diagnosis of the disease are made possible largely through the funds derived from the sale of the Christmas seals.

"The clinics held in 1941—there were 352—were attended by over 7,000 persons, 5,060 white and 1,942 colored. Of the total number examined 482 were found to have active tuberculosis; 319 white and 163 colored; sanatorium care was advised for 353; of whom 229 were white and 124 colored. The disease was found to be inactive in 2,299; white, 1,733 and colored 566.

"The arrangements for the clinics in each county are made by the County Health Officer. Complete information as to dates, places and hours can be obtained from the County Health Department. Information regarding similar clinics in Baltimore City can be obtained from the Baltimore City Health Department."

CALORIES, CARBOHYDRATES AND FATS

What is a calorie?

The calorie is the scientist's unit for measuring the amount of heat (or energy) which our bodies generate from the food we eat. "Technically," a calorie is the amount of heat required to raise the temperature of 1 pound of water through 4 degrees fahrenheit. This energy or heat is used chiefly for muscular work and for the maintenance of normal body temperature.

Why must calories be taken into consideration when planning a good diet?

A diet which supplies too many calories will cause overweight, encourage any tendency to diabetes, and generally tax the body unnecessarily. Too few calories force the body to draw on its fat reserve. To people who are underweight, this drain on bodily resources may be harmful.

How many calories should each of us have per day?

The calorie requirement for the individual varies with his sex, occupation, age, height, and weight. The following figures are typical:

Adult women—2400 calories per day.

Adult men—3000 calories per day.

Teen age boys—3000-4000 calories per day.

Pre-school age girl—1400-1800.

What foods supply us with calories?

The fats, carbohydrates and proteins supply the body with heat and energy—calories.

Of course in the process of breaking down the food in the body each food is divided into several parts which are used for different purposes. Very few foods are pure fats, carbohydrates or proteins. Thus when we eat the foods which supply us with energy we are at the same time giving our bodies other needed material. For instance, when we drink a glass of milk, it not only supplies us with energy, but because of the minerals and vitamins present helps build bones, muscles, and teeth.

All foods do not supply us with the same amount of energy. Fats supply more calories per unit volume than do the carbohydrates or proteins. But that does not mean that we should look to fats for our energy supply. Carbohydrates, which are the sugars and starches, are probably the most easily obtained and the easiest to digest. Proteins of which meats are the richest source, should never be taken simply as a source of energy.

Are some sources of energy more valuable than others?

Yes, there is a decided difference in the value of foods which supply energy.

Animal fats such as butter, cream, and egg yolk contains energy plus large amounts of vitamin A. Whereas in vegetable fats you obtain energy alone. Incidentally Cod Liver oil is one of the most valuable of the animal fats. When you realize that it is one of the best sources of vitamins A and D, which set as a protection against body infections and help to build bones and teeth you must admit that it is important. The other animal fats supply some vitamin D too, depending upon the conditions under which they were produced.

On the subject of fats, the digestibility should be mentioned. Fats are the last foods to be broken down in the body. That does not mean that they are difficult to digest but that they are slow to digest. Fried foods may prove hard to digest because of the effect of the high temperatures used in the process. Candy is often mentioned as a "good" source of energy. That is true in so far as the amount furnished, but there are some members of the "sugar and starch" group which will give you more for your money and will furnish you with energy plus some of the minerals and vitamins that your body needs. For example let me mention the fruits and vegetables. Generally speaking their calorie value is low, but some of them are considered concentrated carbohydrates—potatoes, lima beans, corn, peas, dried fruits, bananas, and grapes.

Cereals and bread are good sources of energy. The whole grain products or those that are "enriched" with vitamin B are to be preferred. The only accurate way of ascertaining whether or not you are getting the whole grain is to read the label on the package, which is required by law to give a true description of the contents.

Your family will be better nourished if you make whole grain breads.

Oatmeal Bread

3 cups oatmeal
4 tablespoons fat
6 cups boiling water
3 quarts white flour
2-3 cup molasses
1 yeast cake
4 teaspoons salt

Pour boiling water on the oatmeal, salt, and fat. Allow to sweel and cool to lukewarm temperature. Add molasses and yeast. Add flour and mix thoroughly. Let rise in warm place over night. In the morning cut down with a knife and place in greased loaf tin to rise again. After dough rises to double size, bake in hot oven 45-60 minutes. Makes 4 loaves. (Milk may be used instead of water).

LIVING ELECTRICALLY By Betty Crocker

Even the youngsters are interested in knitting for the Army, Navy and Red Cross these days. It's a wonderful thing for them to do, but it entails an obligation for parents. That is to see that every would-be knitter has proper light for such work. You can be sure of it by providing each one with an I. E. S. Lamp. These lamps are scientifically designed to give clear, glareless light for all seeing tasks. They come in floor, table and pin-up styles, in a wide variety of designs to fit into any scheme of home decoration. With such a lamp it is safe for children to read, sew, or knit after dark. Father and Mother, too, will find that good seeing light helps them to work or read in greater comfort, and prevents fatigue due to eyestrain.

DIED

DR. FRANK W. GAGE

Funeral services were conducted last Thursday afternoon at Friendsville for Dr. Frank W. Gage, 83, retired language professor, who died Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock, of a heart attack, suffered just outside the door of his home as he brought a bucket of coal to the house.

Services were in charge of Rev. R. L. Greynolds, pastor of the Methodist church there, and interment was in the Friendsville cemetery.

Dr. Gage was born January 5, 1859, near Concord, New Hampshire. He retired to Friendsville about twenty years ago because of poor eye-sight. He had taught in Shadyside academy, Pittsburgh, for twenty-five years. He studied in the University of Wisconsin, Madison, and Leipzig, Germany, where he received the degree of doctor of philosophy. He was proficient in teaching in German, Spanish and French.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Jennie Gage, Friendsville; and an adopted daughter, Mrs. Harold Wharff, Erie, Pa.

AUSTIN F. SWARTZ, JR.

Austin Franklin Swartz, Sr., aged 75, died at his home in Gormania, W. Va., about 6:20 o'clock on Monday morning, April 6. He had been in ill health for several years but had not been bedfast.

Mr. Swartz, a resident of Gormania for the past 40 years, was born in Ickesberg, Pa., on March 4, 1867, a son of the late Peter Jonathan Swartz, a native of Switzerland.

He was superintendent of the J. G. Hoffman and Son Tannery at Gormania for many years and of late years was proprietor of the Potomac Inn at Gormania.

He was an elder in the Presbyterian church of Gormania. Surviving are two sons and one daughter, Peter R. Swartz, Orlando, Fla.; Austin F. Swartz, Jr., and Mrs. M. E. Williams, Gormania; and four grandchildren. His wife died several years ago.

Funeral services were conducted this morning at 10:30 o'clock from the Presbyterian church at Gormania, with Rev. A. S. Gear, pastor, officiating, assisted by Rev. Raymond Simpson, minister. Interment was in the Red House cemetery.

Jimmie Kelley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil B. Kelley, is able to be out again after having been confined to his home for several days on account of an attack of influenza.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

THE MISSION OF THE SEVENTY

LESSON TEXT—Luke 10:1-7, 17, 21-24.
GOLDEN TEXT—The harvest truly is great, but the laborers are few: pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he would send forth laborers into his harvest. —Luke 10:2.

Working with Christ for the salvation of men has been the privilege of believers since the time He chose the twelve. We learn today that there were at least seventy more whom He considered dependable and worthy to be sent forth. Knowing how brief was the time before His death, the Saviour called, commissioned, and cared for them as they went two by two, personally to evangelize "in every city and place."

I. Sent to Serve Christ (vv. 1-3).

Prayer is back of the calling of laborers for Christ. God waits for His people to lay before Him the need, and to enlist His grace in moving upon the ones who can best serve Him. There is mystery here which we cannot fully understand, but it is perfectly clear that prayer is the power which has been given to the church with which to "move" the hand of God. The reason the laborers are so few, even in our days is evidently, then, because there has been so little prayer.

Observe that the Lord sent His servants "two by two" so that they could encourage and assist each other. Christian work is best done in Christian fellowship. The "star performer" or the "lone wolf" may be acceptable in business or social life, but he has no place in Christ's program, unless by His special call and guidance for some particular task, such as pioneer work.

He sent them to go "before His face"—what a glorious place to be! That means that He was watching over them, expecting them really to "labor" for Him. But notice also that in loving thoughtfulness they were—

II. Sustained by Christ (vv. 4-7).

It is well when workers go out that they have proper backing. We speak of the "board" which is behind our missionaries. That is right and proper, but above all there must be the assurance of the provision and protection of Christ.

They were not to be concerned about money. Christ had already moved upon the hearts of His people to see that the laborer had "his hire"—which was food and shelter (v. 7).

Time is what life is made of, and the servants of Christ were not to waste it in lengthy oriental salutations (v. 4), or going from house to house to be entertained, thus losing much time and strength.

Nor was he to strive or become angry if some one did not receive him and his greeting of "peace" (v. 6). In any case his word would return in blessing upon himself (v. 6), and he could go on to another house. The point of all this is that the expectation of the Christian servant is from his Master, Christ, whose business requires diligence and haste (I Sam. 21:8b).

The outcome of such service is revealed in our third point.

III. Successful Through Christ (vv. 17, 21-24).

The seventy returned rejoicing that even the demons were subject to them in Jesus' name. He still has power over the demons of our day. Would that the church wielded that power more effectively!

While it is a great thing thus to see the power of God at work, Jesus told them in verse 20 that an even greater thing is to have one's name written in heaven. That means that we ought to be much concerned not only about having our own names written there, but the names of all those whose lives we touch—at home, at work, anywhere.

The secret of the disciples' victory is found in the statements which Christ in all humility and honesty made about Himself (vv. 22-24). He is the one to whom "all things are delivered"—unlimited in authority and power. The mystery of His person and work is not something man can think out or fully comprehend (how foolish have been the attempts to do it!) for He is God. The fact that the Father had revealed these things to the seventy humble, ordinary men caused Christ to magnify His Father's name in praise and prayer. Spiritual insight (vv. 21, 24) is something only God can give, and often He can give it in full measure only to humble and lowly men. "Men like D. L. Moody, who became spiritual giants, were usually humble men from lowly walks who gave themselves wholly to God" (B. L. Olmstead).

Need to Slow Up

The world is going too fast! Even the Church needs to slow up for it is attempting too much in social programs and is losing spiritual poise in many places. Paul said to the Church, "Put on the whole armor of God." The whole armor takes time to put on, yet it is dangerous to leave off any part of it.—Rev. A. E. Gregory.

A chemical which hay fever releases in body to torture its victims has been found to be histamine which causes havoc in all allergies, but it doesn't account for all the damage in hay fever.

Turning Over An Old Leaf

By Phillip A. Gladheim

"There were faces to remember in the Valley of the Shadow;
There were faces unregarded, there were faces to forget;
There were fires of grief and fear that are a few forgotten ashes;
There were sparks of recognition that are not forgotten yet."

If our observance of Advent and Christmas could rise to the level of Holy Week and Easter the commercialized aspect and customs would soon disappear. The Faithful of all churches are making an increased response to the services of Lent and Eastertide. Here in Oakland the various services of this Holy Week have been most impressive and helpful. The writer made a point to attend at least one service in each church. Monday in Holy Week the Protestant Union Service was held in St. Matthew's church. This church has a new Pastor, the Rev. H. K. Jones. The chancel and Altar of St. Matthew's were properly dressed. The Rev. Minor Sprague preached a sermon of strong persuasiveness. One was impressed in all the services by the feeling of spiritual unity between the Pastors and the members of the various churches. One sensed that we all belonged to a common fold.

Tuesday the service was held in St. Mark's. Here one is inspired by the sequence of the beautiful Vesper Service wherein the choir and congregation have equal part in the singing of the Psalter, Canticle, hymns and responses. St. Mark's choir and organist really led the entire congregation in the singing of Lenten hymns, which were joyously comforting rather than funeral, as is too often the case. The tempo of the Vesper service as set by the supply Pastor, Rev. Stevens, and the organist, Mrs. Donald Sincell, was of the proper solemn rhythm.

Wednesday evening the churches joined together in another fine service in St. Paul's. Maundy Thursday each congregation observed The Eucharist. The writer was impressed by the Candlelight Eucharist in St. Paul's. The order of service was reduced to the simplicity of the Apostolic church, and included most impressively a period of sacramental silence.

On Good Friday the three hour service was celebrated in two of the Protestant churches in the afternoon. In the morning St. Peter's celebrated the Mass of the Pre-Sanctified. On Good Friday evening St. Peter's observed 'Tenebrae' which means the gradual extinguishing of light—all candles being snuffed out save one, which symbolizes Christ. This is largely a sung service in which both the choir and the celebrant intone portions of the Psalter. Holy Saturday morning at 7 o'clock, St. Peter's observed the annual ritual of 'Renewal of Light'. As celebrant proceeds with his attendants from the narthex towards the Altar, repeating three times, while heightening the pitch of his voice, 'Lumen Christi' we are reminded that the gross darkness of Mt. Calvary on Good Friday is about to be overcome by the all exceeding glory of the Day of Resurrection. Following the lighting of the candles the twelve prophecies are read by the Celebrant at the Altar. Then he returns to the rear of the church and blesses the Baptismal font—the holy water, the annointing oils and chrism. This is followed by The Litany of Saints which concludes this morning service.

Father Broderick vividly portrayed in his Meditation Good Friday evening the spiritual and physical agony of our Lord as He hung upon the Cross. Each of these services showed a special and prayerful preparation not only by the ministers but also the choirs. The more attention is given to the proper and complete observance of these solemn, beautiful and ancient customs of Holy Church the more people will be edified and inspired unto lively devotion unto the Holy Man. Once people understand the deep meanings underlying ceremony they will not look upon it as pretence and routine—but a living drama, in which all of us can take our part.

Our county papers are to be commended for the prominence they have given the announcements of the various services as well as liberal editorial comments on the significance of Easter.

ON A DIET? MAYBE YOU DON'T NEED IT?

What we eat today we walk tomorrow! This is the opinion of many scientists who say health depends upon the proper selection of foods. But dieting can be overdone and harm result unless you know what foods should be added or eliminated from your daily meals. ASSIGNEES' SALE

—OF—

VALUABLE REAL ESTATE

Under and by virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage executed by Alva R. Martin and Nina F. Martin, his wife, bearing date the 15th day of August, 1938, and recorded in Liber No. 115, folio 580, Mortgage Records of Garrett County, Maryland, default having been made in the payment of the indebtedness secured by said mortgage as provided by the terms thereof, and the same having been assigned to the undersigned for the purpose of foreclosure, we hereby give notice that we will, on

SATURDAY,
The 18th Day of April, 1942.
At the Hour of 2:00 o'clock P. M.,

in front of the Court House in the town of Oakland, Garrett County, Maryland, offer and sell at public auction what is known as the A. R. Martin Farm, situate about 3½ miles South of Oakland, along U. S. Route No. 219, and described as follows:

All that piece or parcel of ground, situate, lying and being in Garrett County, Maryland, which was conveyed to the said Alva R. Martin by William H. Smouse and wife, by deed dated July 25, 1921, and recorded in Liber No. 82, folio 295, Land Records of said Garrett County, to which deed reference is hereby made for a description of said property by metes and bounds, courses and distances.

This farm contains 105 acres, 100 acres of which are cleared and in cultivation, and is one of the most desirable farms in this section of the County, particularly suitable for stock sale and dairy purposes. It is improved by a good, two-story frame house, with running water and bath, electric lights and a basement under the entire building; also two large, practically new concrete-block and frame barns, in excellent condition, one of which is also arranged for a machinery building and office, and has living quarters above.

The barns are properly partitioned and finished, inside and outside, having running water and electric lights, and form one of the major assets of the property. There are also other sheds and outbuildings. The farm is fenced and well watered.

Lying along a main highway, close to market, schools and churches, no better location can be found by anyone wishing to engage in farming or stock raising.

TERMS:—$500 cash on day of sale; balance upon ratification of sale and delivery of deed.

FRED. A. THAYER,
ERNEST RAY JONES,
Assignees of Mortgage for the Purpose of Foreclosure.

Red Cross Told of Need For Knitted Garments For Army

The knitting chairman in the Garrett County Red Cross chapter has been informed that there is an urgent need for warm knitted garments by the armed forces in Alaska and other outposts.

The regular army uniform is considered adequate for ordinary purposes but men on special detail, exposed to cold weather need heavy woolen sweaters and socks such as coast guardsmen, sailors, army and marine forces in the colder climates.

Some two hundred sweaters are being rounded up for shipment from Garrett county this week.

Knitting activity continues. Mrs. C. P. Jones, Kitzmiller, has knit 87 pair of mittens, and is now making socks. Mrs. Charles Sprague, Kitzmiller, is working on sweaters. Mrs. C. C. Beachy, Grantsville, has her corps of workers working rapidly. Mrs. George Devers, Terra Alta, has completed one sweater for the county chapter. Mrs. Rebecca Canan, Mt. Lake Park, has completed two men's sweaters; Mrs. Nettie Eichelberger, a child's sweater; Mrs. Paul Turney and Mrs. Charles Reckard, sweater each; Mrs. William H. Johnson, has completed her second sweater.

Mrs. H. A. Loraditch, Oakland, has finished her 26th pair of socks; Mrs. George Welling, her twelfth; Mrs. Meta Reed, one this week; Miss Nora Ellen Mosser, Mrs. Claude Liller, Mrs. Laura Welch and Mrs. L. M. Bernard have completed sweaters as have Mrs. Fazzalaria, Mrs. Milton Riley, Mrs. George Fulk, Mrs. Rachel Riley and Misses Ella, Mary and Florence Fazzalari.

Death of Mrs. Jarvis

News of the death of Mrs. Mary Haymond Jarvis, wife of Brigadier-General Melville S. Jarvis, U.S.A., retired, which occurred Monday morning at Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, D. C., came as a profound shock to the many here in Mountain Lake Park who knew and loved her. Mrs. Jarvis had not been well the past few months preceding her death and had been a patient at different times in the hospital. Plans had been made to return to the Park early. Funeral services were held in the Fort Meyer chapel on Wednesday afternoon with interment in Arlington National cemetery. Mrs. Jarvis was prominent in the social and civic life of the Park and will be greatly missed.

Washington Snapshots

By JAMES PRESTON

A couple of Washington newspaper correspondents were talking about the war the other day . . nothing specific . . . just "the mess we are in," as one of them put it.

After some lamenting, some dragging over the coals, and lots of theories about what's wrong, one of the boys with his ear to the ground picked up a well-known Washington daily.

News was depressing . . . hard to be a Pollyanna about, everyone had to admit. But there were bright spots . . . "straws in the wind," our friend called them. Here are a few he found in that one paper.

An expanded program of aluminum production was announced by William L. Batt, head of the materials division of the War Production Board. The program is scheduled to reach an annual production of more than two and one-half billion pounds—enough aluminum to build 60,000 airplanes this year and 125,000 planes next year. . .

Within a single year one of the nation's small-arms manufacturers is scheduling production so that it can turn out more small-arms ammunition than was produced by all manufacturers in the United States throughout the four years of the World War. . . .

A large automobile company, converted to the production of war materials, built three new plants to make aircraft engines. The number of workers in these new plants will exceed the total employment of the company's entire peacetime staff. . . .

Another well-known manufacturer announced a plan for giving employes defense stamps and bonds for workable suggestions. Any suggestions dealing with increasing production on the employe's own job, or for improving quality, saving material, reducing waste, or improving working conditions generally are welcome.

* * *

Another happy side to the news—Congressmen report that the home folks are coming through in the present crisis.

For example, one representative reported that a whole city was rearranging its life to cut down transportation waste. In order to conserve tires and to ease bus transportation, which is absolutely essential for war workers, schools and stores will vary opening and closing hours, factories will stagger their shifts, and pay days will be spread throughout the week.

Another member of Congress lauds the resourcefulness of management as evidenced by the tough problems they tackled and solved in changing over from peacetime to war production. He comes from an industrial region which until recently housed an essentially light metal working industry, and is now working on the production of heavy goods.

* * *

Odds and Ends: An unpublicized ruling of the Treasury Department unobtrusively upset 150 years of international law. Diplomats must now pay U. S. taxes, like the excises on liquor, jewelry, etc., and the income tax on income derived within this country. Salaries from home are not included.

* * *

Public interest in the men who make our laws led to an unofficial survey of who did what for a living before coming to the Capitol.

Results show that among the members of Congress 310 are attorneys, 50 are businessmen, 34 are farmers, 34 are editors, 27 are real estate and insurance men, 17 are professors and teachers, 14 are doctors and dentists, 10 are investment and banking men, 5 are engineers and 14 have devoted their careers to public service.

* * *

The Department of Agriculture reports that farmers are using their current larger incomes to reduce their farm mortgage debts. The statement is based on payments on principal to Federal land banks.

* * *

Industry is working hand-in-hand with Secretary of the Tresasury Morgenthau on the voluntary payroll allotment plan for selling war savings bonds. Of the employers who have more than 500 workers approximately 70 per cent have already signed up. The plan provides for purchase by employes of savings bonds on a weekly basis.

Congress is waiting to see how this plan works out before making up its mind about compulsory savings for all wage earners.

Pratt Library

Take Inventory . . . . . .

By WILBERT N. SAVAGE, Sang Run, Maryland.

Have you, Mr. American, paused long enough lately to take mental inventory of the things with which you should always be well supplied? How's your courage shelf? Does it need re-stocking? Do you have on hand plenty of determination, confidence, and fortitude?

When France started crumbling under German pressure, the civilian population from the outset murmured: "We're whipped!" And they were. Courage, determination, confidence, fortitude—none was within French borders.

In Russia the story is vastly different. As the Reds retreated, leaving behind important industrial areas, they fought doggedly and valiantly, with never a thought of surrender. They possessed in both military and civilian ranks an abundance of indomitable courage, determination, confidence, and a willing, defiant spirit. When the hordes of Nazis were knocking on Moscow's doors the tide turned unexpectedly and the Huns found their reverse levers.

So take inventory, Mr. American, and find out what YOU have on hand. Replenish your morale shelves, for you may need a full-capacity stock. Don't whine about the sacrifices you're called on to make and blame the government with everything. Remember, the government is still built and maintained BY THE PEOPLE! To coin a phrase: Be helpful if you possibly can; if you can't, try to be quiet, and don't hinder others who realize that no nation is stronger than the spirit supporting it!

MEN 45 TO 64 WILL REGISTER APRIL 25 TO 27

Enrollment To Take Place At Designated Schools; Men Not Liable For Military Service

All men who have attained their 45th birthday on or before February 16, 1942, and have not attained their 65th birthday on April 27, 1942, will be registered in the fourth registration, which will be held throughout the state and Garrett county, April 25 to 27, inclusive, it was announced officially this week by the County Draft Board.

The work of enrolling these men will be done at the schools of the county, the same as in the preceding registration with teachers acting as registrars.

The hours were announced as follows: Saturday, April 25, from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.; Sunday, April 26, 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.; Monday, April 27, 7 a. m. to 9 p. m.

Registrations will be held at the following high schools: Oakland, Kitzmiller, Kempton, Accident, Friendsville and Grantsville; and the following elementary schools: Vindex, Shallmar, Bloomington, Gorman (Williams residence), Deer Park, Red House, Crellin, Swanton, Sang Run, Avilton, Jennings, Bittinger, New Germany and Finzel.

H. L. Jones, draft board clerk, said that the same parties who served as registrars and assistant registrars in the third registration would again serve in the fourth registration. F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent of schools, has written to these people, requesting the same cooperation in this registration that they gave previously. Teachers serve in this capacity without pay.

The procedure and registration cards are the same, although the card is of a different color. Registrants who were forty-five years old or over on February 16, are not liable for military service under the Selective Training and Service Act of 1940, as amended, it was stated. They will not be given order numbers and there will be no lottery held as in previous registrations.

F. F. A. Public Speakers To Compete Tonight

The annual F. F. A. public speaking contest for this area is being conducted tonight at Grantsville High school, and the winner will be eligible to represent this section in the State contest to be held at the University of Maryland, College Park, on Saturday, April 25.

Oakland F. F. A. chapter will not have a representative this year, O. T. Graser, agriculture instructor, has stated.

Friendsville's representative will be Wendell Umbel, Jr., who won the right to represent his chapter at a contest last Thursday. He spoke on "Chermugy in Agriculture."

Charles Colgan will represent the Grantsville chapter. Accident will also be represented and perhaps contestants from Oldtown and Flintstone will be present.

Wilbur Thomas, Friendsville, State F. F. A. president, will preside at the association meeting at College Park next week. There are also to be State contests in dairy and poultry judging.

Speaks at Women's Club Meeting

Miss Grace Jones, physiotherapist in the county health department, spoke on "Special Services Rendered Crippled Children," at a dinner meeting of the Business and Professional Women's club last Thursday evening at the William-James Hotel.

Mrs. Merne Kloss gave two humorous readings.

Nineteen Eligible To Get Tires This Week

Number of Eligible Applications Increase—Quota Is Increased Some

Nineteen people were issued certificates for new tires, tubes, and retreads by the tire rationing board, it was announced this morning by Walter W. Dawson, chairman. These people are eligible to get 17 truck tires and 7 tubes, 4 passenger tires and 1 tube, 18 retreads.

Because of increased number of eligible applications the rationing board has made a request to the State rationing administrator for an additional quota which was granted in part, Mr. Dawson said.

The additional quota will take care of part of the applications which have been approved by the Board but for which certificates could not be issued on account of the number allowed to Garrett county. Under regulation of the program not more than 25 percent of the Board's quota can be issued in any one week.

Mr. Dawson said that many applications had been received which were not in proper form and in many instances had to be returned for completion. He emphasized that it was necessary that all questions be answered fully and urged that those making application and those inspecting the tires supply all information requested in the application so that the matter could be handled by the board with the least possible delay.

Those eligible to receive tires this week were:

Trucks—Clemens C. Goehringer, Accident, 2 tires and tubes; Emerson Sebold, Grantsville, 2; Oakland Sales Company, 1; G. D. Folk and Henry Patton, Grantsville, 2; Carl Richter, Grantsville, 1 tire and tube; Eugene E. Sines, Friendsville, 1; William Thomas, Friendsville, 2 tires and 1 tube; Arnold Sines, Friendsville, 2 tires and tubes; Myers Coal Company, Grantsville, 4 tires and 1 tube.

Truck retreads — Marcellus A. Arnold, Gormania, 1; Jonas Peck, Oakland, 2; William E. Fitzwater, Swanton, 2; Harve B. Mussard, Oakland, 6; Bert E. Minnick, Grantsville, 3.

Passenger—Carl Wright, Swanton, 1; Fred Richter, Accident, 2 tires and 1 tube; Louis C. Hutson, Kitzmiller, 1.

Retreads—Charles E. Bowser, 2; Gilbert W. Savage, 2.

Orthopedic Clinic To Be Held In Oakland April 30th

Postponement of the monthly orthopedic clinic at the health office in Oakland from Thursday, April 23, to Thursday, April 30, has been announced by health authorities.

Dr. George E. Bennett, surgeon at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, will be in charge of the clinic but will be without the assistance of Dr. George E. Eaton, who will be called for service in the United States armed forces with the Hopkins medical unit on Monday, April 20.

Dr. Eaton has assisted Dr. Bennett at clinics for the past seven years and for the past two or three years has been handling all the work at the Oakland clinics.

To Present Benefit Show

The Grandsons, Cousin Lennie, the Blue Bonnet Girls and Clara Walton will present a benefit show on Friday, April 24, at the Mickey Boys' Band Hall at Mountain Lake Park, sponsored by the Pleasant Valley Women's Society of Christian Service.

A Cowboy Loye guitar will be given as a door prize. Cousin Lennie's Indian act is a special feature of the program and a free picture of Lennie in his Indian headdress is to be given to each persons attending. The admission charge will be 20 and 35 cents.

TROUT FISHING SEASON USHERED IN YESTERDAY

About 500 Persons Obtain Licenses, But Many Apparently Are Waiting For Warm Weather

Maryland's trout fishing season was ushered in yesterday, April 15, at 6:30 a. m., Eastern war time, with at least 500 Garrett countians prepared to try their luck, having previously obtained fishing licenses. Many apparently were waiting for warmer weather as no streams seemed to be overly crowded.

Bear Creek, one of the most heavily stocked streams of the county, was lined with 100 or more anglers during the day, but only a few small catches were reported.

The weather was fairly clear for the opening day, and streams were mostly clear but somewhat higher than normal.

With more than 10,000 large-size trout stocked in Allegany and Garrett county it was declared by members of the Inland Fish Commission that "fishing should be excellent." Bear Creek was stocked with 2,500 and Savage river, with 2,000. Other state stocked streams in Garrett county were Puzzley run, Piney run near Finzel; New Germany dam; Cherry Creek, Mill run, Salt Block, Laurel run, White Rock and Lost Land run.

Five Fish Cherry Creek

Because of confusion as to the opening date of the season on Cherry Creek only five anglers were on hand to try their skill at fly-casting, the only type of fishing permitted in that stream. Two anglers caught the limit of five allowed in such restricted waters. An 18-inch brown trout was caught by one of the anglers.

Trout taken from any stream must measure 7 inches or longer.

Another restricted area is in the Youghiogheny river below Swallow Falls which is stocked with rainbow trout. It is legal to fish there from July 1 to November 30.

In Savage river below the new dam fishing is permitted only by means of artificial flies, and here the limit is five per day.

Fishing hours are from 6:30 a. m. to 9 p. m., Eastern War Time, as this time coincides more nearly with sun time.

The creel limit is ten fish per angler per day in streams other than the "fishermen's paradises.

Streams Closed

It was announced that it is unlawful to fish in Monroe Run in this county, from its source to the junction and from the waters of the north branch of Bear Creek from its source to Bear creek proper, for a period of two years.

Rotarians to See Puppet Show Friday

Oakland Rotarians will see a puppet show, "The Long Road," at their regular meeting on Friday evening.

The show will be presented by Mrs. Charles O. Keller, Grantsville. It is given in three scenes, emphasizing health essentials and is given as a demonstration in teaching health principles.

The show is prepared by the Philadelphia Interstate Dairy Council.

At Friday's meeting the club will elect three members to the Board of Directors. Old and new members of the Board will then meet to elect officers for the year.

The Rotary club is planning a rural-urban night on April 24, at which time each member will invite an agriculturist as his guest.

Substantial Increase Noted In Enrollment In Civilian Defense

A substantial increase in enrollments in Civilian Defense activities in Garrett county as well as throughout Maryland was revealed in the March report of the Maryland Council of Defense to Governor O'Conor. There are now 137,904 volunteers enrolled as compared to 124,374 last month.

The 23 counties reported the largest increase with a total enrollment of 75,930 which is a 20 percent gain.

Garrett county listed 1,400 volunteers enrolled to date with 380 assigned to training or duty in protective services. Twenty-nine were listed as air raid wardens, 42 as auxiliary firemen, 68 as auxiliary police, 6 as medical personnel, 235 in other protective services. Under community service personnel 325 were listed.

A breakdown of the total in the state shows that in the counties there are 14,735 air raid wardens, 10,021 auxiliary firemen; 3,475 auxiliary police, 7,361 medical personnel, 19,186 in other protective services and 10,581 community service personnel. In Baltimore city the total enrollment numbers 61,974.

Governor O'Conor declared it was "most gratifying to be able to announce such satisfactory progress for with this manifest interest in Civilian Defense we are assured of the greatest possible amount of protection from invasion and security to our homes and loved ones."

"Democracy has served you well in the past. How well you serve democracy now will determine whether democracy can survive," he said. "No service is too great or too small in this crisis. Whatever you do now to strengthen our military and civilian defense efforts will reap a rich reward in the continuance of the American way of living.

Oakland Girl Injured In Auto Collision in Washington

Miss Mary Virginia Bolden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emroy Bolden, of Oakland, while visiting in Washington, D. C., last week-end, was painfully injured when her Dodge sedan was struck by an army truck at the corner of First and K streets.

The army truck crashed into the left side of Miss Bolden's car and completely demolished it. Miss Bolden was thrown against the gear shift and suffered the dislocation of several ribs. Her right knee struck the ventilator lever and produced a serious cut, but the knee cap was not involved.

Ed Schabanes, who was driving the Bolden car at the time, was not injured. The driver of the army truck also escaped injury.

Following the accident Miss Bolden was taken to the Casualty Hospital where she remained under observation until yesterday when she returned to Oakland by train, accompaneid by her mother, who had gone to Washington on Sunday.

New Course In Defense Training

It has been announced by Mr. F. E. Rathbun, County Superintendent of Schools, that a course in Blue Print Reading will be given if enough local men are interested, the course being given under the national defense program. The class will meet two evenings a week for two hours each evening for a period of about ten weeks. This class should be of most interest to men already employed at some skilled or semi-skilled trade, and who are interested in learning more about Blue Prints, Working Drawings, Trade Mathematics, and other information connected with skilled trades. A meeting will be held at the Oakland High School on Monday evening, April 20, at 7:30 p. m., to determine the number of persons interested.

High School Study Group to Make Its Report to Teachers

All-Day Meeting of High School Instructors Scheduled April 29th

All high school teachers are to assemble in Oakland high school on Wednesday, April 29, to hear a summary of the results evolving from a study program carried on for the past several months by a special committee appointed last fall.

James E. Spitznas, high school supervisor, will give the purposes and history of the study program and a summary of the implications and conclusions will be made by Foster D. Bittle, principal of Oakland High. The summary will likely include summaries of the high points of the testing programs recently carried out by J. Frank Getty and Ernest Spoerlein, according to F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent.

How data on pupil population and school community affect the learning situation will be discussed by Miss Dorothea Fridinger, in the field of English; Marshall G. Brown, in the field of social studies; Raymond O. McCullough in the field of science.

The meeting will last the entire day and high schools are to be closed that day in order that all high school teachers may attend the sessions.

The study group appointed last fall was in line with a recommendation of the 1941 State school survey, and the outcome is expected to be an improved program of education for all Maryland schools. The local study group has studied the possibilities in the way of additional curriculum materials, and the various ways in which materials could be selected, organized and presented.

Scouts Are Making Efforts to Collect All Kinds of Paper

A more concerted effort is to be made to collect old newspapers, magazines and cardboard throughout Oakland, it was announced this week by Howard Naylor, scoutmaster, after meeting with a committee from the Business and Professional Women's club and receiving assurance of cooperation from the Mayor and Council.

Town trucks are to be used to collect these old papers and magazines on Saturday afternoon, April 25, Mr. Naylor announced, and citizens are asked to have their material ready for loading by the scouts.

The Oakland Scouts have already collected 5 tons and have baled about half of it.

Petitions Ask That Mrs. Byron Support Byrd Economy Drive

Several Hundred Signers Already Obtained in Attempt To Have Representative Take A Stand

Petitions calling on the Sixth District Representative in Congress, Mrs. Katharine E. Byron, to support the Byrd Joint Congressional Committee, which is working for a reduction of two billion dollars in non-essential federal spending, are being circulated in Garrett county and the other Western Maryland counties by the local taxpayers' associations, affiliated with the Maryland Public Expenditure Council.

Several hundred signers have already been obtained in Oakland, according to H. C. Riggs, a member of the association, and it indicates that quite a large number will be obtained throughout the entire county as petitions have been circulated in several communities other than Oakland.

John L. Hougardy, executive directore of the Maryland Public Expenditure Council, pointed out that Mrs. Byron was the least inclined to actively support economy in Federal expenditures of any Maryland Congressmen and he felt that these petitions with hundreds of signers might cause her to realize the importance of economy at this time. Other Maryland representatives have publicly taken a stand for economy.

The petitions are headed, "Victory First, Billions for Defense, not one cent for waste," and further state that the undersigned are "willing to make any sacrifice for victory but are convinced that the waste of our tax dollars retards victory and tends to destroy public morale."

The Congressional Representative is then urged to support the Byrd committee and to do everything possible "to oppose any and all appropriations which are not absolutely necessary for a nation fighting for its existence." Petitions now in the hands of economy-minded community leaders, are to be turned over to the association by Saturday, April 25.

Other Savings Possible

State, municipal and county officials throughout Maryland can make substantial savings in expenditures through elimination of personnel now engaged in unnecessary non-war activities and by leaving vacancies unfilled for the duration of the emergency, according to the Public Expenditure Council.

"Public pay rolls have swollen enormously in the last decade," Harry S. Middendorf, president of the taxpayers group declared, "and while we would hesitate to recommend staff curtailment if there were no opportunity for public employees elsewhere, the fact is that all available manpower is badly needed for war production either in industry or agriculture. Such curtailment would not only save tax dollars but would aid the war effort," he said.

To Conduct Interview

Representatives of National Fireworks, Inc., are planning to conduct a pooled interview at the Oakland office of the United States Employment service in the McIntire building, Oakland, on Tuesday, April 21, beginning at 9:00 o'clock a. m. Women between the ages of 18 and 40 who can pass a physical examination and who are interested in employment at the Elkton plant, will be interviewed.

Thirteen persons from this county were given employment on March 31, and are now working, and two others, Cathern R. Hinebaugh and Vauda Wolfe, of Kempton, reported for work on April 14.

242 HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS EXPECT TO BE GRADUATED

Tentative Lists Of Six Schools Released By F. E. Rathbun, County Superintendent

Two hundred forty-two seniors of the six high schools of Garrett county will be graduated in the month of June, provided those named in the tentative lists complete their work between now and the end of the term, according to F. E. Rathbun, County Superintendent.

This is quite an increase over the figure of the previous year when 197 were listed, and is still greater than the total of 230 in 1940. Oakland High leads the list with 121, just half of the entire number in the county, and shows an increase of 23 over the previous year.

Other schools include Friendsville, 18, an increase of 8; Grantsville, 43, an increase of 4; Accident, 25, an increase of 5; Kempton, 8, an increase of 1, and Kitzmiller, 27, an increase of 6.

More Girls Than Boys Graduate

The girls outnumber the boys, as usual, this year 132 to 110. Only in the Kitzmiller school do the boys outnumber the girls, the number being 16 to 11. There is a difference of 15 in Oakland, there being 53 boys compared to 68 girls. Grantsville is practically even, with 21 boys and 22 girls.

Commencement exercises for Grantsville, Accident and Kempton will be on Wednesday, June 10; Friendsville, Oakland and Kitzmiller, Thursday, June 11.

The list of probable graduates in the several schools follows:

Mayor and Council Approve Budget of Oakland for 1942-43

Anticipate They Will Spend $29,136, a Reduction of $11,310.22 Over Previous Year

At a special meeting of the Mayor and Town Council last night the members approved a budget for the town for 1942-43 amounting to $29,136, a reduction over the previous year's expenditures of $11,310.22.

It was calculated that the revenue this year would be over $9,000 less than the previous year when $40,426 was received.

Last year taxes brought $14,580.90, general receipts $14,774.78, water, $11,071.25; and the golf course $750. This year it is expected that taxes will bring $13,600, general, $5,787.45, water, $10,750, and the golf course $1,000.

Two items alone will cut revenue about $1,500, as there will be no household property tax this year and city licenses for certain businesses have been eliminated as it was a duplication of state licenses. The gas tax revenue will also be cut and the revenue from water is expected to drop sharply because of garages. The tax rate will be set at the May meeting. The rate last year was 70 cents per $100. No changes is expected.

The council expects to spend $11,607 on streets, $6,995 on water department, $9,034 in the general account, and $1,500 at the golf course. This will save $1,451 in the street department, $1,805 in the water department, $4,646 in the general and $3,407 on the golf course. One of the largest items necessary to be paid is the amount for bonds and interest on bonds, amounting to $5,955.

After the council approved the budget they approved a five percent increase in salaries of employees, which would amount to about $500, according to Arthur Lawton, clerk-collector.

An appeal session has been called for next Monday and Tuesday when complaints will be heard and transfers made where necessary.

The baseball season opened on April 14.

Turning Over An Old Leaf

By Phillip A. Gladheim

"There were faces to remember in the Valley of the Shadow;
There were faces unregarded, there were faces to forget;
There were lives of grief and fear that are a few forgotten ashes;
There were sparks of recognition that are not forgotten yet."

Fifty years ago this month a young doctor, fresh from his studies, hung out his shingle in the village of Oakland. That fifty years represents half the age of this same village. Save for a very severe illness two or more years ago Dr. Mahlon C. Hinebaugh has been at his post. His generation has seen rapid changes in the standards of living and the change of technique and ethics within his profession.

Two books within the past seven years have been written in defense of the vanishing general practitioner, especially the country doctor. On reading these books the career of Dr. Hinebaugh, which is familiar to the older residents of this county, come to mind.

Dr. Hinebaugh was not taught to specialize in a particular phase of anatomy or kind of treatment. But his generation was taught to specialize in the ministry of healing and always keep the ethics of his profession above the reproach of commercialism. Today we have doctors trained to specialize in some particular field; along with this goes the prestige of high fees. The public has been taught that the higher the fees the more valuable the service. But Dr. Hinebaugh was taught the opposite. He was taught to render honest, unflagging and self-sacrificing service to people regardless of economic status, and be ready at an instant's notice to travel by horse and buggy over dangerous roads in the dead of winter, and not calculate if the patient could pay.

This standard of ethics he has courageously maintained and thus he comes to his last years with a triumphant conviction and deep satisfaction that he has kept the faith, has fulfilled a ministry of healing free of commercialism and has been the benefactor of countless homes all over the county. The willing spirit, the certain knowledge, the poise of his personality and his soothing influence on patients, the successful treatments of simple and complicated ailments, the humility in the face of cases too difficult, calling to his aid or suggesting to the patient that another doctor more experienced than he should take over, are traits of character and his craft that have gone into his work with a sincere devotion. This he gave without stint to all his patients.

Dr. Hinebaugh is truly a public servant who has honored this community with a long and valuable service. His service to the public is strictly within the demands of his profession. He does not try his hand at politics, nor has he ever been partner to any of the various community associations that have sprung up and fallen away. His sense of service and devotion to duty is entirely within the ministry of healing; he is a success at minding his own business.

If petty jealousies arose, as sometimes they do, among professional people, he seemed always strong enough to rise above them, ignore them, and go quietly on his line of chosen duty. His is a retiring disposition, but it is trained to accept and cultivate two fundamental elements in the onward growth of character: (1) A passion for service to his community, irrespective of monetary reward; (2) A daily renewal of the simple life.

This second disciple functioned in connection with his farm, beyond the golf course, which many people believe to be the most beautifully landscaped plot in the county. Here after office hours he has tended with devotion unto the cultivation of things bright and beautiful amidst an environment of isolation and serenity, reminiscent of his boyhood which was spent on the farm.

Apart from his professional service he gave freely of his energy, practical knowledge and money as a successful counsellor to the congregation of St. Mark's Lutheran church in those critical days when the church edifice was consumed by fire. He was an active member for many years.

His career is also marked by the establishing of a hospital here in Oakland, single-handed. It was known as the Oakland Sanatorium. This institution performed a wonderful service to this county at a time when roads were not improved and when hospitals in the larger communities nearby had not developed. Among the various nurses that were associated with Dr. Hinebaugh I can best remember Miss Bess Stemple and Mrs. N. I. Broadwater, the wife of the late Dr. N. I. Broadwater.

The most thrilling event in his professional career, so far as the author knows, is the time he was the only doctor available for an S O S call in the country. It was on February 22, 1912. As Grover Stemple said recently in a conversation, "It was perhaps the worst day in Oakland's history." There were three major fires that gutted the main business section of Oakland, and then the peculiar accident of four men marooned in a snowstorm, freezing to death.

It was a blinding blizzard, coupled with the thermometer at 20 degrees below zero. It was not a fit day even for a beast to be about. These men had lost their way in Paradise, for "Paradise" was the name of the locality where they lost heir way in the blinding storm. They were in a sled drawn by two horses and were returning from down near the Pat Hamill farm. By the time Dr. Hinebaugh arrived they were in a very serioose condition. Three of the four had to spend several weeks in the Sanatorium. The fourth member in the party did not farmers of that area, operating the suffer injury from exposure to the extent that he required hospital treatment. It is doubtful if the four men would have survived had not a doctor arrived.

Dr. Hinebaugh has merited the praise and respect of his friends, his patients, and this community to which he has given his last measure of devoted service. We wish for him many long years yet of good health and solid joy amidst his memories and his garden-farm which he seeks out for its quiet and peace.

Here with his three granddaughters, children of State's Attorney Neil C. Fraley and Elinor Curtis Fraley nee Hinebaugh, he can relive his childhood, for he enters into their interests and play and this keeps him young in spirit.

If some day Robinwood (named in honor of the family name of his devoted spouse Eva nee Robinson) would be the possessor of a family coat-of-arms the motto, so far as the head of the house is concerned, should be: "To the public, a servant; to self, simplicity."

His son, Dr. Carlton Hinebaugh, a surgeon associated with Jefferson Hospital in Philadelphia, can do no better than to keep the same perspective and balance as has obtained in the life and career of his esteemed father.

The Farmer And His Labor

By RICHARD REA BENNETT, In the Baltimore Sun

Labor, say the harassed farmers, is the bottleneck of Maryland's all-out farm production program.

Agricultural producers here and throughout the industrial East report they are in direct competition with the draft, war industries and large industrial plants.

War industries and the draft are making the greatest inroads on their labor supply, the farmers say. The draft is taking the young men entirely out of circulations as a labor potential. War industries and large industrial plants are taking the normal labor supply away from the farms because of the wages they are able to pay.

Worse Situation Expected

With wages for common labor in the cities and on war projects ranging up to 73 cents an hour, the farmers' plight becomes readily discernable. Not only that, but, they say, they expect the situation to be far worse this year than last because of the greatly expanding industrial production and the necessity of building up an army of more millions of men.

Increasing the size of the army will be another direct blow at the agricultural labor supply, since it will mean a further drain upon rural youth as well as a probable change in Selective Service policy whereby essential young farm labor thus far has been deferred.

Up to the present the draft of agricultural man power for the army has not significantly affected agricultural production, according to Dr. S. H. DeVault, head of the department of agricultural economics at the University of Maryland.

The deferment by the selective service of farm labor probably has been the most effective means of helping the farmer retain what labor supply was available, Dr. DeVault explains. Draft officials are cooperating one hundred per cent, he says, and all the draft boards throughout the State have been interested in knowing is whether the men seeking deferment or for whom deferment is being sought, really represent necessary labor.

County subcommittees, functioning under the State Farm Labor Committee, have been helpful in this regard, Dr. DeVault points out. Borderline deferment cases in which the draft boards cannot reach an immediate decision, are turned over to these county subcommittees.

Where the draftee is found to be essential to the farm, such a recommendation is made. Otherwise the applicant is drafted into military service. Invariably the boards act upon the subcommittee's recommendations after the latter have investigated the cases.

Had Long Harvest Period

Dr. DeVault asserts that it really has been surprising how Maryland farmers have maintained agricultural production in spite of the sharply curtailed supply of labor.

They have been able to do this, he points out, by pooling labor, by making more use of farm machinery and through young and elderly persons doing more work on the farm. Above all, Maryland farmers were favored this past fall by a long, dry spell which enabled them to harvest their crops over a long period of time.

Farmers, however, report to Dr. DeVault that they are further behind than ordinarily with secondary work such as the repair and painting of buildings, repair and painting machinery, mending of harness or the cutting of next year's firewood supply. They also have not had time in which to mend or to erect fences.

Labor Potentials Studied

In spite of every thing that can be done, farm experts say, there will be a very severe labor shortage in Maryland this year. Interested agencies are exploring all farm labor potentials such as:

Migratory labor.
Conscientious objectors.
Penal labor.
Out-of-school boys and girls.
Women volunteers—farmerettes.
Draftees in the higher age brackets.
Farm-labor pools.

Farm wages have increased from 35 to 50 per cent in Maryland since September, 1939, according to Dr. DeVault. The amount of the increase depends upon the area and upon the type of farming. Through increased competition against other employers and even among the farmers themselves, wages are likely to amount to even higher levels during the coming year.

Problem of Wages

Farmers declare that they either will have to boost wages, which now range from $2 to $2.50 per day, get women or children to do most of the work on the farm or do without help entirely.

Agricultural experts say that with the current prices the farmer receives for his products he cannot afford to pay higher wages. He cannot, they explain, be expected to farm his land at a loss. Labor, the figures show, takes up twenty-five per cent of the cost of general, diversified farming and of dairy farming, and feed takes up another fifty per cent. This leaves but twenty-five per cent for all other forms of overhead, including the farmers' living.

In more normal times, it is explained, the labor situation in some areas is not always as bad as pictured. There are certain types of workers who, when they have bread, pork, fatback and perhaps something strong to drink are satisfied for the balance of the workweek. In other words, they work until they have enough to meet such requirements and then knock off work until the exchequer again is empty.

More Critical for Some

There is nothing to be done about it, say farmers familiar with labor of this type.

The labor situation is more critical for some farmers than for others. Farm experts are agreed that the truck, grain, live-stock and dairy farmers are the hardest hit. The general farmer can, with the aid of what is left of his family, weather another year just as he did in the one just passed.

From a labor-shortage standpoint, the truck and dairy farmers seem to be in the most precarious position for the moment. The truck farmers' crop is essential. It also is highly perishable and for cannery purposes it must be harvested and processed quickly.

The dairy farmer always is in need of hands to take care of and milk his cows. If worst comes to worst, he can obtain his feed from sources other than his own farm. But so far as the help in tending the cows is concerned, it is imperative he have the labor, dairymen say.

Increased Production Urged

This probable shortage comes at a time when the Government is calling upon the truck farmers, and particularly those raising tomatoes, to boost their crop for cannery purposes by nearly twenty-five per cent.

Dairymen are being called upon to produce more milk for distribution to nearby urban centers so that mid-West dairy farms can produce milk for canning and milk products for lease-lend shipments abroad.

Large truck farmers in the Patapsco Neck area recruit most of their crop harvesting labor in Baltimore. One of the truck farmers explained that during the picking season he sent his big trucks to the market place at 3 o'clock in the morning. The drivers of the trucks honk their horns several times and the waiting farm workers pile in and start off for another day's work.

Eastern Shore truck farmers depend largely upon migratory labor, which originates in Florida and follows the vegetable and berry harvest northward. Last year some 4,500 of near-by and migratory workers harvested the truck and berry crops on the Eastern Shore. Authorities hesitate to hazard a guess as to how many pickers will be available this year.

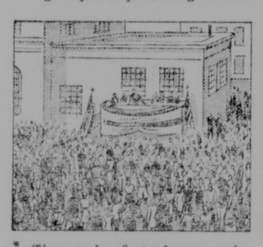
MEN OF WAR

General Electric men and women—thousands of them! Four typical scenes show the spirit with which they are tackling the grim job of producing for war!



1. Thousands of employees, only ten days after war declaration, gathered in mass meetings in most major G-E plants to pledge all-out war effort!

2. Almost 85 per cent of all General Electric employees signed up to buy U. S. Defense Savings Bonds totalling more than $20,000,000 a year!

3. A sign chalked by a G-E workman on a big machine being built for war. The sign carried this challenge to fellow workers: "Remember Wake Island!"

4. And day and night—around the clock—G-E workmen keep steadily at the most important job of building weapons and supplies for U.S. fighting men!

SWEEPING

Every home in which an electric sweeper is performing its numerous jobs silently and efficiently will be helped to greater enjoyment of this appliance by following the suggestions below. They have been developed from thousands of tests in homes, public buildings, and elsewhere. Save this sheet by cutting it out and putting it in your family notebook . . . or just hang it on a nail where your sweeper is kept. It will pay you in better results!

FOR BEST RESULTS

1. Read instructions (then read again) for your make of sweeper.
2. Learn how to make adjustments of nozzle and brush —to best suit the pile on your carpets.
3. Clean dust bag or similar container frequently.
4. Keep brushes clean; they are much more efficient when clean.
5. Pick up metal objects like pins and coins, before using sweeper. Such things injure the belt and fan blades.
6. Examine belt occasionally; it loses its elasticity when old.
7. Oil motor according to directions.
8. Store properly; set upright, and carefully rewind cord.
9. Keep attachments and instructions in a convenient place. Make attachments work for you. They were made for that purpose.

Your sweeper will last much longer, give better results, if you give it the attention it deserves. If you need a new one, see the 1942 Eureka in our store. Buy bonds and stamps to give the Japs and Germans a good cleaning!

Protection Against Typhoid Fever Urged By Health Director

Disease Is Considered Tricky; Germs Enter Body By Way Of The Mouth

If you have not been vaccinated against typhoid fever within the last two or three years, Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Health Department, advises you to go to your doctor or the nearest health officer and have him give you the three "shots" that will protect you against the disease.

This advice is directed particularly to Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and other youngsters who are looking forward to spring and summer hikes and trips. But it is meant also for others, young or older, whose business or pleasure takes them to places where there may be doubt as to the purity or safety of the waer supply or as to the care with which food is handled.

"You take typhoid by way of the mouth," Dr. Riley explained. "It is rarely contracted in any other way. You drink, or eat, the disease-producing germs in water, milk, or in other foods contaminated by discharges from the kidneys or the bowels of persons ill with typhoid, or from others, no longer ill, but who have had the disease and who continue, at times, to discharge the germs. Such persons are known as 'carriers.'

"If these discharges are not carefully disinfected and carefully disposed of, the disease-producing germs may seep into the water supply or endanger food supplies. There is always the possibility, also, that 'carriers' will be careless in their personal habits and will neglect to wash their hands thoroughly after they have been to the toilet and will infect any food they handle.

"Public health measures: Protection of public water supplies from contamination, sanitary disposal of sewage, pasteurization of milk and the sanitary supervision of other food supplies and of food handling; skilled medical care and precautions to prevent the spread of the disease from an individual to others, have done a great deal toward protecting the public against the disease. But experience has proved typhoid fever to be a very tricky disease and there are sources of infection to which individuals are exposed that cannot be reached by public measures and for which vaccination against the diesase is an important safeguard.

"The three 'shots' that will protect against typhoid are given at intervals of a week apart. As it takes some time for the protective treatment to be established throughout the system, it is wise not to delay in having it done. My advice is: 'Don't wait until the summer is here to be protected against typhoid. Have it done, now.'

"The State Health Department furnishes the vaccine free of charge to physicians in the counties. Your only expense will be your doctor's fee."

THE VOICE OF MERCY

Be Kind to Animals Week, which will begin April 19, comes this year to a world sadly in need of kindness. Men and women and children are crying out for it, are daring to hope and look ahead to a better day when cruelties shall be forgiven and tears wiped away.

In the world-wide arena of turmoil and conflict, the animals, the "little brothers" of creation, are bearing their full share of hardships. Wild birds and beasts are driven, terrified, from their natural haunts. Their sources of food and shelter are laid waste. Animals used for military purposes share the bitter burden of war. Bewildered dogs and cats, left behind by refugees, starve in ruined and deserted streets.

And yet, over the screaming of bombs and the pounding of gunfire, the gentle but insistent voice of mercy comes, as it has come in happier years—"Be kind to animals." If we but knew it, this is an assurance of our hope. In a world where men and women pause, even in the midst of the grim business of war, to renew their pledge of kindness and justice to creatures weaker than themselves, surely it is not too much to believe that brother and brother will finally talk heart to heart and walk hand in hand.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS . . . .

Background Of A Plan

Washington, April 11.

If Mr. Donald Nelson's highly publicized labor-management committees, launched six weeks ago, are failing to measure up to the ballyhoo about them, it is not because of any inherent unsoundness in the plan. The plan is all right; the trouble is in the way it was presented and promoted.

* * *

It got off to a bad start. The original announcement was misunderstood by both management and labor. It alarmed the former and inflamed the latter. Aware that the labor lobbyists who have been demanding a "lagre voice in management," are politically more influential with the Administration than any one else, and knowing that Mr. Nelson makes no move of this sort not first approved by the President and Harry Hopkins, industrialists generally feared the plan was a move in that direction. The left wing labor leaders regarded it as a step toward their goal of taking over the plants and lustily cheered Mr. Nelson for proposing it.

* * *

All of which forced the latter to make a speech explaining that this plan was neither what the industrialists feared nor the radicals hoped. The proposed committees, he insisted, would have nothing to do with wages, prices, policies or hours of work. The plan was not, he said, Mr. Murray's plan or anyone else's plan. It was the WPB plan and the sole purpose was to increase production through better labor-management understanding and cooperation. This somewhat allayed the alarm of the managers and proportionately diminished the enthusiasm of the more vociferous labor spokesmen. It did not, however, as completely remove suspicion and create mutual good will as a clear statement of the actual facts would have done.

* * *

Briefly, the facts are these: There is nothing new about the plan. Actually, it is almost twenty years old. It originated in the mind of Mr. Otto S. Beyer, Jr., who has been a member of the National Mediation Board since 1935 and is now one of the directors of defense transportation. Mr. Beyer is a consulting engineer and for many years has specialized on labor-management relations, on which subject he is a recognized authority. After his return from the last war, he evolved this idea and convinced William H. Johnson, former president of the International Association of Machinists, and Bert W. Jewell, president of the Railway Employees' Department, American Federation of Labor, of its soundness. The question was, could it be sold to the employer? Early in 1923 it was agreed to present it first to Mr. Daniel Willard, then president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and now chairman of its board. The reason Mr. Willard was picked was because he was concededly the most open-minded railroad president in the country, as sympathetic to labor as he was understanding of labor unions.

* * *

When it was laid before him, the first thing Mr. Willard said was "If this is a plan to Sovietize the road, I am against it one hundred per cent." He was assured that no such thing was contemplated. Nor was it intended that these committees should touch such things as wages, prices, policies or hours of work. Management was not to abdicate any authority. All that was proposed was that management and labor should be brought into regular contact for conference and cooperation in their mutual interests. "All right," said Mr. Willard, "I am for it one hundred per cent." On that assurance, the first labor-management committee was started in the B. & O. shops at Pittsburgh.

* * *

It worked at once and worked well, largely because on both sides there was not only desire but determination to make it work. There is not space here to go into the details of its development—to tell how the early difficulties were overcome; to describe the steady expansion over the system; to explain the character of the regular shop meetings and the quarterly regional meetings with the division heads, at which Mr. Willard himself sat in, though all that is a worth while story. Probably the best way to present the picture is to give the figures from the records of the B. & O., made available by Mr. Roy B. White, who has succeeded Mr. Willard as president and is as strongly for the labor-management committees as his predecessor.

* * *

Here they are—

Number meetings held	11,453
Average attendance at meetings	10
Suggestions received and discussed	31,321
Suggestions adopted	27,415
Percentage adopted to total proposed	86.2
Still under consideration	322
Postponed, expense not justified	1,188
Dropped, considered impractical	2,896

These figures represent the machine shops only. They do not include those of the traffic and maintenance departments, which add to the impressive totals and do not deviate from the pattern.

* * *

The benefits to the men have been many, but in the removal of grievances, in the promotion of efficiency, in the creation of mutual interest, good will and understanding, officials of the B. & O. agree that the plan has been of inestimable vaule to the road. More than that—they agree it has been of actual cash value. In other words, it has worked to the satisfaction of the corporation as well as the men. Neither would think of giving it up. After the B. & O. adopted the plan, Mr. Beyer presented it to Sir Henry Thornton of the Canadian National and it has been equally successful on that road. It was rejected by the New York Central and no other American railroad has adopted it, but it has been installed in some twenty-five industrial plants throughout the country and is recognized generally as the outstanding example of successful labor-management cooperation.

* * *

It does seem that if Mr. Nelson had made it clear that his plan was merely an adaptation of the Beyer plan which has been tested, tried out and successfully operated for twenty years, he would not have alarmed the plant managers nor unduly elated the radicals. Nor would it be necessary to resort to the type of promotion campaign now being used—with slogan contests, suggestion boxes, cartoons, posters and other stunts—to instill zeal for the scheme and dissipate suspicion. It should have been explained before it was sprung.

The 42,058,000 American women in the 18 to 65 bracket may be asked to register for a possible call to help with the war effort.

The national income reached a rate of $104,700,000 per year, in February, the Commerce department estimated.

No direct rationing of gasoline in eastern sections was expected to be done as result of cutting down the supply to gas stations.

The Jug bridge, a landmark for 134 years on National highway, was destroyed Monday, but the jug itself was retained.

While the President expressed confidence that the United Nations would win the war he said it would take at least two or three years.

Production of medium and heavy trucks for civilian use will cease by end of May.

Senator Reed of Kansas, declared people were mad and getting madder over the government's labor policy.

Senator Byrd of Virginia, speaking in Baltimore, demanded the removal of Miss Perkins as Secretary of Labor.

Bedford Springs hotel is to be used to train 1,000 bluejackets and marines, beginning May 1. The hotel has been leased by a Pittsburgh school.

Deliberate labor slowdowns that cut production in eight plants making airplanes for navy were made public by Senator Byrd.

Sunday, April 19th, has been designated "Patriot's Day" by a Proclamation just issued by Governor Herbert R. O'Conor, and all citizens of Maryland are urged to display The American Flag on that day, in commemoration of the sacrifices made by the early American Patriots, and all others who, in other Wars since the American Revolution, sacrificed their lives on the Altar of Liberty.

Cars Collide During Heavy Snowstorm Saturday

A head-on collision occurred last Saturday at the top of Cove, on U. S. route 219, during a particularly heavy snow flurry, injuring several people, but none seriously.

A car driven by Earl S. Beitzel, Accident, traveling south, collided with a car driven by J. W. Mitchell, deputy sheriff.

Chester Stuckey, Kitzmiller, traveling with Mitchell, sustained cuts to his head and neck, and Beitzel and a companion were treated at the office of a physician in Grantsville for minor cuts and bruises.

Beitzel was fined $5 and costs at a hearing before Magistrate C. S. Zeller when he pleaded guilty to charges of failing to keep to the right of the center of the road.

DIARY OF THE WAR

FRIDAY—The Bataan line fell and the fate of 36,000 American and Filipino troops was not known. Corregidor and other bay fortresses still held out. It was disclosed some supplies did get into Bataan from Australia. British announced loss of two heavy cruisers in Indian ocean, bombing of naval base on Ceylon. British were pushed further back in Burma. Before Australia Allied bombers effectively assaulted enemy base of Rabaul on New Britain and on Solomon island chain. Axis and British armies were maneuvering in Libya. Italy lost a 10,000-ton cruiser. American volunteers downed 10 of 20 Jap planes over China. New German bombers were being shot down over Russia.

SATURDAY — British announced loss of air carrier in Indian ocean. Allies in that area were depending more and more on U. S. planes. A final "no" to Cripps plan was given by India. It was announced 3,500 sailors and marines escaped Bataan to the bay fortresses. Japs continued aerial raids on Corregidor. Japs were landing on island of Cebu in Philippines. A Jap cruiser was sunk by American sub. U. S. supplies were reaching Russia in great quantities, a Russian spokesman stated. Russians routed Nazis in an attempted heavy counter-attack. U. S. and Australian airmen were seizing offensive in that area but Japs were not yet halted. British subs were making further inroads on Axis supply lines to North Africa.

SUNDAY—British planes hit at German industrial areas. Japs landed troops on Cebu in Philippines but Americans and Filipinos were resisting. Australians were warned of the 200,000 Japs who were freed by fall of Bataan. U. S. sub sank 2 vessels in Jap waters. A U. S. sub was reported overdue. It was forecast that American bombings would tie in with RAF over Germany. Russians declared Nazi plane toll was soaring with 200 shot down in 3 days of fighting. Reports from both sides indicated strong engagements on Russian front. Japs made advances on Chinese front in Burma but with heavy casualties.

MONDAY—Corregidor was pounded by land and air but anti-aircraft batteries kept bombers high. In Burma the Japs threatened the last places where oil can be obtained in East for United Nations' planes, tanks and warships. Chinese under American general stood firmly 180 miles below Mandalay and flying tigers supported Chinese. Airmen in Australia damaged 28 planes over week-end in raids extending 2,400 miles from Dutch Timor to Solomon islands. India's leader said India would do nothing to embarrass British war effort. Japs were believed to have one of their 28,000 ton aircraft carriers in Bay of Bengal and smaller carriers. Confidence in victory was increasing in Russia as Red army sparred with Hitler's legions. One even indicated German offensive this spring appeared unlikely. Nazis were about to seize Italian and French navies, Moscow reported.

TUESDAY — Japs were in overwhelming naval force in Bay of Bengal to support major invasion of India and harry allied lines in Arabian sea. There were 3 battleships, five aircraft carriers, many heavy and light cruisers and several flotillas of destroyers. British faced 4 Jap columns in Burma. Chinese were beating off attacks on Sittang river front. Corregidor's batteries in Philippines sank a Jap ship and hit tank and truck columns on Bataan. Patrols on Mindanao raided and burned eight enemy warehouses. Continued allied air successes were reported from Australia, particularly at Rabaul. Soviets warned Jap militarists to strictly observe her undertakings. Germany opened a strong campaign to wring more collaboration from France. British continued far-spread air raids over German areas. U-boats sank 4 vessels off Brazil.

WEDNESDAY — Germans forced Petain apparently to set up new government to collaborate more with Nazis, but amount of help was not known. U. S. and Vichy governments were having diplomatic troubles. While Nazis claimed capture of localities on central front Russians claimed a break-through on Ukraine front north of Kharkov. In Burma the Japs moved forward at both ends of Allied line and drove wedge between Chinese and British troops. British raids over Andaman islands, in India and Burma were declared successful. American volunteers added 10 Jap planes to their toll. In Philippines small bodies of troops were raiding Jap minor positions in four areas and causing much trouble to enemy. Continued bombing on Timor and New Guinea set one Jap ship afire. British face a 21 billion war budget. London reported that talk of invasion by U. S. and British forces was turning war of nerves back on Nazi chiefs.

THURSDAY — American bombers struck with power at Jap bases in Philippines in 4,000-mile round trip operation from Australia. Thirteen bombers participated with one loss. Five Jap transports and three other ships were hit, large number of enemy planes destroyed, widespread damage to docks, warehouses, etc. Allied position was worse in Burma with Japs opening a new front nearly 200 miles behind present lines, designed to cut Mandalay-Lashio railroad. Vichy was expected to proclaim complete solidarity with conquerors. U. S. halted supplies to North Africa because of this. British again bombed German-held areas with increasing intensity. Reds claimed a break through German front lines in Bryansk sector. Enemy subs sent two more merchantmen to the bottom off Atlantic coast.

NOW that we can no longer get all the copper we need for telephone lines, more and more families will find it necessary to accept party-line telephone service. In doing so they will help to conserve a vital war material.

Party-line service is good service when users on the same line are considerate of each other—when they answer their calls promptly—hold the line no longer than is reasonable and always replace the receiver when they have finished.

SOUTHERN STATES COOPERATIVE
FARM BULLETIN

Grass Is Not Enough For Cows

Of course, pasture is the cheapest dairy feed there is and it is always important to grow as much good feed as possible on your own farm. However, no pasture is good enough to provide a high producing cow sufficient total digestible nutrients to take care of all her needs in maintaining her body while she is also giving a good flow of milk. A 1200 pound cow milking about 60 pounds a day needs approximately 30 pounds of total digestible nutrients.

An interested student held a stop-watch on a cow on fairly good pasture for 24 hours. He discovered that she walked 2½ miles, spent 8 hours grazing, 12 hours lying down, and 4 hours standing or moving about. During this period she ate 150 pounds of grass and preferred the grass which was about 4 to 5 inches high. Looking over your pasture, how far do you think a cow would have to travel to get 150 pounds of feed?

The cow that gives 60 pounds of 3.5% milk a day should have 14 pounds of concentrated grain to make up the T.D.N.'s which pasture feeding will not provide.

Use a 20% Dairy Feed

Most economical for summer grain feeding are either Southern States EXCHANGE 20% or DEFENSE DAIRY 20%. Either one of these open formula feeds is a good, well balanced complete feed. Both contain more than 1500 pounds per ton of total digestible nutrients. Remember, it's the total digestible nutrients that make milk.

Her husband died eight or ten years ago and is also buried in the Oakland cemetery.

Marketing Quotas On Sugar Are Suspended

According to an Associated Press dispatch, President Roosevelt on Tuesday suspended import and domestic marketing quotas on sugar to permit the unlimited marketing of the commodity. This action had been recommended by the Agriculture Department because of indications that supplies available for the American market would be short of normal requirements.

This however, so far, has not made a change in the order for sugar rationing, and Price Administrtor Henderson has gone ahead with plans for the nation to register its wholesalers and retailers on April 28 and 29.

Consumers will register and receive ration books May 4, 5, 6, and 7, at elementary schools throughout the nation. All sales are to be halted during the week beginning April 27.

Bittner Named to Mt. Lake Council; Bayliss Resigns

At a meeting of the Mayor and Town Council of Mt. Lake Park last Thursday evening, the resignation of John Bayliss as member and president of the council was accepted.

His successor was named by the other members of council, according to charter regulations, and they selected Hervey Bittner from a list which also included Jamie Elliott, Ray Bittinger, and John Fitzwater. Mr. Bittner will also serve as president, according to Dr. C. Oscar Hall, mayor.

Dr. Hall also announced that the last of the concrete bulkheads had been completed on road leading from E street to the Bowling alley, which marked the completion of the entire roadway of about 1 1-10 miles. This roadway has been named MacArthur Boulevard.

4-H Club Honored at Mt. Lake Park Church Service

Members of the 4-H club were honored at a special church service held Sunday evening, April 12, by Rev. Garrett Evans, pastor of the Mt. Lake Park Methodist church. Members of the Mountain Lake Park and Oakland 4-H clubs attended in a group.

Special features of the program included two selections by a boys' chorus, a sermon for young people by Reverend Evans, and brief talks on the meaning of the 4-H's by the following girls: Elaine Casteel, the head H; Eilene Gnegy, the heart H; Dorothy Brock, the hand H; Audrey Jones, the health H.

Activities and ideals of 4-H members were summarized by Miss Marianna Lee Long, home demonstration agent.

MARRIED

FORMAN-BUTT—At a quiet ceremony last Saturday evening, April 11, about 8 o'clock in St. Mark's Lutheran study, Miss Laura Susan Butt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Butt, Green street, became the bride of John H. Forman, of Baltimore, formerly of Crellin, a son of John C. Forman, of Meyersdale, Pa., and the late Mrs. Forman. The ceremony was performed by Dr. A. B. Leamer, pastor.

The bride was attired in a street length dress of powder blue with navy blue accessories, and wore a corsage of red roses. She had as her only attendant Miss Beatrice Frazee, who was attired in a gold colored dress and wore a corsage of Talisman roses. Nordeck Shaffer was the groom's best man.

Mrs. Forman was graduated from Oakland High school in 1938 and since that time had been employed from time to time in the office of the County Commissioners and County Board of Education, in a clerical capacity. Mr. Forman is also a graduate of Oakland High school and for more than a year has been working in the shipyard of the Maryland Drydock Company in Baltimore.

The couple left Oakland Monday for Baltimore, where they have secured an apartment.

BAIRD-SHELL — Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Mollie Shell, of Phebus, Va., a daughter of Sergeant James Shell, U. S. Army, retired, to John Edward Baird, of Oakland, son of Mrs. C. Fred Husemoller, of Washington, D. C., and grandson of Dr. and Mrs. J. G. Robinson.

The groom is a first class private in the U. S. Army Air Corps, stationed at Langley Field, Va., and has been in the service for more than a year.

The ceremony was performed on Saturday, April 4, at Backlar Beach, Va. The bride was attired in a dark blue suit and hat with white accessories and wore a corsage of yellow roses. She had as her only attendant Miss Mary Vaugh, of Phebus, while Corporal Frank Glutz was the groom's best man.

The couple will reside at Langley View, a nearby community for army personnel.

FITZWATER-STECK — Miss Miriam E. Steck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. Steck, of Baltimore, became the bride of Lieut. E. Wayne Fitzwater, of Quantico, Va., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Fitzwater, of Swanton, at a full military wedding performed at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, March 28, in the First English Lutheran church in Baltimore.

Lieut. Fitzwater was graduated from the University of Maryland in June, 1939, and received his commission last September after attending a reserve officers' class at Quantico, Va.

Attending the wedding from this section were his mother, Mrs. William Fitzwater; Mrs. A. H. Beckman, Mrs. Russell Moon and Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Hamilton.

FILSINGER—PECK—Miss Kathryn P. Peck, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John W. Peck, of near Sand Flat, and Philip H. Filsinger, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Filsinger, of Deer Park, were married on Sunday, April 5, at the rectory of St. Peter's Catholic church in Oakland, Rev. Fr. John C. Broderick, pastor, officiating.

The only attendants were Mrs. William Chisholm and Miss Ruth Filsinger, the latter a sister of the groom.

The couple will reside in Baltimore where the groom is employed at the Glenn L. Martin airplane works.

VAUKEN-CARDORA — Mr. and Mrs. Carl Cardora, Kitzmiller, have announced the marriage of their daughter, Rose Pauline, to Frank D. Vauken. The ceremony was performed Friday morning, April 10, in the Immaculate Conception church with Rev. P. J. Moraham officiating.

The bride wore a navy blue suit with white accessories and a corsage of gardenias. Joseph and Vera Vodopivec, cousins of the bridegroom, were the attendants.

Mrs. Vauken is a graduate of Kitzmiller high school, class of 1936. Mr. Vauken is also a graduate of Kitzmiller high and is employed by the Luke Foundry company.

The couple spent a brief honeymoon in Washington and Virginia.

M'NEMAR-BALL — Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Gladys Ball, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Okey Ball, Eglon, W. Va., to Mr. Hal McNemar, of Oakland, a son of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. McNemar, which took place in the Lutheran church on Friday evening, April 10, Dr. A. B. Leamer, pastor, officiated.

The bride is graduate of Aurora High school, class of 1938 and has been employed at the Green Palm restaurant for about three years. The groom is employed at the paper plant at Luke. The couple will reside in the Tri-Towns area.

Truck Destroyed At Brookside

A truck owned by Summers Wolf, Clarksburg, was destroyed by fire, near Brookside Service Station, route 50, early this morning. A trailer was successfully disconnected from the cab and was not damaged.

"Test Yourself With Diet Quiz"

Note: The following quiz worked out by the Bureau of Home Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture will help you test yourself on many points included in the Nutrition movement of our Nation. If you pass with colors flying, you're an A-number-1 manager and are doing a lot to help out in a time of crisis by keeping your family healthy and happy.

Do you have a plan?

1. Do you have a working knowledge of nutrition facts? That is, do you try to include in your meals every day at least the following: Milk—¾ to 1 quart every day for a growing child; 1 quart for expectant or nursing mother; 1 pint for everyone else. Tomatoes, oranges, grapefruit, green cabbage, raw salad greens—1 or more servings for everyone. Leafy, green or yellow vegetables—1 or more servings. Potatoes, other vegetables, and fruits—2 servings or more a day. Eggs—1 a day (or at least 3 or 4 a week). Lean meat, poultry, fish—1 or more servings of whole-grain products or "enriched" bread. Fats and sweets—some butter or vitamin A rich fat every day, and enough more fats and sweets to satisfy the appetite.

2. If you are on a limited food budget do you know ways to cut cost without cutting nutritive value? For instance, do you know how to use cheaper forms of milk, and the special value of potatoes, sweet potatoes, whole-grain cereals, dry beans and peas, and peanuts?

3. If you live on a farm or in a small town and have some land—do you plan home food production to cut costs and get a better diet? Do you plan on a year round basis—grow some extra in the summer to put up for winter?

Do you know your groceries?

1. Do you shop on the basis of your weekly menu plans—buy staple foods in bulk when you save money that way?

2. Do you know when fruits and vegetables are "in season" and cheapest?

3. Do you watch scales, read labels, look for Government grades, know your cuts of meat, recognize quality in most fresh vegetables and fruits?

4. Do you buy by weight or by quantity rather than by price?

5. Do you compare costs of food in different stores—check your purchases before you leave a store?

Does your cooking save food values?

1. Do you cook all protein foods—eggs, milk, meat, cheese, poultry and fish—at low or moderate heat to keep the protein tender?

2. Do you cook meat according to cut—treating tender and less tender cuts differently?

3. Do you avoid overcooking of all foods?

4. Do you cook vegetables in as little water as possible, and use all cooking water in sauces, gravies, if you can't serve it with the vegetable? Do you leave the lid off the pan while green vegetables are cooking and never add soda?

5. Do you combine your leftovers into appetizing new dishes?

6. Do you save bacon fat and meat drippings to add flavor to other foods?

7. Do you avoid thick peelings?

8. Do you start the cooking of frozen fruits and vegetables before they thaw out—or if you eat them raw serve them immediately when they are thawed?

9. Do you avoid failures and food wastes by careful measuring, heat control, and scientific cooking methods?

Do they eat it?

1. Do you serve food attractively?

2. Do you have variety—of food, of color, of texture, of flavor?

3. Are your sauces and gravies free from lumps—your hot foods hot—your cold foods cold?

4. Does your family have fun at the table and talk what's wrong with the food?

5. Finally, the acid test—do they ask for second helpings?

How do you score ?

This quiz is really four separate quizzes and should be scored that way. Grade yourself by the number of times you could answer an unqualified "yes." If you answered yes to practically all—keep up the good work. If you answered yes to over half—you're on the right track, room for improvement. If you answered yes to less than half—do something about it.

It is quite likely that you may have scored high on one of the quizzes, very low on another. Your score will give you an idea of the places you can improve.

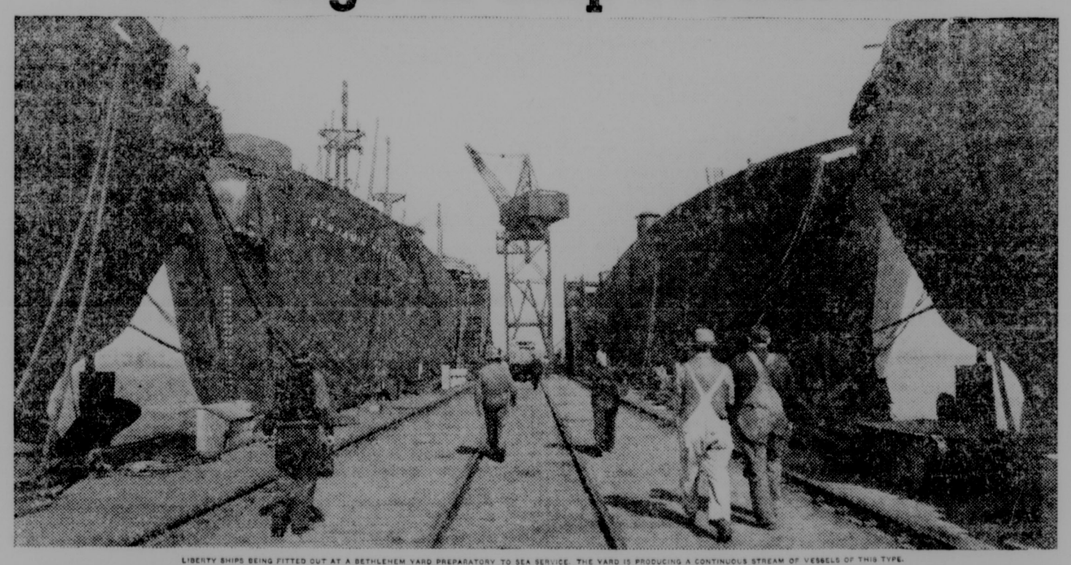
New High in Ship Production



LIBERTY SHIPS BEING FITTED OUT AT A BETHLEHEM YARD PREPARATORY TO SEA SERVICE. THE YARD IS PRODUCING A CONTINUOUS STREAM OF VESSELS OF THIS TYPE.

Bethlehem ship production this year will represent the greatest all-round shipbuilding output by any company in the history of the country.

Speed, speed and more speed is the constant objective; and always speed with quality, for a jerry-built ship is virtually useless in the grim tasks of maritime war.

The first Liberty ship which recently discharged supplies at a Red Sea port was built in a yard that was virtually non-existent a year ago. A tanker was delivered in 100 days from laying of keel. A battleship will be delivered 14 months ahead of schedule.

Cargo ships are being built in less than one-half the time required in the first World War. Comparable speeding up has been achieved on other types of ships and the schedule is being constantly stepped-up.

Expanding old yards, building new ones, tripling employment in a year's time, training thousands of new men, putting every effective facility to use, adopting pre-assembly and mass production methods—all these spell tonnage and more tonnage, a steadily-mounting output of ships from Bethlehem yards.

All hands are doing their utmost for Victory, working to achieve the maximum for the U. S. Navy and the U. S. Maritime Commission, so that the "bridge of ships" shall be maintained and steadily enlarged.

GROWING TENSION WITH FALSE LEADERS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 11:37-48, 52-54.
GOLDEN TEXT—He that is not with me is against me: and he that gathereth not with me scattereth.—Luke 11:23.

Opposition to Christ and to Christian teaching has come down through the centuries practically unchanged. Hence, we find in Christ's dealings with the enemies of His day helpful indication of what may be done in our time.

It is sad to note that the chief opposition came from those who professed to be religious leaders. It is expected that the world, the flesh, and the devil should fight God's truth, but one might expect better of those who profess His name. The difficulty is that there is only profession, with no real life.

I. Hypocrisy Unmasked (vv. 37-44).

The Pharisees professed great interest in the observance of religious laws, but their concern was for the outward appearance, while God judges the heart. First we note a false profession of cleanliness. Christ came to the Pharisees' table with clean hands, but He had not observed all their ceremonial washings. When rebuked He struck home with terrific force at the heart of the whole matter (v. 39); namely, that inward filthiness of heart which often makes folk meticulous about outward cleansing. This leads to a substitution of technical observance of the letter of the law that ignores love and judgment (v. 42), which are so precious to God. There can be a dead, dry, and technical orthodoxy which entirely misses the point.

But worst of all is the covering up of spiritual death (v. 44). Sometimes we speak of those who are "dead and don't know it," and that may actually be true spiritually. There may be death within and yet a brave and sometimes self-deluding outward show of life.

II. Theological Deadness Condemned (vv. 45-52).

The lawyers of that day were those learned in the Mosaic law, hence were really the teachers of theology and ethics. They came under the rebuke of Christ as He pronounced three "woes" upon them.

First, they were guilty of heaping upon others burdensome requirements which they did not themselves keep, and which they did not help the people to keep. There are such teachers today who set up standards they do not themselves observe, a sort of signpost pointing the right way, while they are not themselves going that way. Then there are those who present high ethical standards without the spiritual dynamic needed to live up to them. To tell a man to be good without telling him of the Saviour who can make him good is mockery.

Then, those of Christ's day were condemned for hating God's witnesses. They were willing to build sepulchers for the dead prophets (killed by their fathers), but were not willing to hear the living prophets. How true to life that is! The very ones who hate and hinder those who are preaching God's Word, speak and sing smoothly of the faith of our fathers, and claim as their own the witnesses of a past day.

Christ also pointed out that while professing to interpret the law they obscured its meaning. They threw away the key to knowledge so that neither they nor their people could learn—and yet they continued to teach. Have not the false teachers of our day done likewise? They deny the integrity and authority of the only infallible Word—the Bible; they reject the deity of our Saviour, Christ, and yet they talk about being Christians and preachers of the truth. Woe be unto them in the day of God's judgment and wrath!

What happens when such men are condemned or unmasked? We find—

III. Enmity Intensified (vv. 53, 54).

The scribes and Pharisees had two approaches: they sought vehemently to provoke Him to overspeak, and they craftily laid in wait for Him. The writer of these notes has seen both methods at work in our day. Liberals, or modernists as they are called, profess for the most part to a suave courtesy which makes them speak smoothly and gently about the conservative and orthodox believer or teacher; but if one only has eyes to see, there is often the strong and cruel hand of iron hidden under the velvet glove.

Whatever may be the approach, be assured of this—every effort to reveal false teaching in its true light, or to deal with hypocrisy in spiritual things will bring intensified opposition. Christ took it—we too can take it in His name and for His sake.

Praise the Lord

I will greatly praise the Lord with my mouth; yea, I will praise him among the multitude. For he shall stand at the right hand of the poor, to save him from those who condemn his soul.—Psalm 109:30-31.

It is ordered this 9th day of April, 1942, by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Md., sitting in Equity, that the sale of the property mentioned in these proceedings as made and reported by J. Walter Speicher, Assignee, be ratified and confirmed, unless cause to the contrary thereof be shown on or before the 11th day of May, 1942; provided a copy of this order be inserted in some newspaper printed in Garrett County, Maryland, once a week for three successive weeks before the 1st day of May, 1942.

The report states the amount of sale to be $5475.00.
A. G. ROSS, Clerk.
True copy—Test: A. G. ROSS, Clerk.

ASSIGNEES' SALE

—OF—

VALUABLE REAL ESTATE

Under and by virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage executed by Alva R. Martin and Nina F. Martin, his wife, bearing date the 15th day of August, 1938, and recorded in Liber No. 115, folio 580, Mortgage Records of Garrett County, Maryland, default having been made in the payment of the indebtedness secured by said mortgage as provided by the terms thereof, and the same having been assigned to the undersigned for the purpose of foreclosure, we hereby give notice that we will, on

SATURDAY,
The 18th Day of April, 1942,
At the Hour of 2:00 o'clock P. M.,

in front of the Court House in the town of Oakland, Garrett County, Maryland, offer and sell at public auction what is known as the A. R. Martin Farm, situate about 3½ miles South of Oakland, along U. S. Route No. 219, and described as follows:

All that piece or parcel of ground, situate, lying and being in Garrett County, Maryland, which was conveyed to the said Alva R. Martin by William H. Smouse and wife, by deed dated July 25, 1921, and recorded in Liber No. 82, folio 295, Land Records of said Garrett County, to which deed reference is hereby made for a description of said property by metes and bounds, courses and distances.

This farm contains 105 acres, 100 acres of which are cleared and in cultivation, and is one of the most desirable farms in this section of the County, particularly suitable for stock sale and dairy purposes. It is improved by a good, two-story frame house, with running water and bath, electric lights and a basement under the entire building; also two large, practically new concrete-block and frame barns, in excellent condition, one of which is also arranged for a machinery building and office, and has living quarters above.

The barns are properly partitioned and finished, inside and outside, having running water and electric lights, and form one of the major assets of the property. There are also other sheds and outbuildings. The farm is fenced and well watered.

Lying along a main highway, close to market, schools and churches, no better location can be found by anyone wishing to engage in farming or stock raising.

TERMS:—$500 cash on day of sale; balance upon ratification of sale and delivery of deed.

FRED. A. THAYER,
ERNEST RAY JONES,
Assignees of Mortgage for the Purpose of Foreclosure.

The Mayor and Town Council have designated two days for "Clean-Up". The first will be on Tuesday, April 28th, and the second on Tuesday, May 12th. Residents are asked to separate junk trash in separate bunches and containers and place where they may be conveniently picked up. On no account will any stones or baskets of soil be collected. Last year the collector ran into this difficulty and it should be understood that those two do not come under the heading of either garbage or trash, and therefore will not be taken up.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Wilson, of Washington, D. C., have announced the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Katharine Hay, to Mr. Frederick C. Barnett. Mr. Barnett has been a resident of Honolulu for a number of years where he was associated with the Hawaiian Electric company. He has recently arrived in San Francisco, where the marriage will take place the latter part of this week. The young couple will leave immediately following the ceremony for the east, stopping enroute at Selfridge Field, Michigan, where they will visit the bride's brother and sister-in-law, Lieut. and Mrs. John McLain Wilson, and will later go to Washington, D. C. Miss Wilson is a niece of Miss Katharine McLain, and has many friends here.

Staff Sergeant Chas. V. Lee, Company C, 47th Infantry U. S. A., detached service at Fort Benning, Ga., spent last week here with his mother, Mrs. James Aronhalt.

Miss Lucia Hendrickson and sister, Miss Camille Hendrickson, of Washington, D. C., have rented the home of Mrs. Bertha White for an indefinite period. The Misses Hendrickson have been the guests of Mrs. Ida Lee for several days.

Mayor Oscar Hall and Mrs. Hall returned on Friday from Atlanta, Ga.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Miller, of Clarksburg, have rented the E. E. Friend cottage for the season.

Miss Mildred Bennett, of Pittsburgh, visited her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. George Hipsley, the past week.

Miss Bertha Warnick visited relatives in Grantsville several days last week.

George Z. Dawson, who has a contract job in Clarksburgh, spent the week-end here with his family.

Miss Alma Calhoun, who has been quite ill, is improving.

The condition of Darwin Martin, Jr., who suffered a slight concussion of the brain from a fall last week, is most encouraging.

Mrs. W. B. Love has returned to her home here after a two months' visit with relatives in Butler, Pa., and Jamestown, N. Y.

Mrs. W. Thompson Burch has arrived at her summer home in Loch Lynn.

J. W. Williams returned from Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, on Monday, but is still confined to his home.

Mrs. F. M. Deane, John Stevenson and Miss Helen Schooley were visitors in Cumberland on Monday.

The Junior Band, recently organized under Prof. H. S. Mickey, will play Thursday evening in the Oakland High school auditorium when the members of the home nursing classes receive their diplomas, and will also play next Tuesday at Crellin for a meeting of the Parent-Teachers Association of that place.

Distilleries in Maryland and Eastern Pennsylvania must work ten days each month to produce 300,000 gallons of industrial alcohol for powder and other explosives.

GRANTSVILLE

4-H Club Meets

The local 4-H Club held a meeting last Wednesday night at the home of Mrs. Harvey Gortner. Miss Marianna Lee Long, home demonstration agent, addressed the group. The girls made plans for a Victory garden which they will plant in connection with their study of a nutrition course.

Women's Society Meets

The Women's Society of Christian Service of the State Line Methodist church met Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Floyd Pullen. Mrs. Jack Prince served as leader, the lesson topic being, "Our Highest Joy, Our Father's Work to Do." A social hour and refreshments followed the meeting. Mrs. Ray Nicklow will entertain the group at the next session with Miss Marie Nicklow as leader.

Councilmen Installed

Mayor J. C. Miller, re-elected, and Hayward F. Broadwater and Harvey Gortner, newly elected councilmen, took the oath of office and were installed Monday evening at the reorganization meeting of Grantsville's municipal government.

Broadwater and Gortner, who replaced Dr. T. C. Broadwater and Fay L. Miller, will serve for the next two years with three holdover members. They are Alvin J. Yoder, C. O. Bender and Harry L. Yommer.

At the council reorganization Harvey Gortner was named president. William C. Grimm was appointed clerk to succeed Clyde F. Bender, resigned. May 7 was set as Cleanup Day.

Mark Boys' Night

In keeping with the national organization, the local Rotary club Tuesday evening observed "Boys' Night." Each member invited as his guest one boy from the community.

The Rev. Samuel D. Sigler, Meyersdale, addressed the meeting on "Democracy—The Past, The Present, and The Future."

Rehearsals are under way at the high school for a two-act operetta, "O Doctor," which will be presented by students of the sophomore, junior and senior classes. The play is based on the life of people in North and South America and has as its setting a sanitorium east of the Rio Grande.

Principal roles will be enacted by Elwood Edgar, Ruth Weimer, Bernice Broadwater, Robert Zeller, Jack Stowell, Harry Huff, Robert Bender, Betty Beachy, Margie Reichenbecher, Edna Carey, Maxine Beachy, Gordon McKenzie, William Martin, Walter Walls, Max Buckel, Charles Bender, Eleanor Wilburn and Norman Patton, Jr.

Supporting the cast are approximately 100 students. Mrs. Evangeline Glenn is directing the musical numbers and Miss Kathryn Speicher the speaking roles.

Orphans' Court Proceedings

The Orphans' Court for Garrett county met on Tuesday, at which time counsel was heard in the matter of the appointment of an administrator of the estate of Helen V. Cosner, deceased, the case having been continued from a previous meeting of the Court. William R. Offutt, local attorney, and C. W. Watson, Frostburg, represented the parties at interest. In accordance with the decision rendered, letters of administration were granted to Roy Cosner, son, of Kitzmiller.

The last will and testament of William M. Fike, late of the Asher Glade community, was admitted to probate and letters testamentary were granted to Ross E. Fike, Markleysburg, Pa., and Bertha L. Dixon, Friendsville. The will of Mr. Fike was executed February 15, 1938, and witnessed by Roy S. Umbel and Quincey G. Umbel.

Letters of administration were granted Harold J. Admas, Vindex, on the estate of his deceased father, Lester M. Adams.

The will of Enoch Winebrenner, late of near Frostburg, which was drawn July 11, 1938, and witnessed by Reynold T. Crowe, Victor A. Robison and Harvey Winebrenner, was probated and letters of administration c. t. a., were issued to Harvey Winebrenner, a son.

Letters of administration c. t. a., on the estate of Adelia Catherine Lavelle Metcalf, late of Kitzmiller, were granted to William R. Offutt, Oakland. The will, dated February 25, 1936, was witnessed by Mrs. Noah Stark, George Ellifritz and Melvin Metcalfe.

Harry L. Miller Died Monday Morning

Well Known Business Man Succumbs In Baltimore Hospital

Harry L. Miller, well known and well liked business man in Oakland for the past twenty-six years, died at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, at 4:15 o'clock Monday morning, April 13, after having been taken to that institution on Saturday preceding.

Mr. Miller had been in poor health for the past several years, suffering from acute attacks of rheumatism, and had been bedfast at his home on Second street for two weeks or more before being removed to the hospital.

Mr. Miller was born in Uniontown, Pa., a son of the late Jacob M. and Elizabeth Boring Miller. By occupation in his younger years he was a miller in that city, but in 1916 came to Oakland where he established a grocery and meat market in the Nally building on Alder street. He eventually purchased the structure corner Second and Liberty streets for his permanent place of business where he became successful as a leading merchant and business man of the community.

He was a member of the Knights of Pythias Lodge of Oakland and was also a member of the local Rotary Club until his health failed. During his career he gave freely to all kinds of community activities.

Funeral services are to be conducted this afternoon at three o'clock from St. Matthew's church, of which he was a member, with the Rev. H. Kearney Jones, rector, officiating. Interment will be in Oakland cemetery.

Surviving are one sister, Mrs. G. W. Ache, Uniontown, Pa., and a nephew, George W. Ache, Jr., of McClellandtown, Pa. A brother, George, and a sister, Mrs. Catherine German, preceded him in death, the latter succumbing about six years ago shortly after she came to Oakland to reside with her brother.

Active pallbearers will be Arden May, Charles A. Fleegle, Lloyd Liller, William Naylor, Earl Shartzer, Willyiam R. Browning, Ronald E. McIntire and Frank Kley.

Honorary pallbearers will be L. M. Fraley, W. R. Offutt, D. Edward Offutt, Asa T. Matthews, F. A. Smouse, Stuart F. Hamill, Albert G. Ross, Daniel P. Smouse, A. C. Warnick, Dr. M. C. Hinebaugh, Thomas A. Gonder, William A. Sturgiss, Arthur Naylor, James A. Towler, Charles C. Reckard, James Bell, Harvey Mussard, H. C. Sincell, E. R. Jones, Delbert Davis, H. C. Riggs, W. O. Davis, Paul McIntire, John J. Sweeney, Guy Hinebaugh, John Weber, William Gibson, Roy Winters, William Chisholm, Emeric Dusic, James Treacy, Ira J. Bosley, J. E. Harned, Owen Treacy.

DIED

MRS. MAHALA SISLER

Funeral services for Mrs. Mahala Sisler, aged 91 years, whose home was near Friendsville, and who died on Friday, April 3, at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Grace D. VanSickle, were held on Sunday, April 5, at Blooming Rose, with interment in the church cemetery.

Mrs. Sisler was first united in marriage with Henry Awman, of Cuzzart, West Va., and to this union one son, I. R. Awman, of Selbysport, was born. After the death of Mr. Awman she became the wife of Samuel Sisler, of Hazelton, West Va., who preceded her in death twenty years ago. To this union four children were born: Andrew Sisler, Hazelton; G. C. Sisler, Mrs. Grace D. VanSickle and Mrs. R. H. Friend, all of Friendsville. She is also survived by thirty-two grandchildren and sixty-five great-grandchildren.

MRS. WILLIAM O'BRIEN

Mrs. William O'Brien, aged 68, of Meadow Mountain, died at 9:40 o'clock last night, April 15, at her home, following a lingering illness. She was formerly Miss Nettie Duckworth.

Surviving are her husband, a daughter, Mrs. Simon Bittinger, of Beryl, W. Va., and a son, Joseph G. O'Brien, of Swanton.

Funeral servcies are to be conducted Saturday morning at 11 o'clock from the North Glade church, with interment at Westernport.

MRS. JOHN ASH

Mrs. John Ash, age 59, died at her home in Bridgeville, Del., on Thursday, April 9, at 4 p. m., of complications.

She is survived by her husband and nine children, David, Menno, Adam, Frank, Orval, Roy, Norman, Mrs. Myra Moose, all of Delaware, and Perry, of Fort Jackson, S. C.; 29 grandchildren, and her mother, and the following brothers and sisters, Evan Burkholder, of Clifton Mills, W. Va.; Perry Burkholder, Charlotte, N. C.; Daniel Burkholder, of Holley, Oregon; John Burkholder, of Gibbon Glade, Penna.; Mrs. Mary Gingerich, of Alberta, Canada; Mrs. Barbara Teets, of Flintstone; Mrs. Emma Sisk and Mrs. Cora Schroch, of Oakland; and Mrs. Lydia Rotruck, of Martin, W. Va.

The funeral was held at Greenwood, Del., Monday afternoon by Ministers Carl Hershberger and Codaniel.

Mrs. Ash formerly lived in the Bittinger section of Garrett county.

Aged County Resident Died Sunday Morning

Great-Grandson Of Maryland's First Constitutional Governor, Passes At Grantsville

Thomas Jefferson Johnson, one of the oldest residents of Garrett county, died at 8:30 o'clock Sunday morning, April 12, at the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar V. Stanton, Little Crossings, in the Grantsville community, with whom he resided.

Had Mr. Johnson survived until April 30 he would have been 95 years of age. He had been in failing health for several months, but his condition did not become critical until two weeks preceding his demise, when he suffered a heart attack.

A son of Thomas J. and Ann Ogle Johnson, he was born in this county April 30, 1847, on the Johnson Farm, located on Route 40 between Grantsville and Frostburg. For many years he was one of the most widely known farm on which he was born until 1936 when he retired and moved to the Eli Stanton property at Little Crossings.

Mr. Johnson's great-grandfather, Thomas Jefferson Johnson, was the first Constitutional Governor of Maryland. Mr. Johnson, a staunch Democrat of the old school, was himself active in local politics until a few years ago. As a member of the Board of County Commissioners, he served for several years and was one of the few Democrats to hold such an office in the county. In 1910 he was the Democratic candidate for State Senator. He was a member of the Board of Education from 1916 to 1922, and during the World War was a member of the county draft board.

On March 8, 1893, he married Miss Maude C. Pulliam, of Oakland, who, with the following children, survive: Thomas J. Johnson, near Finzel; Richard D. Johnson and Bryan C. Johnson, Frostburg; Mrs. Walter Caldwell, Miss Rhoda Johnson and Mrs. L. H. Binkley, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Johnson Sites, Elkins, West Va., and Mrs. Edgar V. Stanton, of Grantsville; also several grandchildren. Two children are deceased.

Since early boyhood Mr. Johnson had been a member of the Episcopal church at Frostburg.

Despite advanced years Mr. Johnson was said to be unusually active and until last September, when his health began to fail, went about his daily chores briskly. His mind was exceedingly alert and he could give interesting accounts of early history and happenings in the county.

Funeral services were conducted from the Stanton home on Tuesday afternoon with interment being made in the Johnson cemetery.

Active pallbearers were Scott Layman, Byron H. Bender, George Meese, William Turner, Jesse Merrill and Earl Michael.

Honorary pallbearers were Grant Deibler, John Carey, Enoch Robeson, Otho S. Fike, Cecil Michael, V. Llewellyn Blocher and George Taylor.

Among those from a distance attending the service were Dr. and Mrs. L. H. Binkley and daughter Grace, Miss Rhoda Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Caldwell, Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Johnson Sites and children, Elkins, W. Va.; Samuel Johnson, Johnstown, Pa.

The "Bard" Dreams Of Spring

In this morning's Baltimore Sun the "Bentztown Bard" gave utterance to a spring phantasy in words following:

"Long before the chill of winter had left the air in the old town on the river it was possible to catch a breath of the true ethereal essence of spring if you sought the sunny side of the old barn when the sun was high enough to bathe you in its refulgent beams—and there was always company. In and out of the loft of the old barn the swallows were flitting, and over near the field the turkeys were strutting, down the lane the cattle were lowing, and under the eaves of the straw stack in the barn yard the leaves were lost in placid contentment and laziness. Polk weed was beginning to put up and dandelions to burgeon, and the air was full of that strange spice of mint and tansey and pigweed and the wild mustard, with May apples growing a mile a minute right before your eyes, and the skunk cabbage expanding its exotic foliage down in the marshy bottom of the old ten-acre lot. Still and patient as you were there in the sunshine, the bay colt would come and muzzle at your sleeves, and the shoats would worry around your feet, and overhead the martins would dart so near you could almost reach out and grab one. You whittled away on an old pine shingle, and you chewed licorice root, and the world was yours."

A most beautiful dream and we hope it lasts.

REV. JAMES MILLER

Rev. James Miller, Indianapolis, Indiana, is the evangelist at a revival in progress at the Union Holiness Tabernacle, Third street.

AURORA-EGLON

Relatives in this community were notified of the death of Ira N. Lantz, 65, who died Monday at his home at Rowlesburg, following several months' illness of a heart ailment. Besides his father, Levi Lantz, who is 94 years old, he is survived by his widow, the former Amy DeWitt, and six children. Also three brothers. Funeral services were held Thursday at Rowlesburg and interment was made in the Lantz Ridge cemetery.

A little four-year-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hauser, Eglon, is a patient in the Tucker County Hospital.

Word was received here of the illness of Maura Lantz, of Grafton, and who is now a patient in a Clarksburg hospital. The Lantzes were formerly of this community.

Rev. and Mrs. Ezra Fike, Eglon, left Sunday for Richmond, Va., where Rev. Fike will be a patient in a hospital.

A farewell celebration was given Friday evening at the Aurora Community building for the draftees who left Monday for army services. Each draftee was given a pocket Testament and a pencil. Following are the names of some who left: Lester H. Whitehair, Fred J. Teets, George W. Wotring, Walter A. Shaffer, Loren A. Knotts, Clarence Snyder, William C. Hughs, Gilbert T. Whitehair, Wayne C. Harsh, David Lantz, Floyd Snyder, Homer D. Knotts, Edison H. Lewis, David C. Hardesty, Kieth R. Bolyard, Earl Teets.

Paul Snyder, of Eglon, went Wednesday to Terra Alta, where he has employment at E. S. Evans' garage.

Mrs. Henry Parker and two little boys left April 3 for their home in Mississippi, after an extended visit at the home of Mrs. Parker's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Wotring, Aurora.

George Winters, of Eglon, who was until recently a student in Aurora high school, went Sunday to Sabraton, where he has employment with the Beckman Brothers.

Lester Stemple, son of Harry and the late Ethel Tanner Stemple, of Stemple Ridge, who is stationed at Camp Claiborne, Louisiana, has a ten-day leave of absence which he is spending with home folks in this community.

Mrs. Etta Bittinger, of Eglon, went Sunday to the home of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Washington Fike, of near Brookside, where she will remain indefinitely. Mrs. Fike has been an invalid for more than three years.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Lawton, of Baltimore, were business visitors in this community, on Tuesday. Mrs. Lawton was formerly Miss Martha Hamstead, of near Gnegy Church.

A miscellaneous shower will be given Friday night, to Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Evans, newlyweds, at their home near Horse Shoe Run.

Getting Service that Conserves Your Car?

Come in for service by Authorized Factory-trained Mechanics who know how to make cars last longer

THERE'S a big difference between servicing a car and conserving it.

The first simply takes care of needed matters — the second attends to them in a way that prolongs car-life.

For example—now's the time to change to spring and summer oil and lubricants. But if you want longest car-life, it's also the time to check up on motor efficiency, gas mileage, wheel alignment, clutch and brake condition, battery condition and general tightness.

Buick Spring Servicing includes many of those things—then goes farther.

Every car brought to a Buick dealer for regular seasonal service also gets a complete check-up by a factory-trained mechanic ABSOLUTELY WITHOUT COST.

This check-up helps Conserve Your Car by showing its exact condition, and uncovering any special attention it may need in the near future.

Why not get Spring Servicing that includes this EXTRA safeguard of long life at no extra charge?

Mirror For The Mind . . .

Before venturing forth in the morning men wash and shave, comb their hair and brush their teeth. Before leaving for business they take a good look in the mirror to be sure that they are presentable.

John Ruskin suggests that we should have a mirror for the mind, as well as the body. He says: "Try to get the strength of heart to look yourself fairly in the face in mind as well as body. I cannot doubt that the mind is a less pleasant thing to look at than the face, and for that reason it needs more looking at; so always have two mirrors on your toilet table, and see that with proper care you dress your body and mind before them daily."

What mental attitudes are you reflecting in your mental mirror? Just as people are attracted to those who are appropriately attired, whose shoes are shined and whose faces are shaved, and hair cut—they also welcome men whose minds are dressed with courage, optimism, joy, love, faith and hope.

Dress up your mind with positive qualities, with victorious and triumphant attitudes! Be a well-dressed man, mentally as well as physically!

What a difference, if those in public life who have the government of the nation in charge, could decide to become well-dressed men, mentally!

EXPENDITURE IN PUBLIC AID IS ON THE INCREASE

Welfare Secretary Says This Is Due to Higher Living Costs; Number Helped Up a Little, Too

That expenditures for various types of public assistance in Garrett county were increasing, due to higher living costs, was announced this week by Mrs. Dorothy Ogburn, executive secretary of the Garrett County Welfare Board, in releasing the figures for March, 1942.

The figures showed that expenditures last month amounted to $18,523.15, including administration costs, and that 1,034 people were assisted. There has also been a slight increase in number of persons receiving assistance, Mrs. Ogburn said.

"Since the Garrett County Welfare Board does not assist employable people, the added opportunities for employment have little or no effect upon the agency's program," she pointed out.

The increase in expenditures in March, 1942, over March, 1941, amounts to $2,280.37. Mrs. Ogburn said this increase was primarily because of increased costs of living. She said a local study of current food costs was completed in January, 1942, which showed that it was costing families much more to buy their food this year than it had cost the previous year. "Consequently budgets were increased as funds would permit, to take care of the higher living costs."

In March 1,034 people received assistance, compared with 977 for March, 1941, and 1,009 for February, 1942.

On another page of this newspaper the comparison in expenditures and people assisted is made in tabulated form.

Expenditures for all types of public assistance in Maryland totaled $713,592 in March, about $3,500 more than in February, but well below the $757,356 of March, 1941.

Harpold Addresses Jaycee Meeting

Eugene Harpold, Kitzmiller, defense training coordinator for the county, gave members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce an insight into the work that was being done in his training classes at the regular meeting of that organization, Tuesday night at the William-James Hotel.

Mr. Harpold, industrial arts instructor in the Kitzmiller high school, was named county coordinator when the work started in this county. Throughout the past year 750 students have been enrolled in the various courses given and at the end of last month there were 260 pupils in twelve classes, he told the Jaycees. Many who have completed the courses have obtained jobs in defense industry, he said.

New courses are being started, one in blue print reading, and one for Oakland high school seniors on Mondays, in welding. He said one in aircraft woodwork and one in auto mechanics would begin next week.

Charles L. Briner, Jr., president of the Jaycees, read a letter from Senator Tydings in reply to the former's letter requesting assistance in bringing some small war industrial plant to Garrett county, which he showed he had endeavored to interest the war industries board in this area. Mr. Briner also pointed out that there was a possibility of getting contracts for some articles to be made here, by keeping in touch with the War Production News, which gave a list of things needed.

The income tax yield in Maryland has reached $4,230,338.

Draft Board All Set For 4th Registration

Will Be Held Saturday, Sunday And Monday for Men 45 to 64, Inclusive

Registration cards have been sent out to all registrars and everything is in readiness for the fourth registration, to be held throughout the state and Garrett county April 25, 26 and 27, inclusive, it was announced by the County draft board.

All men who became 45 on or before February 16, 1942, and who had not reached their 65th birthday on April 27, 1942, will be registered. The enrolling will be done at the schools of the county, as in the preceding registration. Teachers will act as registrars.

Hours Saturday and Sunday are 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.; Monday, 7 a. m. to 9 p. m.

Registrations are scheduled at the six high schools, and the following elementary schools: Vindex, Shallmar, Bloomington, Gorman (Williams residence), Deer Park, Red House, Crellin, Swanton, Sang Run, Avilton, Jennings, Bittinger, New Germany and Finzel.

None of those registering this time will be liable for military service, and will not be given order numbers.

Questionnaires Being Mailed

H. L. Jones, draft board clerk, announced that questionnaires up to and including 225, had been mailed to those registering in the third registration in February, and that more questionnaires would be mailed each week until the entire number of 1,113 had received them.

Pre-School Clinics Have Been Arranged

Dr. Theodore Shrop, Deputy State Health Officer for Allegany and Garrett Counties, and F. E. Rathbun, County Superintendent of Schools, have announced that pre-school clinics for the purpose of inoculating and vaccinating children entering school next fall for the first time will be held at the following schools upon the dates and at the hours listed:

Bloomington, April 28, 9 a. m.
Swanton, May 12, 9 a. m.
Kitzmiller, May 14, 1 p. m.
Vindex, May 21, 1 p. m.

Parents of children in these school communities are requested to have their children, who are entering school for the first time, next September, attend one of the above clinics.

Similar clinics will be held in other centers in the county later, of which due notice will be given in this paper. There will be no cost or charge of any kind to any parents for these services to their children.

Automobile Struck By Train and Demolished

The automobile of William Stottlemeyer having become stalled on the Mt. Lake Park railroad crossing last Friday night, was entirely demolished when struck by the National Limited about 10:45 o'clock.

There were no occupants at the time. Portions of the car were strung along the westbound tracks for a considerable distance.

Injured In Truck Wreck

Wayne Martin, a son of William C. Martin, of Red House community, is in a hospital in Brownsville, Pa., with serious injuries as result of a truck accident near that city last week-end.

The truck was badly damaged. Martin suffered a broken leg and other injuries.

Kitzmiller-Blaine Bridge To Be Closed Four Days

The bridge over the Potomac river between Kitzmiller and Blaine, will be closed to traffic on May 4, 5, 6 and 7, it was announced this morning by the State Roads Commission. Some needed repairs to the bridge will be made at that time.

REV. BRAGG TO BECOME BAPTIST CHURCH PASTOR

Will Have Charge Of Three Churches In This Area, Beginning May 1

Rev. B. Finney Bragg will become the pastor of the Garrett Baptist Field the first Sunday in May, under the direction of the Maryland Baptist Union Association and the State Board of Missions.

Rev. Bragg is a native of Midland, Arkansas. He was graduated from the Fort Smith Senior High school, and received his higher education at the College of the Okarks, Clarksville, Arkansas; the Norteastern State Teachers College, Tahlequah, Okla., and the Ovachita Baptist College, Arkadelphia, Ark., majoring in Bible and Religious Education.

In the fall of 1938 he went to Washington, D. C., and secured employment with the Government. For the past year he has been employed in the office of Naval Communications.

In 1939 Rev. Bragg started a mission at Glen Echo, Md., two years later organizing it as a community Baptist church and serving as its pastor until March 16, when he accepted the call to serve in Garrett county.

Rev. Bragg will become pastor of the Mountain Lake Park, Ferndale and the Deep Creek Lake Baptist churches in May. These churches were reorganized five years ago under the leadership of the Rev. William B. Orndorff, who is now pastor of the First Baptist church at Eckhart, Allegany county.

Rev. Bragg's wife was the former Miss Ethel Ashby, of Cande, Va. They will reside for the present at 64 Oak street, in Oakland.

Alleged Deserter From U. S. Army Being Held in Jail

Arrested Yesterday Morning; Alleged to Have Passed Bad Checks

Charles Lantz, 26, who admitted to State's Attorney Neil C. Fraley that he was a deserter from the United States Army, is being held in the county jail, having been arrested yesterday morning near Gortner by Sheriff J. W. Owens and Corporal Thomas Currie of the State Police.

Lantz is alleged to have obtained six blank checks of the Table Rock Coal Company, and to have obtained money by the use of them, three checks having been passed in Baltimore, one in Winchester, Va.; one in Hagerstown; and one in Front Royal, Va. The total amount is in the neighborhood of $40.00, Fraley said. The checks were made payable to himself, and signed by another "Lantz". Payment was refused when they arrived at the First National Bank here, as they knew the signatures were not genuine.

Fraley said that Lantz admitted enlisting in Cumberland last August in the air corps and being assigned to Biloxi, Miss., where he was in training as a bombardier. He says he is a native of Cincinnati and that he was graduated from Ohio Military Institute in 1934.

Fraley said he had spent some time around Gortner prior to entering the army and his reappearance around there from time to time since January when he "deserted", had aroused suspicion among the residents there.

Charles Mayles, of this county, also alleged to be a deserter from the army, is being held in the county jail on a charge of larceny, having been picked up a few days ago by county authorities. He is awaiting a hearing.

Study Group to Meet With Teachers May 6

The date for the meeting of high school teachers, at which time the study group is to make its report, has been changed from April 29 to May 6, F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent, announced. The change was made necessary as the date conflicted with the one set for giving out rationing certificates for purchase of sugar for retail merchants.

The teachers will meet in Oakland High school. All high schools will be closed on that day so that all teachers may attend the sessions.

Elementary Operetta To Be Given Tonight

The Oakland Elementary pupils will present their second performance of the two-act operetta, "Polly Make Believe," this evening in the elementary school auditorium.

The play was presented yesterday evening before a large audience.

Takes Baptist Charge

REV. B. FINNEY BRAGG

Oakland Will Join Nation In Observing National Youth Week

Program This Year Will Be Sponsored by Junior Chamber Of Commerce

Oakland will join with hundreds of other communities throughout the United States in observing National Boys and Girls Week the first week in May. This year's program is being sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Preliminary plans for the event were announced at the regular meeting of the organization on Tuesday evening by Howard J. White, vice-president.

Activities will stress important phases of the development of the boy and girl such as citizenship, education, religion, thrift, vocational training, recreation, hobbies, home life, health and safety. Special emphasis this year will be the place of the boy and girl in the community during war time.

Among the activities will be the election of junior officials to substitute temporarily for the Mayor and City Council, and other local officials, upon "National Defense Day." The object will be to impress upon youth their duty and privilege of taking an intelligent interest in civic affairs. The junior officials are to be chosen from the seniors of Oakland high school by an election in the school within the next few days. A mayor, six city councilmen, city police, clerk, superintendent of water works, etc., will be chosen.

During the week boys and girls will be invited to inspect various industrial plants around town. In lieu of an inspection trip the C. and P. Telephone company is showing a picture at the high school on Friday morning.

This youth week movement was inaugurated in Oakland a number of years ago by the Boys' Work Committee of the Oakland Rotary Club, and for three or four years was conducted as an achievement contest, and made county-wide. For the past two or three years, however, the project has been abandoned.

42 Schools Obtain Surplus Foods For Month of April

Forty-two schools of the county received surplus foods commodities this month, according to F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent. This is making these commodities available to 1,679 pupils. During March, 32 schools got commodities for 1,631 pupils.

The schools and the number of pupils affected are as follows:

Swanton, 57; Sand Spring, 22; McCabe, 23; Friendsville, 40; New Germany, 19; Grantsville, 12; Jennings, 50; Manadier, 29; Bloomington, 80; Chestnut Grove, 15; Accident, 10; Rich Hill, 16; Sand Run, 13; Sunnyside, 21; Corunna, 17; Gorman, 23; Swan Meadow, 31; Red House, 79; Johnson, 53; Beall, 28.

Finzel, 33; Deer Park, 80; Bethlehem, 30; Combination, 22; Spring Glade, 19; Boiling Spring, 22; Bittinger, 22; Beachy, 24; Fairview, 14; Casselman, 12; Bear Hill, 21; Black Hawk, 33; West Vindex, 55; Vindex, 88; Kitzmiller, 75; Oakland elementary, 150; Oakland High, 121; Bray, 26; Avilton, 39; Mt. Lake Park, 20; Lynndale, 20; Loch Lynn, 115.

Surplus foods consisted of apples, dried beans, butter, cabbage, eggs, graham flour, wheat flour, grapefruit segments, lard, evaporated milk, dry skim milk, shelled pecans, pork and beans, prunes, rolled oats, dehydrated soup, tomatoes.

SUGAR RATION WILL BE HALF POUND EACH WEEK

Eight Weeks Limit Has Been Fixed By Office of Price Administrtion In Washington

Sugar will be rationed at the rate of one-half pound per person per week for the first eight weeks of the rationing program, it was announced by the Office of Price Administration in Washington.

OPA officials emphasized that changes may be made from time to time to meet possible variations in supplies, either up or down.

Disclosing other details of the consumer registration from May 4 to 7 and the rationing program itself, the OPA stated that ration books will not be issued, at the start, to persons or family units whose supply of sugar on hand amounts to more than six pounds per individual.

2-Pound Allowance

In issuing ration books to consumers, it was explained, the registrars will be guided by the amount reported by each registrant. In cases where the supply is not greater than two pounds per individual, a ration book will be issued complete with all twenty-eight stamps.

If the supply reported amounts, for example, to five pounds per person, the registrar will tear out three stamps; one for each pound over the two-pound allowance. For a six-pound supply, four stamps will be removed.

But if it amounts to more than six pounds per individual, the registrar simply will issue no ration book at all. Persons in this category, it was indicated, will be given ration books at some later date, but not until their supply has been exhausted.

Points about the rationing procedure are discussed in a booklet titled "The Plan for Distribution War Ration, Book I." Some 2,000,000 copies are being sent out for the use of State and county rationing administrators, local rationing boards, city and county school superintendents, school site administrators and registrars.

Plan for Individuals

It deals with the rationing plan for individual consumers, and not with the registration of wholesalers and retailers, commercial users and institutions, which will register at public high schools April 27 and 28 for their initial allocations.

The consumer registration, which will cover most of the 130,000,000 individuals in America, is to be conducted at public elementary schools.

As a preliminary to rationing, no sugar will be sold at retail during the week beginning April 28 sales are to be cut off in order that dealers will be assured of sufficient supplies to start the rationing program.

Points in Booklet

In discussing the sugar shortage and the need for rationing, the OPA's booklet sets forth these principal points:

In normal times twenty-seven percent of this country's sugar comes from the Philippine Islands and Hawaii. Today none is coming from the Philippines and "very little" from Hawaii.

Thirty-five per cent normally comes from the West Indies. Today the ships and tankers that usually carry it are needed to transport vital war materials to the United States and its Allies and to the American armed forces outside of the United States.

Sugar is required in large amounts for the men in the armed forces and for the manufacture of explosives.

Many short-sighted persons, "thinking only of themselves," have been hoarding sugar.

Anyone who fails to register during the May 4-7 period will have to wait two weeks before applying to his local rationing board for a ration book.

Each stamp will cover a period of two weeks, according to present plans. It will be good only for a specific period.

Locally the county rationing board has requested information from teachers concerning the estimated number of merchants and individuals in the community so that the board will be sure to send sufficient blanks and war ration books to each school to take care of everyone who applies.

Scouts To Collect Paper

Town trucks are to be used Saturday to make collection of old newspapers and magazines in cooperation with the Oakland Scout troop, it was announced by Howard Naylor, Scoutmaster.

The trucks will stop at every house and persons who have any material are asked to have the same ready when the truck arrives. Scouts will accompany the trucks and assist in the loading.

Wendell Umbel Wins FFA Speaking Contest

Wendell Umbel, Friendsville High school's representative in the Future Farmers of America public speaking contest, won first place in the regional meeting at Grantsville held last Thursday night.

Umbel will represent this area in a State-wide contest to be held at the University of Maryland, College Park, on Saturday, April 25, and will use as his theme, "Widening Horizons."

At the meeting there will also be contests on poultry and cattle judging.

Charles Colgan, Grantsville High student, won second place and spoke on "How Agriculture Affects National Defense."

Accident High and Flintstone High were also represented. Oakland did not have a representative this year.

Work of Reassessing Is Begun This Week

Present Assessments Of Every Taxpayer In County To Be Reviewed

A reassessment of all property in the county, made necessary this year because of a law to that effect, began on Monday, according to R. C. McComas, supervisor of assessments, with six assessors, appointed by the County Commissioners, assigned to the job.

The six men who have been employed for this work are Benj. DeWitt, Martin Savage, Orlando Welch, Chester A. Green, John Beitzel and George Houck.

There was a reassessment in 1937 and the law makes it mandatory to have one every five years unless it is postponed by Legislative act. The passage of such an act was neglected by this and a number of counties, but an attempt was made the first of the year to get a ruling from the State Tax Commission which would make such a reassessment unnecessary in this county. This ruling was not obtained from the Commission and Garrett as well as other counties had to allow for the expense in the annual levies. Garrett county levied $10,000 to cover the cost of the work.

The six assessors will be busy most of the summer, it was stated. They will review the present assessment of every taxpayer.

Twenty Men Called Into Service May 6

Will Report at Local Draft Board Office At 6:00 A. M. On That Day

Twenty young men of Garrett county have been ordered to report Wednesday, May 6, for induction into the armed forces of the United States, Harland L. Jones, draft board clerk, announced yesterday. They will report at the draft board office at 6 o'clock a. m., on that day and will then be taken to Baltimore for final examination.

There are three volunteers among the group, Calvin Thomas Pugh, Grantsville; John William Rollins, Jr., Oakland; Henry Edward Deal, McHenry.

The other seventeen listed are Harold R. Landis, Deer Park; Gerald Raymond Iman, Kitzmiller; Harper P. Paugh, Deer Park; Irvin Feld, Oakland; Paul Rhodes Whipp, Oakland; Harrison C. Wright, Swanton; James Hull Nordeck, Oakland; Jesse James Wilt, Swanton; Rudolph Walter Mallau, Accident; Percy Walsh Thayer, Oakland; John Adam Michael, Jr., Oakland; Roy R. Lish, Deer Park; Lawrence Wilbur Frantz, Selbysport; Paul Henry Barnard, Swanton; Richard Leon Roy, Mt. Lake Park; Otis Burl Jordan, Crellin; Marshall Calvin Arnold, Kempton.

James Nordeck was named as leader for the group.

Ration Board Gets Office

The County Rationing Board, which has been functioning for the past several weeks, with makeshift headquarters at the office of Walter W. Dawson, chairman of the board, now has an office in the Court House.

The Board has been allowed some clerical assistance and Miss Coral McRobie, Mrs. A. C. Stanton and Miss Gladys Aronhalt, are being employed. Thus far the Board members recive no compensation for their work and no money for traveling or other expenses.

The Rationing Board has jurisdiction over tires, automobiles, sugar, typewriters, and other items under restricted sale.

CONSTRUCTION OF NEW ROADS IS NOW HALTED

Order From Public Roads Administration Does Not Affect Projects Already Under Way

Instructions not to start any new roads projects in this county were received yesterday by the Garrett County Commissioners from the Public Roads Administration.

The order does not affect the construction work already started on four roads in the county, but will reduce other road work to maintenance only, according to Walter L. Hull, county roads engineer.

No reduction in county roads employes is anticipated, as it is expected that the four roads now under construction will keep the men busy for some time.

Clearing the right of way for construction of 5.22 miles of new road in the Selbysport area in relocating the present highway that is to be flooded by waters from the new government flood-control dam, being constructed there, was started on Tuesday.

This will be a 16-foot stone base highway and the contract was recently awarded to the Cumberland Contracting company. The construction calls for an outlay of $118,000 by the Federal government. Local labor will be used, according to Paul Friend, County Commissioner. Other roads now under construction by the county roads department include the Smouse road, near Loch Lynn, the Bittinger, Rock Lodge road, and the Blooming Rose road. Twelve miles of construction work will not be affected by the order, it was stated.

The information received was as follows: "The War Production Board Conservation order No. L-41, prohibits starting highway construction projects until preference rating is issued or a project specifically authorized by the Director of Industry Operations. This applies to all projects whether or not critical materials are involved. I am instructed to advise not to permit any work to start on projects not covered by preference rating. This does not affect projects actually under construction."

The planned completion of the North Glade road, a distance of eight-tenths of a mile, will be abandoned for the time being, Mr. Friend said.

Gas Tax Receipts Off

Mr. Friend also announced that the county's share of the gasoline tax had been reduced about a fourth from the original budget, the expected $16,000 per month having been cut to $12,000 on account of the decrease in motor traffic. Money from gasoline tax will be used for maintenance.

Rural-Urban Night Arranged by Rotary

Director of Experiment Station Will Deliver Address Friday Night

Dr. Roger Corbett, director of the Experiment Station at the University of Maryland, College Park, will be the speaker at the rural-urban meeting of the Oakland Rotary club at the William-James hotel on Friday evening.

Each Rotarian will have as his guest a farmer of the community. At least 80 are expected to be present.

William L. Gibson, Dr. W. W. Grant, Russell Pancake and Lester Yutzy were elected to the Board of Directors at last Friday's meeting. Hold-over members of the board are O. T. Graser, Harold Ream, Mason Glotfelty, and Dr. E. I. Baumgartner. They will have an organization meeting on Friday evening, when officers for the year will be elected.

Rationing of Gas to Start May 15th

A system of gasoline rationing with average motorists allowed from two and one-half to five gallons a week, will be instituted by the Government in seventeen Eastern States and the District of Columbia on May 15, the Office of Price Administration announced yesterday.

Automobile owners will be issued gasoline rationing cards during a three-day registration period beginning May 12. Operators of trucks and other motor vehicles recognized as "commercial", will not be required to obtain rationing cards and their purchases of gasoline will not be restricted.

The ration cards will run from May 15 to July 1, and the number of gallons obtainable between those dates will be announced later.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By Scoop Himself

Wake Up, America—It's Late!

An editorial in the New York World-Telegram says in part:

"The nation needs to awaken to the full gravity of the peril that confronts it.

"Production Director Donald Nelson appeals for vastly increased industrial output on a 24-hour, seven-day basis—168 hours a week. Maximum production in short.

"Can we get it?

"Not until we quit thinking in terms of less work for more money.

"Not while farmer politicians are more interested in higher prices than raising more essentials.

"Not while government bureaus—created to meet a depression emergency that is ended—continue to grab for themselves money needed for armaments.

"Not while an army of Federal press agents clamors to promote and perpetuate activities that have no present need or value.

"Not while Congressmen try to put over useless canals and river schemes and take up the time of defense officials clamoring for factories and contracts as if war were a great gravy train.

"Not while the life-and-death need for uninterrupted production is used as a weapon to put over the closed shop.

"Not while a man can't be employed on an army project or in a war plant until he pays $20 to $50 or more to a labor racketeer.

"Not while pressure blocs clamor for higher benefits, bounties and pensions."

This is a recital of conditions with which we are all familiar and which every one of us should help correct now—not next week, or next month, but now!

Precaution!

A three-year-old child was just itching to touch the baby. But the mother cautioned, "Not with those dirty hands," and went about her work.

It wasn't long until Johnny Brown triumphed. He told the mother, "I didn't touch her with my hands. I just rubbed her with my nose!"

Cure for Restlessness

Educators here and away are sensing among their students, especially among high school students, a spirit of restlessness. This is undoubtedly caused by the war and the probability that the students might be in it themselves before they are long out of school.

One cure for restlessness, seems to me, would be for those in charge to lay a little more emphasis on religion. All adults as well as youth might try it.

A lot of people have held off a long time and they don't seem to get anywhere permanently. Why not give God a chance?

Interest In Welding

If welding courses haven't shown an increase in membership or interest within the past three or four weeks, I am much surprised. And if an attorney or two were taking the course I wouldn't wonder much.

At the last term of court a ship welder was before the court as the result of a Garrett countian having collided with his automobile, and for which the welder was seeking a judgment for damages sustained.

In the course of the testimony the judges asked him how much time he had lost because of injuries and at what his time was valued. He told the court he made $100 a week. The attorneys immediately became interested and even the judges perked up.

The welder then explained that since the double time for Sundays had been eliminated he made "only $75.00" per week. The man had been working 10 hours each day, seven days a week.

The picture of a woosome twosome is getting more familiar on Oakland's streets these days. It's a sure sign that spring is in the air when they start walking up and down the street holding hands.

No Blackout Without Warning Unless An Actual Raid

Maryland will never have a blackout without advance warning unless there is actual air raid, according to Col. Henry S. Barrett, director of state air raid precautions.

He asserted "not even a local test can be conducted without some notice to the public."

FRIENDSVILLE

Dr. R. D. Brown, instructor of Red Cross First Aid classes, has announced that there will be three more classes held and will begin at 7:30 instead of the usual 8 o'clock. The classes will now last three hours.

The Future Farmers of America organization held its annual Father and Son Banquet last Tuesday. Robert Kester, president, served as toastmaster. Wilbur Thomas, State President of the F. F. A., gave a talk on "Aims and Purposes of the Future Farmer Organizations." Other speakers included F. E. Rathbun, Superintendent of schools; W. J. Glenn, Principal, and Wm. Winterberg, Grantsville, President of the Garrett County Farm Bureau. C. B. Miller was in charge of arrangements and the banquet was served by members of the Home Economics department to 60 guests, under the direction of Mrs. John Holman.

Mrs John Williams entertained Circle three of the W. C. S. S. at her home Tuesday evening.

The Revival Service closed on Sunday evening in the Methodist church after two weeks. At 6:45 Sunday morning, April 19, a sunrise prayer and praise service was held; at 10 o'clock, the regular Sunday school; at 11 o'clock, morning worship and sermon; at 7 p. m., Youth Fellowship group meeting and at 8 p. m., evening service with sermon and reception of members. Rev. Lucien D. Smith, Wilmore, Ky., assisted Rev. Greynolds at these meetings. New members received in church were: Joyce and Darrell Williams, Mary and Esther Murphy, Carole and Geraldine Fundis, Lozetta Lewis and Shirley Friend.

A number of members of the Methodist church of here attended the Fellowship Meeting at the Sang Run school, Monday evening.

The Congressional medal of honor was presented Lieut. Edward O'Hare from President Roosevelt. O'Hare shot down five Jap planes and damaged a sixth in action off Gilbert islands.

GRANTSVILLE

P.-T. A. Meeting

At the meeting of the local Parent-Teacher Association Tuesday night, Mrs. Herbert Pope, Edwin Elias, Jr., and Benny Epstein were appointed as a nominating committee to submit names for officers to serve for the coming year.

The election of the new officers will take place Monday evening, May 18. Charles S. Zeller presided over the session. The local group now has approximately thirty-five members.

Features of the program were several selections by a group of students from the seventh grade, who played wind instruments, and Mrs. Charles O. Keller repeated the puppet show, "The Long Road", which she recently presented before the local Rotary club.

Plan Revival Meeting

The Rev. Milton B. Miller announced this morning that a series of revival meetings would open at Casselman Mennonite church, near here, Saturday evening and continue each evening throughout the week, closing with Holy Communion Sunday, May 3. The Rev. I. W. Royer, Orville, O., will conduct the services.

Brief Mention

The 4-H club met last Wednesday night with leaders, Mrs. Daniel W. Hershberger and Mrs. Harvey Gortner, to discuss plans for victory gardens. Each girl will grow one or more vegetables in the family garden, for canning, and check her contribution to the family budget. Recommended seeds and seed books were discussed.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Baker, Bellevernon, Pa.; Miss Margaret Hillman, Uniontown, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Beachy, Smock, Pa., who were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Beachy during the week-end, have returned home.

A meeting of the Treble Cleff club is called for Monday evening and will be held at the Studio at 8 o'clock.

Honored at Party

Ulysses Grant Wiley was honored at a dinner party at his farm home near here when five of his children, fifteen grandchildren and two great-grandchildren assembled for a family reunion.

Among those who came for the event were Mr. and Mrs. Earl Wiley, Los Angeles, Calif.; Mrs. Bessie Herring, with her daughter, Thelma, Covington, O., and son Blaine Herring, Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. James Hall and children, Nancy and Lee, Mr. and Mrs. John Lohr and son, Ronald, Clairton, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Wiley and children, Dale, Elwood and Donald, Somerfield, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Opel and children, Mildred, Kenneth, Betty, Ruth, Robert, Charles, Sonny and Reta, Lambert, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. Harley McKenzie and children Betty and Robert.

Mr. Wiley has two other sons, Clarence Wiley, stationed with an army unit at Fort Belvoir, Va., and Robert Wiley, Los Angeles, who were unable to attend, as were eight other grandchildren.

Addresses Rotarians

E. Ray Jones, Oakland, addressed local Rotarians Tuesday evening in the social room of the Reformed church. His subject was "Lessons from a Highway". Mrs. George D. Edwards served as piano accompanist for group singing. The Rev. Samuel D. Sigler and William G. Gnagey, of the Meyersdale club, were guests.

Personals

Pvt. Ross Bittinger, who is stationed at Fort Bragg, N. C., spent the week-end with relatives in Bittinger and also visited his mother, Mrs. Fred Bittinger, who is a surgical patient in Memorial hospital, Cumberland. Private Bittinger recently enlisted in a parachute corps.

Mrs. List Daniels and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Beiler and three children, Spring Gap, were Sunday visitors at the home of Mrs. Barbara Younkin and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Glotfelty.

Charles Rexrode returned to Baltimore after a brief visit here with his family.

Mrs. Sara Roberta Getty, Cumberland, was the guest of Mrs. Nettie Bill over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Wiley, Los Angeles, Calif., are here for a short visit with Mr. Wiley's father, Grant Wiley, and his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Harley McKenzie.

Mrs. Marshall Beachy has received word that her son, Corp. Walter Lee Bevans, has been promoted to the rank of sergeant. He is at present stationed at Langley Field, Va., with the 121 Observation Squadron.

Harry Younkin, Pittsburgh, spent the week-end at his home here.

Harry C. Edwards, Charles S. Zeller and Daniel W. Hershberger were among those from here who attended a meeting of the Advisory Council of the State Game and Inland Fish Commission, at Oakland, last Thursday night.

ONE-YEAR TIRES CAN BE THREE-YEAR TIRES!

Your Esso Dealer will help you get that extra mileage

If the tires you are now driving would last about 12 months

Then follow these simple rules to add an extra 24 months of tire life, so that the rubber may serve both you and your country.

1 DRIVE UNDER 40 MILES PER HOUR — 12 months

By setting 40 miles per hour as your maximum and not more than 30 miles per hour as your usual speed, you can get up to 12 months' extra wear. Remember—tires wear out TWICE as fast at 50 as they do at 30!

2 LET US CHECK INFLATION EVERY WEEK — 3 months

A tire that is 30% below proper pressure will last only three-fourths as long as it should. Your Esso Dealer's air pumps have been checked for accuracy. Proper inflation can increase tire life by as much as . . . . . .

3 AVOID COWBOY STARTS AND STOPS — 3 months

These waste rubber and cut tire life. By taking it easy, you can prolong tire use up to . . . . . .

4 Let an ESSO DEALER CROSS-SWITCH TIRES, using spare — 6 months

At least every six months, have tires scientifically cross-switched by your Esso Dealer. Use all five of your tires! This, with regular attention to wheel alignment, wheel and tire balance, quick repair of small cuts and bruises, removal of oil and grease from tires, and avoidance of scuffing, can add extra service up to . . . . . .

Radcliffe Seeks A Higher Priority Rating For Savage River Dam

Completion Of Project Delayed Because Of Lack Of Bids For Excavating Machinery

The completion of the Savage River dam was further delayed when no bids were received last Friday by the procurement office of the Works Progress Administration, Baltimore, for the rental of the necessary machinery to excavate 940,000 cubic yards of earth at the dam site. Bids for this machinery are to be readvertised.

Meanwhile Senator George L. Radcliffe, of Maryland, announced from Washington that he was seeking a higher priority rating as a war project for the $3,500,000 dam in this county. Radcliffe said he had filed an urgent plea with WPB chairman Donald M. Nelson to raise the priority rating to "at least A-1E." He felt that the dam's low priority rating was responsible for lack of bids.

The dam is about two-thirds completed, and Radcliffe said that it was essential that the remaining work be done this year, otherwise there could be no assurance that adequate water would be available for the doing of war work.

"Without the completion of this dam, industrial plants, including those that will produce defense equipment, would not be able to operate during the dry season for lack of water which this dam will make available."

Senator Radcliffe explained that work on completion of the dam would have to be begun by May 15, if the work was to be done this year, and asked immediate and favorable consideration from the WPB. Sand and cement are the main ingredients to be required, but some equipments would be needed and the percentage of steel involved would be quite small.

Lonaconing's Mayor Pleads Guilty To Operation Of Still

John H. Evans, 27, mayor Lonaconing, was fined $150 and costs last Thursday when he pleaded guilty in Federal Court at Baltimore to a charge of operating an illicit still. Costs amounted to $133.

Richard N. Elliott, 42, pleaded guilty to the same charge and was fined $50 and costs by Federal Judge William C. Coleman.

The men were accused of operating a ten-gallon still and possessing fifty gallons of whiskey mash last January 16 on the farm of the mayor's father on Dan's Mountain, about two miles east of the Allegany county town.

The trial was originally scheduled for the week preceding, but Judge Coleman postponed it until Thursday when Evans changed a plea of guilty to innocent.

Emanuel Gorfine, attorney for the mayor after Oliver H. Bruce, Allegany trial magistrate and attorney, withdrew, said Evans had not fully understood the nature of the indictment last week and that his plea of innocence was confused.

SANG RUN

Banquet Held

Forty-four members of the Methodist Brotherhood, including all churches connected with the Friendsville Circuit, attended a banquet here Monday evening in the Sang Run school, sponsored by the Sang Run church.

Tables were attractive in red-white-and-blue coverings, centered with large slanting V's. The program included:

Four group songs, alternating with the addresses; an address by Charles E. Hoye regarding early churches in this section; address by Rev. R. L. Greyenolds, and short talks by Martin L. Savage, G. E. Bishoff, and Howard Skidmore, respective superintendents of the Sang Run, Hoyes and Friendsville Sunday Schools.

Hoyes was best represented, with 14 members present; Friendsville 10; Selbysport 8, and the remaining 12 from Sang Run. W. W. Savage, Friendsville, was toastmaster.

Personals

Trooper George M. Browning, LaVale, recently visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Browning, here.

Miss Viola Broadwater, principal of the Sang Run school, spent the week-end at her home in Grantsville.

Miss Louise Savage, employed in the Technical Service Division at Holabird Quartermaster Motor Base in suburban Baltimore, spent the week-end here visiting relatives.

Miss Margaret Hoye visited Mrs. Earle Railey, Stone Tavern, several days last week.

Traffic over Maryland roads was reduced 14.88 percent during March.

UNCLE SAM

Who is this Uncle Sam
We hear about so oft?
He's the men on land and sea,
And those who fly aloft.

He's the barber on the corner;
The policeman on his beat;
The rich man in his mansion,
The urchin across the street.

He's all American citizens
Who believe in American ways;
Every man, woman and child,
Who for victory silently prays.

He's the faithful factory worker,
And the patient farmer, too;
He's the supporter of democracy;
Mister, Uncle Sam is——you!

Tomorrow for Today's Children Is Theme of Welfare Conference

Local People Attend Meeting In Baltimore, Monday and Tuesday

The Maryland State Conference of Welfare was held in Baltimore, Monday and Tuesday, with several local people in attendance. The theme of the conference was "Tomorrow for Today's Children." The Garrett County Welfare Board was represented by Mrs. Jeannette Statler, Mrs. Kathryn Helbig, Mrs. Evelyn Jenkins, Mrs. Angela Smart, Mrs. Marothy Marotte, Edgar Smith, and Mrs. Dorothy Ogburn.

The meeting was broken up into a series of sessions and members of the staff covered all of the meetings. People outstanding in the field of social work led group discussions, including Fred Hoehler, Director of the American Public Welfare Association; Mary Irene Adkinson, Director of the Child Welfare Division, of the Children's Bureau, who spoke regarding the "Child's Roll in Family Life," and Hon. Victor B. Wylegala, Judge of the Children's Court of Buffalo, New York, who spoke of "The Child in Trouble."

Professor Winifred Cullis of the University of London was the luncheon speaker on Monday. She has a distinguished record of service to her country in medicine, public welfare, and education and is internationally known. Dr. Cullis gave a vivid and stirring picture of life in England under war conditions. She stressed particularly what this has meant to children in England.

An interesting series of meetings was held on the topic, "Training the Child for Employment." Mr. Robert Thompson, Supervisor of Vocational Rehabilitation of the State Department of Education, presided at these meetings.

The predominating keynote of all the sessions seemed to be the recognition that family life is the very cell of democracy, Mrs. Ogburn, executive secretary of the local board, said. Social Workers have a real responsibility to help the nation, during the stress of war, to preserve this family life since it is the very thing for which this country is fighting.

Safeguarding Health of Young Marylanders

Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Health Department, calls attention to a special proclamation issued April 10, at Annapolis, by Governor O'Conor, setting aside the first day of May to be observed throughout Maryland, as Child Health Day, in accordance with Congressional authorization for the nation-wide celebration of the day and the President's annual proclamation. The Governor asks all Marylanders to cooperate with parents, teachers, health authorities and other duly constituted agencies in furthering and safeguarding the health of the children of this State, not only on this particular day, but throughout the year.

The Great Seal of the State affixed to the proclamation dates back more than three hundred years when the charter was granted to the Colony, and links the present with the past. It gives special significance to the Governor's message which calls attention to the urgency of protecting children from preventable illnesses particularly in "these trying times", of safeguarding them from avoidable physical and mental handicaps, and of otherwise caring for them so that they may be preserved for the responsibilities which will rest upon them as citizens of tomorrow.

The proclamation follows:

WHEREAS, Friday, the first day of May, 1942, has been designated by a joint resolution of Congress, and by proclamation of the President of the United States of America, to be observed throughout the Nation as Child Health Day; and

WHEREAS, It is of the utmost importance that the lives of the children of Maryland be so protected from preventable illnesses, that they may develop to maturity without unnecessary physical or mental handicaps, particularly in these trying times, when the health of the children is so vitally important, to preserve them for the duties which will fall upon them as the citizens of tomorrow; and

WHEREAS, The promotion of Child Health requires the active cooperation of all of our citizens, and is assured only when every mother and child in the State are given the care that medical science advises;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, HERBERT R. O'CONOR, Governor of the State of Maryland, do designate Friday, May 1st, as Child Health Day, and urge that in every community public sentiment support the efforts of parents, teachers, health officers, physicians, nurses and all other agencies which promote the health and well-being of children not only on Child Health Day, but throughout the year.

THE STATE INCOME TAX AND ITS GOAL

The State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes, expresses confidence that the Maryland state income tax will again yield the $8,440,000 goal set for it.

There seems to be little reason why it should not, and perhaps even surpass that goal, in view of the fact that its rates are unconscionably high, having been boosted 500 per cent at one clip. That was before the heavy increase in federal income taxes came along. Those taxes coupled with the high state income taxes have made the income tax burden exceedingly onerous for Marylanders.

Nothing more is heard of Governor O'Conor's widely-heralded pledge to bring about a reduction in the state income taxes "up to as much as fifteen per cent."

The thing that has chiefly silenced the governor and other state officials on this is the loss of revenue faced by the wartime restrictions on motor vehicles and the cessation of the manufacture of new cars.

That reduction, however, may not be so great as some have feared, inasmuch as tax-yielding gasoline and oil must continue to be used, and in greater quantities, by the armed forces and all of its auxiliaries operating in the state, while civilians are going to operate the cars they have on hand, in great part, for some time to come.

So, what about getting the state on a wartime basis with regard to expenditures? Some measures of economy ought by all means be introduced in the operation of state government in view of the heavy load that must be carried for the war emergency.

It could be done in view of the fact that when the governor and the legislature prepared the budget for 1942 they took into consideration a surplus of $2,200,000, which surplus is expected to run nearly four times as much.

It could be done in view of the fact that state expenses were unduly increased by the last legislature, which among other things, added some 530 payrollers to the lists. It would have gone farther in adding expenses if it had not been for the vigorous action of various organizations of protesting taxpayers.

That worn-out allegation to the effect that the people do not realize that we are at war seems applicable to sttae as well as federal officials.

—Cumberland News.

Special Broadcast Tonight Concerning War Bond Quotas

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morganthau, Jr., Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard, and leaders of business and labor organizations will speak on a special broadcast this evening over the Blue Network from 10:00 to 10:30.

The broadcast will be devoted to a discussion of the National War Bond quota system and the ten per cent payroll savings plan.

A special guest on the program will be the hero navy pilot, Lieutenant Commander Edward Henry O'Hare, who was promoted from the rank of lieutenant in recent days by the President.

Other speakers of the evening will include William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor; Philip Murray, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations; W. H. Witherow, president of the National Association of Manufacturers; John W. O'Leary, chairman of the executive committee of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and T. C. Cashen, chairman of the Railway Executives Association.

Firemen Plan Already For July 4 Celebration

Oakland firemen have made plans early this year for their annual celebration around July 4th, and have already made arrangements for the World of Fun Shows to come here the week of June 29 to July 4, inclusive.

This will be the seventh annual event of this organization and committees have been appointed to work out details of the celebration.

DIARY OF THE WAR

FRIDAY — Laval became chief power in Vichy government and he formed a new cabinet more subservient to Hitler. A showdown was coming in Burma, with 40 Jap troopships off Rangoon bringing up 80,000 men. British and Chinese were fighting rear-guard action in attempt to hold out until rains came. Through Sweden Germany announced that its offensive in Russia would not get under way until June. It was disclosed the American bombing aid on Philippines was more successful than first reported. Flyers used hidden base in Philippines and provisioned it for future use. Manila Bay fortresses destroyed number of enemy placements. Japs landed troops on Philippine island of Panay. Six Dutch subs reached Australian ports. RAF planes by hundreds made mass daylight raid on Nazi areas.

SATURDAY—British set fire to 6,000 oil wells in Burma, leaving Japs without any there, but also cutting off Chinese supply. There were 65,000 troops and civilians in enemy hands from fall to Bataan, including 35,000 combat troops. Military command in Vichy still remained under Petain and Darlan with Laval in charge of civil life. Russians were beating forward and were near Smolensk. Several hundread British planes again made devastating raids and declared these had pinned down 750,000 German troops for defense purposes. England was also under attack on the south coast. Australian flyers beat off ten Jap raiders over Port Moresby. Enemy's fire power was cut by U. S. forts in Manila Bay. Stimson said U. S. would soon take offensive.

SUNDAY — Tokyo announced American planes had slashed at several of their cities dropping both explosive and incendiary bombs. Japan couldn't tell direction from which planes came and there was no confirmation by U. S. forces. The alarm area covered 1,000 miles. Northern Irish were told that American troops there would soon be in action in raids on continent. British continued to send hundreds of bombers into enemy territory to blast war plants. London heard reports that Hitler's expected offensive was set back by dearth of manpower, uneasy home morale, and stubborn resistance of Russians. U. S. bombers raided Rangoon. Jap supply base in Burma as British and Chinese fought to stem Jap advance on ground. Allied bombers also attacked Rabaul on New Britain, and Koepang on Dutch Timor. Corregidor's gunners blasted more Jap batteries in Philippines. Reds announced the capture of industrial center on Dnieper river was imminent, and reported other advances.

MONDAY—Japan had four hours of air alarms. MacArthur was formally named commander of Allies in southwest Pacific and was ordered to prepare an offensive. Japs were meeting stiffening resistance in Burma as Chinese reserves bolstered British lines. U. S. flyers blasted Port Blair in Andaman Islands, the base of the Jap fleet. Jap outposts in Philippines were successfully raided. Corregidor was under heavy bombardment. Petain urged French to support new government. Nazis loosed a heavy air attack against Russian armies. An enemy sub shelled oil installations on Curacao, off South America with no damage. Sandstorms stalled the war in Libya.

TUESDAY—Joint victory for British and Chinese armies in Burma was the recapture of town amid ruined oil fields which improved the critical allied position. British bombers swept west Burma coast, bombed Jap airports, barges and launches. Flying tigers shot down two planes. Japan was still puzzled over Saturday's bombing attacks on its four main cities, but there was still no word from United States authorities. Manila Bay forts were under heavy artillery and dive bomber attack, but U. S. guns smashed three enemy batteries and broke up troop concentrations on Bataan. Nazis launched heavy attacks against Russian northern fleet units but were repulsed. Red guns were within range of Smolensk, center of Nazi military power and about 230 miles west of Moscow. There was violent fighting around Leningrad. Allies announced bagging 40 Jap planes in two week-end raids on Rabaul. Laval called upon all French to join Axis.

WEDNESDAY — Parts of Japan were under air-raid alarms. Allies recaptured positions in Burma and were consolidated and Chinese rescued 7,000 British troops. A torpedo boat put a Jap cruiser in sinking condition in Philippines. MacArthur formed his general staff. Heavy American bombers were assigned to fly with RAF and were being ferried over. Russians were driving ahead on north front. Thousands of Polish troops reached near East to swell allied forces. Four more ships were torpedoed but only two sunk. Manila Bay forts were heavily bombed. Russians report that captured officers admit that Hitler's hopes for a spring offensive had all but vanished under fear of a British-American thrust in west.

THURSDAY — British commandos raided the French coast near Boulogne, disclosing apparent weakness in German defense system and raising hope of second front. Slight improvement in allied position in Burma was noted although Japs made slow advances in central area. Japs were drawing on tank strength in Thailand to drive from north upon Allied rear. It was disclosed U. S. troops were in India. Reds widened two holes in the Finn defense in attempt to open Murmansk railroad. American-Filipino troops were being forced back on island of Panay. Japan warned its people the U. S. would seek opportunity to stage a counter attack but predicted that Axis would soon deal the knockout blow. Free French on Madagascar were being arrested. Hitler was reported to have prevented a Rumania-Hungary war only by threatening to level Budapest and Bucharest with bombing planes.

A War Garden Casualty

Feeding Our Mobile Army

A modern army equipped to wage a modern war presents a striking contrast to yesterday's armed forces. In today's warfare speed and mobility are paramount. During the last war it was remarkable and unusual for troops to advance or move over 20 miles a day, and most of the war was fought from stabilized positions with the front lines sometimes unchanged for days. With the new mobile army, however, the situation is very different. All troops are motorized or are mechanized—lightning striking troops that cover 200 or more miles a day. They do not attempt to initially establish positions, but to break through the enemy at various points with tanks and planes, closely followed by the infantry in scout cars, command cars, jeeps and trucks.

Now, as with the old slower moving army, supplies must keep pace with the fighting elements. The United States Army has never been one to live off the land it is occupying or passing through. It has never been a scavenger. Therefore, a system of food procurement in the rear areas and shipment to the front is necessitated.

In planes, tanks and armored cars and on the persons of the soldiers must be carried highly concentrated rations such as require small space and are light in weight. These are the emergency rations and are not to be used unless the regular rations have not arrived or because the peculiarity of the situation prohibits such normal rations being furnished. The regular rations are very similar to the food eaten by the soldier in peacetime, except that in the theatre of operations they are probably of nonperishable or semiperishable nature. The army tries to give its soldiers three hot meals a day. This is not usually possible during actual combat, but it is rarely impossible to provide at least two warm meals delivered and eaten under cover of darkness, with fresh sandwiches, doughnuts, cookies and fruit given for the noon meal.

The Quartermaster Corps maintains huge purchasing and storage depots stragetically located throughout the United States. With the receipt of requisitions or orders to purchase, these depots initiate bids and the wheels start moving. The items are either purchased and stored or are contracted to be shipped to the various camps.

One of the great recent developments in army feeding has been the establishment of 29 market centers distributed throughout the country. These marketing centers started out by buying only fresh fruits and vegetables and recently extended their activities to poultry, butter, eggs and cheese. All food buying is co-ordinated through a central headquarters in Chicago, through which all commercial fruits, vegetables, poultry and dairy products move through regular marketing channels.

Chicago was chosen as the logical center for this buying because it is centrally located and these foods are produced in every corner of the United States. Flour is also bought through Chicago and San Francisco because they are near the milling centers. For another example, canned fruits are bought almost entirely by the San Francisco depot, because a large share of the fruit-growing industry is located near there.

Feeding our mobile army, therefore, involves a giant transportation problem. The locally produced commodities move by rail, motor truck or boat, just as they do in the commericial field. Perishables move in refrigerated cars, trucks and boats. Products which begin their journey by rail travel to various railheads and are then trucked to the divisions and taken by truck to the regiments and individual organizations that will consume them.

Speed and efficiency of this transportation depends on the highways. First, there must be good roads to the farms and factories where the food is produced. Modern highways are essential to the swift transportation of their products to the armed forces from the marketing centers. Trucks must roll over the roads in the wake of troops on the march.

An old adage says that an army travels on its stomach. It is, therefore, up to the nation's highways to furnish our modern army with the energy-building food needed to keep the men fighting with stamina and courage.

Extra Sugar For Canning

One pound of sugar extra for home canning will be made available to consumers in Maryland during May and June, according to Louis C. Burr, State Rationing administrator.

During an entire year, he stated, every person holding a war ration book can get a special allotment of not more than five pounds for home canning or preserving fresh vegetables and fruits for home consumption.

Application for extra sugar for canning will be made to local rationing boards on a special form to be provided by the OPA and will have to be presented by an adult member of the family.

Summer Term At Frostburg College To Begin June 22

The summer term at Frostburg State Teachers college opening on June 22, is expected to have a large enrollment. Former graduates will attend either to earn transfer credits or to qualify for their degrees.

Freshmen entering in June can complete the work in three years, due to the accelerated program during the emergency and the shortage of teachers.

Spanish courses are being planned as a result of many requests, in order to further the "good neighbor" policy with Latin America republics.

Teachers may use the first six weeks of the summer session to earn credit for renewal of certificates. The summer session will close on August 28th.

Appeals Court Hears Arguments In Suit Against Dam Sponsor

Judges of the Maryland Court of Appeals heard arguments in Annapolis on Tuesday in the $4,000 damage suit of Mrs. Marion Lohr, of Cumberland, formerly of Oakland, against the Upper Potomac River Commission, sponsor of the Savage river dam project in this county.

The court was called on to decide whether the commission is a "governmental instrumentality" and therefore immune to suits. This is the contention of the commission. The argument of governmental immunity is vigorously contested by the defense who cite the fact that the statute creating the commission gives it the right "to sue and be sued."

The appeal was taken by Mrs. Lohr from the decision of Associate Judge William A. Huster sustaining the demurrer of the commission on the governmental immunity argument.

The damages are sought for personal injury and property loss Mrs. Lohr suffered when her car collided with debris on the Bond road December 13, 1940. The debris had allegedly been placed in the roadway by employes of the commission in the course of a repair project.

Blue Print Reading Class Starts This Evening

The opening session of the class in Blue Print Reading and Related Mathematics, will be held tonight in the Oakland High school, from 7 to 9 p. m., according to F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent.

A meeting was held Monday night for organization at which ten were present, and the course will be open to both men and women as new entrants for the first four sessions or so, it was stated. There are no fees or charges and the class will run for a period of eight weeks.

T. V. Baucom, mathematics instructor, will teach the class. The course will consist of general blue print reading with individual help being given those who wish to learn blue print reading as it applies to a special trade. Mr. Baucom said the related mathematics would be given as individual needs require.

Those attending the initial meeting were Russell Brown, Robert Hoffman, Lowell Loomis, Milton Sincell, Carl Everly, Howard Stuck, Sam Woods, John Hansen, John Fitzwater, Jr., and Jasper Bowman.

Lieut. Commander Warder Is Connected With Bloomington Family

Lieutenant Commander Frederick Burdett Warder, of the submarine Seawolf, who was recommended last week for the Navy cross, in recognition of his heroism and meritorious conduct in combat with the enemy in the Pacific, is the husband of Mrs. Mary Brydon Warder, formerly of Bloomington, Garrett county. He has frequently visited in the home of Mrs. Warder's relatives in Bloomington.

Angler Is Fined $50

Robert S. Clarke, of Midland, proved Saturday that there are fish in Garrett county trout streams and that they can be caught, but it cost him more than $50.00 to find it out.

Clarke was fined $50 and costs Saturday night by Magistrate C. S. Zeller at Grantsville for exceeding the legal creel limit of ten and also of catching undersized trout, according to Joseph A. Minke, regional game warden. Minke said he had twenty trout, eleven of them under the legal size of seven inches. The trout were taken from the Middle fork of Savage river, Minke reported.

C. A. Wagner, Sr., and C. A. Wagner, Jr., of Connellsville, Pa., were each fined $10 and costs by Magistrate Zeller for fishing with improper licenses. Minke said they were using resident licenses instead of non-resident.

RED HOUSE LUTHERAN PARISH
A. K. Jones, Pastor

The pastor will conduct the worship service at Aurora at 9:30 and at Red House at 11:00 next Sunday morning. His sermon theme is, "Ye Shall See Me." This is the third in the series of sermons on Victorious Believers. The active and joyous Christian receives something in fellowship with the Saviour, hears His voice above the tumult of this world's wild, restless life, and beholds life's greater values and experiences in the mighty influence of the Gospel.

The mid-week program of songs, pictures and Bible study is held regularly on Wednesday evenings from 8:00 until 9:00. Aurora has a similar service on Friday evenings.

A. R. MARTIN ARRESTED ON CHARGES OF BURGLARY

West Virginia Authorities Holding Him and Earl Freeland; Stolen Goods Recovered

West Virginia authorities are holding Alva R. Martin, 45, cattle dealer, of near Oakland, and Earl Freeland, 58, also a cattle dealer, of near Terra Alta, in the Preston county jail at Kingwood to await a hearing on charges of burglary.

The two men are charged with entering the home of Mrs. Lulu Bucklew, a widow, of near Terra Alta, who was absent from home on a visit with a sick relative at Morgantown, West Va. A daughter of Freeland, Mrs. Lucille Mason, of Terra Alta, was to care for the Bucklew farm and watch the dwelling, according to authorities. On Friday afternoon, Mrs. Mason went to the house and noticed that a casement door was open. She immediately notified officers of the fact.

Trooper A. H. Hurst, of the West Virginia State Constabulary investigated, who later said that among the household things missing were a washing machine, a radio, about 100 quarts of canned goods, a brass kettle, some tools and other articles, worth in all more than $250.

Freeland was placed under arrest Friday night, as one of the persons allegedly implicated in the crime.

Saturday morning Trooper Hurst and Deputy Sheriff Jesse Benson, of Preston county, resumed the investigation and started a search for Martin. They stated they saw him at a point in West Virginia just across the State line as he was driving toward Oakland in a truck. Officers said when Martin observed them he drove at a reckless speed in an effort to beat them to the State line at Hutton, but that they overtook him a quarter of a mile from the Maryland boundary.

Trooper Hurst stated that Martin drove at a terrific speed and that three cows which were in his truck were thrown to the floor of the vehicle.

Deputy Sheriff J. W. Mitchell, of Garrett county assisted Trooper Hurst in seaching Martin's dwelling near town after a warrant to do so had been placed in their hands, and it was there, officers said, that the allegedly stolen goods were found and recovered.

Crop Loans Avaliable

Stressing the need for increased production of farm crops this year, S. M. Thomson, regional manager of the Emergency Crop Loan office in Baltimore, has announced that short term crop loans are now available to Garrett county farmers. Applications will be accepted at the County Agent's office, Oakland, every Thursday.

"This office, which is a unit of the Farm Credit Administration, is cooperating with the Food for Victory program, and it is our aim," Mr. Thomson pointed out, "to finance those farmers who are eligible so they may take advantage of cash prices for seed, fertilizer and other costs necessary for the production of the 1942 crops."

Sixty-Eight Obtain Tire Certificates

County Board Authorized to Increase Allotment for April

With an extra allotment of truck tires authorized, the county tire rationing board was able to issue certificates to sixty-eight people this week, allowing them to purchase 113 tires, a large number of tubes, and 21 retreads.

The board was allowed 100 extra truck tires this month, and fifty of those are being held for distribution the rest of the month, Walter W. Dawson, chairman, stated.

Truckers getting tires and tubes this week included the following:

Dale Carlton Harvey, Clarence R. Paugh, Deer Park Harry Beeghly, Floe D. Schaeffer, Oakland; James William Arbogast, Steyer; Bert E. Minnick, Grantsville; James F. Hamilton, Oakland; Claude F. WAYSIDE CONVERSATIONS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 13:22-35.
GOLDEN TEXT—And whosoever doth not bear his cross, and come after me, cannot be my disciple.—Luke 14:27.

Learning by talking with Christ as they walked from place to place—such was the training for service which the disciples received. That was the greatest school this world has ever known, for while it had no great buildings, no beautiful campus, no learned faculty, it had the Son of God Himself as preceptor and teacher. With all due regard for our fine colleges and seminaries, we say this is still the outstanding need of Christian workers—to walk and talk with Christ.

On the day of which our lesson speaks the subject considered was how to be saved, and who should be saved. Several trends of thought emerged, but all pointed in the one direction of a diligent following of God's plan. In order to be saved, we learn, a man must

I. Make an Earnest Effort (vv. 22-24).

The question regarding how many were saved received no direct answer for our Lord wished to direct attention to the far more important question—Are you saved? Get that settled and the other matter will care for itself.

Here some who assume that it is an easy thing to be saved will receive a surprise, for our Lord says (v. 24) that it is something one must agonize" over, for so may the word "strive" be translated. The door into eternal life is so narrow that no man can pass through it with his sins—they must be taken away. Seeking is not enough (v. 24), one must "strive" to enter in.

II. Enter While the Door is Open (vv. 25-30).

The door stands open for all who will, to come in. (What a friendly thing is an open door!) But men idly ignore it, or definitely reject its opportunity. Or they seek it, but do not strive to enter in, and all at once it is closed. Then in a frenzy they seek to enter, but it is too late. What an appalling thing—to be eternally too late!

Note their claims of acquaintance with the Lord (v. 26). One is reminded of those who think they are Christians because father or mother belonged to the church, or because they attend an occasional church supper or listen to a sermon by radio. Unless we know Him personally as our Saviour, He will have to say to us, Depart from me, ye workers of iniquity" (v. 27). Let us make that matter very clear to those to whom we minister, lest they be eternally lost.

III. Follow the Fearless Christ (vv. 31-33).

To know the high and unwavering character of one's leader is to go forward with real confidence. What about the Captain of our salvation? Here we find Him facing the indirect threat of a powerful and wicked earthly ruler, in perfect calmness, with the very poise of eternity upon Him.

Christ, conscious of His divine mission and with determination to do the Father's will (Heb. 10:7), knew no fear of man. As we are in His holy will as Christian men and women, we too may boldly say, The Lord is my helper, and I will not fear what man shall do unto me" (Heb. 13:6).

Consider the rebuke to Herod (v. 32). There is probably no place in Scripture where our Lord spoke with such stinging contempt of any man. It is almost as though the black cloud of eternal judgment already had settled around the head of this man who was so sly and crafty that the tenderhearted Jesus called him a "fox." One wonders of how many He would have to say the same in this our day of supreme and malicious wickedness.

We find one more vitally important thought here. Our Lord offers Himself. He calls sinners to repentance, but they must

IV. Respond to His Invitation (vv. 34, 35).

To fail to accept His proffered love is to be left desolate. To reject Him as Saviour (either by neglect or by definite act) is inevitably to bring judgment. To the Jews this meant loss of their national home—their leading city, but to us it means the loss of our eternal souls.

"There is terrible suggestiveness in the two statements in verse 34, 'I would,' 'Ye would not.' The whole secret of Jerusalem's desolation and destruction is found in the words, 'Ye would not.' The whole secret of the loss of the individual soul is found in the words, 'Ye will not' (John 5:40)" (John W. Bradbury).

This lesson presses home to the individual reader the question, Are you saved? What is your answer? It also affords the Sunday school teacher an excellent opportunity to seek to lead the members of the class to a definite decision for Christ. The Sunday school is a good place to give an invitation

Maryland Hens Now Playing Big National Defense Role

By RICHARD REA BENNETT,
In the Baltimore Sunday Sun

America's Little Brown Hen and her progeny—now developed into virtual egg factories—are doing one of the nation's biggest defense jobs.

Importance of the Little Brown Hen's job can be gauged best by the fact that the army operating on an "egg-a-day" basis for each of its soldiers. Thus, if the army consists of 1,000,000 men, it eats 1,000,000 eggs daily.

Eggs, which are high in vitamins and minerals, are one of the best protective foods known.

Vital Food Source

A single egg is said to supply from three to fifteen per cent of the daily requirements of eight of the nine essential nutrients most likely to be deficient in the human diet. The missing nutrient is said to be Vitamin C, which can be obtained from tomatoes and also from citrus fruits.

Egg producers of Maryland have been asked by the Federal Government to increase their 1942 output about 13 per cent over the 1941 production figure, according to Dr. Morley A. Jull, head of the Poultry Department of the University of Maryland.

This request takes into consideration, Dr. Jull explained, the fact that egg production in 1941 was 10 per cent over that for the year preceding. The increase in 1941 came from the demand for eggs for the United States Army and for shipment to Great Britain.

Second Income Source

The poultry industry, Dr. Jull declares, from a farm income standpoint, is the second most important branch of agriculture in Maryland. In making this appraisal, he takes into consideration the broiler industry in the Delmarva region, in which area one-third of the broilers consumed in the United States are produced.

Despite the tremendous size of the poultry industry in Maryland, more than half the State's eggs are produced on farms as so-called sidelines. The balance are produced on a strictly commercial scale by producers who give their entire attention to the business.

Better Care For Flocks

Farmers of the State and more particularly their wives, who handle the major share of the farm sideline production of eggs, are being asked by agricultural experts to take better care of their flocks, to feed them better and take better care of the eggs produced.

Although there has been some increase in the size of Maryland flocks, Dr. Jull said, experts are not encouraging this to any great extent and especially warn against the construction of new buildings in order to increase production.

It is their contention that better feeding and more efficient production methods will provide the increase sought and, in the long run, benefit the farmer more.

Thus far, according to Dr. Jull, the ratio of egg prices to feed prices has been relatively favorable, so that egg producers who have operated on an efficient management basis have made money in the past year or so.

Food Half Of Cost

Cost of feed, he says, represents half of the egg production cost. If the price of feed mounts, then there will be a proportionate increase in the cost of producing the eggs.

Because of this situation, farm experts expect the Government to impose some kind of price control, probably on feeds. This, it is expected, would tend to stabilize cost and then stabilize price.

The poultry feed situation, in the main, is becoming more serious because certain ingredients are getting higher in price and becoming scarcer, it is pointed out. Dried milk is cited as a good example. Great Britain is in great need for dried milk. This demand is increasing the price of the product—supplies of Vitamin G for chicken growth—to a point where it is disturbing egg production costs.

Fish Meal Scarce

Fish meal, vital to laying hens, is becoming more scarce, due to Nazi submarines which are ranging the Atlantic Ocean near American shores. Proximity of the submarines and the toll which is being taken of American shipping is effectively discouraging commerical fishing, according to Dr. Jull. As a result, catches are decreasing and so is fish meal.

Another thing, cod liver oil—used to control rickets in chickens as in children—may become as scarce as fish meal. Before the war, cod liver oil was imported from Japan and Norway. Since the war, these shipments have been stopped.

May Conserve Oil

The situation is complicated further for the commercial egg producer, it is said, by the fact that the United States may decide to hold in reserve all current stores of cod liver oil for human use—particularly for use of children.

If this occurs, Dr. Jull declared, then substitutes to provide Vitamines A and D, essential for health and egg laying qualities of the flock, must be found.

Although Maryland farmers are able to produce all the cereal portion for laying and growing mash, it still is necessary for them to buy their protein concentrates, Dr. Jull asserts.

Because of the war it is becoming increasingly important that acceptable substitutes be developed. Mort attention is being given to the development of plant protein feeds to replace animal proteins—meat scraps, dried milk and fish meal—now fed by egg producers.

Maryland poultrymen are going to have to rely more and more upon good range grass, Dr. Jull believes. He says that such grass will supply the chickens with vitamins A and G—beneficial for general health, eyesight and growth.

Chicks put on range which is good and clean also will get vitamin D, which is essential for healthy bone formation. Another great asset is the fact that this range will cut the feed bill materially.

Maryland farmers in greater numbers are replenishing their flocks with day-old chicks bought from commercial hatcheries. Five years ago fifty per cent of the chicks raised in the United States were bought from hatcheries. Now the figure is seventy-five per cent, with the Maryland hatchery industry reaching sizeable proportions.

Half Are Cockerels

About half of the day-old chicks are cockerels, which may be raised and sold in the broiler market. Pullets are culled carefully from the start. These also are fattened for the market.

Constant culling of his flock is one of the cardinal rules which must be followed by the egg producer who expects to make money. It is the only way in which to achieve top production. Culls are made in the laying flock to eliminate those hens which are not laying according to preconceived schedule.

The efficient market egg man, according to Dr. Jull, replaces from two-thirds to three-quarters of his flock each year. He buys his replacements from one of the commerical hatcheries and raises the chicks himself. In this way he has constant control over his laying flock and can keep his laying house filled only with top producers.

All Must Be Fed

A poor layer, the poultry expert declares, has been fed as well as a good layer. Thus, on the face of it, it is a losing proposition to feed the poor one. A good poultryman, he contends, can clear $1 per bird per year in normal times. The exceptionally efficient producer can run the profit up to $1.50. How much can be realized in the abnormal times due to the war is a matter of conjecture.

But the fundamental rule for successful operation, he says, is to produce the greatest number and the best quality eggs possible with the fewest pounds to feed.

Washington Snapshots

By JAMES PRESTON

Labor legislation is still very much in the limelight here. The recent decision of the War Labor Board directing that workers who dropped out of a CIO union since last November 27 must rejoin the union has caused considerable comment, a great deal of it unfavorable.

In requiring that they rejoin, the ruling went beyond the usual "maintenance of union membership" principle. Many observers are convinced that the Board plans to make itself the "Supreme Court of Labor Relations" and, through its decisions, hopes to establish a national labor policy of its own.

Many of those who have been following the labor situation are wondering now whether this particular decision will force Congressional action on labor legislation in the immediate future. Behind-the-scenes comment this week indicates that some Congressmen interpret the ruling to mean that an American citizen must belong to a union in order to be a soldier of production—that in a war industry union membership should be made a condition of employment.

In a minority opinion dissenting members of the Board opposed the decision "because it conditions the individual's right to work for an employer upon his continued membership in a labor organization.

"To arbitrarily impose these obligations without the consent of those affected, in our opinion, will tend to destroy the cooperation so essential to maximum production.

"In these war days management has its share of responsibilities to produce the maximum. To the extent that management is circumscribed by the orders of an administrative board transferring to labor organizations even partial control of terms of employment and the hiring of workers, production will be hampered."

Washington officials predict that within a short time priorities will have to be established for rail traffic—freight and passenger alike. There is a growing shortage of locomotives and other equipment, which may force action along this line. At present no one can forsee exactly when this shortage will become acute, but indications are that summer and fall will be the danger seasons.

Already plans are being formulated to minimize the inconveniences and delays that such shortages will cause. One method being considered now involves spreading out summer vacations to cut the June-July-August travel peak. With fewer people using their cars as time goes on, demand for rail travel is expected to increase, adding to the transportation problem.

* * *

An indication of what the future holds for civilians is seen in the predictions of top Administration officials that within a year the draft will apply to all non-military work.

Typical are the views of Chairman Arthur J. Altmeyer of the Social Security Board, who says that a single manpower authority, like that of British Labor Minister Ernest Bevin, must be established to exercise general control over the selection of men for industry, agriculture and other essential civilian activities, as well as for the armed forces.

According to Mr. Altmeyer, the purpose of the manpower authority would be to achieve maximum efficiency in the distribution of the available labor force; to avert labor shortages in critical war industries; and to avoid a "tug-of-war" for men between war industries and the armed forces.

Hagar Dagmar Hamilton, Plaintiff, vs. Lloyd Edward Hamilton, Defendant
No. 3642 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, State of Maryland.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for divorce "a vinculo matrimonii" for the plaintiff, Hagar Dagmar Hamilton, of Garrett County, Maryland, against her husband, Lloyd Edward Hamilton, defendant, of the State of West Virginia.

The Bill of Complaint states that on February 24, 1934, the said Hagar Dagmar Hamilton was married to her husband, Lloyd Edward Hamilton, with whom she resided in Allegany County, Maryland, until the month of July, 1936. That the said Lloyd Edward Hamilton has abandoned and deserted her without just cause or reason and that such abandonment has continued since July, 1936, uninterruptedly, and is deliberate and final and the separation of the parties is beyond any expectation of reconciliation. That the said Hagar Dagmar Hamilton and Lloyd Edward Hamilton have had two children born to them from said marriage, namely, Mary Ellan and Vida Dagmar Hamilton, and that the said Lloyd Edward Hamilton is a non-resident of the State of Maryland.

It is thereupon, this 18th day of April, 1942, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Garrett County, once in each of four successive weeks before the 22nd day of May, 1942, giving notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this Bill, warning him to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before the 6th day of June, 1942, to show cause, if any he has, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

Turning Over An Old Leaf

By Phillip A. Gladheim

"There were faces to remember in the Valley of the Shadow;
There were faces unregarded, there were faces to forget;
There were fires of grief and fear that are a few forgotten ashes;
There were sparks of recognition that are not forgotten yet."

When the last days of March were giving the first warmth to the earth, two companions of the road chose a day for an excursion into the deep woods. The author's companion is a seasoned hiker, conversing, as he walks, in the same tempo. Being well read, tempered with the wisdom of toil and travel, there is no anxiety of his ever coming to the end of a tale. He has outmatched in style, interest and longevity The Arabian Nights. His name is Mr. Joel Woodruff, a retired journalist from Montgomery, Alabama, who has been spending several months at the Manhattan Hotel.

On this particular day our hike took us to Round Glade. Turning off the road about four miles west of Oakland we followed a narrow path through the forest until we came to a clearing. Scattered in this open space were five buildings. We turned and walked directly to the nearest. Upon entering we saw a tall, swarthy man leaning over his work-bench. What was he doing? Making a window frame, a piece of furniture, or repairing a gun? No; none of these prosaic things. He was a poet—because he was occupied at that moment in chiseling out of a seasoned maple board a back for a violin. His name is Melvin Weimer.

He paused in his work and was quite willing to sit down and talk. We asked questions about himself. With unfeigned modesty he told us that when he was sixteen years old he made his first violin, and when not employed in making a living he has been making violins until now. Thus for over fifty years Melvin Weimer, an auto-didact (self-taught), has been living in the Garrett county backwoods making beautiful instruments of art, and out of native woods, save the finger-board, which is made of imported ebony.

Mr. Weimer is not a "tinkerer" or a "putterer." He has had enough instinct of accuracy, observation and steadiness to achieve not only a valuable handicraft, but an immense amount of experimental knowledge, backed by the most seasoned principles of violin construction. His own instinct is guided by the soundest book wisdom on the subject, together with unremitting toil. One is impressed by his highly developed sense of resonance and warmth that he endeavors to breathe into his violins, which by the way are beautifully varnished by his own process.

The author played the two instruments that were in his shop at the time and were finished. The tone of both violins is remarkable not only for its warmth and resonance, but that the same quality of tone prevails in all positions on all four strings, and the harmonics themselves display the same evenness of quality. Thus by countless experiment over fifty years Mevlin Weimer has developed a violin of rare beauty in tone and appearance.

As my friend Joel Woodruff commented, "If Mr. Weimer lived in one of our great cities and made violins, upon coming to Oakland for a summer vacation, it would soon be noised around that a great artist was spending his vacation here." But because he lives obscurely in the backwoods a few miles west of Oakland the natives have even forgotten that such a man is alive and is producing instruments of art, while most of the world is devoting its best brains and energy to instruments of destruction and torture.

He is an individualist who by his quiet courage will by his handcraft prove to the world that a factory-made violin can never have a soul—that all machine-made things are without soul, save the original invention. Such individualists by the dint of their faith and toil will stand as judges in this mad world where the machine with its mass production, its soulless life, is now in the final stage of destroying its own creators.

Mr. Weimer knew that the factory-made violin could be bought for less money. He knew he could not compete with the machine. Years ago he was sensible enough to derive his livelihood by digging coal and farming. And there are many so-called cultured people who look with disdain upon a coal miner. Well, here is a coal miner who perhaps is making as fine a contribution to culture as anyone living in the county.

Since visiting Mr. Weimer we have learned that his handicraft genius follows many lines. Mr. Woodruff and the author, however, observed that the shop in which he worked would be more interesting if things were tidied up, and if his bachelor aversion for femine cleanliness and neatness could be atoned by someone taking the time to put all objects in order. The old shop would then become the importance of its present occupant, and perhaps would lend conditioned in exterior artistry for Walt Disney to incorporate in a new technicolor picture of the fairyland country and people in the forest.

The two companions had much to talk about before we espied the violin maker of Round Glade. And on our return we queried about the machine-madness of the world, and whether this present war might at least be responsible for a return to simple ways of life—a haven for the small business man and elbow room for men who dare to be themselves rather than accede to smug majorities—being parasites of mass production—and all adhering to some stupid regimented system of living we call standards.

In the words of Emerson, taken from his essays on "Nature": "If the single man plant himself indomitably on his instincts, and there abide, the huge world will come round to him."

Both of us were reminded of this text as we left Melvin Weimer. The author hopes that the people here in the county will know from now on that such a man is at present employed in a most honorable and valuable labor, and if there are those who would be fortunate enough to own one of his violins with his name printed on the inside, please remember that some day even the collector of antiques would consider the possession of such a violin a real prize.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS . . . .

Ships Come First

The shipping shortage, concededly the most serious present handicap of our war effort, is no reflection upon the United States Maritime Commission. It does not mean that either the Administration or the shipyards have fallen down on the job. The shortage is simply the inevitable outcome of the tremendous scope of the struggle in which we are engaged.

* * *

In the last war we had but the one sea lane to keep open, and only the one country—France—to which to send men, munitions and supplies. And, in addition to our own and the British fleets to insure delivery, the French and Italian fleets were on our side. Yet, our feat in sending to France an army of 2,000,000 men across 3,000 miles of ocean and maintaining them, was regarded—and rightly so—as a great achievement. But, consider now the situation as it is in this war.

* * *

Instead of one sea lane to keep open we have half a dozen main lanes and a dozen minor ones. Instead of sending our soldiers to one country, American soldiers, the experts tell us, are now in as many as thirty different places outside the United States, some of which are actual fighting fronts and the others potential fighting fronts. Instead of being concerned solely with the safety of the North Atlantic Ocean, we now have to be concerned with the safety of practically all the waters of the earth. Instead of concentrating upon supplying our own forces with food and the tools of war, literally we have become the "arsenal of democracy." We are, for example, supplying all the United Nations with rubber. And besides to England, we are sending vast quantities of supplies to Russia and China and Africa. Some of our lines of communication are 13,000 miles long.

* * *

Link these things to the fact that the strength of our forces abroad, and, in consequence, the strain on our shipping resources, increases every week and it is easy to realize the immensity of our shipping needs. In the light of the facts, the President's program of 8,000,000 tons for 1942 is now seen to be inadequate. Actually, we will exceed that estimate this year, but to meet fully the requirements, we will have to exceed it by a much greater margin. The truth is we are turning out bombers, guns, planes, ammunition and other supplies faster than we can find cargo ships in which to load them.

* * *

The result is that things are beginning to pile up inside on us. And this, of course, is a very serious problem. The encouraging factor is that it is not only completely realized in Washington but Administration authorities are moving toward its solution. Certainly, that is true of Mr. Donald Nelson, upon whom rests responsibility second only to that of the President. And it is true of Admiral Land, head of the Maritime Commission. And it is also true that in their efforts to meet the shipping crisis they have the strong support of Mr. Roosevelt. By none of them is the danger minimized. Nor is there any desire to ignore the inexorable reality that if production cannot be transported there is no use increasing production.

* * *

In the past three things have hampered shipbuilding: 1, shortage of materials; 2, labor troubles; 3, sinkings by enemy submarines. As to the first, Mr. Nelson is now giving shipbuilding contractors priorities over everything else. They come first. Concerning labor the trouble is not so much with strikes, though there were plenty of those before Pearl Harbor, and the shipbuilding plants have not been wholly free from them since. The real trouble is with the "slowdowns" of the kind revealed the other day by Senator Byrd from data provided by the navy.

* * *

For one reason or another—jurisdictional controversies, closed-shop demands, etc.—men have been loafing instead of working in these plants. The result is that few of them have been able to operate at anything like full capacity. Admiral Land made this very clear the other day before a Senate committee, where, while he withheld his views on the forty-hour week extension, he strongly urged the freezing of all labor relations from now to the end of the war. The facts of this labor laxity have been laid before the President and the pressure upon him to act to end it is great. Some move in this direction is expected very shortly. It should not be delayed. More than anything else it will speed ship production.

* * *

There is no use disguising the heavy toll taken by enemy submarines of tankers and cargo ships in the Caribbean and elsewhere since our active entrance into the war. If these sinkings continued unchecked or were permitted to increase, a very grave state of affairs would exist. But this menace is one which the navy can be trusted to remove. Already the sinkings are decreasing and the means of safeguarding our cargoes, both incoming and outgoing, are becoming more and more effective. Before long these waters will be made so unhealthy for submarines that losses through their activities will be reduced to a minimum.

* * *

Of that, we are assured. But even then—even if all three of these above mentioned handicaps are removed—if the submarine situation is controlled, labor slowdowns ended and the material shortage minimized—even then the enormity of the shipbuilding job cannot be exaggerated. Bombings, fighting planes, tanks, guns, food and men are all essential to the winning of the war. But, without ships, none of them counts for much. Without ships, they cannot be sent to the far distant places where our fighting has to be done. Without ships, they all just pile up here in futile and costly confusion. Ships are basic. Ships, Mr. Nelson feels, come first. And he is right.

Nutrition Program Is Being Expanded

Three Classes Being Taught At Present—Others To Be Organized

An expansion in the nutrition program for Garrett county is being planned by the County Nutrition Committee, it was announced by Miss Marianna Lee Long, home demonstration agent.

At present there are three Red Cross classes in nutrition in progress—one at Grantsville, taught by Mrs. Julius Renninger, has been in progress six weeks; one at Friendsville, taught by Miss Carolyn Blanks, was organized March 26; and on April 20, a class sponsored by the Homemakers' club of Kitzmiller and taught by Miss Lydia Bradburn, home economics instructor at Kitzmiller High school, was organized.

With the completion of the home nursing classes in Oakland, and at Combination and Bethlehem communities, classes will be organized in nutrition if there is shown a desire for such instruction, Miss Long pointed.

Theatre owners are cooperating with the committee and the Maryland theatre, Oakland, is showing tonight and tomorrow a nutrition film, "Proof of the Pudding," a technicolor film presented by an insurance company in cooperation with the United States Public Health Service. The county nutrition committee is recommending this film to the public.

NEW GERMANY

Church services at the Trinity Reformed church this Sunday will be in charge of Rev. Alvin J. Forry, pastor of St. John's, of Grantsville. After the service all members will have the opportunity to vote for a regular pastor. Trinity Reformed has been without a regular pastor since last fall, when Rev. A. M. Wright left to serve as chaplain in the army. All church members are urged to be present.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Merrill have returned to Baltimore after spending the week-end with relatives. Miss Grace Otto accompanied them home.

Mrs. Ida Lidie, Baltimore, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Martin.

Robert Durst, Akron, Ohio, visited friends and relatives here, recently.

The April meeting of the Women's Guild was held on Sunday morning, with Mrs. Asa Fresh as leader. Mrs. Morris Beachy gave a book report on "Keys to the Kingdom." A play entitled "God Bless America" was given by some of the members. The next meeting will be May 3rd, with Mrs. F. H. Broadwater as leader. Mrs. Parker Warnick and Miss Catherine Stark have been chosen as representatives to a meeting of the Somerset Regional Women's Guild to be held in Berlin, Pa., on Friday, April 24, 1942.

MEATS AND MEAT SUBSTITUTES

Meat, fish, poultry, eggs and cheese have a definite place in the daily food plan. They supply proteins of excellent quality and certain minerals and vitamins, as well as add flavor and interest to the diet.

The protein is an essential component of every living cell in the body and makes up a large part of the solids of a muscle cell. Therefore it is essential that this important food constituent be given a place in the diet.

Proteins vary in quality. Each protein is constructed of building stores which we know as amino acids. Tho there are many amino acids (22 common ones) only ten are regarded as essential. Quality of a protein depends upon the amino acids which it contains.

A "complete" protein is one which will maintain life and promote growth, thus showing that all the essential acids are present. Those proteins which will maintain life, yet not provide for growth are the "partially incomplete", while those that will provide for neither life nor growth are the totally incomplete.

The daily diet must include the complete proteins and a supply of the partially complete. Our sources of complete proteins are animal in nature—meats, eggs, fish, poultry, cheese. Plant proteins as beans, peas, lentils, while they are complete, can be used successfully in a low cost diet to replace part of the meat, and in a more generous diet to supplement the meat.

As the protein foods are usually the most expensive in the diet, a great deal of thought should be given to their selection in order that the greatest value may be received from the money spent. Here are a few suggestions to follow in purchasing and using protein foods where food costs have to be considered:

1. Use the comparatively inexpensive cuts of meats. They are just as nutritious as the more expensive ones and properly prepared can be appealing to the appetite.

2. Kidneys, beef heart and liver are good sources of minerals, particularly iron, and of vitamin A, B and G. Use them once or twice weekly.

3. Fish should be served at least once a week. Salt water fish are rich in iodine. Salmon, sardines and mackerel are inexpensive fish containing vitamin D, which aids in bone and teeth building.

4. Use eggs generously—one a day per person if possible, and if not 3 or 4 per week. They are rich in good quality proteins and in iron and certain vitamins.

5. Dried beans and peas are inexpensive foods, and while not adequate for growth when served alone, when served with milk become an excellent food for body building and for growth.

6. Use lean meat, poultry or fish not more than four times a week, with eggs, cheese, beans, peas, or other legumes on other days.

7. To get a good diet at low cost it is best to increase milk and decrease the meat.

Next week this column will complete the discussion of protein foods by giving recipes using the foods mentioned here.

MT. LAKE PARK

Lake Lynn Rebekah Lodge No. 87, will hold one of its big benefit socials on the evening of Friday, May 1, at 8 o'clock in the IOOF hall at Loch Lynn. There is a beautiful double wedding ring quilt to be given away and you will be able to buy all sorts of good home made foods. The Friday night bingo games have been discontinued until further notice from the bingo committee.

Don't forget that Tuesday is clean-up day in Mountain Lake Park.

Mrs. A. V. Schaeffer has returned from Philadelphia, where she visited her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Nine. Enroute home she spent several days in Washington with other members of her family.

Mayor Oscar Hall and Mrs. Hall had as guests on Sunday Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Danks, of Lonaconing, and Dr. and Mrs. E. W. Larsen, of Somerset, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Miller were visited on Sunday by their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Miller, of Morgantown.

Mrs. Elza Nave, of Cumberland, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Welling.

Mrs. Nina Dixon, who spent the winter in the east, has returned here and is at home in her cottage.

Mrs. Timothy Moon and Mrs. Mabel Brock are in Charleston, W. Va., attending a Methodist conference.

Dr. W. B. Love has returned from Washington College, Tenn., where for several months he was a guest at the college, which was the first to be established west of the Alleganies—in 1780—and its charter was signed by George Washington. The town of Washington College was at one time the capital of the State of Jackson, which state broke away from North Carolina when Tennessee was formed. Before returning here Dr. Love took an extended trip through the mountains of Tennessee and was the guest at Pall Mall, Tenn., of Sergeant York in his home. He visited the York Institute, which was the gift of Sgt. York to the State of Tennessee.

Last Friday night the Woman's Bible class of Bethel church was entertained at the home of Mrs. Mabel Brock when the regular monthly social was held.

Mrs. Thomas C. Erwin, Jr., of Atlanta, Ga., is here for a visit with her mother, Mrs. W. Thompson Burch.

MAYOR AND TOWN COUNCIL.

Oakland, Maryland.

No Complaints at Appeal Session of City Council

Everyone in Oakland is satisfied—at least when it comes to town tax assessments—if the activities of the appeals session of the City Council can be taken as a thermometer of sentiment.

The City Council named Monday and Tuesday evenings as special meetings for citizens to lay before it any grievances about taxes, assessments, etc. There were no complaints, according to Arthur Lawton, clerk-collector.

Two Arrested Enroute To Wedding At Thomas

Two Eckhart men, enroute to a wedding early Sunday morning, were apprehended at Grantsville on alleged violations.

As related by G. S. Dunlap, State Police, James W. Parry, driver, and Leroy Starkey though they were on the wrong route to Thomas, West Va., scene of the wedding, and turned around at Grantsville.

Unfortunately they drove around a residence through an alleyway and on their way out to the highway were "hung up" on a wall when the front wheels of the car dropped over the wall end.

Parry, in getting out of the machine, toppled to the pavement on his head. Dunlap said he suffered head cuts.

Parry will receive a hearing on two State motor law violations before Magistrate Charles S. Zeller, Grantsville, on Saturday. Starkey is charged with being drunk and disorderly.

Electric
IRONING

Every family, every housekeeper who enjoys the benefits of electric ironing will be helped by the following facts about that important function. The points here presented represent the results of thousands of tests in homes, laboratories and public institutions. Save this by cutting it out and putting it in your family notebook . . . or just hang it on a nail close to your ironer. It will pay you many times over for the little effort expended.

FOR BEST RESULTS

1. Plug into convenient outlet to insure sufficient heat.
2. Dampen clothes properly.
3. Keep "shoe" clean by wiping often; use only mild abrasive.
4. Keep padding "flaffed" and cover free of wrinkles; check pressure.
5. Have clothes washed and starched properly.
6. Learn uses of speeds and controls, following directions.
7. Cool ironer before putting it away.
8. Be familiar with the safety release!
9. Heat iron thoroughly before using; warm roll by rotating "shoe" and keep it warm to dry out any lingering dampness.
10. Alternate flat work and other pieces to maintain even temperature.
11. Oil only according to manufacturer's directions.

These hints will lead to better ironing and longer life for your ironer. If you need a new one, don't delay buying it. You can see the new 1942 EASY models in our store. And buy plenty of bonds and stamps . . . to flatten the Japs and Huns!

How to Grow Hogs Bigger and Faster

Meat is a concentrated food and the government wants more of it. One important meat is pork. Prices should hold good for this staple for some time to come. It will pay you to produce more.

Most all farmers grow hogs, but the problem today is to grow them bigger and faster. If you feed them corn alone it will take 11 bushels to make 100 pounds of pork. But a well-balanced open formula like Southern States PIG & HOG FEED is a much more efficient pork builder. It will pay you to lay in a supply of this feed and follow the directions on the tag.

Take good care of farrowing sows for their condition will have an important effect on the next pig crop. The PIG & HOG FEED tag will tell you how to feed the brood sow.

Make Home-Grown Grain Go Further

Southern States Cooperative makes a 40% PORK MAKER feed to use with home-grown grains. This concentrated feed will save you money if you have an ample supply of grains on hand or have laid by some of the government wheat now coming onto Eastern farms. With this concentrate you can do a better pork making job at less cost.

Two RAF Pilots "Invade" Oakland

The Pair However Are On Peace Mission, Visiting Miss Beural Frazee

Two soon-to-be pilots in the Royal Air Force, now in training in the United States, "Invaded" Oakland yesterday, but their's was a mission of peace and good will—particularly for some young women of the community.

Edward Jacobs, of just outside London, and Jim Lang, of Bristol, a west coast British seaport, arrived in Oakland to visit Miss Beural Frazee. These young men have been in the United States for about seven months and are training to become pilots at Gunter Field, Montgomery, Ala. Following an advanced course in flying which they expect to begin within about a week, they will return to their country and take up the fight against the Axis, perhaps ferrying over some bombers from Canada upon their return.

Both young men are twenty years of age, and have been in the Royal Air Force for more than a year. They were not permitted to say just how many British were over here in training, but they said the number was "considerable."

The reason for their appearance here is somewhat unique. Stanley Abramson, who was employed at The Half Price Store until his induction into the armed forces several months ago, met Lang at a southern airfield. Abramson furnished the name of Miss Frazee to him and the two struck up a correspondence which has continued since that time. Whether or not photographs were exchanged was not revealed, but anyhow, when he was able to obtain eight days' leave of absence he gathered up a friend and struck out for Oakland.

Yesterday both were taken on a sight-seeing trip of this area and they said they were much pleased and gratified with the scenery—and the people they had met.

The boys were attired in gray uniforms. They talked with much ease, even though with a pronounced accent, which one might call "peculiar" except that it probably would be no more peculiar than our brogue is to them.

Willkie Proposal Is Adopted by Republican National Committee

Post-War World Responsibility Not Limited to U. S., Party Pledges

Prodded by Wendell L. Willkie, the Republican National Committee on Monday took affirmative action to get rid of the isolationist label which had been applied to the G. O. P. since the war began.

By unanimous vote the committee adopted a series of policy resolutions which significantly included the following Willkie-dictated declaration:

We realize that after this war the responsibility of the nation will not be circumscribed within the territorial limits of the United States that our nation has an obligation to assist in the bringing about of understanding, comity and cooperation among the nations of the world in order that our own liberty may be preserved and that the blighting and destructive processes of war may not again be forced upon us and upon the free and peace-loving peoples of the earth.

Senator Robert A. Taft, Ohio, and Senator Wayland Brooks, Ill., submitted counter resolutions which pledged the party to all-out support of the war effort, but were silent on post war problems and responsibilities.

Regional Principals' Conference Being Held At Hagerstown

Principals of the six high schools of Garrett County and F. E. Rathbun, County Superintendent of Schools, are attending a Regional Principals' conference being held tomorrow in the Hagerstown High school, Hagerstown. James E. Spitznas, High School Supervisor for the five Western Maryland counties, is directing the program. The theme of the conference is "Adapting the Schools' Program to Wartime Needs and Conditions."

The panel that will conduct the discussion upon Maryland's high schools in the present emergency consists of Lewyn C. Davis, principal Bruce High school, Westernport; Wilbur Devilbiss, principal Frederick High school; Wilson P. Sperow, principal Woodlawn Way Junior High school, Hagerstown; B. C. Willis, superintendent Washington county schools, Hagerstown; and Frank J. Getty, principal Grantsville High school. During the afternoon session an address will be given by Dr. Wm. G. Carr or Dr. G. L. Maxwell, of the Educational Policies Commission on "Secondary Education in War and Peace." Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, Jr., State Superintendent of Schools, will likewise be in attendance at this meeting.

Daughter Dies Within Three Days Of Mother

Mrs. William O'Brien, 68, of Meadow Mountain, died last Wednesday, April 15, at her home following a lingering illness, and just a short time prior to her funeral on Saturday, her daughter, Mrs. Olive Pearl Bittinger, 39, wife or Simon Bittinger, Franklin, near Westernport, died at her home following an illness of ten days.

Funeral services for Mrs. O'Brien were conducted on Saturday morning, April 18, from the North Glade church, with interment at Westernport. Rev. Clarence Fraker, McHenry, officiated.

Surviving are her husband, William O'Brien, and an adopted son, Joseph G. O'Brien, Swanton; also one brother, Charles Duckworth, Morgantown, W. Va., and a sister, Mrs. Minnie Nicola, Westernport. Mrs. O'Bien was a native of Garrett county, being the daughter of the late Aden and Ellen Duckworth.

Surviving Mrs. Bittinger are her husband and three children, Harold, Loraine and Mary Ann, all at home; also her father, William H. O'Brien and her adopted brother, Joseph G. O'Brien.

DIED

SAMUEL D. BEACHY

Samuel D. Beachy, 46, died at his farm home near Grantsville, on Saturday morning after an illness of several months.

He was a son of the late Daniel S. and Amanda Miller Beachy and was born near Gortner on October 19, 1896. He moved to the Grantsville community some years ago. For several months following the death of Noah Brenneman, he acted as superintendent of the former Amish Children's Home.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Barbara Beachy, a daughter, Rose Elizabeth Beachy, and a son, Alva Beachy, Grantsville; four sisters, Mrs. Lucy Smoker, Mrs. Tilly Miller, and Mrs. Salome Mafcinger, Lancaster, Pa.; and Mrs. Elizabeth Miller, Washington, D. C.; and five brothers, Norman Beachy, St. Paul; Joel D. Beachy, Springs; Eli Beachy, Oakland; Alvin Beachy, Greenwood, Del; and Simon Beachy, Salisbury, Pa.

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday afternoon from the Maple Glen church.

MRS. LAVINA SELL

Funeral services for Mrs. Lavina Sell, aged 84 years, were conducted last Friday, April 17, at McHenry, by Rev. Andrew B. Mann, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Thomas, West Va., where Mrs. Sell died at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Lee Davis, after a five year illness. Rev. C. W. Fraker, of McHenry, assisted in the service.

Surviving besides Mrs. Davis, is another daughter, Mrs. Carrie Close, of Akron, Ohio, and 4 grandchildren.

Mrs. Sell was born in this county, a daughter of the late Samuel and Susan Kimmell Specht. Her husband, Adam Sell, died twenty-five years ago. Interment was made at Flatwoods.

She was born June 24, 1858. She was married to Mr. Sell February 22, 1877. They lived in this county until 1899, where he was engaged in the lumber business, and then moved to West Virginia.

MISS LULU SHAW

Funeral services were held in Grantsville cemetery on Tuesday for Miss Lulu Shaw, 71, a former resident, who died Friday in Sanfield hospital, Washington, D. C., after an illness of about two weeks.

A daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Shaw, she was born in the Grantsville section, where she lived the greater part of her life, residing for a time on the Stone House farm, later moving to the Sam Baker farm, now owned by George Sloan.

She moved to Washington some years ago, where she had since resided with her brother, Guerney Shaw, who survives. Another brother, Joseph Shaw, Cleveland, O., also survives.

CHARLES WESLEY ELRICK

Charles Wesley Elrick, aged 82, Gormania merchant, died at his home there yesterday morning, April 22, after an illness of about two weeks. He suffered an attack of influenza which was followed a few days ago by a stroke of paralysis.

The deceased was born November 14, 1859, a son of the late Jonathan and Rebecca Elrick, of Pennsylvania, and had resided in Gormania since 1906.

He was a member of the Presbyterian church.

Surviving are two daughters and three sons, J. Edward Elrick, of Mt. Storm, W. Va.; Austin H. Elrick, Gormania Wesley M. Elrick, Misses Nellie and Cora Elrick, all at home; also five grandchildren and one sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Kennell, Wellersburg, Pa. His wife died several years ago.

Funeral services are to be conducted on Saturday, April 25, at 10:30 a. m., from the Presbyterian church in Gormania with Rev. A. S. Gear, minister, officiating, assisted by Rev. Raymond Simpson. Interment will be in the Rose Hill cemetery at Cumberland.

Hugh S. Johnson, who died of pneumonia, at 52, was buried in Arlington.

Single copies of The Republican may be obtained at the Hamill Book and Stationery Store, corner Third and Alder streets, where the current issue of the paper is placed on sale every Thursday afternoon. Price, 5 cents per copy.

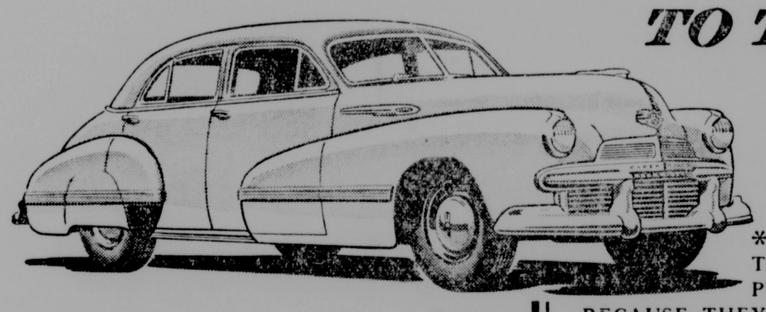
NEW 1942 OLDSMOBILES FOR SALE



TO THE FOLLOWING PEOPLE*

*PROVIDED, OF COURSE, THAT THEY SECURE FROM THE LOCAL RATIONING BOARD A CERTIFICATE OF PURCHASE WHICH O. P. A. SAYS THEY MAY SECURE, BECAUSE THEY ARE CONTRIBUTING TO THE WAR EFFORT

Executives, engineers, technicians, and workers requiring transportation to or within factories, power plants, transportation or communication facilities, farms, lumber camps, mines, military or naval establishments, etc.; when the work is essential, directly or indirectly, to the prosecution of the war.

Traveling salesmen of food or medical supplies; or of machinery or equipment for farms, factories, mines, oil wells, lumber camps or similar productive establishments.

Persons requiring automobiles for transportation of farm produce or supplies.

Persons requiring automobiles for transportation to essential construction or highway maintenance jobs.

Physicians, surgeons, visiting nurses, and farm veterinaries.

Ministers, if a car is essential to performance of religious duties.

Licensed Taxi or jitney operators.

Officers and employees of federal, state, local, or foreign governments requiring automobiles for public health activities, safety, or war work.

Police personnel, fire fighters, and U. S. Mail carriers who use cars in their work, and persons who use their cars as ambulances.

Persons who use cars for wholesale newspaper delivery.

The Army or Navy of the U. S., the Marine Corps, the Maritime Commission, Panama Canal, Geodetic Survey, Coast Guard, Civilian Aeronautics Authority, National Advisory Commission for Aeronautics, Office of Scientific Research and Development, and persons acquiring cars for export do not need Purchase Certificates.

NOTE: In the event you are engaged in an essential service, directly or indirectly connected with the prosecution of the war—even though you are not listed in the groups mentioned—you are cordially invited to call upon your Oldsmobile dealer for assistance in filing your application for a new car.

IF YOU'RE NOT ON THE ABOVE LIST, HERE'S WHAT YOU CAN DO!

Bring in your present car and we'll make it as nearly new as expert Oldsmobile mechanics and up-to-date tools and equipment can possibly make it! We'll tune-up the engine, tighten-up the chassis, brighten-up the body, clean-up the interior, freshen-up and rejuvenate the entire automobile! And don't forget also—the next best thing to buying a new Oldsmobile is investing in a good, late-model, top-quality Oldsmobile used car. Come in and look 'em over!

IF YOU CAN BUY A NEW CAR, BE SURE TO MAKE IT AN OLDSMOBILE—AND HERE'S WHY:

1 You want a car that will last for years and years. Oldsmobile's traditional quality, proved ruggedness and durability are your best bet that you won't "run out of transportation" before the war is over.

2 You want a car that will conserve vital war-time supplies. Oldsmobile is designed to give you real gas-saving, oil-saving performance . . . Also to provide greater tire life, because the size of Oldsmobile tires is correctly related to the weight and power of the car.

3 You want proved reliability. Many Oldsmobiles are still delivering trouble-free transportation after more than a hundred-thousand miles of owner service.

4 You want a car backed by an organization that will "carry on" and maintain service through any emergency. Oldsmobile is America's oldest car manufacturer and a Division of General Motors—the world's largest automotive organization.

5 You want a car that's right up to the minute in design, that gives you the very latest features. Oldsmobile, with its Hydra-Matic Drive, is known everywhere as the "Car of the Future."

HYDRA-MATIC
. . . Ideal for War-Time Driving

If speed limits are restricted, Hydra-Matic enables you to go places in a hurry, without exceeding "40!" It saves gas, reduces engine wear. And it's easier on tires. No transmission in Oldsmobile history has been more durable! Nearly 200,000 owners stand squarely behind it.

THE REPUBLICAN

VOLUME 66. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, THURSDAY, APRIL 30, 1942. NUMBER 10.

"Discourteous" Friends . .

Walter Pitkin, in a recent article, pointed out that what people really needed were a few "discourteous friends."

Perhaps he's right. The friend who tells us our new necktie is beautiful when he really thinks it's terrible; who says our speech was "marvelous" when he actually slept through most of it, and who in other ways is trying to be so kind that he never tells us the truth, may win our love, but he never helps us any.

If a man is going to improve he needs someone to coach him on the sidelines, and it won't do any good to get stubborn or bull-headed and not take seriously what the coach tells him. A man needs someone many times to act as a mirror in which he can see himself as others see him.

Without someone to tell him the truth about his mannerisms, habits, mistakes, Mr. Pitkin believes the man may go marching straight to disaster with the cheers of his courteous friends ringing in his ears.

Get a close friend to make a check on you, for improvement, and just so it isn't too one-sided, you check on him. Then you'll help each other constructively.

As another person has put it, "Kindness puts us to sleep with the ether of self-satisfaction. Criticism may be hard medicine to take, but it achieves the opposite result. It wakes a man up!

COMMISSIONERS SEEK RULING ON PURCHASE LAW

Asks Court to Construe Meaning Of Statute Which Compels Advertising for Bids on Any Item Over $100.00

An equity suit of the County Commissioners of Garrett County, versus the State Roads Commission and its members, under the declaratory judgment acts, has been filed in the Circuit Court here, which asks the Court to construe the meaning of the law passed at the last legislature by Senator Clifford Friend wherein it is now compulsory to advertise for bids for material, equipment, etc., of a value exceeding $100.00, in the management of the county roads.

Payment Held Up

Because of the wording of the law the State Roads Commission is holding up payment of bills amounting to $6,797.62, for construction work done on the Rock Lodge and Smouse roads, according to Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., attorney. The money is allocated to Garrett county from the Gasoline Tax Fund for construction purposes.

The State Roads Commission composed of Ezra Whitman, P. Watson Webb and W. Frank Thomas, are also anxious for an interpretation of the law and have cooperated with the County Commissioners in asking that the suit be filed asking for the opinion.

Mr. Whitworth said that the lack of a clear interpretation might hold up road work in the county indefinitely as the Roads commission at present would not pay legitimate bills for construction work in regard to supervision, truck rental, shovel rental, use of bulldozer and auto patrol, etc.

Example Given

He pointed out by way of example, of hiring a man and truck for so much per day. After so many days the amount owed to the man would amount to more than $100 and the

Forest Fires Cause Much Destruction in County In Past Week

Over 1,400 acres of woodland have been burned over in Garrett county in the past week, according to Cecil Ramsey, superintendent of the Swallow Falls state forest and acting district forest warden.

All blazes were under control by Sunday night. The most destructive blaze was on Backbone mountain in the Eagle Rock section where flames destroyed 1,000 acres Saturday, then broke out again Sunday and swept 100 acres.

Blazes in the Sang Run section covered about 120 acres and for a time threatened the power lines of the Associated Gas and Electric company, but forest crews aided by workers dispatched by the power company, were able to hold the flames in check.

Nearly 200 acres were burned near McHenry and smaller blazes were suppressed at Piney run, near Frostburg, and Laurel run, near Kempton.

Towermen On Job

Ramsey said that the Laurel run fire was held to six acres through the prompt work of Jack Williams, a towerman, who left his tower, rounded up a crew and quickly brought the fire under control.

H. C. Buckingham, district warden, reported the woods to be "tinder dry," and that high winds had scattered the flames. Another handicap he said was the shortage of manpower and modern fire-fighting equipment. He made a plea for all persons to use extreme caution in or near the woods and urged that no one burn any brush, leaves or refuse until a heavy rainfall lessens the danger.

Many Sign Economy Petition; Victory Delegation Planned

Maryland's Public Expenditure Council Arranges Meeting with Senators and Representatives

Between four hundred and five hundred persons in this section of Garrett county signed petitions circulated recently by the local Taxpayers' Association calling upon Mrs. Katharine E. Byron, Sixth District Representative, to support the Byrd Joint Congressional Committee, working for a reduction of two billion dollars in non-essential Federal spending, it was said yesterday by representatives of the association.

The names on the petition included persons residing at Friendsville, Crellin, Accident and Oakland. It was stated that similar petitions were distributed at Grantsville and quite a number of additional names were probably obtained there which were sent direct to the headquarters of the Maryland Public Expenditure Council.

This latter council is planning a Victory First Delegation to go to Washington on May 5th to tell Maryland's two Senators and six Representatives in Congress face to face that victory and the welfare of the nation and every person in it requires that Congress eliminate every dollar of non-essential Federal spending and use the savings thus made to buy guns, planes, tanks and ships for our men fighting the Axis.

A state-wide petition will be presented at that time and key citizens in every section of Baltimore and every county are to meet with the Washington representatives at 2:30 p. m. in the caucus room of the Senate office building in Washington. Senator Tydings has arranged the meeting.

Just who will represent Garrett county is not known at this time, but it is the wish that several members of the association will join the main delegation at the Union Station in Washington at 2:00 o'clock on the day indicated.

In commenting on the taxpayers action, Harry S. Middledorf, of the Maryland Public Expenditure Council, said: "Clear thinking taxpayers have been writing the Congressmen representing their respective districts for months telling them to reduce or eliminate all non-essential Federal spending in view of the need for turning every resource toward attaining victory. The results have been most encouraging. The citizens are circulating this petition and forming the delegation to reiterate their demands so that there will be no doubt in the minds of their spokesmen in Congress that the taxpayers, willing to make every sacrifice to insure victory, believes it vital that every non-essential non-defense expenditure be pared to the bone during the period of the war emergency."

To Give Lecture at Ministers' Conference

Rev. Felix G. Robinson, Oakland, director of the Institute of Worship and Church Music, will deliver three lectures on Ecumenical worship in connection with the annual West Virginia state-wide conference of Protestant clergymen, to be held at Jackson's Mill, W. Va., on May 6, 7 and 8.

The other two lecturers at the conference will be Dr. Daniel A. Poling, of Philadelphia, Pa., editor of the Christian Herald; and Dr. A. J. Muste, director of Fellowship of Reconciliation, New York City.

Oakland Firemen Called

Oakland firemen were called last Saturday afternoon to extinguish a grass fire which had gotten beyond control near the Dixon cottage at Mt. Lake Park.

The firemen also answered a call to Sand Flat on Saturday, also for a grass fire.

METHODISTS PLAN NOTE-BURNING SERVICE MAY 10

To Mark Completion of Payments on Debts on Church And Parsonage, Built In Recent Years

Plans are in progress for a celebration by members and friends of St. Paul's Methodist church of Oakland to mark the completion of payments on the debts on both the church and parsonage, it was announced by Rev. Minor Sprague, pastor.

The church was built in 1935-36, and dedicated on Palm Sunday of the latter year. The parsonage was built two years later.

A recent drive to close out the outstanding pledges and to secure new gifts has resulted, according to E. Ray Jones, chairman of the special committee for this purpose, in securing sufficient funds to pay all notes. This, he says, leaves the congregation in unencumbered possession of a church and parsonage property valued at $57,000.

In celebration of this successful completion of the building project a note-burning service and a reception are planned for the night of Mother's Day, Sunday, May 10th, according to Rev. Sprague. He has named the following members of a celebration committee, representing all organizations and branches of the church: S. T. Naylor, general chairman; Mrs. Grover C. Stemple, E. Ray Jones, Mrs. Ray Teets, Mrs. William Naylor, Robert DeWitt, Mrs. Daniel Smouse, Charles McIntire, Mrs. J. E. Harned and himself as ex-officio.

At the service on May 10, at 7:30 Rev. W. S. Patterson, D. D., will be the principal speaker. Dr. Patterson was pastor through the period of building and until the fall of 1939 at which time he was transferred to Simpson church, Moundsville, W. Va.

An appropriate program will also be presented and after the service a reception will be held in the assembly room with additional program numbers. The reception will also honor all persons who have become members since the building of the church, as representing some of the fruits and much of the church's future hope.

The entire community is invited to rejoice with the Methodists and all will be welcome at the celebration.

Homemakers Plan For Annual Style Revue

Will Be Held Wednesday, May 6, At Mt. Lake Park, Board Decides

The annual style revue of the Garrett County Homemakers clubs, will be held on Wednesday, May 6, this year, it was announced by Miss Marianna Lee Long, home demonstration agent, following a meeting of the Executive Board of the County Council of Homemakers last Friday afternoon.

Miss Long said the revue would be held in the Bowling Alley building at Mt. Lake Park, from 2 to 4 o'clock on that day.

Work garments, made in the Clothing Construction schools and at home, will be styled by the homemakers. These garments include garden clothes, house dresses and aprons.

Miss Helen Shelby, clothing specialist for the state, will be present, and will deliver a short address.

Miss Venia M. Kellar, assistant director of extension, University of Maryland, attended the board meeting last week and following the business session spoke on what homemakers may do at this time to contribute to the Victory Program. She stressed gardening and attention to good nutrition and urged the need for a county-wide project of a worthy nature. Miss Kellar also attended regular homemakers club meetings at Vindex and Kempton.

New Instructions On Furlough of Selectees

The local draft board has received new instructions on furloughs for those inducted into the service, which makes short furloughs possible after induction, provided such furlough is recommended by the draft board.

Immediate induction after physical examination sometimes entails hardships in certain cases, the board states, due to business or financial involvement. In order to secure a furlough the selectee must make affidavit outlining conditions which will cause the hardship and must furnish statements to sustain the affidavit, either from a bank, physician in case of sickness in family; or from a responsible citizen in other cases requiring adjustment of personal affairs.

Harold Ream Elected Head of Rotary Club

Other Officers Elected at Meeting of Board of Directors

Harold E. Ream, of Crellin, was elected president of the Oakland Rotary club at a meeting of the Board of Directors preceding the regular meeting last Friday evening.

Other officers chosen were Mason Glotfelty, vice-president O. T. Graser, treasurer, and Cecil Smith, secretary.

These newly chosen leaders will take office July 1st. O. T. Graser is retiring president of the organization.

The Board of directors will include the officers and William L. Gibson, Dr. W. W. Grant, Russell Pancake, Lester Yutzy, and Dr. E. I. Baumgartner.

Dr. Roger Corbett, director of the Experiment Station at the University of Maryland, was the speaker at the rural-urban meeting of the club last Friday, which was attended by more than 80 Rotarians and guests. He traced the development of the experiment station and how they had tried to solve many of the problems for farm people.

The speaker for this Friday's meeting is William R. Lunt, commercial counsellor for the Monongahela West Penn Public Service Company. Mr. Lunt spoke to members of the club last year.

Accident F. F. A. Boy Wins High Honors In Poultry Judging

Takes High Individual Honors In State Contest As Team Places Fifth

William Schlossnagle, Accident High school F. F. A. student, won high individual honors in poultry judging at the Future Farmers of America Field day at the University of Maryland, College Park, on Saturday, April 25. The Accident team placed fifth in the contest out of forty-two teams competing.

The team was composed of Schlossnagle and Gurney Kolb, with Albert Bowser, alternate. Accident also sent a milk judging team composed of John Schlossnagle and Lawrence Groer, but placing in this contest has not been announced.

The teams were accompanied by Merl Meyers, vocational agriculture instructor.

Wilbur Thomas, of Friendsville, state president of the organization, presided at the dinner meeting Saturday. Wendel Umbel, also of Friendsville, regional winner in the public speaking contest, won third place in the state, his theme being "Widening Horizons."

Harry Holman and Thomas Hinebaugh participated in the poultry judging contest and Melvin Enlow and Robert Kester judged in the dairy judging contest. Charley B. Miller, vocational instructor, accompanied the Friendsville representatives.

Following the convention all F. F. A. boys visited various points of interest in Washington, D. C.

Head Lutheran Conference

The synod of the United Lutheran church, at its annual conference, at Jackson's Mill, W. Va., this week, re-elected Rev. A. K. Jones, Red House, as conference president, and named L. A. Wagner, Accident, as secretary-treasurer.

Attending the conference from here were Dr. A. B. Leamer, pastor, and Benj. H. Sincell.

Annual County Track Meet Is Called Off

Cancelled Because of Scarcity of Tires and Gasoline, According To County Superintendent

That it has been found inadvisable to hold the usual annual county-wide track and field meet for elementary and high school athletes, was announced this morning by F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent of schools.

Scarcity of tires and gasoline was given as the principal reason for this decision. The meet was originally scheduled to be held at Accident on Friday, May 22.

Mr. Rathbun stated however, that permission was to be given elementary and high schools to conduct track and field events upon that day, among surrounding interested schools, the details of such meets being left entirely with principals of the schools concerned. He said a limited number of badges were available in the office of the Board of Education for various appropriate events.

Any such full or half day devoted to this purpose is to be reported in the teacher salary report for May under item No. 9, Mr. Rathbun cautioned teachers, adding that no further notice would be sent out.

Mr. Rathbun also pointed out that this same decision had been made concerning Track and Field events in all of the other counties of Maryland except Allegany and Washington. In those two counties such events are being conducted at several centers, and not at one central point.

Affects Music Festivals

It was further announced by Mr. Rathbun that similar arrangements have been made for music festivals that are usually held late in May in various sections throughout the county. Neighboring schools may hold such music festivals if it is the preference of the principals of such schools that they be conducted.

Roosevelt Calls For "Total War Effort"

Promises Offensive Action—Declares Everyone Will Feel Effect of Seven-Point Program

President Roosevelt, revealing officially for the first time that "several hundred thousands" of American fighting men have already been sent to battle the Axis in distant lands, rallied the nation to a gigantic war effort Tuesday night in a radio address, saying that the price of saving our civilization "must be paid in hard work and sorrow and blood."

He also expressed the view that the Japanese southward drive had been checked and declared that Australia, New Zealand and adjacent islands are now to become "bases for offensive action."

Mr. Roosevelt also warned the Vichy government that the United Nations would take any action necessary to prevent the use of French territory by Axis forces, and guaranteed a continuation of the delivery of arms to China, regardless of Japanese successes in Burma.

Self Denial and Sacrifice

Bluntly he informed the citizens that everyone would feel the effect of his newly announced program for stabilizing the cost of living and called upon it for self-denial and sacrifice in the interest of victory.

"Never in the memory of man," he said, "has there been a war in which the courage, the endurance and the loyalty of civilians played so vital a part." He vigorously attacked all who might be "impeding" the war.

He outlined his program for combatting inflation—heavy taxes, stabilization of wages and prices, billions invested in war bonds, rationing, a lessening of credit purchases and an increase of debt payments—and said the points of the program were inseparable.

Former Oaklander Missing In Action

Mrs. George D. Sprague, former resident of Oakland, now residing at Purcelleville, Va., has been officially informed by the Navy Department that her son, Robert Sprague, U. S. Navy, has been missing and unheard from since February 27.

That is the date the U. S. S. cruiser Houston, on which Sprague was attached, was sunk in the Java battle.

Sprague had been in the navy for upwards of twenty years, but returned to Oakland many times to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George D. Sprague, while his father was manager of the Oakland creamery.

Purchase Miller Sanitary Market

Earl W. Shartzer and William E. Naylor, have purchased the Miller Sanitary Market, corner of Second and Liberty streets, owned by the late Harry L. Miller, and are announcing its reopening today.

Both Mr. Shartzer and Mr. Naylor have been employed in the market, the former for twenty-five years, the latter for ten, and are acquainted with the details of running such a business. In an advertisement on page five today, they ask the continuance of the patronage which the store formerly enjoyed.

Webster Ravenscroft Suffers Heart Attack While Burning Brush

Was Engaged In Burning Over a Field; Body Not Found Until Several Hours Later

Apparently suffering a heart attack while engaged in burning over some land on his farm, just east of Oakland, Dr. Webster Ravenscroft, 70 years old, retired physician, died some time Monday afternoon, April 27, and his body was badly burned when the flames from the fire he had started reached the spot where his body lay.

His sister, Mrs. Carrie Groves, who was at the home, spread the alarm when her brother had not returned to the house by nine o'clock that evening and neighbors, Sheriff J. W. Owens and members of the Oakland Fire Department began a search, which ended about 11:00 o'clock with the finding of the body in the field within sight of the farm house.

Most of the clothing had been consumed, and Dr. E. I. Baumgartner, county coroner, expressed the opinion that the heart attack had caused his death and not as a result of the burns on his body. He said he had evidently been dead for at least eight hours when the body was discovered.

Dr. Ravenscroft was born March 17, 1872, at Dawson, Allegany county, a son of the late Roland and Martha McGowen Ravenscroft. He was graduated from the Louisville Medical College in 1894 and practiced his profession in Brandonville, West Va., for four years, then moving to Accident, Garrett county, where he was engaged in his profession for a period of eighteen years.

He moved to Oakland in 1909, practically retiring from the practice of medicine at that time, but returned to Accident during the World War, where he assisted his brother, Dr. R. A. Ravenscroft, during the influenza epidemic of that period. He was one of the early automobile dealers of Oakland.

Dr. Ravenscroft was actively interested in politics and was a staunch Republican, serving for several years on the Republican State Central committee, having been elected in 1921. He was postmaster in Oakland for nine years. He was also a member of the Oakland Knights of Pythias lodge and of the Woodmen of the World at Crellin.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. Leo Lyon, Clarksburg, West Va.; three grandchildren, two brothers and three sisters: Dr. R. A. Ravenscroft, Washington, D. C.; Roland Ravenscroft, of Cresaptown; Mrs. Peter Staupp, Lonaconing; Mrs. Rutledge Younker, Paw Paw, West Va., and Mrs. Carrie Groves, formerly of Westernport, who had been residing with her brother recently. Mrs. Ravenscroft died ten years ago.

Funeral services were conducted this morning at 10:30 o'clock from the Bolden Funeral Home, Oakland, with the Rev. Minor Sprague, Methodist minister, officiating. Interment was in the Oakland cemetery.

Pallbearers were Edward Wolfe, Henry Smouse, John Weber, Robert Gemmell, Thomas A. Gonder, Roy O. Winters, Henry M. Speicher and Edward Wallace.

Final rites at the grave was in charge of the Knights of Pythias.

Deer Park to Elect

Deer Park will have its annual election on Monday, May 3, when a mayor and two councilmen will be elected.

R. L. Sebold is the only candidate for mayor, but there are four candidates for councilmen, and only two to be elected. Candidates are Alonzo Warnick, Wilfred Chadderton, E. C. Clatterbuck and Samuel S. Browning. Hold-over members of the council are Harry Thrasher and E. E. Sollars. Terms of Dan Hinebaugh and Mr. Clatterbuck expire. C. F. Rollman is the retiring mayor.

1,876 MEN ARE LISTED IN 4TH REGISTRATION

Twenty Schools Used Over the Week-end for Men 45 to 64, Inclusive, to Register

A total of 1,876 men between the ages of 45 to 64 inclusive, registered in Garrett county at the twenty places provided over the week-end, in the fourth national registration.

It was estimated that 208,000 registered throughout the state and some 13,000,000 throughout the nation.

In Garrett county the greatest number to register was at Oakland, where 499 went to the high school during the three-day period. The next highest number was at Friendsville, where 177 registered. The entire list, as announced by the county draft board was as follows:

Oakland	499
Grantsville	152
Friendsville	177
Accident	109
Kitzmiller	116
Swanton	61
Kempton	68
Bloomington	78
Avilton	32
Gorman	46
Deer Park	95
Red House	65
Vindex	50
Sang Run	41
Shallmar	40
Jennings	41
Bittinger	39
Crellin	87
New Germany	26
Finzel	54
Total	1,875

Many of those who registered came on the first and second days showing their willingness to serve their country. Schools in every section of the state were used as registration offices and principals and teachers served as registrars.

Governor O'Conor and Mayor Jackson, of Baltimore, led Maryland's new registrants, while President Roosevelt led the nation.

To each person registered throughout the nation the government is planning to send a questionnaire to find what non-combat war work he might do best if the need arose. None of those registering this time will be liable for military service, according to the present Selective Service Act, and will not be given order numbers.

Registrants to Fill Out Questionnaires Regarding Occupation

All Men 18 to 44 Who Registered February 16, Will Receive Blanks

All men between 18 and 44 years of age who registered for Selective Service on February 16, will receive an occupational questionnaire in two parts—one for the Selective Service Board, and the other for the United States Employment Service, it has been announced by Milburn W. Mann, local director of the latter.

These occupational questionnaires ask for important information about work experience or training of individuals, he said.

He pointed out that the questionnaires must be answered correctly and returned promptly to the local office of the Selective Service Board in Oakland. For the convenience of persons who do not understand exactly how to complete the questionnaire, certain agencies and organizations have been designated to assist in filling them out.

Those desiring aid are asked to consult the nearest member of the Advisory Board, labor unions, one's employer, or the nearest office of the U. S. Employment service.

The advisory board for the county is composed of William R. Offutt, chairman; S. F. Hamill, N. C. Fraley, A. T. Matthews, E. Ray Jones, Lewis R. Jones, W. W. Dawson, and Frederick Thayer, all of Oakland; Henry M. Speicher, Accident; R. Earl Guard, Friendsville; Harvey Gortner, Grantsville; John Shore, Kitzmiller.

The Oakland office of the U. S. Employment service, in the McIntire building is open 8:30 to 5 Monday through Friday, and 8:30 to 12:30 on Saturday. It will also be open in the evenings from Monday, May 4 through Thursday, May 7, from 7 to 9 o'clock, for the convenience of persons desiring assistance in completing their questionnaires. Members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce have volunteered to assist in the work.

Maryland's auto titling tax revenue has dropped off $327,838 since January 1 and will continue to decline.

THE NIT WIT

By SARAH McCAHEY

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate, WNU Service.

YOU'D never guess that among the 500 visitors at the Ocean View, the most important and expensive hotel at Rock Island, 15 miles out from the mainland, one of the richest oil men in the United States mingled with the other guests entirely unknown to them.

It was a banner year for the big summer hotel, and one might well lose himself in the crowd—and that is just what had been prescribed for the oil magnate.

"Cut into a new life for the next few weeks and keep away from the business crowd," had been his doctor's advice, and Robert Stratton had packed his grip for his old home town, although no one could ever believe that he was not born and bred in the maelstrom of New York's commercial life.

Well he remembered the day he had left the island! He had held a sort of reception on the dock before he boarded the Shinnecock bound for New York.

"Aren't you going to say 'good-by' to Arabella?" teased his chum, Lon Littlefield.

Robert hadn't had a very high regard for Arabella's intellectual attainments; also the sun had been too partial to her when he was scattering his freckles around—moreover, she lisped!

"Not if I know it—she's a nit wit!" the potential adventurer had scoffed.

Now it is a well-known fact that people say things among themselves about another, they would never want the object of their criticism to know about.

So Robert Stratton, unconscious that his flip remark had been overheard, was shaken out of the conceit that his 18 years of conquest had engendered, by encountering a blaze of anger in the eyes of a 14-year-old girl who had come down with the others to see him off.

"I'll show you—I'll show you if I am a fool!" she had cried, and then had become inarticulate with mortification.

For he had been her hero.

And now, after 15 years, Robert Stratton, a rich bachelor from the metropolis, was a guest at the finest hotel, and was, so far, practically unknown to the other guests at the Ocean View, and was also realizing that his strangest and strongest memory in connection with the island, was the blaze of fury in the eyes of Arabella Dodge the day he left there.

The Sunday night following his arrival, the hotel management decided to give a concert to equip the little island hospital with radios for the dozen or more soldiers convalescing there.

The ballroom, the finest and biggest on the island, was filled with chairs and settees, and a small platform covered with beautiful rugs was raised at one end for the musical talent.

The high windows surrounding the ballroom and leading out into the piazza were opened, and Robert Stratton seated himself comfortably in one of the large piazza chairs to listen to the concert, unobserved and unnoticed.

As the opening number, two little tots dressed in pink, with gauze wings, fluttered in noiselessly and wordlessly on the tips of their pink toes, circled the platform, and then fluttered away again.

Then a woman, in simple white muslin, with a bright blue ribbon around her waist, ascended the one step of the platform and began to sing Shubert's beautiful "Ave Maria."

Robert Stratton had heard it sung many times in his life, but never to the accompaniment of the waves literally breaking beneath the lofty piazza on which he sat.

He looked toward the sea—at the golden path of the moon on the water—and felt he had never experienced anything so beautiful—and then he looked more intently at the singer! At Arabella Dodge!

Slender, of medium height—not one in 50 could wear that simple gown so enchantingly—the sweet high voice that rose and fell with easy grace and perfect technique filled the immense ballroom, and Robert Stratton threw away his cigar and drew his chair closer that he might not miss any of its sweetness.

Here was the answer to all his wanderings—right here in his little home town of New Foreham. That a woman as beautiful as Arabella Dodge should still live here and be able to sing so gloriously! Probably some summer visitor had taught her.

He thought he remembered her parents as quite old—she had had to stay with them on their little farm, most likely, and so had had no opportunity for meeting the man who must be fine for her to mate with. There was no island man fit for this beautiful woman who could sing so divinely!

This island was a beautiful place, anyway, he thought enthusiastically, and his wealth could make it a wonderfully popular summer resort by advertising and making it better known. As it was, a man couldn't take his car down here and ruin it on the roads as they now were—but

OPA Form No. R-301 ☆ U. S. GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE 16—26650-1 (Continue on reverse side.)

I hereby make application to the Office of Price Administration, an agency of the United States Government, for the issuance to the person whose name, address, and description are set forth above, of War Ration Book One and all War Ration Books hereafter issued for which the person named above becomes eligible under Rationing Regulations. I hereby certify that I have authority to make this application on behalf of the person named above, that no other application for a War Ration Book has been made by or on behalf of such person, and that the statements made above are true to the best of my knowledge and belief.

Section 35 (A) of the United States Criminal Code makes it a criminal offense, punishable by a maximum of ten years' imprisonment, $10,000 fine, or both, to make a false statement or representation to any Department or Agency of the United States as to any matter within the jurisdiction of any Department or Agency of the United States.

..... SIGNATURE OF APPLICANT

I hereby certify that I have witnessed the Applicant's signature and that War Ration Book One, bearing the above number, has been delivered to the Applicant with the above-stated number of stamps removed.

..... SIGNATURE OF REGISTRAR

(This space reserved for later entries by Local Board or Applicant)

The undersigned hereby certifies to the Office of Price Administration that he received the following War Ration Books on the dates indicated below or on the back hereof, and that with each receipt he reaffirms the truth of the statements in the foregoing application.

Date	Book No.	Serial No.	Signature of Applicant

Applicants for sugar rationing books are urged by the Office of Price Administration to study carefully the application card, illustrated above, and have the correct answers when they register on May 4, 5, 6, and 7. A separate application must be made for every person for whom a Ration Book is issued, but only one member of each family unit is to appear at the nearest elementary school to apply for all members of the family.

This is the biggest registration job ever undertaken in so limited a time in the United States. Within four days the nation's 130,000,000 men, women and children will be registered and will receive their Ration Books. To accomplish so big a job in that short space of time, the Office of Price Administration, which administers rationing, is urging every applicant for a Ration Book to come prepared with accurate information to all questions which the registrars will ask when filling out the application form.

If you answer these questions promptly, OPA estimates it will only take four minutes to fill out this form. One and a quarter million school teachers will serve as registrars.

1. Applicans should come prepared with a list of the members of their families, giving the exact name of each.

2. An exact description of each member of the family unit, giving the height, weight, color of eyes, color of hair, age and sex of each one.

3. The person who registers for the family unit must state his or her exact relationship to each member of it.

4. It is necessary to know to the pound just how much sugar is in the possession of the household. The amount of sugar will be divided by the number of people in the family units and stamps will be torn out by the registrar for all sugar in exess of two pounds per person. If more than four stamps have to be removed, issuance of the book will be withheld until later.

One—and only one—member of each family unit is to go to the elementary school nearest to the person's residence to register and to apply for Ration Books for the whole family, OPA emphasizes. Single people not members of a family unit, even if they board with a family, must apply for themselves.

A family unit has been defined by the Office of Price Administration as "a group of two or more individuals consisting of all persons who are living together in the same household who are related by blood or marriage."

MT. LAKE PARK

Once again Mt. Lake is indebted to the promptness of the Oakland Fire Department, which responded to a call on Saturday noon, when a leaf fire started back of the homes of Mrs. Nina Dixon and Mrs. I. D. Hill. A sudden wind which blew up as the leaves were being burned started, what might have proven, a bad conflagration. Had it happened in the night when there was not much chance of discovery, it would have been most disastrous. As it was everyone jumped in to help. Not the least were a number of our local Boy scouts. The more we see of them the more we think of the organization. They have even cleaned up around the amphitheatre and other unsightly spots, of which we seem to have plenty this year.

The tabernacle will soon be finished. Looks like a nice job.

No programs so far as we can find out are scheduled for the summer, other than the Camp Meeting. This inquiry has come to us several times.

The following announcements have been received by friends here: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Franklin Wilson announce the marriage of their daughter, Katharine Hay, to Mr. Frederick Cobbett Barnett, on Friday, April 17, at First Presbyterian church, Burlingame, California.

Reverend Harold Teagarden and Mrs. Teagarden have received an air mail letter from their son, Corporal Robert William Teagarden, who is with the 5th Chemical Service Aviation, 953—San Francisco. For the past several years he has been stationed in Hawaii and was there at the time of the Pearl Harbor bombing.

A cabel has been received here by Miss Katharine O'Donnell from her nephew, Lieut. John C. (Jack) O'Donnell, which stated that he was now in Australia. Another soldier from here, Joseph Bennett, nephew of Mrs. George Hipsley, is also in Australia. Forest Welling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Welling has not been heard from, as to where he was sent.

Corporal Carl Liller, stationed at Camp Logan, Denver, Col., is spending a few days here with his mother, Mrs. Elva Liller.

Carlton (Junior) Bittinger, who is in training at the naval base in Norfolk, visited his father for a few hours on Sunday.

Mrs. John A. Wilt Is Honored On Her Birthday

Mrs. John A. Wilt was honored by members of her family with a surprise birthday party, Sunday, at her home in Swanton, in celebration of her seventy-third birthday, which was Saturday. The celebration began with a surprise dinner. A pink and white color scheme was carried out in the table appointments and the huge birthday cake with seventy-three pink candles.

Mrs. Wilt, who was born and reared in Garrett county, has nine children, all of whom except one son, Andrew Wilt, Akron, O., were with her Sunday. They are Mrs. B. H. Armstrong Parkersburg, W. Va.; Harvey Wilt, Baltimore; Delbert Wilt and Mrs. Viola Bray, Cumberland; Mrs. Gilbert Murphy, Westernport; Porter Wilt, Deer Park; Ira O. Wilt, Lonaconing, and Howard R. Wilt, Swanton.

A feature of the celebration was a card shower by friends and relatives. By Sunday Mrs. Wilt had received 115 cards and twenty gifts. Each of the ministers attending gave an address during the afternoon. Group singing was another feature of the entertainment.

Besides her children others attending the party were B. H. Armstrong, Albert Armstrong, Olive Armstrong, Gerald Armstrong, Parkersburg; Mrs. Delbert Wilt, Mildred Wilt, Leona Wilt, Lester Wilt, Eleanor Wilt, Cumberland; Freda, Hildah, and Leonard Murphy, Westernport; Harvey Wilt, Elwood Wilt, Mabel Wilt, Deer Park; Mrs. Ira O. Wilt, Robert Wilt, Ruby Wilt, Alta Jane Wilt, Lonaconing; Mrs. Howard R. Wilt, Randall Wilt, Ellsworth Wilt, Wayne Wilt, Viola Wilt, Swanton; Mr. and Mrs. George P. Fitzwater, Edward Fitzwater, the Rev. and Mrs. John Bleacher, Dorothy Bleacher, Frank Lee, Lester Lee, Mrs. Mary Paul, Miss Frances Paul, Swanton; James Samms, Parkersburg; Eleanor Warnick, Cumberland; Collin Frankland, Westernport; the Rev. and Mrs. C. Eggs Next Fall Means Feed Now

Getting the maximum number of eggs from hens is a matter of FIRST, building a flock capable of laying all the eggs the birds inherited the ability to lay. And SECOND, managing and feeding layers in a way to encourage the largest production.

The chicks you put out this spring should be fed the best feed and handled carefully with a view to having an outstanding flock of layers next fall. This does not mean that you have to over-feed them or spend unnecessary amounts of money on feed.

A good grass range will help you cut down on the feed bill. If birds are turned loose in succulent grass they will get some of their feed requirements from it. The most important thing is to keep these birds on STARTING & GROWING MASH or CHICK STARTER until the time they go into the laying house. When they are beginning to drop eggs on the range get the laying house ready and put them in. Then is the time to switch to one of the good Southern States open formula laying mashes.

If you have raised a good quantity of grain or if you have laid up a good supply of government feed wheat, you can cut your feed bill by using LAYING MASH CONCENTRATE with the ground grain.

Turning Over An Old Leaf

By Phillip A. Gladheim

"There were faces to remember in the Valley of the Shadow;
There were faces unregarded, there were faces to forget;
There were fires of grief and fear that are a few forgotten ashes;
There were sparks of recognition that are not forgotten yet."

"Blue Ridge Country", by Jean Thomas, 'The Traipsin Woman', has just come off press. It is published by Duell Sloane and Pearce Inc., N. Y., and is priced at $3.00. The author has read a number of Miss Thomas' books, all dealing with folk-lore of the Southern Appalachians. "Blue Ridge Country" is a comprehensive summary of a distinct class of mountain people, who, through the accident of isolation, were conditioned to keep alive even to this present generation the folk traditions of their ancestry. In many sections of the Appalachians the people soon capitulated to the tawdry way of life of the vagrant and hillbilly.

The book is written in a racy, narrative style, breathtaking in its interest. The first part of the book gives one a new insight into the motives, problems, and influences that developed a folk-life unique and sincere; a folk-life that reflected itself in all the prime events between cradle and coffin. No school book has ever given so much interesting data on Daniel Boone; others of his generation which had been forgotten are Gabriel Arthur, Dr. Thomas Walker, James Robertson and Capt. William Russell. There is also a hair-raising chapter entitled "Land of Feuds and Stills." If one is interested in reading a complete story of the feuds in our southern mountains this is the book to read. As for homespun stories packed with mirth and awe such as 'Devil Anse' and the Tin Peddler, Granny Partlow's Baptism, Philomel Whiffet's Singing School, and The Deer Woman and the Fawn, this book certainly adds a brilliant chapter to authentic literature drawn from new sources of Americanna.

The final chapter is entitled "Reclaiming the Wilderness." This is a graphic description of the manifold efforts of conservation of the soil, resources, historic places, traditions, and the simple homespun way of living. The theory is that the simple way of life is what made these people great in virtue and feeling. Because Miss Thomas and Sid Hatfield took part in the Folk Festival held in connection with Maryland Chautauqua at Mt. Lake Park last summer, out of which has since grown "The American Folkways Association", this final chapter includes a reference of local interest. Also in the same chapter there is a reference to a Governor Shelby. The author is inclined to believe this Isaac Shelby was the person who purchased land in the north-west part of Garrett county, later known as Selbysport, yet never lived there himself.

"Snapshots Along The Way," written by one who styles himself as The Wanderer, is published weekly in The Cumberland Evening Times (Sunday edition, editorial page.) "Blue Ridge Country" proved so fascinating to The Wanderer that for three successive weeks he devoted his entire space to its review. Editors of newspapers are most likely to write on subjects that have a large appeal. It is symptomatic of the trend of the reading public that books dealing with American history and folk-lore should at this time become so immensely popular. On reading Jean Thomas' "Blue Ridge Country" one finds a new meaning to the adage 'truth is stranger than fiction'.

If the traditional ways of these mountain people are abandoned by this generation, which is quite likely to happen, we will have in this book, and others which Miss Thomas has already written, the accurate record of pioneer life where it reached its apex in native art, namely among the isolated mountaineers of the Southern Appalachians. Books such as these have also an intrinsic literary value. Miss Thomas has captured the spirit of these people not only by having intimately lived with them almost a life-time, but because she made a faithful study of their vernacular, an English dialect as it were, which developed by reason of their mountain isolation. Their language, customs of song and dance, their strange religious ceremonies, the mystery of their magic, the plumb-honesty, strenuous toil, seasoned with poetry distilled from their own sadness and joy—these are now in vivid recollection thru the printed word, phonograph records, together with pictures made by professional photographers who have for several seasons attended 'The Singin' Gatherin', which has fallen on the second Sunday in June, without a break, for over two centuries. 'The Singin' Gatherin' now under Jean Thomas' direction, is held in a shaded dell near the old Mayo Trail, 18 miles south of Ashland, Ky. There is no price of admission save a nominal fee for the parking of your car. This is the most important shrine of folk-lore in the United States. One must really attend 'the Singin' Gatherin' before one can really get the 'feel' of that yesterday when Daniel Boone, Uncle Dyke Garrett, and Jilson Setters, symbolised their people in sensing the grandeur and majesty of freedom amidst an unsullied landscape.

It is not hard to predict the cultural influence of this book. Conspicuous by its own literary charm it calls forth those latent yearnings of the true American who wants elbow room to live in freedom, peace, and the cultivation of a spiritual and artistic life free of the trammels of old-world precedents.

You can protect your family's health through modern GAS cooking

The vital importance of vitamins and minerals in the diet, as health insurance, is generally recognized.

The consequences of improper diet are also being fully demonstrated. For example, of 1,000,000 men examined by selective service and army physicians, 580,000, or more than one third, were found unfit—evidence of the need for a more intelligent approach to nutrition in the proper feeding of a family.

But be sure you get all the vitamins and minerals you pay for—that you serve them to your family and do not boil them away or pour them down the drain.

The best way to be sure is through modern Gas cooking. With modern Gas cooking, you have a tool by which to help achieve victory and preserve your family's health. Low-flame or simmer cooking, with small amounts of water, will conserve vitamins and minerals. And low-temperature roasting will save vital food elements in meats, besides improving their appearance and flavor. Call your gas company for further information.

"PEACE, PEACE!"

The crying of "peace, peace, when there is no peace" is an ancient stratagem. The experience of European countries which in the last few years have been overrun by conquerors crying peace is an object lesson of which free peoples should constantly remind themselves. Archibald MacLeish's address at the Associated Press luncheon in New York was not only a necessary reminder but a vivid exposition of methods through which the Axis must increasingly attack the United States.

The people of our great cities can imagine with considerable accuracy what an air raid would be. . . . But a propaganda offensive—an attack not on their homes and on their towns but on their hearts—they do not understand.

Mr. MacLeish grants the "common sense" of Americans, but points out that this alone may not be an impregnable defense against enemy propaganda; that in France, in fact, the Nazis were able to play upon the "common sense" of the people in such a way as to turn this very quality to Nazi purposes.

Propaganda attacks upon the American people will not come advertised as propaganda. In so far as our enemies are able to control them they will come, or they will appear to come, as American suggestions originating within the United States.

Already there are signs of an Axis "peace offensive." From neutral territories reports have been carried by wire and radio that Axis leaders are drafting "generous" peace offers.

Mr. MacLeish does not overshoot his mark when he declares that the danger of Axis propaganda attacks to the United States is greater than the danger of air raids by "all the aircraft carriers of the Axis navies." Bombers, as he points out, could not beat Britain, but propaganda may have contributed decisively to the fall of France. And Americans can name other countries in Europe that have accepted Nazi contracts for peace only to find themselves signed up for slavery.

Americans rightly have great confidence in the power of truth. But Mr. MacLeish spoke a word in season when he pointed out that in this war it is not enough to be merely honest. "It is necessary also to be wise." Individuals who are constantly asking what they can do toward winning the war may well familiarize themselves with Nazi propaganda technique. Already an estimated 15,000,000 Americans have seen some part of the pamphlet "Divide and Conquer" with which the Office of Facts and Figures aims to tear away the camouflage from Axis propaganda ambushes.

But as Mr. MacLeish points out, much more needs to be done toward the defense of American hearts. Not 15,000,000 but all Americans should know just what a Nazi peace offensive is and what it would aim at. "A Nazi peace offensive is as much a Nazi weapon as a Nazi mechanized division, or a fleet of Nazi planes." The purpose of such an offensive is not peace at all but conquest.

Armed with wisdom, Americans can prevent a wily enemy from taking advantage of their honesty. To so arm oneself is a patriotic duty. And to find ways tactfully to help one's neighbors arm themselves is part of every individual's contribution to national defense.

An intensified drive to send to the nation's steel mills almost 100,000 wrecks lying in automobile graveyards in Eastern Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware is under way. There are more than 1,370 such graveyards in that area.

The inland waterway from Philadelphia and Baltimore to southern ports is capable of bearing thousands of tons of freight on a route absolutely free from the submarine menace, according to men who sail up and down it.

Marie Dionne, smallest of the quintuplets, has a definite wasting of right thigh and calf. The quins will be 8 on May 28.

At least 50,000 persons have incomes over $25,000 a year, a figure which the President said ought to be an individual's maximum after payment of taxes.

DIARY OF THE WAR

FRIDAY—Reds said nine-tenths of entire German army was on Russian front. Reds also implied that they and not Nazis might spring first in an all-out offensive. Nazis were trying to quiet anger in France over Laval's elevation to power. Laval denied Nazis were taking over French warships. London said Free French were being arrested on Madagascar. Allied withdrawals continued in Burma as they fought against odds of 10 to 1. Allied air raids on Rabaul caused much damage to Japs. Dutch and Australian forces still resisted on island of Timor. Fighting continued on Cebu and Panay in Philippines.

SATURDAY — Position in Burma took turn for the worse as mechanized forces were within 100 miles of Mandalay but on right and center there was no change. Russians reported progress against Nazis in Crimea especially. British RAF struck heavily at Baltic port of Rostock where Heinkel aircraft are made. Allied planes again raided Rabaul with good effect and Jap raids on Port Moresby were ineffectual. Jap infantry with tanks and artillery made new landings on Panay in Philippines. Corregidor's guns continued to answer enemy batteries. War spending in U. S. is estimated to reach 70 billion in next fiscal year. The idea of second front against Nazis was growing in U. S. and England. British reported Nazi battleship Gneisenau was badly damaged during dash through Channel in February and still laid up for repairs.

SUNDAY—A vast fire in a forest in Berlin caused much damage. South African troops took over garrisoning of Tobruk in Libya. Chinese halted Jap drive in Burma but lacking air support, they were being pounded by Japs. United States troops landed in New Caledonia along Australian supply line, to assist Free French in defense of that island. Rostock on Baltic was again pounded by RAF, and places in occupied France. German reprisal attacks were carried out. MacArthur took part in Anzac day and pledged comradeship of U. S. fighters. Two U. S. ships were sunk off East coast. In Brazil 350,000 Japs exhibited faith in ultimate Axis victory.

MONDAY—British bombers devastated Rostock again while others blasted Skoda munitions works in Pilsen, places in France and southern Germany. Germans struck at Bath and other English points. Hitler seized power of life and death over every German and hinted of another winter on Russian front. His speech betrayed marked anxiety over the home front. Reds said they beat back furious German attacks on central front. In Burma the Chinese recaptured a strong point but dropped back in center. Allied planes downed 11 Jap planes which attacked Darwin. The army minister in Australia said soon they would take offensive to drive Japs out of New Guinea. New Britain, Timor and perhaps Dutch East Indies. British subs sank 4 Axis supply ships in Mediterranean. Thirteen Axis planes were downed over Malta. Another convoy reached Murmansk from U. S.

TUESDAY—Allied left flank in Burma, defended by Chinese was in growing peril as Japs had thrust 75 miles east of Loilem. British in Central Burma had fallen back. Four enemy planes were destroyed in raids on Jap bases at Lae, New Guinea and in Solomon islands. Guns of Corregidor had smashed Jap troop concentrations on Bataan. British planes crossed the channel again to pound Nazi air bases and raided Rostok again. Russians opened a strong offensive to knock Finland out of war and secure the lease-lend ports of Murmansk and Archangel. Gandhi expressed fear of American influence in India, saying a limitless number of Indian soldiers could be trained. A destroyer was sunk off Florida by an underwater explosion with small loss of life. General Bonesteel was given command of all forces in Iceland.

WEDNESDAY—Defense of Burma appeared near point of collapse with defenders in rear guard actions and demolishing roads. A strong Jap thrust was reaching for Mandalay-Lashio railway which would cut off China from all existing routes. Thousands of Burmese were helping enemy. Allied airmen in Australia sank a Jap transport off New Ireland island, destroyed 6 of 26 planes which attacked Darwin and assaulted Jap ports on Solomon islands. There was little action in Philippines. Hundreds of British planes hammered at German bases in France, raided Trondheim naval base in Norway, sheltering four German warships. Red armies outflanked German positions north and south of Lake Ilmen and broke through Nazi lines around Orel. Five more French hostages were killed for wounding of a Nazi soldier at Rouen.

THURSDAY — Japs were rapidly cutting Burma apart, threatening isolation of China from supply communication with Allies. Enemy had thrust into suburbs of Lashio, railhead of Burma supply road. Additional American reinforcements arrived in Australia, but people there were warned that shadow of Jap invasion was still over them and it was hinted a frontal assault on Port Moresby might be made. In the Philippines the forts were still beating back at Jap batteries and counter-fire sank an armed Jap ship. Fighting continued on Panay. Britain's bombing offensive continued with strikes at Kiel, Trondheim and airdromes along the coast. Violent fighting on southern Russian front. Two Red forces were closing in on Kursk, a German strong point. A hint of three Nazi peace bids to Britain were reported by neutral sources.

Electric Coffee Making

Where is there a family that doesn't enjoy freshly brewed coffee from an electric coffee maker? To them, particularly, the points listed below are addressed, but also to others who perhaps are just now considering having their coffee this "best" way. Thousands of coffee drinkers will welcome these suggestions. Clip this section and put it in your kitchen notebook . . . or hang it near the coffee maker.

FOR BEST RESULTS

1. Learn how to use the particular make you have by following manufacturer's directions.
2. Keep it clean. Wash after each using and use silver polish on outside. (if your's isn't an all-glass style.)
3. Don't let coffee stand in the maker for a long time.
4. Air inside of maker often; that helps keep it sweet.
5. Keep filters (if they are used) clean.
6. Watch when washing to prevent water from reaching electric contact points.
7. Attach cord properly - - - and be equally careful when disconnecting.
8. In percolators—clean the coffee-holding basket and keep inside of sindle "pump" from getting clogged.

Give your coffee maker the attention it deserves and it will give you long service and delightful coffee every day. And remember - - - while you've enjoying electrically-brewed coffee, buy all the bonds and stamps you can to win the war!

THE RE-OPENING OF
Miller's Sanitary Market
Under the New Ownership and Management of
E. W. Shartzer and W. E. Naylor
— On — Thursday, April 30, 1942

The new owners of the business have been associated with the late Harry L. Miller, founder of the market in 1913, for a period of twenty-five years and ten years, respectively, and are acquainted with the patrons of years standing, as well as with the wholesalers. Being familiar with all the different angles of the business, we promise a continuance of good merchandising and respectfully ask the patronage of all former customers, as well as that of all residents of this section of the county.

THE DAY OF ACCLAIM

LESSON TEXT—Mark 11:1-11; Luke 19: 41-44.

GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord.—Mark 11:9.

The last week of our Lord's earthly life had come. "Normally, in fact almost universally, the last week of a man's life is of practically no significance. In many cases he is too sick to speak with any clear intelligence, and, of course, when ill, is incapable of doing any noteworthy deeds. In our Lord's life, the last week was the most important of all, and to it more space is given (in Scripture) than to any one whole year of Jesus' ministry" (Dr. Wilbur M. Smith).

The first day of that week found our Lord riding into Jerusalem in humility, and yet in royal majesty, to present Himself as Israel's King and Messiah. We find

I. The King Seeking Man's Help (Mark 11: 1-7).

How surprising that the One who made and upholds all things (Col. 1: 16, 17) should have to say, "The Lord hath need of him," in sending for a humble beast of burden. Yet therein lies a marvelous truth. He has graciously so ordered the universe that He has need of us and of our possessions. That was true in the days of His flesh, when He had voluntarily become poor for our sakes. In a somewhat different sense, but nonetheless precious, it is true today.

To be needed by anyone—to have that which can be used—is always encouraging, but to find that the Master needs us and what we have to give, is truly inspiring. Let us learn to give as readily as the owner of the colt (vv. 5, 6), and let us also learn the important lesson of unquestioning obedience taught in verse 4. "They went their way" to do what the Lord told them to do. How greaty simplified and glorified would be the lives of Christian people if they would thus obey Christ.

II. The King Receiving Man's Homage (Mark 11:8-11).

Presenting Himself as their Messiah, Jesus received the enthusiastic acclaim of His disciples and friends, who were probably joined by others who were drawn by the excitement. But the Pharisees did not join in (see Luke 19:39, 40) nor did the city, not even knowing who He was (Matt. 21:10, 11). So it is today; some love and praise Him, some hate Him, others just ignore Him. Of which class are you?

He gave Jerusalem and the nation a final opportunity to receive Him. It was not yet too late, but it was their last chance. Such a time comes in the life of everyone of us. They rejected Him. What do we do?

But let us not forget that there were those who shouted, "Hosanna," who cast their garments down before Him and waved palms of victory and joy. Thank God for their holy enthusiasm. Pray God that we may have a little more of it. We have come to the place where nobody shouts "Hosanna" or "Hallelujah" except the church choir—and they do it only in carefully modulated tones. We cheer at ball games or at a political rally, and while we surely do not want that same kind of confusion in the church, it would be quite appropriate to bring some real enthusiasm into our Christianity.

Our Lord knew that it would not be long ere the multitude would be changing their cry to "Crucify Him," for He knew their sinful hearts. So in the midst of His day of acclaim we see

III. The King Weeping Over Man's Sin (Luke 19:41-44).

In times of great joy or under unusual circumstances we are prone to think only of our own pleasure or our own need. But with Christ the need of the souls of men was never for a moment forgotten. He might well have gone on to Bethany to rest and rejoice with His friends over His triumphal entry into Jerusalem.

This constant and tenderhearted concern which Christ had for the city which hated and was soon to crucify Him; this remembrance of their need even in His brief hour of public acclaim, may well teach the church a much needed lesson. Many churches are prosperous, well cared for, and even popular. They are prone to rest back and ride the crest of the wave of popularity, forgetting the souls of men and women in need, many of whom live under the very shadow of the church. Shame on us for such callous indifference in the light of our Lord's agonized weeping—for such is the meaning of the word in Luke 19:41.

Others may observe that their city or community is hostile to the gospel, that men would rather crucify the Christ than receive Him. And so they are content to have their snug little spiritual retreat where they meet to comfort one another and to congratulate themselves on their spiritual haven. Again we say, shame on us!

All West Virginia state forests were closed to curb the spread of forest fires.

Earthquake tremors were recorded in New York, the place supposedly about 80 miles from there.

Convictions

By STANLEY CORDELL

© Associated Newspapers, WNU Service.

THIS is one of the many stories told me by Warden Lucius Dayton of the Hawkins state prison.

"Folks really haven't much idea about the duties of a warden," he said, smiling, "or the extent of their responsibility. Being in charge of a prison isn't like it used to be. A warden has to be something of a psychologist, has to know and understand human nature.

"Oh, we've had our share of difficult situations and difficult characters. I recall particularly the case of Rus Julian.

"He was only a young fellow when he came here to begin a seven to ten stretch. Young and full of bitterness and resentment. He'd lost his job a year or so before, and had difficulty in getting another. In fact, he didn't get another. He tried a couple of places and was turned down, and gave up trying. Instead, he got in with the wrong crowd. Within six months Rus was arrested twice for participating in riots.

"In prison or out it didn't make any difference to Rus. He was still pretty sore at the world, arrogant and contemptuous. In less than a week's time he had won himself a day in solitary for starting a disturbance over in B section.

"Two weeks later he saw the solitary cell a second time. After his third offense I sent for him, having in mind to talk to the boy, try and help him if I could.

"I learned a few new things about human nature as a result of that talk with Rus. Not that what I said or the way I acted helped or changed him any.

"I sent him away after awhile and everyone thought my talking to him had helped matters a lot. Six months passed and we had no more trouble from Rus. I was congratulated and complimented for my obvious ability to reason with and show a man the folly of his ways. But I knew they were wrong. I knew I had made no more impression on Rus than nothing at all. He had merely become smart. He had realized that a prison is no place for a man to assert himself, because his keepers hold the trump cards.

"My suspicions of what was going on were verified when a guard came to me on the morning of May 1 and said he'd heard rumors of a break over in section B. No one had any idea who was behind the movement—not a soul suspected Rus. He had turned out to be quite a model prisoner.

"I took the usual precautions and did the only thing that a warden could do under such circumstances: resigned myself to watchful waiting.

"A certain atmosphere of tenseness and expectancy existed at the prison. The guards were nervous and jittery.

"I had not put my suspicions of Rus into words, hoping that someone might volunteer a hazard that he was behind the rumors and thereby confirming my own ideas. But no one did and this caused me to hesitate. Fortunately I didn't hesitate quite long enough. Two days before the planned break—I later learned it had been scheduled for the twenty-ninth—I called Rus into my office and had another talk with him. The results were the same, but it was because of my own reaction that I decided to take the chance. When the interview was over I stood up and said: 'Rus, your mother is ill. She's asked that you be allowed to visit her, and I've granted her request.'

"'Rus' jaw fell open and he stared. 'You mean I can go down and see—ma—myself?'

"'Yes. Of course, I'll expect you to report here. I'm putting you on your honor to do so.'

"Perhaps you can guess how it all turned out. Rus went home to see his mother, with whom I had previously talked, securing her promise to co-operate, and three days later he was back. The point is here: I wasn't altogether right. Rus was due back the next day. He stayed away two days longer than I had told him he could. I had sense enough not to get alarmed, to spread the news of his escape. And instead of punishing him when he came back, I made him a trusty.

"No, there was no break or attempted break. Rus had been at the bottom of it all. Two years later he was pardoned, and his mother, with my help, had a job waiting for him when he got out.

"You see, the thing I had learned from Rus was this: He had had convictions, convictions to which he adhered even though it meant three times in solitary. I had had convictions, too—I was convinced that Rus was the type who, if placed on his honor, would not break a trust. But my convictions were not as strong as his—I lacked the courage to abide by them until, almost before it was too late, I took a chance that day and sent him home to his mother. Thank heaven he taught me the lesson that when you believe strongly enough that you are right it's best to adhere to that belief."

Recipes Using Meats and Meat Substitutes

Last week I discussed "meat and meat substitutes," attempting to point out the value of these foods and how to secure them in a diet where money must be considered. This column is devoted to recipes for the food recommended.

Beef Loaf

1 lb. round steak (chopped)
1 cup suet
1 cup moist bread crumbs
1 egg, slightly beaten
¼ cup tomato catsup
½ tsp. dry mustard
2 small onions, chopped
3 tsp. salt
2 tsp. Worcestershire Sauce
2 tsp. horseradish
2 tsp. green pepper, finely chopped.

Mix all the ingredients together and blend well. Shape. Place in greased pan, dot over surface with suet. Bake in a moderate oven (350F.) 45 minutes to 1 hour. Serve plain or with tomato sauce.

Lima Beans Baked in Milk

2 cups lima or navy beans
4 cups water
¾ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons chopped onion
¾ cup diced celery
1 tall can exaporated milk (1 2-3 cups)

Pick over and wash beans. Cover with cold water and soak over night. Drain. Cook in the 4 cups water until tender. Pour into a greased shallow baking dish. Add salt, onion, celery and milk. Bake in a slow oven (300F.) for 2 hours. Serve with tomato sauce.

Fish Loaf

1 c. fish
½ to 1 c. crumbs
1 egg
1 tb. onion juice
½ t. salt, pepper
1 tb. chopped parsley
½ c. milk

Mince fish, removing inedible portions. Mix all ingredients and pack in buttered molds. Steam or bake in a pan of water (400F.) Turn out and serve with a sauce.

Cheese Souffle

2 tb. butter
3 tb. flour
¾ c. milk
3 eggs
½ t. salt
Dash of cayenne
1 c. grated cheese

Make a white sauce of the first three ingredients and add the seasonings. Remove from the fire and add the cheese and the well beaten egg yolk. When cool fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into a buttered baking dish and bake in a moderate oven (325-350F), until the center is firm when tested with a knife.

Hagar Dagmar Hamilton, Plaintiff, vs. Lloyd Edward Hamilton, Defendant No. 3642 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, State of Maryland.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for divorce "a vinculo matrimonii" for the plaintiff, Hagar Dagmar Hamilton, of Garrett County, Maryland, against her husband, Lloyd Edward Hamilton, defendant, of the State of West Virginia.

The Bill of Complaint states that on February 24, 1934, the said Hagar Dagmar Hamilton was married to her husband, Lloyd Edward Hamilton, with whom she resided in Allegany County, Maryland, until the month of July, 1936. That the said Lloyd Edward Hamilton has abandoned and deserted her without just cause or reason and that such abandonment has continued since July, 1936, uninterruptedly, and is deliberate and final and the separation of the parties is beyond any expectation of reconciliation. That the said Hagar Dagmar Hamilton and Lloyd Edward Hamilton have had two children born to them from said marriage, namely, Mary Ellan and Vida Dagmar Hamilton, and that the said Lloyd Edward Hamilton is a non-resident of the State of Maryland.

It is thereupon, this 18th day of April, 1942, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Garrett County, once in each of four successive weeks before the 22nd day of May, 1942, giving notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this Bill, warning him to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before the 6th day of June, 1942, to show cause, if any he has, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

Griddle Cakes Win

BOB looked at her with troubled eyes. "Well, it's come, Ellen." He twirled a letter in his hand. She smiled at his gloomy face. "What has?"

He shook the letter. "Remember, I told you—when you marry me, you take Dad in the bargain; and believe me, he is a fearful old crab."

"Why, dear, what a way to talk of your father!" she said a bit shocked.

"But that's what he is! I love him in spite of it, but I hate to tangle you up with him. He wants me to bring you out to the house, probably to decide whether you will make a fit wife for me or not. It's none of his business, but it's very much his way. Now, will you go?"

"Why, of course, I'll go," she said laughing.

Ellen in the days following before their departure had her moments of serious doubt and worry. Suppose Bob's father should take a dislike to her? The real reason for Bob's worry was his fear that the father he really loved would not care for the girl he loved.

"Well, there's nothing to do but go and be myself," Ellen advised herself.

It was a pleasant trip to the old village where Mr. Oakes had made his home, and Ellen, in spite of a bit of fear that broke through her happiness, enjoyed the journey.

When, hours later and a little weary, she came to the house set back far from the village street, it did look a bit dark and forbidding.

"Joyous place, isn't it? While mother was alive she made him have it painted, but now—nothing doing!" Bob said.

When they reached the door, it opened, and Ellen caught her breath, for the gray-headed man who appeared in it was bigger than Bob, and she had often felt that Bob was big enough.

"Well, here you are! Come in!" Mr. Oakes said shortly in a heavy voice.

Bob introduced her, and she looked far up into cold, commanding eyes in which there was no light of cordiality. Ellen shivered inside.

Then a quaint, kindly old lady advanced, and Ellen met "Ma" Burton as Bob called her.

Then began a series of discoveries for Ellen. The house was in fearful shape—dusty in every corner; and the supper that night was ill-prepared.

"Well, can you stand it?" Bob asked her later, when he had lured her out into the quiet village for a stroll.

"I am not afraid of your father, but what a looking house!"

He chuckled. "Right, but 'Ma' is easy-going. It didn't look that way when mother was alive. He's growing old, you know, and—well, maybe something went out of him when mother died."

"Mrs. Burton told me while we were gossiping that one of her sisters was very ill. Can't you arrange it so she can get away and give me a chance at that house?"

He drew a long breath, his quick mind sensing her plan. "She'll go if I have to abduct her!"

How Bob worked it Ellen did not know, but the next day, not without some misgivings, she took charge. Bob enticed his father away to visit some distant property belonging to him, and Ellen "pitched in."

It was dusk before Bob and his father returned, but by that time she had the principal rooms in shape and supper prepared—with a bountiful supply of griddle-cakes which "Ma" had said Mr. Oakes loved but which she did not have the knack of making to suit him.

She heard them in the living room, then some one went into the library, then into the den on what was, she imagined, a tour of inspection.

"Pooh! Why be so nervous?" she warned herself. "If it doesn't seem like home to him, it does to me; and the old house needed it."

When she called them to supper, Mr. Oakes entered first, his strong old face showing no emotion and Bob, behind her, looked anxious though he winked at her.

When the griddle-cakes appeared, Mr. Oakes eyed them sourly as if with memories of griddle-cakes of the past. He tried one doubtfully, then another, and the scowl went—as did the cakes.

The climax came so quickly it took Ellen's breath. Mr. Oakes lifted his gray head, and he was smiling. "Now, you young fellow, let's talk things over. When are you going to be married?"

Lava Hottest Product of Nature

The hottest product of nature is lava. When ejected from a volcano or a fissure of the earth's surface, its temperature is estimated to be between 2,200 and 3,000 degrees F. This molten rock is sometimes so hot, observes a writer in Collier's Weekly, after cooling for a year, that a steak can be fried on it.

How Casein Is Made

Casein comprises about 3 per cent of skim milk. It is extracted by curdling the milk and washing the curds to remove salts and sugar. The residue is pressed to force the water out, is dried and then ground to what looks like creamy white bread crumbs.

The senate is probing into details of international cartel and patent-pooling arrangements by which German interests controlled American production of what are now vital war materials, particularly magnesium.

Petty Quarrel

By B. H. WILKINSON

© Associated Newspapers. WNU Service.

JEFFREY found the newspaper lying as usual beside his plate, and he picked it up, scanned the headlines and read a lead paragraph or two in three of the front page stories. But nothing of what was written there registered on his mind. His thoughts were too occupied, his spirits too low to concentrate and enjoy his usual morning routine.

Jeffrey's eyes were heavy with lack of sleep.

With a definite gesture he laid aside the newspaper.

For the hundredth time he went over the scene again. He saw once more Susan, his wife; saw her standing in their bedroom. Rage, uncontrollable, held her in its grip.

"It's the end, Jeffrey! Absolutely the end! I'm leaving—for good this time. I'm—"

"But, Sue, can't we talk it over? Can't we settle the thing without making a mess of our lives?"

"No!"

"Then there's more to it than you pretend." She was silent, and he went on accusingly: "There's someone else. Another man—"

"Jeffrey Gordan, you're a fool!"

He watched her in bitter silence as she flung things into her suitcase. He caught the gleam of costly diamonds, necklaces, brooches, bracelets. Sight of them sickened him. It was so easy to remember that there were no costly jewels, and no quarrels before prosperity smiled on them. There had been nothing but happiness then.

It was all very funny and very tragic. Because both he and Susan had wanted money, were forever planning all the things they could do when eventually it came, as they were sure it would. Perhaps it was the planning that had kept them free of trouble. He hoped it had been more than that.

Jeffrey couldn't tell how or when the trouble had started. It just had, that's all. Petty quarrels that often resulted in angry outbursts. There were days when no word was spoken between them.

"I'm going," said Susan. "Now!" And she slammed shut her suitcase and looked at Jeffrey with flaming eyes.

"Very well," Jeffrey's voice was like ice. "But remember this: If you leave this house, in your present condition, don't ever return."

Her taunting laugh came back to him. Then there was silence, and Jeffrey was alone.

He stood there for some time, a little dazed and bewildered, conscious of an aching pain inside of him, thinking vaguely that Susan had gone, that she had, actually, stopped loving him. This wasn't one of their petty quarrels. It was bigger, had been prompted by something far more serious. His thoughts flashed to dark and handsome Julian Brocke, who had professed friendship for them both . . .

Jeffrey ate his breakfast—all of it—and picked up the newspaper again. He must force himself to read, to get his mind on other things. And so he waded through two whole columns on the first page and turned the sheet in search of something more. Almost instantly his eye fell on a headline near the top. He read, and suddenly felt his heart pounding wildly: "Society Woman Held Up and Robbed. Mrs. Jeffrey Gordan was held up early last night on the lonely Sleepy Hollow road by two masked gunmen while driving into the city and robbed of several thousand dollars' worth of jewelry. Mrs. Gordan was en route to her mother's for a short visit, and was carrying the gems in a small box. Strangely enough, when she reported the robbery to local police, she showed great anxiety over the loss of a ring which she admitted was practically valueless, being an imitation, but which she prized more than all the other gems. She was wearing the ring at the time of the hold-up and asked that special endeavors be made . . ."

* * *

Jeffrey was impatient because the operator couldn't complete his connection in less than record time. But presently Sue's voice came to him over the wire.

"Darling, I read about your being held up. If there—"

"Jeffrey, please come and get me. Jeffrey, they—they took my ring—"

"Yes, darling, I know. And I'm glad."

"But, Jeffrey, it—it was the one you gave me. When they tore it from my finger, I—I realized how—much it meant—and how much you meant, and how silly it all was."

Jeffrey's voice was a little husky when he answered. "I know, sweet, I know." He paused, swallowed. "I've called the police station. They've recovered everything. Even the other jewelry. Wait there, darling, I'll be over to get you."

Use of Archery for Defense

The use of archery for defense is not as archaic as is commonly supposed. Guns began to compete with bows in the Fourteenth century, but the replacement was slow. As late as the early Nineteenth century, the Poles used mounted archers in battle against French gunners. And until a quarter century ago, applicants for commissions in the Chinese army had to demonstrate their skill with bows and arrows.

Many men with dependents may be summoned to military duty this summer in line with new instructions to local draft boards for "more drastic action" to meet the growing man power needs of the armed forces.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS . . . . . .

By FRANK R. KENT

Copyright by The Baltimore Sun and reprinted in The Republican by permission.

A Great Service

There is no question about the service Mr. Wendell Willkie has rendered the Republican party in freeing it of the isolation label and breaking the blighting grip upon its organization of the group which has opposed any form of international cooperation.

* * *

It is true there still remain among the Republicans a few irreconcilables, who are wedded to the impossible idea that after the war we can live safely without reference to the rest of the world. Despite the fact that twice in twenty-five years that notion has been proved terribly false, they still cling to it. But there are such men among the Democrats, too, and what the National Committee did at Chicago in adopting the Willkie resolution was to remove the stigma from the party as a whole. Had it failed to do that it would have been in a very bad situation, indeed. For one thing, it would have driven away from its candidates millions of Republicans who think as Mr. Willkie thinks on this subject. For another, it would have alienated much of its press support. Finally, it would have been forced into a position where, justly or unjustly, the quality of its patriotism would have been questionad.

* * *

Rejection of the Willkie proposals would have been exactly what the Democratic politicians most wanted. They then could have put the Republicans on the defensive. They could have practically ruined them in the campaign. But Mr. Willkie did a great deal more than serve the Republican party in overcoming the isolationists at Chicago. The real service is to the country. As a result of the Chicago action all possibility of aid and comfort to the enemy from the campaign this fall has disappeared. As a result of that action there is now no possibility of any basic question concerning the war being the issue.

* * *

On the contrary, the Republican stand is the most convincing demonstration of national unity since Pearl Harbor. It is unequivocal notice to the enemy that both parties in the United States are utterly behind the President not only in prosecution of the war and in determination that there shall be no peace short of complete victory, but upon the attitude of this nation after the war. In brief, so far as our objectives are concerned, there is no division in the country and only one party. This does not mean that all Republicans or all Democrats are satisfied with the way Mr. Roosevelt is conducting the war. With what he is trying to do they are in accord. But, with the way he is doing it a large number are extremely dissatisfied—and with reason to be. Throughout the country there is resentment over the waste of the public funds and the fusal to cut down on non-defense penditures. And there is vast irritation over the confusion and incompetency at Washington over the hordes of useless persons on the pay roll; over the lack of a sound [illegible] policy; over the feebleness with which the inflation threat is being handled; over a good many other things.

* * *

None of this, however, has anything to do with the objectives of the war. On these there is true unified support of Mr. Roosevelt. The criticism and discontent is important, but it concerns details and it comes from his own party as well as the other. The fact is that on these matters the leading and most effective critics of the President's administrative deficiencies are Democrats. The best example is Senator Byrd, of Virginia, but there are plenty of others.

* * *

All of which means that, however vigorous the attack upon Mr. Roosevelt's faults of omission or commission, these attacks are with the view of promoting his war objectives and making his foreign policies more, not less, effective. It is criticism designed to help, not hurt. It means that those who dissent from either the main objectives or the larger policies are not only without a party but without popular support. It means that no matter what the result of the election—even if the Republicans capture control of the House—there will be no repudiation of Mr. Roosevelt's foreign policies, his war or peace objectives. It means a united country, so far as prosecution of the war is concerned.

* * *

That is an extremely fortunate state of affairs. It removes all cause for alarm about the campaign and its results. And it robs of all merit continuation of the suggestion that the elections be called off or that some agreement between the parties be made to "freeze" the sitting Congress. As things are now, the American people will be given a chance in the primaries and general election to register against those whose attitude in Congress has been unhelpful and for those, regardless of party, who seem best qualified to promote competency and effectiveness in winning the war.

Unless, now, for purely political reasons, the Administration injects the question of the President's personality into the campaign and insists that only by voting for Democratic candidates approved by the New Deal can his hand be upheld, there will be no issue of Roosevelt endorsement or repudiation. The fact is that so far as objectives and policy are concerned, it is all endorsement. There is no one to suggest repudiation. That is the way it ought to be. That will be more effective as war propaganda than anything the Administration propaganda chiefs ever dreamed of. It is to be hoped they do not spoil it.

Those In Military Service May Vote

Attorney General Walsh Rules On Absentee Voting Privileges

Attorney General William C. Walsh has advised Isaac S. George, Executive Director of the Maryland Council of Defense, that Maryland has a law permitting absentee voting by those in the Military Service.

Attorney General Walsh stated that such voting is provided for by Sections 304-315, both inclusive, of Article 33 of the Annotated Code of Maryland, title "Elections", sub-title "Voting By Mail", as amended by Chapter 198 of the Acts of 1941. Section 304, as amended, provides that the Governor may, by proclamation, place the provisions of the law in operation for the benefit of those actually absent because of military service, and the succeeding sections, after providing for the certification of nominations at dates earlier than is usually provided in the election law, set forth the following requirements which must be complied with:

The voter must apply in writing for a ballot to the Board of Supervisors of Elections where he resides, not more than forty-five nor less than seven days before election day, and such application must contain the full name and the place of residence by street and number, if possible, from which the applicant is registered, the address to which the ballot is to be mailed to him, and the position or rank held by the applicant in the military or naval service. After verifying the applicant's registration as a voter and his right to vote, the Supervisors are required to mail a ballot to him, together with two envelopes and a card of instructions.

The return envelope is addressed to the Secretary of State, has printed on it a certificate to be signed by the voter, together with a witness' certificate, which latter certificate must be signed by a Commissioned Officer.

The Secretary of State opens all the return envelopes, received by him not more than seven days after the election day, withdraws therefrom the ballot envelopes, and transmits such ballot envelopes unopened, unchanged and unmarked in any way, in packages sealed by him, to the respective Boards of Supervisors of Elections, from whom the return envelopes shall appear to have been sent, and on the 10th day after election day, the various Boards of Supervisors count and canvass such ballots.

General Walsh further stated that it was vitally important that those absent in the military service who wish to do so, be given the opportunity to vote in this year's elections, and that Governor O'Conor would, of course, issue the necessary proclamation in ample time to enable the election officials to comply with the various provisions of the law.

COMMISSIONERS SEEK RULING ON LOCAL LAW

law forbids the spending of any amount over $100 without first advertising for bids in two county papers for two weeks, then waiting 10 days for the opening of such bids.

This law affects material, equipment or any other supplies of a value exceeding $100.00 and necessary for construction, reconstruction or maintenance of any county road or bridge, which can't be purchased, leased, hired or otherwise acquired except by contract after receiving sealed competitive bids as provided.

The suit asks that a "declaratory decree may be passed by this court hereon setting forth the right of the County Commissioners for Garrett county to receive from the State Roads Commission of Maryland the funds provided for the construction of the county roads of Garrett county from the gasoline tax fund," and (2)

"That in particular by a declaratory decree this court may declare that a proper interpretation of the provisions of subsection H of Chapter 888 of the Acts of 1941 does not prevent the County Commissioners for Garrett County from contracting for and hiring the use of road machinery and equipment at an agreed price per day or per hour, or to purchase or acquire materials at an agreed price per unit under the provisions of said chapter 888 in constructing the roads of Garrett county, provided that the sum total so contracted and agreed upon does not exceed the sum of $100 for any such contract; and that while they may not divide or split up any definite contract or fixed and ascertained job or undertaking for the purpose of evading the provisions of said chapter 888, section H, they are not held to have violated its provisions should the sum total of separate and different hirings or rentals or purchases each less than $100 due any one person or for the same equipment or materials exceed the sum of $100 without having advertised and let contracts for the same to the highest bidder as set forth therein."

Mr. Whitworth said the State Roads Commission was willing to cooperate fully with the commissioners, but that funds would be withheld until the proper interpretation was made of the law by the court, so there would be no technical violation of the statutes. It was his opinion that unless the County Commissioners were given the right to hire people and rent trucks and machinery when they were needed, that it would be impossible to carry on the road work of the county, pointing out that advertising for bids and opening of bids required at least 18 days. In case of removing snow, replacing a bridge, or any normal construction work this would cause undue delays. He also said Garrett county was the only one in the state where such a situation existed.

The suit was filed April 24. Representing the Commissioners are Horace F. Whitworth, Sr., and Horace F. Whitworth, Jr.

CRASHING THROUGH

Mount Vernon's Visitors

By WILLIAM R. CRANE.
In the Baltimore Sunday Sun, February 22

A brilliantly plumaged cardinal hops about in the woods near the simple brick vault in which George and Martha Washington lie. He is undisturbed by the constant stream of sight-seers who make their way to the vault, and his lack of fear tells more than anything else the peace of the shrine which holds first place in American hearts.

For peace is the keynote of Mount Vernon, a subtle stillness which comes over thousands who arrive by car, bus or taxicab at the little white gate, pay their entrance fee (and tax) and enter. There is nothing in the low brick wall which surrounds the place which would set it aside from the rest of the war-torn world; and yet persons who laugh and chatter as they approach the gate talk in undertones after they pass through.

A few miles away, in the city which Washington founded as the capital of the nation which he fathered, feverish thousands are working to help his nation through what is possibly its greatest crisis since the general and his men starved and froze at Valley Forge. Some are the "leaders of the nation," the majority simple citizens who bear no great responsibility and whose days are filled with the routine tasks of a nation at war. Sooner or later, however, most of them, great or small, find time to make their way through the Virginia countryside to gaze at the plain marble sarcophagus with the one word "Washington", carved deeply into it. Young men and girls drive up in sport cars; a uniformed man with the insignia of a colonel and a young man, obviously his son, arrive by bus; on the same vehicle is a young second lieutenant of marines and an older woman, obviously a relative. A talkative woman who is thoroughly familiar with history—particularly Washington's history—and is willing to share her knowledge with anyone who will listen, pays her admission fee—and once inside, keeps quiet. A man with a distictly foreign accent and a young American girl stroll around, photographing each other before various backgrounds. Military men of all ranks enter, without paying. The Mount Vernon Association, a non-profit organization which some eighty years ago took over the preservation of Mount Vernon has extended the privileges of the grounds to men in uniform.

Spell Falls Upon Them

The visitors walk up the brick pavement to the lovely old mansion and go through its rooms. The spell of Mount Vernon has fallen upon them and the silence is broken only by whispered comments, an occasional giggle, or a question asked of the attendant. The clock in the drawing room strikes "one" and two girls jump as the sharp sound cuts the hush. The girls peer through the door leading into the music room, at the piano with the violin and flute on it. "Gee, he played a lot of instruments," one whispers to the other. Two soldiers from Fort Belvoir, some four miles away, wander upstairs and stare at the four-poster beds. "They're funny looking, aren't they?" one asks the other quietly. They wander down the corridor to another room and glance inside. "This is where he died," says one. "How'd you know?" asks his companion. "That sign says so," replies the first, pointing to the card above the door. The solider reads the card and then quickly turns back to the room, examining the bed with interest.

Down in the library, where Washington's spectacles lie on his desk, much as if the master had laid them down absentmindedly, and where his books, bookcase, barometer and thermometer and globe are in their places, groups gather around the guard. "Were they really his?" is the question asked oftenest. They were. About half of the things on the first floor were intimately associated with Washington, at Mount Vernon, Philadelphia or New York. Out in the pantry people eyed the wine containers, big glass jars. "He must have had a big capacity or done a lot of entertaining," remarked one irreverent visitor. Then to the kitchen, with the huge fireplace, the crane, the long spits suspended overhead, its iron pots and brick oven. One small boy eyed these in wonder. "How do you think mother would like to cook on that?" he asked his father, who didn't know.

Hams In Smokehouse

Then on to the smokehouse, with its hams, suspended from the ceiling beams and the carriage house where the huge, ungainly coach in which Washington is believed to have ridden, stands. "Think of winning a war in that thing," remarked one spectator. "They bred men in those days." Down the brick walk, around to the spot where the man who led the first American armies to their first victories, sleeps his eternal sleep.

There the cardinal hopped about undisturbed by the groups which stood and read the inscriptions on the four markers outside the vault. They murmured questions of the guard stationed at the vault, mostly questions about the date of the first President's death, and whether there was a casket within the marble sarcophagus. The guard volunteered the information that the present vault was not the original one but was built at Washington's direction after the death of Martha. The first one was on a hillside leading down to the river, the guard said, and the President was afraid that a landslide might destroy it. Quietly they wandered away, to return to the lawn, or the bowling green or to walk through the gardens. There was no hurry or rush, and the attitude of those who came to the shrine was startling to any observer accustomed to the fury of war activity.

No Rules Seem Needed

Aside from a modest "no-smoking" sign placed, with a depository for the discarded cigarettes just inside the gates, there are no rules for visitors to Mount Vernon. And yet Americans, who are noted for their reverence before ancient things, bow unquestioningly to the spell cast by Mount Vernon. For sake of example—to the average American, a "no-smoking' sign is simply a challenge, unless it happens to be in a powder mill. An extensive tour of the Mount Vernon grounds, on a bright Sunday which had brought out scores of visitors, disclosed just one forbidden cigarette, half smoked and too carefuly crushed out to be the work of a fifth columnist, lying on the ground.

This feeing of reverence is known to those who have charge of the estate, and it has increased steadily as world events have brought the United States to the brink of war and then plunged into the holocaust. "We noticed a difference in the attitudes of those who came after September, 1939," reports Charles C. Wall, the superintendent. "People seemed to realize what a mess the world was in and to gather a new understanding of the man who had led the United States through the first crisis. Their reaction is something intangible, something which can't be realized, even by themselves, but it is there.

Vandalism No Problem

"It shows in a physical way, however. We are not afflicted with the vandalism which seems to prevail in many public places. Our guards have little to do—people don't try to handle the various objects or pick them up. They come in, look around, ask their questions—and we get a lot of those, even some about the cherry tree—and leave. The feeling awe is there, but as I say, it's intangible. It's nothing that can be broken down into facts and figures."

The feeling is there, unquestionably. Only a few miles away the new War Department building is going up outside of Washington, a building which, when completed will be the largest in the world. From it may go orders which will change the course of the history of the world. Near by is the national airport, described by the sightseeing bus driver as the largest in the world. Over it big bombers fly, passing over the vault which holds the first President. In Washington itself probably bigger today than Washington's broadest dreams saw it, guns guard against what might be its second attack. But out at the first president's home and grave, there is a peace such as can be found in few other places in the world, a peace which casts its spell over men and women and permits the scarlet cardinal to hop, unafraid, a few feet away from mankind.

Maybe your chances of buying a new car are better than you think

Here's clarifying information about the rules on the purchase of new automobiles—and how you can get one if you are eligible.

MORE people are entitled to buy new automobiles under Government rationing regulations than may have been generally realized.

Indeed, if you are eligible to buy a new car, and continue to drive an old and inefficient model, you may actually burn up more gasoline, consume more oil and wear out tires faster than is desirable in the interest of conservation of critical materials and supplies.

The principal groups eligible for the purchase of new cars are as follows:

1. Physicians, surgeons, visiting nurses, veterinarians and regularly practicing ministers of a religious faith, when their cars are used for professional purposes.
2. Persons engaged in fire-fighting services, police services, public health services, mail services or highway construction and maintenance of equipment when cars are used in direct line of duty.
3. Persons furnishing transportation to the public, when the purchase is required in the interest of public safety and convenience.
4. Persons engaged in the prosecution of the war, directly or indirectly, including executives, engineers, technicians and workers. Such cars must be used in transportation to or from or within factories, power plants, transportation or communication facilities, farms, lumber camps, mines, military or naval establishments, when the work done in such place of employment is essential, directly or indirectly, to the prosecution of the war.
5. Persons transporting produce and supplies to and from a farm when applicant does not own or possess a truck or other practicable means of transportation.
6. Traveling salesmen, when the car is required in selling foods and medical supplies or machinery and equipment to farms, factories, mines, oil wells, lumber camps or similar productive establishments.
7. Persons delivering newspapers, when the car is required for wholesale delivery.

The first step in getting a car is to fill out the proper application form, which we will be glad to obtain for you.

It is then necessary only to demonstrate to the local rationing board that your need for a car is bona fide to get a "certificate of purchase" entitling you to immediate delivery on the model of your own selection.

If you have any questions about your eligibility after reading the above list, we will be glad to answer them for you to the best of our ability.

If you're eligible...let us help you

A Daily Call to Prayer . . .

People in Swanton have started a call to prayer time each evening and are hoping that it will spread to other towns in Garrett county and perhaps throughout the land.

At 8 o'clock every evening a church bell in the community is rung and at this time, all are asked to take a little time to pray to God for guidance and help during this time of national peril.

The postmistress, postal employes, merchants and others have cooperated and are observing this daily call to prayer in their individual homes or places of business.

As one of the participants has put it, "In view of the times in which we are living and the great problems facing our nation, we are made to realize more the need of prayer to Almighty God for guidance and help. Therefore the citizens of the Swanton Community have chosen 8 p. m., as an hour for united prayer for our boys and nation." He also pointed out that for encouragement in this endeavor one could read II Chronicles, especially chapters 7, 14 and 20.

The Swanton people urge other communities to follow this example.

The towns and villages of the entire nation would do well to emulate this spirit of dependence upon our Creator.

WANTS "LEGION OF DEATH" TO BE FORMED HERE

Older Men Determined To Keep America Free and Are Willing To Meet Invaders At The Coast

Garrett county's aging and older men have determined that America must remain free and are willing to meet any invaders at the coastline and give their lives to such a cause.

To bear out their contention that they hold democracy dear to their hearts, a number of the enrollees of the last registration, veterans of other wars and others too old for combat service, have made arrangements to form a "Legion of Death" wherein they pledge that should America be endangered or the sanctity of the home threatened that they will meet the enemy at the seashore, with the banner, "Thou Shalt Not Pass," and not to retreat as long as one can remain alive.

The formation of such an organization was agitated by a number of "oldsters," who congregated around the schools at the last registration, but it remained for Dr. W. B. Love, a retired Presbyterian minister, now living at Mountain Lake Park, to put the thoughts of these men into some concrete form. He prepared the pledge which members of the "Legion of Death" will subscribe to, and it is his opinion that at least a thousand in this area will make that pledge and join in the movement.

Dr. Love also believes that others in America who see their activity drawing to a close, would be enthusiastic to make the same covenant that these Garrett county mountaineer fighters are about to do.

Here is the pledge:

THE LEGION OF DEATH

"America Must Be Free"

"We, enrollees of the last registration, veterans of other wars and men too old for combat service, seeing our day of activity drawing to a close, do hereby covenant together, agree with and pledge ourselves to the following precepts:

Rejoicing in our heritage, liberty and prosperity beyond anything the world has ever known, we would bequeath to our posterity a legacy no less glorious. AMERICA MUST BE FREE

A world crisis is upon us. Everything democracy holds dear is threatened. Unscrupulous dictators have turned the clock of civilization back 2,000 years in their avarice to rule the world.

Our young men now face the foe. They stop him in his tracks. They die with smiles on their faces. But they have been outplanned, out-maneuvered and out-manned. Historians will sing their praise. We have every confidence in their ability and their devotion, and we will guard their homes until they return, and stamp out every subversive move that would undermine our government.

But should the worst come upon us. Should the unexepcted come to pass. Should unholy feet approach our shores. Should America be endangered. Should the sanctity of our homes be threatened. We will never submit to that tragedy, or bow beneath the tyrant's rod. We, therefore, pledge ourselves to form a "LEGION OF DEATH" to meet the invader at the coast, with a banner over us "Thou Shalt Not Pass." And so long as one man remains alive we will swell the chorus of our fathers: "He hath sounded forth the trumpet that shall never call retreat." We do not intend to live in slavery under a Hitler, a Mussolini or a Jap.

And to this end, we pledge ourselves in the name of America that cradled us. For the sake of the loved ones we must leave behind, and in the presence of our God.

Those who believe as Dr. Love and a number of others believe, will be given the opportunity through The Republican to sign their names to the roll. An application blank for membership will be found in this issue, which should be sent to The Republican office, Oakland, pending actual organization.

Dr. Love, who saw service in the first World War said this morning that the movement has already taken root and that quite a number have signed a copy of the pledge which he carries with him.

Electrical Storms Break Dry Spell But Cause Damage

Harry Ream, Rosedale, Burned About Face When Lightning Strikes

A severe thunder storm descended upon Garrett county Sunday evening, breaking a dry spell that was on the verge of becoming serious, and causing the temperature to drop sharply.

The rain however brought invaluable aid to farm lands, lessened the danger of forest fires, but also brought some discomfort to various individuals where lightning struck.

Harry Ream, an invalid, living in Rosedale, just west of Oakland, was burned about the face and forehead and suffered somewhat from shock as the result of a bolt of lightning which struck a tree very near his home and shattered the windows in his kitchen. The man was sitting in a chair at the time in front of the window. He was given medical attention.

The Naylor building, corner of Liberty and Wilson streets, was also struck, sending fire into the apartments there and burning out a radio.

Lightning also ignited a haystack on the Weber farm, near the farm of D. L. Reed, and it was erroneously reported that Reed's home had been destroyed by fire.

In the North Glade and Swanton areas people were without electric current until Monday evening as the result of lightning striking and burning the main transformer at Deer Park.

Two other transformers in that area were struck, one near the home of Fred Lohr, who was injured when he attempted to throw the switch to disconnect his lights from the main line. The transformer was already on fire at that time. He was knocked unconscious by the shock and was unable to resume his work Monday, but is now reported recovered.

The storm broke a period of warm weather that had prevailed for a week or more. The highest temperature was reached on Friday, May 1st, when the thermometer reached 88. Sunday night's storm brought 1.4 inches of rain to the dry ground and another shower yesterday afternoon brought another .15 of an inch.

Heavy Rain Last Night

Another storm hit this area last night, accompanied by sharp lightning and heavy claps of thunder. The rainfall reached a total of 1.71 inches, causing streams to rise rapidly. Wilson creek which flows through Oakland, rose dangerously near to flood stage, but subsided quickly when the rain ceased.

The week's temperature has been cool.

County Expected to Fill War Bond Quota

Garrett County should have no trouble in reaching the May quota for the voluntary purchase of United States War Bonds and Stamps, judging from the sales at the various points during previous months.

Secretary of the Treasury, Henry Morgenthau, Jr., has set a quota for every county in the United States and Garrett county's goal is $14,200.

At the Oakland postoffice and the two Oakland banks during April war bonds amounting to $7,687.50 were sold, and this was considered a low month. As war bonds are also sold at other postoffices and other banks in the county, it was estimated that the quota for May would be reached.

Already for May, the First National Bank of Oakland has sold bonds amounting to $2,825.

CITY TAX RATE REMAINS AT 70 CENTS PER $100

Council Fixes Levy at Regular Monthly Meeting Monday Night

The city tax rate for Oakland for 1942 was kept at 70 cents per $100 of assessable property, by order of the Mayor and Town council, at their regular meeting on Monday evening. The tax rate has been 70 cents for two years, having been increased in 1940 from the 60-cent rate, where it had been stationary for quite a number of terms.

The Council a few weeks ago approved the budget for the town which amounted to $29,136, a reduction of $11,310.22 over the previous year. Two items will cut revenue this year about $1,500, as there will be no household property tax and city licenses for certain businesses have also been eliminated. The gas tax revenue will also be cut and the revenue from water is expected to drop.

Of the 70 cents, it was pointed out that 45 cents would go to general expenditures and that 25 cents would go to retire bonds and coupons of the town's bonded indebtedness. The town's assessable valuation is about two million dollars. There are about 400 taxpayers, according to Arthur Lawton, clerk-collector.

The city council also levied a tax of 70-203 of one percent on bank stock which is expected to bring in over $700.00.

Regular Business

Routine business was taken up following the laying of the levy.

Joe Kitzmiller was given permission to remove the buildings near the golf club house for the sum of $15.00.

The purchase of a new uniform and raincoat was authorized for John J. Sweeney, police chief.

Lee R. Mason was given the right to keep all funds received at the town scales during May, June and July. The town usually received one-fourth of the total each month. For April the town received $13.45 as its share. May, June and July are extremely lax months for weighing anything, it was stated.

Receipts for April amounted to $3,364.49 which included $1,990.39 for water collections, $308.24 for taxes, and the $670.00 borrowed from the First National Bank, which was listed in last month's council activities. April bills amounted to $1,558. The movie tax receipts for April amounted to $48.40.

Registration For Gas Rationing To Be Held Next Week

Registration for the rationing of gasoline will take place in this county next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, May 12, 13 and 14, in the Elementary schools of the county, it was announced this morning by Walter W. Dawson, ration board chairman, and F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent of schools.

Automobile owners who come to register must have their registration card for the current year, it was stressed, which will also prove that the taxes have been paid for the previous year.

Meetings are being held tomorrow to instruct teachers how to register the 5,000 or more individuals who are expected to present themselves. The closing of school on those days is left to the principals of the schools.

The rationing is expected to go into effect May 15. The amount of gasoline per owner has not been determined, ranging anywhere from two to six gallons weekly. Persons not registering within the time specified will have to get their ration books at the war rationing board office.

To Address High School P.-T. A. Meeting

Mrs. Blanche Powell, executive secretary of the Maryland Nurse's Association, will be the speaker at the next meeting of the Oakland High School Parent-Teachers Association, to be held in the school auditorium on Wednesday, May 13, beginning at 7:30.

She will speak on the "Importance of Nursing." Grover C. Stemple, president, said that there would also be a style revue and music entertainment by students of the high school. He announced this would be the final meeting of the association for the present school year.

Named NYA Field Agent

Since Area No. 2 of the National Youth Administration has been divided from the field offices in Baltimore, E. Price Steiding, of Lonaconing, has been made field activities coordinator of Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties.

Rotarians Attend District Convention

A report of the proceedings of the district Rotary convention at Harrisburg, Pa., on Sunday evening and Monday, will be given at the regular meeting of the local club on Friday evening.

Attending the Harrisburg meeting were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Weber and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Graser, Mr. and Mrs. Walter W. Dawson, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ream, Mr. and Mrs. Grover Stemple, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Naylor, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Ashby, and William L. Gibson.

The Oakland group was assigned the program for the morning meeting when Walter Dawson spoke and Messrs. Ashby and Gibson furnished some musical numbers. Joseph Merritt, of Dundalk, was elected district governor and one of the highlights of the meeting was an address by Robert K. Kazmayer, on "Japan."

METHODISTS AWAIT NOTE BURNING CELEBRATION

Will Be Held Sunday Night in Sanctuary at 7:30, Followed By Reception In Assembly Room

Sunday in the Methodist church, of this city will be one of great rejoicing among its members and friends, for it will mark a celebration of the freeing of the church and parsonage from debt. Both were built in the last six years, and have already been paid for by a loyally adhered-to plan of giving, and other effort, Rev. Minor Sprague, pastor, announced.

The celebration will take the form of a service in the sanctuary at 7:30 p. m., followed by an informal reception in the assembly room. At the service attention will be given to the purposes for which the church was built, a review of its achievements, and a contemplation of its forward-looking program. A layman will speak, the choir will lead the people in joyous praise of God, and the pastor will lead the people in a litany of consecration to the service of Christ through the church's unencumbered facilities.

Rev. W. S. Patterson, D. D., of Moundsville, W. Va., will also speak. His many friends know him as the former pastor whose vision and leadership played such a large part in the erection and financing of the church and parsonage.

As honored guests at the service and reception, will be all those persons who joined the church since its dedication. Also, Rev. Patterson's family, and any other former pastors who can be present. Several musical numbers will be interspersed throughout the reception.

S. Townshend Naylor, general chairman of arrangements, announces that the service and reception are public, and all who care to attend, are welcome to rejoice with the Methodists.

The morning service at 10:45 will be devoted to an observance of Mother's day.

High School Study Group Makes Its Report to Teachers

High school teachers assembled in Oakland high school yesterday to hear a summary of the results evolving from the study program which has been carried on for the past several months by a special committee appointed last fall.

James E. Spitznas, high school supervisor, gave the purposes and history of the study program. Others participating were F. D. Bittle, principal of Oakland high and chairman of the committee; Miss Dorothea Fridinger, Marshall G. Brown and Raymond O. McCullough, the latter three in the fields of English, social studies and science; and F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent.

Attending the meeting also were Floyd Cromwell, supervisor of vocational and educational guidance; Miss Elisbaeth Amery, state supervisor of home economics; and Earl Guard, Friendsville, member of the School Board.

No definite recommendations were made or any specific conclusions reached, it was stated.

Heads Golf Club

At a meeting of the Oakland Golf club last Friday, Bernard I. Gonder was named president to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of D. Edward Offutt.

The club members made plans for opening the club house at the municipal course by May 15 or shortly thereafter.

STATE TAXPAYERS ASK REDUCTION IN SPENDING

Delegation to Washington Presents Maryland Congressmen With Petitions of Many Hundreds

Vociferously indignant Maryland taxpayers on Tuesday petitioned their representatives and senators in Washington to oppose "all appropriations not absolutely essential for a nation fighting for its very existence."

At least 200 Marylanders from most all sections of the state, individually and as representatives of various taxpayers' associations, appeared at a meeting in the large senate office building caucus room to present formally petitions signed by thousands of voters.

Garrett county did not send a representative but petitions previously circulated were presented which were signed by several hundred persons.

Tydings Praises Action

After hearing talks from a number of those present Senator Tydings, who was praised by many speakers for his active fight for economy, expressed his and his colleagues' thanks for "giving us the benefit of your views in so straightforward a manner."

"This is the healthiest thing I have seen in years," he said. "It is my conviction that when democracy dies it will not die in the White House or in the halls of Congress, but at the ballot boxes of the nation." All the delegation was present except Representative Cole, who was ill.

Samuel H. Shriver, Pikesville, told the Maryland Congressmen, "we do not come before you humbly as supplicants, but as American citizens speaking as a matter of right. We are here not as partisans nor as an organized body of self-seekers, but to make known our considered opinion on a question of public welfare. A Baltimorean presented the petitions and told of a "rising tide of indignation against Congress for permitting expenditure of vast sums on agencies which a joint Congressional Committee has declared were non-essential."

"People are asking why the many alphabetical agencies born in the depth of the depression are not discontinued." Another Baltimore member of the delegation told the legislators that there was "nothing we wouldn't do to give all" to the man on the fighting front, and "all we ask is that government do the same."

Hearing Scheduled In Friendly Suit

A hearing will be held in the Circuit Court in Oakland on Monday regarding the responsibility of the State Roads Commission over county-compliance with provisions of road laws and road work procedure in this county, it was announced by Horace Whitworth, Jr., attorney, doing special work for the County Commissioners.

The friendly suit was brought by the County Commissioners against the State Roads commission, asking for an interpretation of certain sub-sections of a road act passed at the last session of the legislature, which was given in detail in last week's issue of The Republican.

The Commissioners say that the Roads Commission is holding up payment of bills amounting to $6,797.52 for construction work done on the Rock Lodge and Smouse roads. The commission is withholding payment as its members contend the Commissioners failed to observe the section of the 1941 act which requires advertisements of bids for material and work in excess of $100 on county roads.

The commission admits there is a "bona fide contention" between the parties to the suit, but said the State Roads Commissioners were "concerned only as to the extent of their legal duty, which appears to them to be uncertain" by virtue of the subsections of the act.

Injured In Runaway Accident

Floyd Durst, 21-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry O. Durst, whose farm is located a few miles south of Oakland, is in Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, recovering from injuries to his face, eye and back received at the farm home last Thursday afternoon when a team he was engaged in working ran away as he was unhitching it from a wagon at the barn. It was at first feared that the young man had received injuries that would permanently disable him, but reports from the hospital are to the effect that he is now recovering.

The Oakland Firemen were called last Saturday evening to extinguish a brush fire which had gotten beyond control in the vicinity of Altamont.

Employment Office Now Located In Mance Building

The Oakland Office of the United States Employment Service has moved from the McIntire Building to the offices formerly occupied by Dr. A. E. Mance in the Mance building on Third street. The rooms are located on the first floor of the modern brick building and are heated by a new heating plant, lighted by a modern fluorescent lighting system, and are well equipped for a modern office.

The general public is invited to visit the new office which is open from 8:30 a. m. to 5:00 p. m., Monday through Friday, and from 8:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m., on Saturday.

The local office placed 33 persons during April, 13 of whom were placed in defense work.

Six carpenters have been placed on Savage River Dam recently. It is expected that more carpenters will be required on Savage River Dam and in Cumberaland, at a later date.

Meeting Scheduled To Learn of Maximum Price Regulations

Will Be Held in Oakland High School Auditorium This Evening

A meeting of merchants, business and professional men is scheduled in the auditorium of Oakland high school this evening at 7:30 p. m., it has been announced by the county rationing board, Oakland.

The purpose of the meeting is to bring to the retailers the General Maximum Price Regulation, in a way that it will be easily understood, as it affects practically every business.

There will be talks by Dr. Lloyd G. Reynolds, regional price executive; Clifford R. Snider, regional attorney; and Leo H. McCormick, acting regional director of the office of Price Administration. After that the meeting will be thrown open for any questions anyone may want to ask. Copies of the regulation will be distributed at the close of the meeting.

Speaking of the Oakland meeting Mr. McCormick said, "We are very anxious to have all the people of Maryland fully informed in every way possible on the subject of price control, and we feel that by sitting down with them in their own communities and simply discussing our plans and offering whatever assistance we can in facilitating their cooperation, we will more readily be able to carry out this program. Only by complete harmonious cooperation and the willingness of everybody to work together under necessary price regulations will we be able to best assist our Government on the home front."

Many Examined at Orthopedic Clinic

One hundred nineteen patients were examined at the orthopedic clinic conducted last Thursday at the county health office.

Dr. George E. Bennett, orthopedic specialist of Baltimore, was in charge of the examinations and he was assisted by Dr. Weinberg. Others assisting in the work beside the local health staff, were Miss Jane Oliver, orthopedic nurse; Miss Mary E. Church, executive secretary of the Maryland League for Crippled Children; Mrs. Marta Rohrer and Miss Huffington, Baltimore.

Miss Catherine Corley, nurse instructor, was also in the county last week in connection with her regular work with the health nurses.

Swanton Boy Run Over By Tractor

John Stickley, six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Stickley, Swanton, received a fractured leg Tuesday, when he was run over by a tractor near his home. He is being treated at Memorial hospital, Cumberland.

The child was playing at a neighbor's home when one of the boys drove a tractor from a garage. When he started to back it into the garage it struck the young boy. The tractor was rubber-tired.

On Sunday, funeral services were held for the boy's two-month old sister, Barbara Rose, who died in Union Memorial hospital, Baltimore, last Thursday. Interment was in Keyser, W. Va.

Mr. Briner Named USO Chairman For Garrett County

Charles L. Briner, Jr., was notified a few days ago that he had been named chairman of the USO and Navy Relief for Garrett county, by Howard Bruce, State director.

REGISTERING FOR "RATION BOOKS" WILL END TODAY

Stamp No. 1 Will Be Good This Week and Next—Each Stamp Good for One Pound Sugar

People throughout the entire country are apparently accepting good naturedly the sugar ration registration which has been going on since Monday and concludes today.

In Oakland alone on the first day 915 ration books were issued and teachers and high school seniors were busy all day registering those who applied, and it was impossible to hold regular school sessions in the elementary schools of the county because of the large number.

12,906 Apply

Thirty-nine schools out of 57 in the county reported 12,906 applications received during the first three days, and 12,078 books given out.

This leaves 18 schools which have made no report for the first three days, and of course another full day for all schools, making it probable that around 20,000 people will register.

The Garrett County census in 1940 was 21,981 persons. It is probable that many have left this county for defense work in other places, and consequently would not register here.

It was a back to school movement for millions of America's grown-ups as they returned for a fourth R—a ration book—which will be needed for buying sugar from now until probably after the war.

"War ration book one," as the document is called, is being issued at elementary schools to persons who call. It represents the first general rationing card, a system long in effect in most European countries.

One Pound for Two Weeks

Under the sugar rationing system everybody will get some sugar, but probably not as much as they have been using. One pound a person every two weeks will be the limit for the first eight weeks.

The ration books contain stamps, one of which must be turned over to the grocer each time a purchase is made. The government, keeping a continuous check on the sugar supply, will say how much sugar may be bought with each stamp. The limit of one pound per stamp is in effect until June 27; after that the amount per stamp may be raised or cut.

The sugar scarcity is said to result from two things—the shutting off of imports from the Philippines, and other places in the war zones, and the sinking or diversion to other uses of the ships which formerly brought sugar here from Latin America and other places.

Books for Everybody

In the registration, one ration book is being issued for each member of the family, children as well as adults. One adult member of the family can register for the whole family and get books for all members.

The sugar purchases, too, can be made for all the family by one member. Whoever goes to the store can take all the family ration books. If there are four in the family, with the four ration books a person can buy four pounds of sugar and that must last the family until May 17, when stamp No. 2 in the books becomes valid. Sugar bought with stamp No. 2 must last until May 31 when stamp No. 3 can be used, and so on.

Definite Time Limit

Each stamp has a definite time limit. A stamp is good only during the period for which it was issued. It cannot be used in advance of that period or following it.

Stamps should not be torn from the rationing book before any purchases are made as stores are not permitted to accept detached stamps.

If the ration book is lost, stolen or destroyed, report the fact at once to the ration board. Any complaints, questions, or difficulties should be taken up with the ration board.

When a person dies his ration book must be returned to the ration board.

In order to obtain later books, the first book must be turned in so the books should be preserved with the greatest possible care.

Canning Company Wants More Pea Acreage

The Southern Packing Company, Inc., of Mt. Lake Park, is seeking more acreage for peas and corn, to be grown by farmers and sold at harvest time to the company.

The company is contracting to pay $67.50 per ton for peas delivered at the factory, and $16.00 per ton for corn.

Seed can be secured at the factory on credit, it has been announced by the company.

WHY NO TRACK MEET?—

There are many things that ought to remain normal during war times, and, on the surface, it would seem that athletic activity among high and elementary students is one of those things.

With the county track meet as a goal, students will train for weeks to become physically fit for that supreme test. There is alive in boys and girls a keen interest in competition and that day has always been looked forward to by ninety-nine percent of the pupils, even though all of them do not participate.

It is admitted that students, especially those in high school, are restless already because of the war, and calling off the annual track and field meet, in our opinion, doesn't help that situation one bit.

Those in authority say the chief reason for not holding the meet is because of the shortage of gasoline and tires. But if the busses didn't travel to the track meet, they would be traveling over their regular routes, carrying children to school.

Permission is given for individual schools to have meets with other schools. Any such meetings would also involve travel.

So at a glance the excuse of excess use of tires and gasoline seems very shallow. No bus would have to travel more than thirty or thirty-five miles to get to Accident, where the annual track meet is usually held.

Once the track meet is abandoned, there will be those who do not favor any athletic activity whatever who will endeavor to see that it is not resumed when the war is over.

Training With Armored Force at Fort Knox

Four Garrett county men recently arrived at the armored force training center at Fort Knox, Ky., where they will begin training courses to qualify them for duty with the armored force of the United States Army.

The men, all selectees, are Pvt. Charles Durst, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Durst, Crellin; Pvt. William G. Miller, son of Mrs. Barbara Miller, Accident; Pvt. Cecil L. Kight, son of Mrs. E. G. Kight, Sunnyside; and Pvt. Charles W. White, son of Mrs. Emma V. White, Mt. Lake Park.

Army recruiting officers are taking young men 18 and 19 in volunteer groups.

Writing About Mothers

By WILBERT N. SAVAGE

Revolving about the subject of Mother and Mother's Day, countless songs, poems, stories and plays have been written. But the time is yet to be encountered when the composer, the poet, or the writer finds words more futile, more devoid of fitting descriptive meaning, than when he attempts to find satisfaction in his written sentiments surrounding one Mother—his own. Never, on this precious and delicate subject, has a writer attained his goal or touched solidly on literary perfection.

Words have not been designed that will carry the sanguine expression locked securely within. Talent, ability, persistence—all may affect the effort, but the result remains placid, unchanged, incomplete.

After a writer has conscientiously striven to convey his deepest thoughts, after he has exhausted his mental powers, he can say truthfully: "I've written the best that's in me, but something has been left undone. On the subject of 'Mother' I shall never gain the literary peak to which I aspire, even though I seek it always."

DIED

MRS. WILLIAM C. HARDING

Funeral services for Mrs. Annie Engle Harding, 67, wife of William C. Harding, were held April 29 from the Reformed church in St. Paul, near Grantsville, with Rev. Alvin J. Forry, pastor, officiating. Interment was in the adjoining cemetery.

Mrs. Harding died at her home near Grantsville on Monday, April 27. A daughter of Josiah and Melinda Folk Engle, she was born at Elk Lick township on May 5, 1875. On June 2, 1898 she married William C. Harding. Two sons and four daughters were born to them. Surviving are her husband, her sons, Samuel O. Harding, Baltimore; and Edgar J. Harding, Smokeless, Pa.; two daughters, Mrs. Howard Miller, St. Paul, Pa.; and Mrs. Melvin Shoemaker, Springs, Pa.; three brothers, Samuel Engle, Cole Run, Pa.; Russell Engle and George Engle, of the Grantsville section.

MRS. HARRIETT C. LYTLE

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon, May 3, for Mrs. Harriett Conaway Lytle, of Friendsville, who died at her home Thursday following an extended illness.

Mrs. Lytle was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Conaway, of the Friendsville community. Surviving besides her husband are two sons, Morgan Fike, by a previous marriage; and Ray Lytle; three sisters, Mrs. Elvira Leighty, Connellsville, Pa.; Miss Alice Conaway, Friendsville; and Mrs. Laura Sanner, Uniontown, Pa.

Rev. Henry Knoell, Confluence, Pa., conducted the service in the Christian church. Interment was in the Mill Run cemetery.

Twenty-Two Garrett Men Leave for Service

The Garrett County Draft Board sent twenty-two men to the induction center yesterday morning.

They left Oakland around 6:30 o'clock and were taken directly to Baltimore for final physical examination.

Those in the group included James Nordeck, Oakland, leader; Calvin T. Pugh, Grantsville; John W. Rollins, Irvin Feld, Paul R. Whipp, Percy W. Thayer, John A. Michael, Jr., all of Oakland; Henry E. Deal, McHenry; Harold R. Landis, Harper P. Paugh, Roy R. Lish, Deer Park; Gerald R. Iman, Kitzmiller; Harrison C. Wright, Jesse J. Wilt, Paul H. Barnard, Swanton; Rudolph W. Mallau, Accident; Lawrence W. Frantz, Selbysport; Richard L. Roy, Mt. Lake Park; Otis B. Jordan, Crellin; Marshall C. Arnold, Kempton. Two others, transferred from other boards, also were sent, Magnus William Anderson, of Staten Island, N. Y., and Sheridan Sherman Neff, Crestview, Fla.

Harland L. Jones, draft board clerk, announced that 375 questionnaires had been sent out to those in the third registration, and that 600 occupational employment blanks had been mailed to those in the same registration group. The questionnaires must be returned within five days, but ten days are allowed for returning the other blanks.

Highway accident fatalities dropped to 21 for the state in April, as compared to 36 a year ago. This is the lowest figure for any one month during the past five years.

THIS IS THE STORY OF CARBOLOY

How a Most Strategic Material of the War—Invented in Germany—Was Made Available to the United Nations

★

More Precious Than Diamonds in War Production . . . Carboloy is an American trademark for cemented tungsten-carbide, an alloy second only to diamonds in hardness, more precious than diamonds as a vital material in America's war program. It is used for the tips of cutting tools, and for wear-resistant dies. Carboloy is used in small quantities; it is difficult to make and difficult to use—but it has never been scarce in modern times. There is no scarcity now.

Invented in Germany—Krupp Protected by U. S. Patents . . . Cemented carbide was invented in Germany—it belonged to Krupp of Germany, and this made all the rest of the world Krupp's customer. In this country, Krupp was protected by patent grants from the United States.

General Electric Creates Independent Production . . . The General Electric Company two years before this had begun research on tungsten-carbide and foresaw its importance in industrial production. For immediate use in its own plants and for easier availability to others, General Electric undertook the long and arduous negotiations for the American rights. Limited rights were obtained in 1928, with Krupp continuing to export the material to its United States customers—a business which languished, however, as General Electric painstakingly developed its own Carboloy technique. This paved the way for General Electric to make the United States entirely independent of Germany for its cemented tungsten-carbide supply as early as 1936.

American Tool Costs Half That of German . . . From the start, two totally different businesses were involved. Krupp originally exported cemented carbides in chunks—and was unsuccessful. General Electric—and its subsidiary, Carboloy Co., Inc.—found it necessary to develop a complete engineering and manufacturing service, making various types of Carboloy equipped tools, training men in their use, and offering to its customers a specialized and successful production technique. For purposes of fair comparison, a typical German cemented carbide tool in 1928 cost $22.26 in the United States, while a comparable American Carboloy tool cost $11.11.

Loss to General Electric for Many Years—Art Taught to Industry . . . In times of peace—and 1928 was such a time—the measure of success of industrial adventure is to be found in profit to the adventurer. By such a measure, Carboloy could not be called successful. Initial expenses were great. For a time the Company lost at the rate of $1000 a day, and once had an operating deficit of more than a million dollars.* One of the major contributing reasons was the continuing high cost of development, standardization, and training. In 1936-37 alone, training courses were given to 10,000 men in industry. Moreover, six major price reductions were made in the face of operating losses, until the standard tool blank had been reduced in price 90 per cent.

Faith and Perseverance . . . Depression was still another reason—labor-saving tools could not be sold to industry or labor at any price. But General Electric, with determination that now seems providential, kept on—increasing its capacity, granting new licenses, condoning instances of unlicensed production, staying ahead of its market.

Production Multiplied Forty-five Times in Four Years . . . Cemented tungsten-carbide could easily have been a source of weakness here, as it was in England, had it not been for General Electric's policy of continued expansion. In 1939, the production of the Carboloy Company was less than 20,000 lbs.; in 1940, it was 55,000 lbs.; in 1941, it was 163,000—and in December came Pearl Harbor. Now, in 1942, the Company's production is going at a rate that is 45 times that of only four years ago.

Britain Dependent upon Us . . . By contrast, British companies, which had been content to continue as customers of Krupp, found themselves cut off from the vital material when Poland was invaded. But the General Electric Company was able to supply substantial quantities to British industry immediately and since then has continuously filled British orders. It has, in like manner, filled Canada's requirements since 1936. It is currently supplying Canada, Russia, and other United Nations. All this in addition to supplying the greatly expanded needs of American industry.

An Inspirational Story of American Industry . . . Thus, the story of Carboloy does not end in "too little and too late." Like many previously untold stories of American industry, it continues, a sturdy and inspiring example of public service born of private enterprise, and characterized by hard work, ingenuity, investment, research, risk, and courage—a familiar pattern on this side of the Atlantic. General Electric Company, Schenectady, New York.

Over the entire period of its existence up to January 1st, 1942 the total net profit of the Carboloy Company was 2.5 per cent of sales.*

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By Scoop Himself

The boys are beginning to pry into our past!

The other day George asked his mother if she ever picked her nose when she was a little girl. Failing to get an admission out of her he wanted to know if I ever picked mine when I was a little boy. When she answered that she didn't know about me, he summed it up with the following, "Oh, I expect he did. He had a lot of experiences when he was a boy."

* * *

The vast army of government press agents have a hard time trying to justify their existence by sending out information that has already been distributed through some other agency.

Just for instance, the duplication of effort in sending out information on sugar rationing was amazing. Yards and yards of publicity came from at least five different places, The Office for Emergency Management, the State Rationing Board, from the Regional Information officer, from the Price Administration, besides the county board, where the stuff should have come from in the first place.

The amount of publicity from all government agencies continues to pile up. If even a part of it was used, it would more than fill the entire newspaper.

This overlapping is one of the things Senator Byrd has been hammering at, but which the President and the New Deal spenders in Washington never do anything about.

* * *

It Used to Be

Once upon a time it was bananas by the bunch. The other day we spoke hopefully of half a banana for the fruit salad.

Once upon a time it was onion sets, three pounds for 25 cents. Then they were 50 cents a pound the other day, and today, try and find any at any price. There was almost a riot the other day when, out of onions of all kinds, the wife snitched two of my onion sets to flavor some soup.

It used to be that the sweet tooth had a place in most everybody's mouth. Now dentists will be busy extracting them for the duration.

Well, if we can laugh at those things and take them in our stride, we'll live to see our nation victorious against the aggressors.

At least the government can't ration air, water, rain, sunshine, the seasons, etc. They are still trying to regulate what can and what cannot be grown, however.

The two English boys, members of the RAF, in training in this country to become pilots, who were visiting here a week or so ago, are indebted to Mr. and Mrs. James Spencer, at the Golf Course, for their closest reminder of home.

They invited the boys out to supper one evening and had Yorkshire Pudding for them. It was the first they had eaten since they had left England.

Hagar Dagmar Hamilton, Plaintiff, vs. Lloyd Edward Hamilton, Defendant No. 3642 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, State of Maryland.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for divorce "a vinculo matrimonii" for the plaintiff, Hagar Dagmar Hamilton, of Garrett County, Maryland, against her husband, Lloyd Edward Hamilton, defendant, of the State of West Virginia.

The Bill of Complaint states that on February 24, 1934, the said Hagar Dagmar Hamilton was married to her husband, Lloyd Edward Hamilton, with whom she resided in Allegany County, Maryland, until the month of July, 1936. That the said Lloyd Edward Hamilton has abandoned and deserted her without just cause or reason and that such abandonment has continued since July, 1936, uninterruptedly, and is deliberate and final and the separation of the parties is beyond any expectation of reconciliation. That the said Hagar Dagmar Hamilton and Lloyd Edward Hamilton have had two children born to them from said marriage, namely, Mary Ellan and Vida Dagmar Hamilton, and that the said Lloyd Edward Hamilton is a non-resident of the State of Maryland.

It is thereupon, this 18th day of April, 1942, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Garrett County, once in each of four successive weeks before the 22nd day of May, 1942, giving notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this Bill, warning him to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before the 6th day of June, 1942, to show cause, if any he has, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

Clerk of the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

ASSIGNEE'S SALE
—OF—
VALUABLE REAL ESTATE
In District No. 14, Garrett County, Maryland

Under and by virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage executed by Thomas J. Browning, Herbert W. Browning, Charles C. Browning and Guy W. Browning and Goldie Browning, his wife, dated April 23, 1931, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 101, folio 498, one of the Mortgage Records of Garrett County, Maryland, default having been made in the payment of the indebtedness secured by said mortgage as provided by the terms thereof and other covenants therein contained, and the same having been assigned to the undersigned for the purpose of foreclosure, I hereby give notice that on FRIDAY, MAY 29, 1942.

At the Hour of Eleven o'Clock A. M.,

in front of the Court House in the Town of Oakland, Garrett County, Maryland, I will offer and sell at public auction what is known as the Thomas J. Browning Farm, situate near Thayerville, about nine miles North of Oakland, along U. S.-Maryland Route 219, the same being composed of the following pieces and parcels of land, to-wit:

1. All that piece or parcel of land, containing 100 acres, more or less, which was conveyed unto the said Thomas J. Browning by deed from John L. Browning and wife dated March 3, 1884, and recorded in Liber W. H. T., No. 8, folio 422, one of the Land Records of Garrett County.

2. All that part of the tract of land called "Deep Creek Farm," containing 26½ acres, more or less, and also a part of the tract called "Davis' Discovery," containing 3½ acres, more or less, and being the same parcels of land which were conveyed to the said Thomas J. Browning by deed from Mary M. Porter and husband dated December 23, 1887, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 14, folio 84, one of said Land Records.

3. Military Lot No. 1744, containing 50 acres, which was conveyed to the said Thomas J. Browning by deed from William Groves et al., dated July 3, 1903, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 46, folio 59, one of said Land Records.

4. All that other piece or parcel of land containing 42½ acres, more or less, which was conveyed to the said Thomas J. Browning by deed from John F. Browning et al., dated November 29, 1904, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 49, folio 87, one of said Land Records.

The above parcels of land are the same which were also conveyed by said Thomas J. Browning to Herbert W. Browning, Lee Browning, Charles C. Browning and Guy W. Browning by deed dated August 23, 1935, and recorded in Liber A. G. R., No. 112, folio 565, Land Records of Garrett County.

Save and excepting the following parcels of land conveyed away by said Thomas J. Browning prior to the execution of said mortgage, to-wit:

(1) A parcel containing 22½ acres conveyed to Carter Browning by deed dated July 17, 1930, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 100, folio 541, one of the Land Records of Garrett County.

(2) 3.45 acres conveyed to Eastern Land Corporation by deed dated April 12, 1924, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 86, folio 574, one of said Land Records.

(3) 1 acre and 45 square feet conveyed to Columbus L. Paugh, et al., Trustees of Pleasant Valley M. E. Church, by deed dated November 14, 1901, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 40, folio 160, one of said Land Records.

(4) One-half acre conveyed to The Board of School Commissioners of Garrett County by deed dated June 4, 1898, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 34, folio 423, one of said Land Records.

(5) 1 acre and 145¾ perches conveyed to William M. Thayer by deed dated August 24, 1893, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 26, folio 73, one of said Land Records.

(6) A small parcel of land containing approximately 51 perches, conveyed to the Trustees of the Deep Creek Baptist Church, by deed dated August 30, 1892, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 22, folio 258, one of said Land Records.

(7) A right-of-way for electric transmission line granted to Associated Maryland Electric Power Corporation by agreement dated October 14, 1930, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 102, folio 70, one of said Land Records.

All of said land is contiguous and comprises one farm, containing 192 acres, more or less, as ascertained from the above deeds, the acreage given by the County Assessment Record however, being only 168 4-5 acres. About 80 acres are cleared and under cultivation and the balance is pasture and wooded land.

Said farm is improved by a good, two-story frame dwelling, a large barn and other usual and necessary sheds and outbuildings. The farm is fenced and well watered; is well located along the above improved road and is a very attractive property.

All annual crops pitched or cultivated on said land will pass to the purchaser under the terms of the said Mortgage.

TERMS OF SALE—Cash on day of sale.

ERNEST RAY JONES,
Assignee of Mortgage for the Purpose of Foreclosure.

DIARY OF THE WAR

FRIDAY—Japs were overrunning Lashio, had cut Burma road and had driven wedge between British and Chinese armies. British fell back to protect approaches to India. In Australia new allied raids on Jap base at Lae smashed twenty enemy planes on ground. Japs made a counter-raid on Port Moresby. Guns of Corregidor in Manila Bay smashed enemy batteries and destroyed a truck column on Bataan. Japs were landing reinforcements on Mindanao. Another British air raid struck at Paris airplane motor and rubber factories, at Nazi airdromes and docks. Germans raided Norwich in England. Admiral Stark reached London as commander of American naval operations in European waters. It was disclosed American bombers and fighters were in service with Soviet armies and that American supplies were arriving according to schedule. Russians reported continued gains against Nazis and later admitted strong tank thrusts around Orel. South Africa was speeding plans to meet war if it came to that area.

SATURDAY—Japs appeared to be trying to follow Burma road into China as they had gone beyond Lashio. In Central Burma British withdrew to right bank of Irrawaddy river west of Mandalay. Chunking announced alternative supply routes through India were in operation. Allied bombers caught 30 Jap planes aground at Lae and three were shot down near Salamaua. Enemy planes raided northeastern tip of Australia. Corregidor's guns shot down three Jap planes and damaged others. Hitler and Mussolini completed two-day conference. In Belgium a Nazi gas and explosive factory blew up, evidently by sabotage. British resumed aerial assault in force. Russia announced sinking of German battleship in Baltic.

SUNDAY—All-India congress decided to urge its people not to fight if their country is invaded by Japan but to resist by non-violent non-cooperation. U. S. troops were going into Africa in increasing numbers. Japs reported capture of Mandalay but Chinese said enemy drive was halted. Jap planes over Australia brought people there on the alert against an invasion attack. Red tanks were driving deeper wedges between German positions and were recapturing strong points. Hitler called on German labor to back up combatants at front in a May Day message.

MONDAY—A Jap column struck west from Mandalay toward India. Chinese and volunteer flyers attacked Lashio and Chinese troops under Stillwell, U. S. A., were still harrassing the enemy. British declared Gneisenau and Scharnhorst and Prinz battleships were knocked out for many months by bombs and torpedoes. British continued its air attacks with special targets in Copenhagen and France, northern Italy. Russians took oath to defeat Nazis this year. Allied pilots in Australia destroyed nine planes and crippled six, and damaged two transports around New Britain and New Guinea. British bombers bombed Axis sub base near Turkey, and airdromes in Greece and nearby. Gen. Brereton pledged U. S. ready to defend India. Corregidor's men again rescued American flag when it was shot from pole.

TUESDAY — British occupied French island of Madagascar off Africa to guard supply lines to Indian ocean and Australia. British airmen turned upon German naval bases and airdromes in Norway, France and Germany. The Japs in Burma were pushing on in three strong columns and were within 25 miles of China, 150 miles from India. Jap infantry tried to march on Port Moresby in New Guinea but withdrew. Corregidor underwent 13 air attacks and Japs sank gunboat near the fort with no loss of life. Nazis executed 72 Dutch, 55 French because of assaults on soldiers in occupied countries. Reds announced their troops were waging offensive battles.

WEDNESDAY—Japs made landings on Corregidor and a desperate battle was in progress. With American-Philipino forces vastly outnumbered it was feared the fall of the fortress was not far distant. Meanwhile British were moving on the naval base on Madagascar but the French were resisting; however British had advanced six miles after making a forced landing. Laval was irritated at U. S. approval but declared he would not take first step in any rupture with relations with U. S. British followed up day bombing attacks with more night bombings against Nazis, going as far as Pilsen to bomb Skoda munitions works. Reds were attacking three vital Nazi bases of Kharkov, Kursk and Taganrog. Army announced plans of increasing size to 6 million men. Japs were storming into China by the Burma route and were trying to outflank British retreating toward India.

THURSDAY — Corregidor and other Manila Bay fortresses fell after heroic struggles. Naval and marine forces there were about 3,845. On Madagascar the British were advancing through violent French resistance and the fall of the naval base there was imminent. Vichy reported 23 British ships were there. French admitted losing two warships, a sub and auxiliary cruiser. In Burma the Jap conquest was being extended but American air power was in strong action against enemy main bases. In 24 hours U. S. planes had smashed 40 Jap planes and damaged 25 more on an airdrome near Rangoon. RAF also was covering withdrawal of British army in Burma. News was somewhat meager on Russian front but Reds reported continuing successes and capture of river valley from Nazis. U. S. cruiser Marblehead, claimed sunk by Japs near Java, entered an east coast port for repairs. Three more ships were sunk by enemy subs off east coast.

Washington Snapshots

By JAMES PRESTON

Labor is still in the spotlight here, and the problem of what to do about strikes continues to receive attention. The recent tesimony of Admiral Land, Chairman of the Maritime Commission, that "this infernal agitation is going around in everybody's head about whether it should be a closed or open shop, or whether they should join this or that union" made a deep impression on many Congressmen.

Added to this is the fact that strikes in war inlustries were more serious in March than they were in February, according to figures released by the War Labor Board. An official WLB release listed 73 strikes in March, as compared with 55 in the month before. During March strikes involved 35,000 workers and caused a loss of 167,000 man-days. The February figures were 23,000 workers and 119,000 man-days.

In spite of this marked increase WLB officials say that the general labor situation is good and that no legislation is necessary. Many Congressmen, however, remain unconvinced, and, unless the situation improves, they are apt to become more insistent that something be done to guarantee continuous, no-strike production in war plants.

Observers here are watching the new War Manpower Commission, headed by Paul V. McNutt, as it formulates its plans for "labor priorities." Although Chairman McNutt says that he hopes the plan can be operated on a vountary basis, he admits that "circumstances will determine that." Key Administration officials, however, indicate that some sort of compulsory assignment of workers will be adopted—probably after the November election.

According to present plans, 13 million new recruits will be needed in war factories by the end of the year if industry is to continue to beat its promise in the production of munitions. Many of them must come from peacetime industries. When they are taken from such industries, an effort will be made to use skills where they are most productive, Mr. McNutt says, but he indicated that there would be no widespreal migration of labor from one occupation to another if it can be prevented. The main concern, however, is victory production, and it's a safe bet that other considerations will be subordinated to that. It's recognized here that war industries are generally on schedule and in many cases are ahead of schedule on orders, but they will need a steady supply of new employes to maintain their records.

Industrial slowdowns in war production work are catching the attention of many government officials at the moment. The Army and Navy are pooling efforts with five other government agencies (Maritime Commission, War Production Board, War Labor Board, U. S. Conciliation Service and Bureau of Labor Statistics) to combat the practice.

According to those "in the know," slowdowns fall into two classes. The first is intentional and is engineered by labor as a means of securing concessions from employers. The second is caused by apathy and low morale on the part of the individual worker.

It's pointed out here that industry has already tackled the second with morale-building campaigns in war plants, and officials recognize that such plans are already producing results. What to do about the first cause is another problem, and is tied up with the entire labor picture, especially as it involves labor union cooperation in the war effort.

MARRIED

STUCK-TEETS—Miss Jean Teets, of Aurora, W. Va., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Teets, became the bride of George Stuck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard P. Stuck, of Oakland, on Monday, April 27, at 3 p. m., at the latter's home on Second street. Rev. Minor Sprague, Methodist minister, officiated.

Their only attendants were Miss Adaline Stuck, sister of the groom, and Homer Livingston, both of Pittsburgh. Members of the immediate families were present.

The bride was attired in a light grey traveling suit. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home after which the couple left for a brief trip to Cumberland.

The groom is now in the armed forces, stationed at Camp Dix, N. J., and had to report back to his company last Wednesday. He was graduated from Oakland High school in 1933 and several years previous to his entrance into the U. S. army was employed at the Ray Teets garage. The bride was graduated from Aurora high school in 1935.

FRANTZ-HAUSER—Miss Maxine Hauser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Darwin Hauser, Oakland, became the bride of Glenn W. Frantz, of Aberdeen, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Frantz, Oakland, on Sunday, May 3, at Belair, Md. The ceremony was performed in the Methodist parsonage by Rev. G. G. Ogg, pastor of the church there.

Attendants of the couple were Miss Evelyn Hauser, Washington, D. C., sister of the bride, and Paul DeWitt, of Washington, formerly of Oakland.

The bride attended Oakland High school and was graduated from Allegany high in Cumberland in 1940. She has been employed in Washington, D. C., for several months.

The groom was graduated from Oakland High school in 1940 and for more than a year has been at the Proving Grounds at Aberdeen as a fireman under Federal civil service. The couple spent a few days with her parents this week. They will reside at Aberdeen

Titchnell-Welch

Friends here have learned with interest of the marriage of Miss Vera Welch, of Oakland, to Sergeant Fred Tichnell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Tichnell, Mt. Lake Park. The marriage took place at Bethesda, Md., in the Methodist church. Both are Oakland High school graduates. Sergt. Tichnell is stationed at Langley Field, Va., and Mrs. Tichnell has been and will continue to be with the War Department, in Washington, D. C. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert M. Welch, of Oakland.

MT. LAKE PARK

"Strike—for your altars and your fires;
Strike—for the green graves of your sires;
God—and your native land'."
—Fitz-Greene Halleck.

Remember that poem from your school days? That's as far as we can recall, but that's far enough for what we have to say. In another part of this paper you will read of "The Legion of Death." We have been hearing a good deal about this group ever since the last registration day when those who registered were amazed at their number. They gathered in small groups and discussed it. "Isn't there something we old fellows can do?" was the question going round. But just how to go about it they did not know. Then Dr. W. B. Love put forth an idea. The idea grew until the result was the Legion of Death, and they are signing, each and everyone. This writer—and we believe our readers—also salute them.

THE REPUBLICAN

VOLUME 66. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, MAY 14, 1942. NUMBER 12.

Pratt Library

More Than Guns . . . . . .

When total war hits a nation, it means far more than steel and aluminum, airplanes and tanks, machine tools and auto industry conversion. It means hard work and sacrifice on the part of everyone—farmers and the people who make civilian goods as much as those who work in the more spectacular war industries.

The men and women who man the civilian front have the task of supplying the American people, as well as a large part of the rest of the world, with necessary food and clothing. Theirs is the task of keeping the best-fed and best-equipped army in the world—an ever-growing U. S. Army—in the field.

And that is no easy task in these days of scarcities—scarcity of raw materials, scarcity of labor and scarcity of time.

Theirs is really an enormous job, for the average American in the Army needs almost double the food and clothing he gets in civilian life. The average male civilian in this country eats 125 pounds of meat a year. The soldier gets 360 pounds. The civilian drinks 150 pounds of milk, but the soldier drinks 210 pounds. The civilian wears two pairs of shoes a year, the soldier three. The civilian gets one pair of trousers, the soldier five.

These manufacturers and producers of "non-essential" goods are making it their job to see to it that the civilian population—millions of whom are manning the production front—do not suffer for want of essential food and clothing, and that our soldiers have the highest quality of everything necessary to make them the strongest army ever known.

PRICE CONTROL RESTRICTIONS ARE EXPLAINED

Merchants Gather at Oakland High Last Thursday to Hear About Regulations to Prevent Inflation

About 250 merchants and business men of the county attended a meeting last Thursday night in Oakland high school to learn of the price control regulations which go into effect May 18.

Speaking at the meeting were Dr. Lloyd C. Reynolds, regional price executive; Robert Lowery, regional counsel; and Leo H. McCormick, regional director.

A general discussion brought out many questions but definite answers were lacking on a number of them, it was stated by business men who attended. A lot of the merchants expressed dissatisfaction over the regulations but considered they were powerless to do anything about it.

Operation of an overall regulation setting price ceilings as of March, 1942, in a national effort to keep down the cost of living was explained by the representatives.

It was shown that the price ceiling order was placed in effect as the quickest way to control rapidly rising prices of the manufacturer, wholesaler and retailer. At the same time the ceiling was said to tend to preserve business stability, the value of the dollar, and to prevent a breakdown of prices such as followed the first world war.

March Price Determines Ceiling

Highest prices on articles sold in March, 1942, will determine the individual price ceilings which will become effective May 18, for retailers, and on May 11, for manufacturers and wholesalers. One merchant's price ceiling can be higher than anothers if his maximum price in March was higher.

It was pointed out that price control would involve "certain hardships" but that adjustments could be made if application was made to the board. In some instances it was shown that merchants would have to take a loss or a very small margin of profit.

Mr. Reynolds said that although the merchant was being asked to take a loss on some commodities it was the same thing on a small scale that would happen generally if there were no price ceiling and a price collapse followed the war.

Operate Under License

Enforcement provisions of the regulation were also explained and that after May 18 businesses would be operating under a license. If a merchant "wilfully" violated the regulation the license would be revoked and he would be out of business for a year. This is the most drastic regulation and would be invoked only after repeated notice to the offender.

A second enforcement proviso subjects the violator to treble damages or $50, whichever is greater, payable to a customer who has been charged more than the price ceiling.

Local rationing boards will be active in enforcement of the price ceiling act.

Methodist Societies to Meet

The Women's Christian Service circles of St. Paul's Methodist church will meet this evening as follows: Circle one at 7:30, with Mrs. J. E. Harned, Mrs. Ernest Liller and Mrs. W. A. Johnson assisting; circle two at 8 o'clock with Mrs. Melvin Kight; circle three, 6:30, at the church. A covered dish supper to be served to the circle members and invited guests; circle four at 8 o'clock at the home of Mrs. J. W. Butt, Mrs. John Khare assisting.

Progress Shown On 'Legion of Death'

Much interest and a great deal of progress in the society, "The Legion of Death," have been reported this week by Dr. W. B. Love, Mt. Lake Park, retired Presbyterian minister, who wrote the covenant that many of the older men of the county are signing to meet the invader at the sea coast if necessary and to give their lives to keep America free.

A number of the blanks have been filled in and mailed to this office, while Dr. Love has had many signers to a copy of the covenant which he has.

The blank is appearing again in The Republican this week. One person who personally brought his pledge to the office this week, said, "We are willing to fight and die if necessary, but we also want to know that government officials are giving up everything but war essentials, and that they are cutting out all their foolishness and getting down to business, too. We are patriotic. We want them to be too.

Another person, although signing the pledge, thought it should be called the "Legion of Life," for if it failed, there would be no life or liberty for anyone.

High School Students to Elect for Boys' Week

Lewis Jones, city attorney, spoke to the student body of the Oakland high school on Tuesday in preparation for the Boys' Week election.

Registration of the student body will take place on Friday, May 15, and the election will be on Wednesday, May 20, with all students eligible to vote, but only seniors eligible for election. Candidates must file a petition, just as in the regular municipal election. A mayor, six councilmen, a chief clerk, attorney and chief of police, will be elected.

F. E. RATHBUN NAMED COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT

Will Serve Until July 31, 1946; Board Reorganizes With W. W. Dawson Again President

Franklin E. Rathbun, who on August 1 will have served as County Superintendent of Schools for Garrett county for 30 years, was unanimously reappointed to that position and as secretary-treasurer of the Board of Education at a meeting of the Board on Tuesday. His new term will expire on July 31, 1946, which will complete thirty-four years of service for him in that position in this county.

The Board also reorganized at its meeting by re-electing Walter W. Dawson, president; Stuart F. Hamill, vice-president; and R. E. Guard as associate member. A. T. Matthews was re-appointed as attorney to the board.

Resignations of the following teachers were accepted: Mrs. Gwendolyn Warnick, Lynndale school; Marvin G. Callis, Accident High school; Mrs. Martha H. Lawton, Oakland High; Pauline Beachy, Black Hawk; Mrs. Ruth Feefe Grimm, Grantsville; and Emerson Bishoff, Accident. Most of them actually stopped teaching sometime ago.

The board also accepted the resignation of Mrs. Mary Grace Umstot as stenographer in its office and appointed Miss Hasaleah Yutzy to fill the vacancy, effective about June 1.

McHenry School Consolidated

The Board passed an order consolidating the McHenry one-teacher school with the Accident elementary school, transportation to be provided by facilities already in operation without additional costs.

Mr. Rathbun said this action appeared mandatory upon the part of the board due to the small enrollment of only six pupils in that school. Mrs. Blanche Forsythe Matthews, the teacher, was transferred as teacher in the Friendsville elementary school, taking the place of Mrs. Helen Statler Evans, 4th and 5th grades, who resigned on May 1. Mrs. Matthews now has 56 pupils in those two grades.

The board took under consideration for later decision the proposal of closing the Chestnut Grove school near Bloomington and transporting the pupils to the Bloomington school, he said. Transportation facilities are already in operation.

Points to Resolution

The board requested that the attention of principals be called to the resolution of the board passed in 1938, that $10.00 per night be charged, with $2.00 added for janitor services, for use of auditoriums in school buildings for agencies and organizations outside of the school itself.

The attention of the board was called to an opinion of the Attorney General of Maryland that a tuition fee be charged for pupils attending the county public schools whose parents may live in Federal owned properties. The number of such projects keep increasing in this county, Mr. Rathbun said.

Request Storage Space

Requests for use of school buildings in the county were presented to the board of conservation of cultural resources for storing certain records of value from Annapolis and other eastern cities.

The board considered briefly the construction of new school buildings needed in the county, the same to be included in the program of the National Resources Planning Board as sponsored by the Federal Government, for creating employment after the present war.

Application forms for positions in the Glenn L. Martin Aircraft Co., Baltimore, were submitted to the board, the latter requesting that the forms be made available to any parties desiring employment. They may be secured at the school board office in the court house upon application.

Odd Fellows At Park Plan Big Celebration

Members of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows are planning a big celebration on Thursday evening, May 21, at the hall in Loch Lynn, when veteran jewels will be awarded to twenty-five members who have been members for twenty-five to forty years.

W. H. McRobie, Mt. Lake Park, has announced that a program of interest has been arranged. There will be a banquet at 7 o'clock for members and their wives and all Rebekahs and their husbands.

20,517 Apply For Sugar Ration Cards

A total of 20,517 applications were made for sugar ration books in Garrett county, it was announced this morning by the county rationing board. Of this number the school teachers issued 19,544 books, the remaining number having too much sugar on hand at the time of registration to entitle them to books.

As the total population of the county in 1940 was 21,981, it was clear that all but a small percentage made application for the books.

The ration board said that unintentional violations were being reported, some storekeepers giving out only half a pound for stamp No. 1, when it is good for two weeks and 1 pound, while others were taking stamp No. 2 for sugar, when that stamp is not supposed to be used until the two-week period May 18 to 30, inclusive.

To Help Boost Sale Of War Bonds Here

Legion Drum Corps From Tri-Towns Area to Be Here Tonight

To assist in the sale of War Bonds and stamps in Garrett county, the local post of American Legion has accepted an offer of the Kelly Mansfield Legion drum corps of Piedmont and Westernport veterans to come to Oakland on Thursday evening.

This drum corps which has appeared here upon several former occasions, will parade and give a drilling exhibition on Second street prior to several short speeches which will endeavor to fill those present with the need of purchasing war bonds.

The First National Bank, corner of Second and Alder streets, will remain open to accommodate those who wish to purchase the bonds at that time.

This drum corps has been traveling throughout this area in past weeks and in a number of communities have been highly successful in persuading the people to buy more bonds and stamps.

Following a meeting of a legion committee on Tuesday night it was announced that a portion of Second street will be illuminated by flood lights. The legionnaires will entertain members of the drum corps at the city hall following the rally.

Three Garrett Countains Among Mine Blast Victims

Three Garrett county people were among the fifty-six or more who were killed in the mine explosion at Osage, W. Va., on Monday.

They were Darrel Adams, 36, a cousin of J. W. Owens, sheriff. He has a wife, three children and his parents surviving.

James Foley, whose family of seven children are living on the George Harvey farm in this county.

Harland Murphy, Deer Park.

Harry and Albert Mayle, Deer Park, were in the mine at the time of the explosion, but were able to get out without injury.

Forty-five bodies have been recovered from the mine and eleven are yet to be found. Five rescue crews were working in four-hour shifts and were still forced to wear oxygen helmets because of fumes remaining in the affected area, three miles underground.

Employment Office to Be Open Thursday Nights

The Oakland office of the U. S. Employment service is starting on Thursday, May 21, to remain open each Thursday evening from 7 to 9, for the convenience of persons desiring assistance in completing their occupational questionnaires which are being sent out all over the county to men between 18 and 44 who registered for selective service on February 16.

This is in addition to the regular hours 8:30 to 5 on week-days and 8:30 to 12:30 on Saturday.

The questionnaires are being sent out by the Draft board. When they have been sent out to all who registered in the third registration, those in the first, second and fourth registrations, will receive them.

Attend FBI School at Cumberland Monday

Mark H. Moon, Oakland; J. S. Teats, Friendsville; and Daniel W. Hershberger, Grantsville, were among the law enforcement officers who attended the FBI conference for police held in Cumberland on Monday. There was a thorough discussion relative to alien enemy regulations and violations of the Select Service Act.

WOMEN SET PRECEDENT IN STYLING WORK GARMENTS

Victory Style Revue Last Week Is Addressed by Miss Helen Shelby, Clothing Specialist

Garrett County Homemakers have set a precedent in the state by styling work garments at a victory style revue last week at Mt. Lake Park.

Miss Helen Shelby, clothing specialist, University of Maryland, declared that Garrett county was the first place where she had seen homemakers style work garments. "In the past," she said, "rural women have avoided being seen in garments worn for work, but with the present emphasis in the designing of work clothes the picture is changed and these garments are worn with pleasure and pride.

Miss Shelby was the principal speaker at the afternoon session of the style revue held last Wednesday in the Bowling Alley at the Park.

In the line of clothing of the future, Miss Shelby said that "women would wear what they have and be happy about it. Fashion has been frozen at a point where the clothing is of a comfortable, practical and attractive style. Clothing will be made to last, and old garments will be remodeled and adapted to new uses."

"The present fashion stagnation and fabric limitation need not mean that women are not well dressed," she stressed "for by increased emphasis on good grooming and caution in selection and care of clothing, the women may present an even better appearance."

The revue of work garments, sponsored by the clothing committee of the County Homemakers' clubs was combined with a general overview of the present food program. Miss Marianna Lee Long, home demonstration agent, said that though only a very few garments were shown, a good picture of the clothing program was presented.

Mrs. W. W. DeWitt, Hoyes club, spoke on Victory Gardens; Mrs. C. C. Beachy, Grantsville, on Food for the Winter; Mrs. Olga Elliott, Mt. Lake Park, on Food for the Table; Mrs. Robert Hoffman, Oakland, on What to Eat and Why.

Following the revue Mrs. Rebecca F. Canan, president of the County Council of Homemakers' clubs and Mrs. Zelda Gnegy, county clothing committee chairman, presided over a silver tea. Mrs. Canan had previously given an address of welcome. Mrs. H. Robert DeWitt, Hoyes club, acted as commentator and group singing was led by Mrs. Felix Robinson of the Oakland club.

To Make Drive For USO and Navy Relief

A meeting in Baltimore on Monday will start Maryland's appeal for a joint war fund of $850,000 for the work of the USO and the Navy Relief Society, it has been announced by Roy B. White and Howard Bruce, state chairmen of the two societies.

Charles L. Briner, Jr., was recently appointed chairman for Garrett county and he is selecting eleven other people from the county to act on this committee. The county quota has been set at $2,200 for United Service Organization, and $450.00 for the Navy Relief.

Cecil Smith will act as treasurer for the county and any donations can be given to him. Pledge cards will be available soon, Mr. Briner said. The drive will continue for about a month.

Whether or not anyone from this county would attend the dinner in Baltimore on Monday, was not known.

Free Scholarships Are Available By Examination

Competitive examinations for free scholarships to various institutions of learning in Maryland are to be conducted in Oakland high school on Saturday, May 28, beginning at 10 o'clock, it was announced by F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent.

Scholarships will be available at Washington college, Chestertown, open to boys only, free board, room rent and tuition; Western Maryland college, Westminster, open to young women only, free board, room rent and tuition.

Examinations will be in charge of the county board of education. The scholarships are to be awarded by Senator Clifford Friend.

The regular meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club will be held this evening at the William-James hotel, at which time officers will be elected and the delegates named who will attend the state convention to be held in Cumberland over the week-end.

Lions Club Meets At Table Rock Inn

Members of the Oakland-Mt. Lake Lions club journeyed to Table Rock Inn for their weekly luncheon on Monday evening where Erval Ream provided a bounteous repast.

About 35 members and guests were present to hear Robert W. Lohr explain the results of his schooling on methods of handling incendiary bombs. The discourse was instructive and interesting.

Mayor L. M. Fraley explained the progress which has been made in the Civilian Defense Organization in this county.

Next week the luncheon will again be at the William-James Hotel, where Howard Smouse will be a guest and will tell of his experiences on the U. S. S. Cruiser Marblehead.

Most of County's Gasoline Supply Is From West Virginia

Distributors Refute Charge That Gas Is Distributed Through Cumberland

Asserting that Allegany county filling station operators were "talking through their hats," Garrett county gasoline distributors cracked back today at those neighboring county people who have expressed bewilderment as to why this county should be unrationed, and Allegany county rationed.

Denying the contention of Allegany operators that most of Garrett's supply passed through Cumberland en route to Garrett county retailers, distributors in the Oakland area declared that almost all of the gasoline was transported from West Virginia.

Out of eight brands they said, five were trucked in from Parkersburg or Morgantown, W. Va., one was being brought from Louisiana, and another from Pennsylvania. Only one, they insisted, came from Baltimore, and presumably through Cumberland in Gulf, American, Viking, Conoco, Blue transit. Those listed were Standard, Sunoco, Cities Service and Richfield.

Walter W. Dawson, ration board chairman, said he understood that gasoline distributors were notified not to furnish gasoline to any newly set up place of business in the territory, which would forestall any move of borderline stations in the adjoining county from planning to move into this county.

Dawson said there had to be a borderline somewhere and that Allegany county wouldn't improve its position by trying to drag Garrett county into the restricted zone.

To Observe Memorial Day Sunday, May 31

Memorial Day, which falls this year on Saturday, will be officially observed by the American Legion and Knights of Pythias organizations on Sunday afternoon, May 31, it was announced yesterday.

Legionnaires and Knights of Pythias members, accompanied by the local band, will form in procession at the City Hall at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and proceed to the cemetery, where appropriate services will be conducted.

Rev. Garrett Evans, pastor of the Methodist church at Mt. Lake Park, will be the speaker. Pythians will decorate the graves of their departed members, while members of the Legion will place a flag at the graves of veterans of all wars. Organization ceremonies will be carried out by both groups at their usual places, the Pythians at their memorial monument, and the Legionnaires at the tomb of the unknown soldier.

Additional Men Sought For Increasing Police Force

The Commissioner of Employment for Maryland has announced that an eligible list for troopers on the state police force is being established and that application blanks may be obtained from any police barracks in the state.

Applications can be returned up to May 21. Anyone interested may obtain further information from Corporal Thos. Currie, Oakland, or any other member of the force. The 1941 legislature gave authority to add 35 state police to the force, and 40 more effective October 1, 1942.

Those applying should be physically able, mentally alert, and between 21 and 30. The entrance salary is $1,500 per annum, in addition to uniform and maintenance.

There are also opportunities for appointment as a sub-station clerk.

GARRETT COUNTY EXEMPTED FROM GAS RATIONING

Is Only One in Maryland Excluded From Gasoline Rationing Area in Eastern United States

Garrett County has been excluded from the gasoline rationing area and from present restrictions on deliveries to filling stations, under recommendations made to the War Production Board by Harold L. Ickes, Petroleum coordinator.

Similarly, all of West Virginia, except eight counties in the Eastern Panhandle, will be excluded. Ten counties in southwestern Virginia, twenty-five in Western Pennsylvania and ten in Western New York State will also be left out.

Mr. Ickes recommendations which were approved without revision by the WPB, were based on the fact that the production of gasoline augmented by supplies from nearby producing areas, was adequate to warrant unlimited deliveries.

Official word about the exclusion of Garrett county, the only one in Maryland, from the rationing, was received in Oakland on Saturday morning by telegram to Walter W. Dawson, as chairman of the rationing board. The telegram came from Leo H. McCormick, acting regional director, and stated "You will not participate in gasoline rationing. Only counties in Maryland East and Southeast of Garrett County will ration gasoline under the OPA program."

The above was confirmed by telephone. Immediately Mr. Dawson and F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent, made arrangements to call off the registration of automobile owners for the purpose of issuing rationing cards, which was to take place in all elementary schools of the county on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Letters were sent to all teachers.

As news of this "break" spread quickly, county business men and owners of property in Mountain Lake Park, Oakland and along Deep Creek Lake became optimistic about their usual summer resort business and were encouraged to believe that with restrictions on in eastern areas, the season might be one of the best in years, as many people might plan to spend most of the vacation season in this area.

The counties exempted, however, were warned that such an arrangement probably would not be permanent and that the rationing might be extended to include them when the present supplies declined and transportation facilities are shifted to the sections of critical shortages.

With the exception of the ninety-three counties listed, gasoline rationing is to go into effect in seventeen eastern states on Friday, May 15. Counties in West Virginia that are not exempt are Mineral, Grant, Pendleton, Hampshire, Hardy, Morgan, Berkeley and Jefferson.

Judgment Needed

Filling station proprietors along the borderline are urged by the rationing board to use their best judgment when presented with problems which are sure to arise.

For instance the Board says that filling stations in Kitzmiller are not supposed to sell gas to people in Blaine, W. Va., just across the Potomac, or to anyone in the rationing area, in ordinary business.

People in the unrationed area will not have cards, therefore they will not be able to get gasoline in a rationed area, except in case of necessity when needing to return to their homes. For instance a Garrett countian might go to Baltimore and be able to get enough gas there to return home, but he couldn't get gas there to continue a journey, deeper into the rationed area.

Allegany county people will be able to come to Garrett county and get enough gasoline to return home, but will not be able to cross the line just for purposes of filling up their tanks or some reserve barrels, etc.

Tourists, students and teachers away from home on Friday, when rationing goes into effect, will be assured enough supply to get home.

In case of sickness or traveling to the bedside of a person in the family who is ill, gasoline will be available.

People coming to Garrett county to spend the summer here, or who have property along Deep Creek Lake, will be able to obtain gas.

A message was received by relatives residing in this county last Saturday conveying the news of the death of Frank Swindler, a former resident of Hutton. Mr. Swindler died in a hospital at or near Endicott, N. Y., where he has been residing for a number of years.

THE NIT WIT

By SARAH McCAHEY

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

YOU'D never guess that among the 500 visitors at the Ocean View, the most important and expensive hotel at Rock Island, 15 miles out from the mainland, one of the richest oil men in the United States mingled with the other guests entirely unknown to them.

It was a banner year for the big summer hotel, and one might well lose himself in the crowd—and that is just what had been prescribed for the oil magnate.

"Cut into a new life for the next few weeks and keep away from the business crowd," had been his doctor's advice, and Robert Stratton had packed his grip for his old home town, although no one could ever believe that he was not born and bred in the maelstrom of New York's commercial life.

Well he remembered the day he had left the island! He had held a sort of reception on the dock before he boarded the Shinnecock bound for New York.

"Aren't you going to say 'good-by' to Arabella?" teased his chum, Lon Littlefield.

Robert hadn't had a very high regard for Arabella's intellectual attainments; also the sun had been too partial to her when he was scattering his freckles around—moreover, she lisped!

"Not if I know it—she's a nit wit!" the potential adventurer had scoffed.

Now it is a well-known fact that people say things among themselves about another, they would never want the object of their criticism to know about.

So Robert Stratton, unconscious that his flip remark had been overheard, was shaken out of the conceit that his 18 years of conquest had engendered, by encountering a blaze of anger in the eyes of a 14-year-old girl who had come down with the others to see him off.

"I'll show you—I'll show you if I am a fool!" she had cried, and then had become inarticulate with mortification.

For he had been her hero.

And now, after 15 years, Robert Stratton, a rich bachelor from the metropolis, was a guest at the finest hotel, and was, so far, practically unknown to the other guests at the Ocean View, and was also realizing that his strangest and strongest memory in connection with the island, was the blaze of fury in the eyes of Arabella Dodge the day he left there.

The Sunday night following his arrival, the hotel management decided to give a concert to equip the little island hospital with radios for the dozen or more soldiers convalescing there.

The ballroom, the finest and biggest on the island, was filled with chairs and settees, and a small platform covered with beautiful rugs was raised at one end for the musical talent.

The high windows surrounding the ballroom and leading out into the piazza were opened, and Robert Stratton seated himself comfortably in one of the large piazza chairs to listen to the concert, unobserved and unnoticed.

As the opening number, two little tots dressed in pink, with gauze wings, fluttered in noiselessly and wordlessly on the tips of their pink toes, circled the platform, and then fluttered away again.

Then a woman, in simple white muslin, with a bright blue ribbon around her waist, ascended the one step of the platform and began to sing Shubert's beautiful "Ave Maria."

Robert Stratton had heard it sung many times in his life, but never to the accompaniment of the waves literally breaking beneath the lofty piazza on which he sat.

He looked toward the sea—at the golden path of the moon on the water—and felt he had never experienced anything so beautiful—and then he looked more intently at the singer! At Arabella Dodge!

Slender, of medium height—not one in 50 could wear that simple gown so enchantingly—the sweet high voice that rose and fell with easy grace and perfect technique filled the immense ballroom, and Robert Stratton threw away his cigar and drew his chair closer that he might not miss any of its sweetness.

Here was the answer to all his wanderings—right here in his little home town of New Foreham. That a woman as beautiful as Arabella Dodge should still live here and be able to sing so gloriously! Probably some summer visitor had taught her.

He thought he remembered her parents as quite old—she had had to stay with them on their little farm, most likely, and so had had no opportunity for meeting the man who must be fine for her to mate with. There was no island man fit for this beautiful woman who could sing so divinely!

This island was a beautiful place, anyway, he thought enthusiastically, and his wealth could make it a wonderfully popular summer resort by advertising and making it better known. As it was, a man couldn't take his car down here and ruin it on the roads as they now were—but he could build new roads. He was rich enough to finance an electric railway that could circle the little seagirt island, running along with the beach, and thus bring people to build classy little bungalows for summer homes. The place needed stirring up—why, even now, the cattle on the farms inland stampeded when they saw an automobile—as primitive as that!—and only 15 miles from one of the richest cities in the United States.

He could buy and reconstruct the magnificent Bearle mansion, built on a peninsula at the north shore, where the water slithered over a softly shelving beach for nearly a quarter of a mile—ideal for children—Arabella was the kind of a woman that would have children—all the island women had families.

A voice like hers in a hall with proper acoustics, or in a music room in her own home, could bring out its beauties more abundantly. There were dramatic possibilities there to be developed. New York in winter and Rock Island in the summer!

Robert Stratton reached for his pen and signed a large check and slipped it into the basket as it reached him—such an introduction must amaze her!

After all had gone to their rooms for the night, he still sat there—waiting!

Then a man came toward him, waving a slip of paper.

"Is this real—and are you real?" asked a deep, rich voice.

"Lon Littlefield, as I live!" and the two men shook hands.

"I did not know but what this check might be a hoax! I'm the chairman," laughed Littlefield.

Stratton congratulated him.

"It was a fine concert—I saw Arabella Dodge—"

"Yes? Here she comes," said Lon.

"How kind you are," exclaimed Arabella, after greeting him. "Your check will more than cover everything—and how I have wanted to see you!"

"Yes?" laughed Stratton happily. "You see," said Arabella, laughing merrily, "I always wanted you to know that you cured my lisp!"

"Really?" said Stratton blankly.

"Something must have happened to me the day you called me a 'nit wit'—'member?" and she laughed again. "I never was so angry in my life, and I have never lisped since!"

"She tells that story quite often," said Lon indulgently. "She says she is glad none of the children lisp."

"Children?" echoed the visitor.

"Yes," smiled Arabella, "the two little tots who introduced my song—weren't they charming, if I may say it of my own?"

"Indeed they were!" assured Stratton.

"We live in New York in the winter, but always come here for the summer—it's good for the wife and children—Arabella keeps up her voice when she is in New York," and Lon Littlefield smiled proudly.

"I think we have an ideal location here on the island, don't you?" asked Arabella, glancing toward the ocean sparkling in the moonlight.

"Yes, indeed!"

"Come out to the hospital tomorrow and see our plans begin to mature," invited the Littlefields as they departed.

Robert Stratton went to his room and packed his bag in somber silence.

How beautifully fate had slipped the skids under his little iridescent dream of conquest!

The Nit Wit!

And he had cured her lisp!

Perfect!!!

Nautical Grumbling Is Recalled by Old Salt

Sailors love to grouse, declares Sir Arthur Rostron, commodore of the Cunard fleet until his retirement, in his salty reminiscences, "Home From the Sea." Then he spins this yarn:

Once when in sail the skipper was in the habit of bringing his wife along on voyages and she was always full of compassion for the "poor fellows" before the mast. One Sunday they came aft to see the captain. The old complaint—bad food, bad cooking. The captain said he would look into it. He consulted his wife. Under her gentle suasion he decided to give the crew a treat next Sunday.

This consisted of several fat geese, the cooking of which was superintended by the captain's wife. She and the cook did their best and then sat down waiting for the applause. It did not eventuate. Instead they heard a heated argument going on forward, and one of the officers strolled that way to see what was the matter. The men were grumbling!

"Do you think," cried one in disgust, "they would have given us geese if they could have eaten them themselves—us? Not likely!"

Then there is the story about a skipper who was very keen on cleanliness on board ship, to the point of often being unreasonable and unfair. One day, in walking round the ship, he discovered some dust on a small ledge rather high up. Thinking that he would teach the responsible ones a sharp lesson, he placed a penny there. The following day, on inspection, he told the chief steward what he had done.

"I knew that ledge had been dirty a long time," he added; "it is never attended to."

With that, he reached up for his penny and drew down—two half-pennies. Some steward had seen him and passed the word along.

GRANTSVILLE

Injured by Axe

Fred Durst was painfully injured in an unusual accident which occurred Friday. He was walking through the woods, carrying an axe over his shoulder, when his foot caught in a root. As he fell the axe came forward and almost severed his right ear. He was brought to the office of a local physician, who sewed the injured ear back in place. Following treatment he was removed to his home near here.

Win Loving Cup

At a district banquet held at Accident Friday night, the Brethren Young Peoples Department of the Maple Grove church won the loving cup for having one hundred percent attendance. The local group took the cup from the Accident B. Y. P. D., who previously held it, on their home ground. Twenty-one members of the Maple Grove group attended. Approximately one hundred persons were present, representing the Maple Grove, Accident, Fairview, Frostburg and Westernport churches.

Infant Succumbs

The daughter born at 10 o'clock last Friday morning, to Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Wiley, near here, lived only a few hours and died about 5 o'clock Friday afternoon. Brief services for the infant were held Saturday afternoon and interment was in the Oak Dale cemetery. Mrs. Wiley is the former Cora Alverta Walls, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Walls.

W. S. C. S. Meets

The May meeting of the Women's Society of Christian Service of the Mt. Zion Methodist church, was held last Thursday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Layman, on Long Stretch, with Misses Clara and Leanna Layman as hostesses. Participating in the evening's program were Mrs. W. S. Layman, Mrs. Herbert Pope, Mrs. Francis McKenzie, Mrs. William Hetz, Mrs. George Durst, Mrs. Grace Jenkins and Miss Florence Fazenbaker. Mrs. William Murphy was admitted as a new member.

Following the session there was a brief social period when refreshments were served. Guests included Miss Ethel Simpson, Corlista Murphy, Marcella Wampler, Mrs. Jacob Ross and the Rev. V. R. Gillum.

To Give Play

Members of the high school dramatic club are rehearsing for the production "Wings Over Washington," a patriotic mystery-comedy, which will be presented in the school auditorium at 8 o'clock Friday, May 22.

This exciting drama, written in three acts, offers a combination of thrills, chills and hilarious laughter. A secluded island provides the setting for the play.

The cast includes Almira Hummel, Georgia McKenzie, Robert Swauger, Dorothy McKenzie, James Edwards, Denver Miller, Corlista Murphy, Betty Turner, Melvin Brenneman, Thomas Bender, Erlena Tipton and David Patton.

The production is being directed by Miss Kathryn Speicher, faculty sponser, and Miss Betty Jane Beachy, president of the club.

Mothers Are Honored

A special Mothers' day service was held Sunday at Maple Grove Church of the Brethren. In accordance with their custom, carnations were presented to several mothers in the congregation.

Those so honored were Mrs. Sarah Butler, the oldest mother present; Mrs. Elizabeth Yost, a member of the church for more than fifty years, and Mrs. Arthur Resh and Mrs. Rebecca Butler, both mother of thirteen children.

Turning Over An Old Leaf

By Phillip A. Gladheim

"There were faces to remember in the Valley of the Shadow;
There were faces unregarded, there were faces to forget;
There were fires of grief and fear that are a few forgotten ashes;
There were sparks of recognition that are not forgotten yet."

Last Sunday afternoon strolling up a slope of an abandoned meadow in the rear of our miniature farm, I espied arbutus in bloom. It lays so snugly under old grass and leaves that on first sight it reminds you of a hidden flame. This dainty herald of spring likes an unmolested slope. This is the first year I have observed it growing on our premises. Our neighbor to the south has an unused slope. It is from this slope, transported by the west wind as seed that young colonies have nestled within the shadow of the white pine trees.

For those of us who live in the mountains and whose interests and necessities are often at variance, the month of May is perhaps the worst month of the year when it comes to a choice between duty and pleasure. If one lives on a farm the soil insists on being served first. The plowing, planting, pruning and cleaning can keep a person perspiringly occupied. But while all these necessary things are being accomplished one hears joyous and plaintive melodies from the blossomed-decked boughs of the apple tree. And during an interval of rest one goes to a shady, moist nook and there finds wild flowers which should be identified and studied. Then one makes a resolution to find a companion and fare forth to the woods, bringing home specimens and making notes on the birds.

For most people this must wait until Sunday afternoons or when one is caught up with his work. It is the appreciation of these "decorations" of nature—the birds and the flowers—that enriches the meaning of life on the soil. A knowledge, however, of these things has come from city-bred people. The farmer by necessity is too preoccupied with his toil and the daily acceptance of the cycle of the soil. It is the nature-lovers, bred within the confinement of town and city that have discovered for all people the immense world of nature.

The people of this community should all be experts, at least in botany. Perhaps the best informed, and I am sure the most accommodating and instructive, botanist in the country lives here. His name is so well known through his book, "Wild Flowers of the Alleghenies," that it is hardly necessary to mention. I promised Dr. Harned this spring that too long had I been content with the mere identity of a flower, but that from now on I would use his book as a guide to a structural analysis of every plant. Dr. Harned, through his simplified lectures on a very complicated and profound subject, has given himself unreservedly to his community, our schools, and to many outside cultural centers. His lectures, together with his book, his daily propaganda in the drug store to make more people flower-conscious, should fertilize many minds. His enthusiasm and faith in his subject has been kept alive because he has been able to interest so many people. But when you sift things down a bit, do you know of one person besides Dr. Harned in this community who has taken sufficient interest to talk intelligently on the subject? There are a number of people who are doing exceptional things with the cultivated flower-garden like Max Jarboe, Mrs. Ernest Shirer, Mr. C. F. Hammond and others that may be named.

It is too much to expect that Dr. Harned will be able to find a person on whom he can place his mantle. But it is not too much to expect that many, with his practical text book, should absorb a working knowledge of botany, and rejoice at this season of the year when we can find agreeable companions making a day in the woods unforgettable with discoveries. Nature is so infinite in life and beauty that it always mirrors the very soul of our own existence. It takes such a little effort to learn so much that is permanently beautiful: a kind of knowledge that always interests others—a wealth of material to brighten up conversation.

The very title of this column, "Turning Over An Old Leaf," was inspired by the arbutus last April a year ago. This dainty flower with the delicate perfume sometimes entirely buried under an old leaf reminded me of many lives that have passed away through the flood of years, and many lives still being lived whose fine points are screened from public gaze because of the brevity of memory and the incapacity to evaluate character and beauty.

It is a generation in which only crass, material things are given a value. It is in protest to this incapacity that this column was started. Yes, under the ground are the dust remains of those who have lived and struggled just as we who underwent the conflicts with oblivion. But in our minds are stored in hidden recesses the undying memories of those of the past and present in the Valley of the Shadow.

In closing, let John Greenleaf Whittier sing:

The Trailing Arbutus

I wandered lonely where the pine trees made
Against the bitter East their barricade,
And, guided by its sweet
Perfume, I found within a narrow dell,
The trailing spring flower tinted like a shell
Amid dry leaves and mosses at my feet.

From under dead boughs, for whose loss the pines
Moaned ceaseless overhead, the blossoming vines
Lifted their glad surprise.
While yet the blue-bird smoothed in leafless trees
His feathers ruffled by the chill sea-breeze,
And snow-drifts lingered under April skies.

As, pausing o'er the lonely flower I bent,
I thought of lives thus lowly, clogged and pent,
Which yet find room,
Through care and cumber, coldness and decay,
To lend a sweetness to the ungenial day,
And make the sad earth happier for their bloom.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS . . . .

By FRANK R. KENT

Copyright by The Baltimore Sun and reprinted in The Republican by permission.

The Need To Police

Washington, May 9.

One of the chief things which the Office of Facts and Figures strives to promote is confidence in the Administration. However bumble puppyish the methods used, everybody will agree that the objective is sound. Lack of confidence is a wartime weakness; to remedy the lack is a public service.

* * *

But the Administration approach to this problem is wrong. The way to get confidence is to deserve it. Confidence built wholly upon propaganda and without sound foundation is certain to crumble soon or late with unpleasant consequences. Instead of insisting upon a blind faith in those clothed with power and trying to make it appear wicked to discuss their sins of omission or commission, better results would be had if the causes for criticism were removed.

* * *

That thought seems not to occur to the gentlemen engaged in promoting civilian morale. Yet it is a very simple one. In these days of painful taxation, it must be clear to all save the most obtuse that the thing most destructive of public confidence is suspicion that the public funds are being squandered; that favoritism and personal relationships influence important policies and posts; that a good deal that is not on the level goes on behind the scenes in Washington. It is little things rather than big ones that breed these suspicions.

* * *

The Mayris Chaney incident was little in itself. Yet it thoroughly irritated the nation to discover that Mrs. Roosevelt had put one of her dancing proteges on the pay roll to do a silly thing. The effect of this and a few other "little things" was so bad that Mrs. Roosevelt had to resign, Miss Chaney disappeared and an overhauling of the whole OCD was forced. The public irritation was reflected in a shrinkage in bond sales and in other ways. If drastic measures had not been taken, these "little things" would have reduced public confidence to a very low state.

* * *

Now, another "little thing" has happened. Probably, it will not irritate people as much as the Chaney affair, but it certainly will not increase public confidence. It was developed by a House committee that while Mrs. Anna Rosenberg, of New York, is receiving a $7,500 Federal salary as a regional director of the Social Security Board, she is making $28,000 on the side from private corporations and individuals, including $6,000 a year from Mr. Nelson Rockefeller, head of the glamorous "Good Will" organization, which is believed by many to spend more money with less results than any other agency of the Government. Mrs. Rosenberg says the $6,000 she gets from Mr. Rockefeller is not a second Government salary but a personal one from him for acting as his "public relations representative." She is, however, a member of the advisory council of the Office of Inter-American Affairs, which is the Rockefeller organization. At any rate, Mrs. Rosenberg's total "take" is $34,000 a year, which shows she is doing all right for herself.

* * *

Chiefly, Mrs. Rosenberg is known in Washington as a labor adviser to the President. She is a frequent White House visitor; sits in all White House labor conferences and is said by men who know to have more influence with Mr. Roosevelt on labor matters than anyone else. It was not generally known that she has had any paid Federal position, but perhaps she earns what she gets from all sources and if she has capitalized her White House connection to make large money on the side she has an illustrious precedent in the person of Mrs. Roosevelt.

* * *

Her explanation that the $6,000 from Mr. Rockefeller is not Government money enables her to avoid clashing with the "dual-salary" law passed in 1915, but it does not enhance the attractiveness of a fellow-citizen $7,500 Government employe making $28,000 on the outside. The answer of Administrationists is to ask who bother with such small things when such big things are happening? That, of course, is merely an evasion. These things are not unimportant. They are important because they are symbolic. There are far too many of them—too many sons-in-laws, brothers-in-law, sisters-in-law, wives, widows and friends, male and female, who are on the pay roll and who ought not to be there. No one knows how many of these there are, but everybody knows there are plenty. Every now and then a startling case is revealed and the effect is bad.

* * *

Instead of using the Government's vast publicity army to convince people that everybody on the pay rolls is competent, unselfish and needed, and then having it shown that this is not true, it would seem the part of wisdom for those concerned with civilian morale to make such disclosures impossible. And the way to make them impossible lies not in covering them up, because that can't be done. And it is not in keeping the newspapers from printing the disclosures, because that can't be done either, though there are some who will always try. If these things exist they should be disclosed and they should be printed and they should be resented. The way to keep these cases from disturbing public confidence is not to have such cases. A finer service than weeding them out could hardly be performed. Such a job would be a real contribution to winning the war—and it is a lot more simple, practical and inexpensive than many of the fanciful schemes with which the propagandists are now engaged. Sometime ago, Mr. MacLeish made a speech in which he urged the American press to police itself. What about the Administration, of which he is a part, policing itself a little? The need is great.

Wins $5 American Magazine Award

The current issue of the American Magazine, circulating more than 2,400,000 copies for the month of June, carries a letter written by Wilbert N. Savage, Sang Run, on the subject, "Is a Religious Man a Better Fighter?" ——the last of a series of challenging subjects under discussion by the American Pulpit, conducted by Chaplain William R. Arnold, Brigadier General and Chief of Chaplains of the United States Army.

Says Mr. Savage, whose letter supported the negative side of the subject: "Competition has always been extremely keen in this department of the American Magazine, and I was very much surprised to see Sang Run listed in the win column alongside Portland, Ore.; Williamsport, Pa.; Austin, Texas, and Winnepeg, Canada. Of the tens of thousands of replies received each month by the American Pulpit, only from eight to fourteen were used."

During the past year Mr. Savage has sold material to five different publications. One 950-word article was on assignment, as was a 1150-word article completed in March. "Woodland Engineer", a short story, and "Puzzling Illusions", with three drawings, have been recently accepted for the future publication by the Pennsylvania Farmer, Harrisburg.

McHenry School Has Perfect Attendance

Leads All Other Schools for April With Record of 100 Percent

McHenry school, with 100 percent attendance, led all other one-teacher schools for April, it was announced by the Board of Education this week. Bethel, with 98.3 percent, was second, and Fairview, with 97.8, was third. Other one-teacher schools above the county standard of 93 percent, included Chestnut Grove, Rich Hill and Sunnyside. Thirty-four one-teacher schools were below standard.

Bloomington led the nine two-teacher schools with 96 percent and was the only school above the county standard of 94 percent. Johnson was second with 93.6, and Swanton third with 93.3.

Kempton led the nine graded schools with 94.9 and was one of two schools in that group above the county standard of 94. The other was Oakland with 94.2. Crellin was third with 93.4.

No high school was above the county standard of 95 percent but Grantsville was first with 90.7 and Oakland second with 90.3. Kempton had 89.2, Friendsville 89, Kitzmiller 86, and Accident 88.5.

Electric power is making an invaluable contribution to the war effort in plants where guns, tanks, planes, and ships are being turned out in ever-increasing numbers to smash the Axis. There have been scattered reports, from time to time, that electricity might have to be rationed, that there wasn't enough for the war effort and for the normal activities in the homes, too.

In recent testimony before the House Appropriations Committee, it was shown that if every electric light bulb in every house and apartment in the nation were blacked out for a year, the total saving in power would amount to not more than 5 per cent.

Keep your electrical appliances in the best possible condition, thus preventing wasted current. Burn the lights you need. Turn your radio off when someone is not actually listening. In short, don't waste vital electric power, but use what is normally needed. It isn't unpatriotic that way.

AN UNUSUAL MISSION—

Five hundred Marylanders went to Washington a few days ago.

They provided that city with a strange spectacle.

Many persons go to Washington these days; more than ever before. Most of them go to get something from the Government. They go to lobby for legislation that would benefit them. They go to ask special privileges, or to get political jobs.

The object of their visits, in a great majority of cases, is to get the Government to spend money in some direction that favors the applicants.

But the 500 Marylanders had an entirely different mission; a mission that was just the reverse.

They came, and talked vigorous talk to Maryland legislators, because they want the Government to Spend less money.

They were members of Taxpayers' Leagues from Baltimore city and many counties. Their slogan was: "Billions for defense but not one cent for waste."

They presented, and argued for the principles of, a petition that says, in part:

"We are ready to make any sacrifice for victory but we are convinced that the waste of our tax dollars retards victory and tends to destroy public morale."

They urged our Congressmen to support the Byrd committee, which is trying to cut two billion dollars from the Federal budget by eliminating governmental activities which it considers non-essential.

No wonder that, when the 500 Marylanders had presented their arguments, Senator Millard E. Tydings said:

"It is refreshing that so many citizens give up their time and travel long distances to exercise their rights under a democracy."

Refreshing to legislators, who are usually beset by favor-seekers.

And refreshing also to the nation, for only through the voices of the citizenry will democracy remain strong.—Baltimore News-Post.

Wants More Consideration Shown to Men In Service Who Happen to Cross Our Path

Friendsville, Md.
May 11, 1942.

To the Editor of The Republican:

We, in this county, seem to be so far from the war, and in such a safe locality that we do not take as much interest in or render as much assistance as we could to our men in service when they are on leave or are traveling through here to their homes. Aside from their families or immediate relatives no one seems to pay much attention to them.

Everyone, including the various organizations, should try and find out from every man on leave from the armed forces if they can assist him in his travels, to or from his home or camp, and provide wholesome entertainment or sleeping accommodations if necessary.

Proper pride and modesty prevent him from asking for this assistance.—but I feel that we who remain at home should go out of our way to help our Service men.

I know a truck driver who left here shortly after midnight with a load of posts for Pennsylvania, in order to help a soldier on leave from a camp in Virginia reach his home beyond Uniontown. I consider that a splendid example of helping keep up morale, as that man had been hitch-hiking for about 30 hours without sleep.

Although a lot of people don't care a hoot for the ex-service man after the wars are won, let's all do everything we can while we're in this thing up to our necks.

If everyone realized the hardships and sacrifices facing our armed forces it wouldn't be necessary to remind them of their laxity. And they may show a little more consideration and understanding towards the very few that sometimes imbibe a little too freely, while on leave from camp.

If you happen to know or see anyone whose actions or loyalty is questionable, don't hesitate to inform the law enforcement officials. They will make the necessary investigations and keep the sources of information confidential as far as possible.

Very sincerely yours,
J. S. TEATS.

After June 1 it will be necessary for any persons desiring to take out a fire and casualty agents' license, to submit to an examination, in the State of Maryland.

Commencement at University of Maryland opens May 24, 2 weeks early.

DIARY OF THE WAR

FRIDAY—An American naval victory over the Japs above Australia and occupation of Madagascar by British had improved Allied positions. Allies sank eight Jap vessels including cruiser and two destroyers, damage a seaplane tender, cruiser, cargo vessel and transport and shot down 6 planes. American losses were 3 planes. Subs also sank three more Jap ships. Fall of Madagascar naval base was acknowledged by Vichy. Jap columns in Burma beat forward 25 miles in China. Berlin claimed another Jap force had beaten into Eastern India but Japs did not claim this. British lost a cruiser but saved two convoys in north Atlantic. Reds were trying to break siege of Leningrad.

SATURDAY—U. S. and Jap fleets were fighting hard in Coral Sea off Australia. A Jap aircraft carrier, two cruisers, two destroyers and others were sunk, a heavy cruiser, light cruiser seaplane tender and others badly damaged. Japs claimed sinking of U. S. battleship and two aircraft carriers and British cruiser and battleship, Allies denied any major losses. British in Madagascar were consolidating their gains and reinforced island of Ceylon. Chinese counter-attacks in Burma destroyed 1,000 Japs and trapped many in Yunnan province, China. A new German thrust was being made against Reds in north without success. President of the Philippines and party arrived in San Francisco.

SUNDAY—U. S. battle losses were light in Coral Sea and the Jap invasion fleet was broken up for time being. Chinese smashed into the exposed rear lines of Japs in Burma, recaptured several points and were driving ahead. Reds reported Nazis were using poison gas on Crimean front. Heavy British bombers assaulted Rostok again and hit center of Heinkel torpedo plane plant but lost 19 planes. Jap bombers struck again at Chittagong in India, fairly close to Calcutta. Von Spiegel, former German consul general for Gulf area, was reported raiding with sub in Caribbean Sea.

MONDAY—Churchill forecast doom of Germany and Japan in speech and warned Hitler that if gas was being used against Russia that Britain would spread gas far and wide over Germany. U. S. officially confirmed bombing of Japan three weeks ago with Military planes. Chinese shut a trap for Japs driving into Yunnan province, killing 3,000. They were assisted by American flying tigers. Allied planes damaged two more ships in Coral sea bringing total to 19 Jap ships lost in battle. Defenders of Malta downed 41 Axis planes over the week-end. British renewed attacks on German-held Europe. U. S. demanded of Vichy that Martinique and other French Caribbean islands would not be used as Axis bases. Nazi dead in Russia were listed at 1¾ million, more than German dead in last world war. Axis planes were fired at over Ulster. Japan's largest active volcano, 100 miles from Tokyo, was reported in eruption.

TUESDAY—Jap thrust into China from Burma was still in check. Two subs sank a Jap destroyer, cargo ship and tanker around Australia. Germans were active on Leningrad front. Wavell was reorganizing to bolster India's defense. Britain declared it was well prepared to launch a gas offensive if necessary. Finns were said to be alarmed over another winter of war. Germans reopened the Crimea offensive. Jap invasion troops were believed to have perished by shiploads in Coral Sea battle.

WEDNESDAY—Reds had absorbed first major offensive shock of Nazis in Kerch peninsula in Crimea. British and Chinese in Burma claimed local successes against Jap invaders. Jap invasion forces, though beaten, were still believed largely intact north of Australia and that bulk of Jap fleet was steaming south to support them. Germans took over vast power over labor in occupied France, after bombs had been hurled at French hotels occupied by Nazi officers. Entire nation was uneasy. German dive-bombers pounced on three new British destroyers in Mediterranean and sank them. More Axis planes were downed over Malta. Churchill warned again of the menace of a German aerial invasion of England. A sub sank a ship in St. Lawrence river.

THURSDAY—Hitler was making a desperate attempt to get at the Caucasus and its oil, through the Crimean Kerch peninsula. Reds admitted losing some ground but denied German claims that battle was "decided." A new Jap thrust pushed fifty miles within China's Yunnan province but was temporarily halted. In Burma British were falling back in effort to reach Indian frontier. Some Chinese units were hacking with some success at the rear of Japanese communications. Vichy was angry over U. S. attitude toward Martinique. British shot down 13 troop-carrying Nazi planes off North Africa. Two U. S. ships and 1 Norwegian were sunk by subs, one off coast of Africa. U. S. army flyers from India made daylight raid on Jap airdrome in Burma.

Legislation for enforced wartime savings through withholding a part of the earnings of every worker making over $20 a week was introduced in Congress.

Indications were that the army-navy base pay would be fixed at $42.

Sweetening Without Sugar

Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Health Department, calls attention to the following suggestions from the Nutritionist of the Department as to ways by which the problem of sweetening without sugar, may be solved, now that sugar rationing has started.

First of all, here is a list of available "sweetenings":

Molasses, sorghum, honey, maple syrup, cane syrup, each, or all, of which can be used in the majority of recipes.

If a recipe calls for one cup of sugar use three-fourths of a cup of molasses. Deduct one-fourth of a cup of liquid from the recipe, and add a pinch of soda. If you use honey, substitute three-fourths of a cup for one cup of sugar and deduct one-fourth of a cup of liquid from the recipe. The same applies to corn syrup. Dark corn syrup has more iron than light syrup.

Sugar is an energy food, but it does not contain the minerals or vitamins which are necessary for growth and health, and which you get in other foods. Sugar is available in fruits and in vegetables such as yellow corn and beets, so that even if you don't depend upon substitute sweetening you get a lot of natural sugar in every-day foods.

And now for a few hints on saving sugar. Don't take any more than you need in your tea or coffee, and be careful to dissolve all the sugar in your cup. Try eating your fruit without sugar. Add your sugar to dried fruits just before removing them from the fire to conserve sugar. Dried fruits, such as peaches, raisins, prunes or dates, may be chopped fine and added to cereals in place of sugar. Juices of canned fruits are excellent for sweetening puddings, or a gelatin dessert can be made out of them by adding one level tablespoon of gelatin to 1½ cups of fruit juice.

Plan your meals to include a bowl of fresh fruit for dessert with, perhaps, a piece of cheese. Fresh, ripe strawberries or any other berries in season, without sugar, placed attractively on a saucer are delicious with any meal.

There are many ways to have your usual sweetening without sugar, if you really think about it. A little planning and imagination will make the challenge interesting. For free copies of excellent recipes for using sugar substitutes, write to the Consumer Division, Office of Price Administration, Washington, D. C.

What About Morale?

By RUTH TAYLOR

What is civilian morale? How important is it? Is it really vital to our conduct of the war?

How important it is was answered for us in France. There were not many traitors among the people of France. No one who knows the French can believe that. But there were far too many self-seeking patriots—men who wanted their own way, their manner of living protected; power groups; pressure groups trying to force their own ideas on every one else. The minute these self-seeking patriots drew apart into little groups, they left great gaps through which the unified enemy could sweep in. They had lost the feel of the common good, without which the Maginot line was as a wall of tissue.

How vital it is was answered for us at Pearl Harbor. We condemn the complacent attitude of our defense, but we overlook the fact that it was the complacency of the country as a whole that was reflected. The blame for defeat lies upon those who put party politics and personal ambition before patriotism—and, since we are the voters whose word, in the last analysis, is law, the blame is on our shoulders.

Civilian morale is the morale of you and me, and of our neighbors at home and at work. It cannot be legislated. It cannot be decreed. It is the one piece of war work we all can work at, twenty-four hours a day.

The way to keep civilian morale high is simple. First, there are the "dont's". We must refrain from unguarded speech. We must not pass on rumors. We must not spread hatreds. We must not act jittery. We must not show fear, nor must we be foolhardy. We must not permit ourselves to be governed by our prejudices toward any group. We must avoid disruptive argument and controversy, whether it be between class, race or creed.

Second, there are the "do's". We must strive for emotional stability. We must show self-control. We must remain calm and resolute against all subversive propaganda. We must remember that we are Americans first, and accept as Americans all who believe in the ideals of freedom, regardless of race, creed or color. We must be willing to work and cooperate with all who want to help, without inquiry or caring whether they are Protestant, Jew or Catholic. We must remember our joint aims and not our minor disagreements.

Our country is like a beleaguered city of old. We can hold out until the victory, we can back up our men in the field, if we are united. If we, if you and I, if all of us, demonstrate our faith in the ideals of democracy, if we keep our morale high, then the battle on the home front is won, and our men in the field backed up by a unified nation.

Red Cross War Fund Has Reached $1,300

United Mine Workers of Shallmar Give $25.00—Roll Call Report Made

Mrs. Eugene Harpold, Kitzmiller, has sent the Red Cross headquarters a check for $25.00 which she received from the United Mine Workers of America, No. 4597. The check came from Shallmar.

This is being placed in the War relief fund which amounts at the present time to around $1,300.00, according to J. M. Jarboe, treasurer.

In the annual roll call, Arnold Fox, Friendsville, sent $2.00. Mrs. Adams, Vindex, reported four new members. Charles Whales, Miss Bessie Sharpless, Miss Viola Sharpless and Mrs. Charles E. Ellifritz. Miss Louise Nicklow reported three paid members. Arnold Fox, Oliver B. Frazee and Harry Denver, all of Friendsville, while Mrs. A. J. Matthews and Mrs. J. L. Matthews, Friendsville, sent their membership fee to the roll call chairman, Mrs. Paul B. Naylor. Ernest Glass, Accident, also gave his fee to Treasurer Jarboe.

The last report of the roll call campaign there were 779 paid members and $915 in bank. Up to the present there are 789 paid members and $926 in bank, according to Mrs. Naylor. This means that there is still $274 needed to reach the goal of $1,200.

Money will be accepted at any time. It may be given to local solicitors in the communities, or sent to Mrs. E. Z. Tower, president; J. M. Jarboe, treasurer, or Mrs. Paul B. Naylor, roll call chairman.

Red Cross Workers To Ship Garments

Members of the Corps of volunteer knitters are gathering this afternoon at the home of Mrs. D. Edward Offutt, chairman, to label and ship the material that has been finished the past few weeks.

Mrs. Offutt declared there had been no let up in Red Cross knitting in spite of garden planning and housecleaning.

The following have finished garments as listed: Mrs. Arthur Naylor, two sweaters; Mrs. J. M. Falkenstein, 26 pair socks; Mrs. George Welling, 18 pair socks, and Mrs. H. A. Loraditch, 24 pair socks.

In Accident Mrs. B. O. Aiken reports sweaters and mittens made in school as well as by ladies in the home. Under direction of Miss Dillon the sophomore girls donated an ounce of wool each for an afghan and Homemakers have donated $3.00 and Mrs. Aiken $1 for yarn for an afghan. Volunteer knitters in Accident include Mrs. William Speicher, Mrs. Henry Harman, Mrs. G. Weitzel, Mrs. Kesner and Misses Louise Dillon, Hazel Margroff, Hulda Harman, Maxine Dixon, Gladys Schlosnagle, Virginia Walton and Nettie Shank.

Mrs. Lowell Loomis, Mrs. Edward Lawrence, Mrs. Henry McComas, Sr., completed army sweaters. Others completing articles are Mrs. W. Freeland, Mrs. Belle Nine, Mrs. Lawrence Moomaw, Mrs. Etta Sanders, Mrs. W. Bitzer, Mrs. Harry Shafer, Mrs. Lloyd Cook, Mrs. Laura Welch, Mrs. A. V. Schaeffer, Mrs. Anna Smouse, Mrs. John Thayer, Mrs. George Deavers, Mrs. Claude Taylor, Mrs. L. M. Bernard, Mrs. John Stevenson, Mrs. Ora Thomas, Mrs. O. R. Leighton, Mrs. Nettie Eichelberger, Mrs. Harold Rook, Mrs. Ruth Wood, Mrs. Harry Helbig, Mrs. Ada Lawrence, Misses Floss Shaffer, Madeline Nethkin, Bernadine Knotts, Marion Field, Betty Starr Kildow, Sue Moore, Willoughby Cole, Nora Ellen Mosser, Joyce Cross, Josie Weimer, Mrs. James Murray and Mrs. Reilly Lipscomb.

One of the Proofs Of Survival of Marblehead Is Here

Howard Smouse Home on Thirty Day Leave After Surviving Battle on Cruiser

As certain proof that the U. S. S. light cruiser Marblehead was not sunk in the southwest Pacific ocean, as claimed by the Japanese upon several occasions, but that it did sail half way round the world to bring her wounds of war home for healing, Howard Smouse, one of the members of her crew of about 600, arrived at his home in Oakland on Sunday night.

He was just in time to greet his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel P. Smouse, for Mother's Day.

Home on a thirty-day leave, following the arrival of the Marblehead in an eastcoast port for repairs, Howard is spending this week mostly in the secluded spots that he liked so well when he lived here as a young lad. Sang Run and Snaggy mountain, and the Youghiogheny river have given him more pleasure this week, he says, than all the islands of the Netherlands, East Indies and other Pacific island groups which he visited at various times within the past two years.

Howard joined the United States Navy January 3, 1939, and after a preliminary period of training was sent on the U. S. S. Henderson to the Asiatic fleet, where he was placed on board the Marblehead. He has stuck with the ship since that time, being one of the oldest members of the crew in point of service. He is rated as a coxswain and was captain of a gun crew, firing one of the six-inch broadside guns.

The newspapers within the past week have been full of accounts of the battle which the Marblehead went through in the Macassar Strait, Capt. Arthur G. Robinson, its skipper, telling how his ship underwent three hours of incessant bombing by at least thirty-seven Japanese planes. The ship was hit directly with two bombs, one forward and one aft, and a near miss badly damaged the under part of the ship. The ship lost fifteen men killed in the bombing but made port in the Netherland Indies where temporary repairs were made, then proceeded to Ceylon for additional repairs. Later at South Africa the ship was made seaworthy for its trip back to the United States. Its trip from the place of the battle totaled 13,000 miles.

During the battle one of the Jap planes, which was hit by the Houston tried a suicide dive on the Marblehead, but the gunners riddled it with anti-aircraft fire causing it to drop into the sea within thirty feet of its mark.

The battle was one previous to the engagement in which the Houston was sunk.

The Japanese have insisted that the Marblehead was sunk by planes of the Japanese navy, "according to proof which leaves no doubt whatever. Therefore the ship which has returned to North America is a ghost ship."

Howard is sure that he did not return upon a ghost ship. During the fight Howard assisted in carrying ammunition to the anti-aircraft guns, as there was no need of the big broadside guns. He was unharmed from the struggle, although a number were wounded by shrapnel. The ship was on fire several times.

A Kansas congressman declared that a government that could take over and ration autos, tires, typewriters, clothing and sugar could also take over distilleries and the liquor supplies and use them completely for making munitions.

Two Persons Are Hurt When Cars Collide On Wet Highway

Two persons were injured slightly when the automobile driven by Miss Eva S. Miller, 19, Grantsville, skidded on a wet highway and crashed against another automobile near Guntertown on U. S. Route 40, west of Frostburg, Monday night.

Police said Miss Miller was passing another car when her machine skidded on the wet road and crashed against the oncoming car driven by Clifford Rine, Cleveland, Ohio.

Miss Miller was injured about the knees; Mrs. Helen Allen, Cleveland, a passenger in Rine's car, suffered injuries about the head and legs.

Both motorists were charged with reckless driving by Trooper Graydon S. Dunlap and Miss Miller was fined $2 and costs by Magistrate Charles S. Zeller, Grantsville. Rine was found not guilty.

Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Official Dies At Baltimore

George M. Shriver, senior vice-president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, and uncle of Mrs. Edward M. Weeks, formerly Miss Thekla Fundenberg, of Oakland, died Monday at Union Memorial hospital, Baltimore. He was 74.

He sustained an injury in a fall at his home several weeks ago. Mr. Shriver was much interested in the progress of the railroad through this territory and it was through his influence that Oakland was made a stop on the schedule of several of the through trains.

West Virginia Dentist Makes Synthetic Tires

Dr. Glenn L. Casto, Spencer, W. Va., has a formula for making a rubber substitute from natural gas, coal, wood and grain.

He declared it had been used to make a new automobile tire which already has run 4,300 miles and is continuing to give good service; that it had been used to retread a tire which was run 10,000 miles, and when removed for examination, was found to have one-third the tread remaining.

A plant is being erected in West Virginia which will soon be turning out several thousand pounds of his product a day to be used in large scale tests on commercial vehicles.

His product is not, he emphasizes, a synthetic rubber but has physical properties akin to crude rubber, while differing from it in chemical properties.

Seventeen Get Tire Certificates This Week

Seventeen persons were given certificates entitling them to purchase 8 truck tires, six tubes and 19 retreads, three passenger tires, two tubes and one retread, at the county rationing board this week.

Recently she presented her graduate voice recital. In the musical production, "The Mikado", Miss Harvey played a leading role. She plans to teach music and English.

MARRIED

MARONEY-STARK—Miss Mildred Stark, of Oakland, daughter of Mrs. Lula Stark, became the bride of John William Maroney, of Oakland, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John W. Maroney, on Sunday, May 10, at 12:15 o'clock in St. Peter's Catholic church, with Rev. John C. Broderick performing the ceremony.

Their only attendants were Miss Bridget Maroney, sister of the groom, as maid of honor, and Herbert Carney, Crellin, cousin of the groom, as best man. Members of the immediate families were also present.

The bride was attired in a brown traveling suit with beige accessories, and wore a corsage of talisman roses and lilies of the valley.

Following the ceremony the couple left for a brief trip to Baltimore and Washington.

Mr. Maroney is an employe of the F. A. Smouse store and is a graduate of Oakland High. Mrs. Maroney was graduated from Oakland High school in 1936. She is employed as a stenographer at the office of A. T. Matthews. The couple will reside in Oakland.

"Mother and Daughter Meeting" Held At Loch Lynn

The Otterbein Guild of the Loch Lynn U. B. church, including members from Loch Lynn, Mt. Lake Park, Oakland, and Crellin, held their first "Mother and Daughter Meeting" on Wednesday evening, May 6th, in the Ladies Aid Hall at Loch Lynn. The topic of the missionary program presented was "I Believe in the World Family of God", and included the presentation of "Mothers of Other Lands", with the characters in costume. Special "Mother's Day" music and songs were also presented. The hall was decorated in the guild colors, purple and white. A luncheon was served at the close of the program. The following were present: Misses Grace Callis, Marie Gauer, Ruth Bittinger, Barbara Martin, Maudie Sisler, Delores Yutzy, Beulah Shope, Evelyn Hauger, Betty Jean Sanders, Bobby Shank; Mrs. Marshall Sanders, Mrs. Ella Gnegy, Mrs. John Evans, Mrs. Della Moomaw, Mrs. Lawrence Moomaw, Mrs. Henry Gauer, Mrs. Ray Bittinger, Mrs. Wright Moon, Mrs. Harry Mickey, Mrs. Homer Shaffer, Mrs. Henry Gibson, Mrs. Myra Martin, Mrs. Lester Yutzy, Mrs. Sadie Shope, Mrs. Harold Ream, Mrs. James Canty, Mrs. Thomas Currie, Mrs. Lawrence Taylor, Mrs. Carl Bowman; Mrs. E. O. Fouch and Mrs. Albert Biggs, guild counselors, and the pastor's wife, Mrs. J. C. Foster.

To Give Recital of Piano and Organ Music

On Sunday evening at the Lutheran church Miss Virginia Kershner and three advanced pupils will give a recital of piano and organ music.

Mary Maude Paugh, Betty Lee Jones, and Donna Littman will play the following piano solos: Venetian Love Song and Narcissus, by Nevin; Country Gardens by Grainger; Second Valse, Durand; Novelette, MacDowell; Prelude, Porter; and Polonaise, De Leon; and two numbers with piano and organ; Simple Aveu, Thome, and Minuet by Mozart. Miss Kershner will play the organ solos, Evensong, by Johnson, and Festival Toccatto, by Fletcher.

The recital begins at eight o'clock and the public is invited.

Lieut. and Mrs. Haig Jackson were visitors here over the week-end. Lieut. Jackson is now stationad at Fort Belvoir, Va.

Workmen have been busy this week upon an extensive remodeling program under way in The Half Price Store. Many alterations are being made, a new shoe department being arranged and other changes that are calculated to give the store a more attractive appearance. The remodeling will take several more days.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS . . . . . .

Coordination Called For

Official figures last week revealed that the number of civilian employes of the Government now exceed 1,800,000, which is a little more than double the peak number during the last war. At the present rate the 2,000,000 mark will be passed within a few months and no limit is suggested or in sight.

The entirely reasonable answer to this comparison between the figures now and those twenty-four years ago is that this is a very much bigger war requiring, besides a much larger army and navy, a far greater effort in all directions. Undoubtedly, this is true and it is not fair to indict the Administration because it has expanded its organization to cope with an unparalled situation. No one wants to impose upon the Government in the management of the war any inadequacy in either men or money.

* * *

Nevertheless, there is such a thing as a sense of proportion and the personnel expansion plans now maturing in Washington give considerable ground for the apprehension that, in the matter of size as well as cost, those in authority have somehow lost this sense. For example, it is a fact beyond dispute that there is immense duplication of effort in Washington today; that there are not only too many agencies but too many of them are trying to do the same thing; that there are literally thousands of persons on the payroll with little or nothing to do. On Friday, in the Senate, Senator Byrd asserted that the publicity bureaus had multiplied to a point that "approaches a national scandal."

* * *

In the creation of a vast war machine capable of mobilizing the human and natural resources of the United States for the life-and-death struggle in which we are engaged, it is unreasonable to expect anything like hundred per cent competency. The nature and urgency of the task make any such percentage impossible. Waste and confusion are inseparable and inescapable from so gigantic a task. However, unrestrined waste and confusion such as now exist in Washington cannot be defended nor excused.

To those who get even a superficial view of what is going on here, it is clear that there are vastly more people now manning the war organizations than can be justified on any grounds of emergency, haste or the size of the war. That has been true for a good many months. It promises to be true to a very much greater degree within the next six months, if the plans now maturing are carried out. Because it is no secret that the men in charge of the agencies recently created or expanded by the President for the promotion of his anti-inflation program, launched in his recent message to Congress, are preparing to enlist a great army of many thousands of additional jobholders.

* * *

The point here sought to be made is that the stage has been reached where the unconsidered piling up of more and more persons on the payrolls is a very emphatic handicap to the effective conduct of the war and it is high time the relation between the size of the establishment and the efficiency of the effort should become somebody's business. Up to now, it just has not been anybody's business. The heads of all the agencies, boards divisions and commissiones have gone steadily ahead manning their organizations without regard to expense, number or the possibility of overlapping. There is no coordination and there is no coordinator. In consequence there is bewilderment and incompetency almost beyond belief. Senators and members of Congress, taking advantage of the open door and the unlimited money have put thousands of constituents in jobs. As priorities and shortage squeeze out small business and create unemployment, hordes of the idle come here and the pressure for places is very great.

* * *

Particularly is this so with the multitudinous propaganda, information and publicity agencies, which are the haven of all sorts of alleged literary, journalistic and artistic gentlemen supposed to be doing "war work," but actually in each other's way doing nothing worth while at all. It, of course, is impossible for the President to know much about this situation or to bother personally with it if he did. Yet it is a detriment to the war effort. It not only diminishes efficiency but wastes money at a time when we need every dollar of revenue we can get from any source.

There are always exceptions, but it is literally true to say that, in general, every war agency in Washington is overmanned and that the whole business would function better if this were not the case. In the peaceful days of his first two terms, Mr. Roosevelt from time to time used to appoint a representative whose job was to bring order out of the New Deal disorder and coordinate its activities. The present Postmaster General, Mr. Frank Walker, made three distinct efforts of the sort with no success whatever, largely because he had no real authority.

But this is war and coordination is infinitely more vital than before. At the moment, there seem few things more important than checking the waste and confusion here before it becomes completely uncontrollable. If the President could be induced to name an able, qualified man and clothe him with full power he could make a very great contribution merely by weeding out and coordinating. The need grows with every week.

'Get In the Scrap' Plan Is Announced By Local Company

Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their country. Millions of fingers for many years have been beating out this perfect typewriter exercise with little thought of its meaning. Now that we are at war many are doing much and many are waiting for some one to show them what to do. Here is a way we can all 'Get in the Scrap'.

A. Claude Stanton and M. S. Brookhart of the Garrett Truck & Implement Co., local implement and truck dealers are sponsoring in Garrett county a nation-wide 'Salvage for Victory' campaign being conducted by the International Harvester Co., aimed at bringing to the steel mills these countless tons of "small dabs" of scrap metal that can be picked up on every farm, in every home and from every business place.

"The nation's war industries are sorely in need of scrap metals of all kinds," said Mr. Stanton. "It is estimated that there are from 1½ to 3½ million tons of scrap iron and steel on the nation's farms alone. Homes and business places should yield many thousand more tons. The government already has plans working for getting in the larger quantities to be found in junk yards, used car lots, etc., but even this huge source, it is felt, will not be sufficient to supply the gigantic need of the war effort."

Between now and June 1st implement dealers in Western Maryland counties and West Virginia have pledged themselves to raise 5,000 tons of scrap metal. The time is short, but the need is urgent. By the efforts of everyone, this task can be accomplished.

Here is the way the campaign will be conducted, Mr. Stanton explained. Everyone should look about them and gather in everything that looks like metal, tin excepted, pile this scrap in a convenient place and then either phone or write Garrett Truck and Implement Co., in Oakland, giving name, and address, where the junk is piled and the estimated quantity.

Many will be able to gather a wagon or truck load. They should arrange to bring this in to the Garrett Implement Company's place of business, where space will be provided to store it until final disposal can be made. For smaller quantities plans are being worked out for transporting it to markets.

Many will, of course, want to get what the scrap is worth. A due bill system is being formulated, whereby those who have a sufficient quantity will be paid as fast as the scrap can be marketed. However, this is no time to haggle about the price of scrap or who is going to make the profit. It is the patriotic duty of every Garrett County citizen to do everything possible to help win this war.

Plans are being made to hold a county-wide 'Get In the Scrap' day in the county schools. Ministers, service clubs and other civic organizations are asked to do all they can to endorse this campaign, whose worth cannot be denied.

Let's get going. Let's do it now. If you have an empty truck coming to town throw on that old disk harrow. Drag out those old pieces of pipe or that old lawn mower under your porch. Lets 'Get in the Scrap!

TUESDAY: THE DAY OF CONFLICT

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 22:41—23:11.
GOLDEN TEXT—The stone which the builders rejected is become the head of the corner.—Mark 12:10.

"By what authority doest thou these things? and who gave thee this authority?" Such was the challenge Christ faced when He came into the temple on the last day that He was to be able to teach there. The chief priests and elders (Matt. 21:23) asked it because they knew that they had received their authority with their offices, whether appointive or hereditary.

Jesus held no such position, yet He had just driven the money changers out of what He called "my house" — the temple. They challenged Him, and through the long day He answered and also asked them questions. Here we find a rich store of parables, illustrations, unanswerable arguments, as He met the Pharisees, Sadducees, Herodians —all His enemies who, though they hated each other, made common cause against Jesus. The discussion concludes with His facing of the Pharisees with

I. The Ultimate Question—"What Think Ye of the Christ?" (22:41-46).

The crux of the entire matter was right there for them, as it is for us, though in a somewhat different sense. They were looking for the Messiah—the Christ; but their idea of Him was that He would come as their royal leader, to break the yoke of Roman bondage and set them free. They knew He was to be the son of David, but they did not see in their own Scriptures that this one was to be David's greater son (Matt.12:42); that in the line of David was to come the one whom David "in the spirit" called "Lord" (Ps. 110:1). They knew about Christ, but they did not know Him, and thus they were like many today. They have heard of Him; they may even admire His character and His teachings, but they do not know Him. What think you, reader, of Christ?

Christ then states

II. The Final Test—Doing, Not Just Saying (23:1-4).

Having finally closed their mouths (22:46) Jesus proceeded to a solemn indictment of the scribes and Pharisees. First of all He declared that they failed in the final test of life, which is not words but actions.

Notice that He recognized their authority and their teaching, but in severe condemnation pointed out that they did not live what they professed. That is the criterion by which we shall all be judged. Those who think that because they belong to some church, or subscribe to a creed, or speak a smooth word of testimony they may then live as they please, will find themselves standing with the scribes and Pharisees on the judgment day. Why keep that kind of company?

Such men are capable of

III. The Great Hypocrisy—Pride Posing As Piety (23:5-9).

They were, oh, so religious! Interpreting literally and mechanically God's command that they keep His law always near them in action (hand) and in thought (mind) (see Deut. 6:8; 11:18), they made showy leather cases and wore them on wrist and forehead as containers of the written Word. They loved the chief seats and the titles of distinction. And all this was done in the name of religion. What hypocrisy!

But wait — are we any better? What about the preacher who is not happy unless he is invited into the pulpit? What about those who take or accept the titles which our Lord expressly forbids? What about those in the pew, as much as in the pulpit (and perhaps more), who want to be recognized as "the masters" of the church? To be sure, they do not always wish it to be so crudely put as that, but they do expect to be recognized as such "or else—." This too, under the name of Christianity. There indeed is the great hypocrisy!

We are thankful that our lesson does not close here. Our Lord next revealed

IV. The Right Attitude—Service Not Recognition (23:10, 11).

He that is mastered of Christ is ready to be the servant of all. To exalt Him is to at once do away with self-praise and self-glory. Pride in position, and the desire to be praised and recognized by men, inevitably lead a man into a pitfall in which he is humbled. On the other hand, the one who in humility serves the Lord will, to his own surprise, find that God has exalted him. The way up is down.

"Torrey," said a well-known preacher with whom Dr. Torrey was associated in a great conference, "you and I are the most important men in Christian work in this country." Not long afterward God set that man aside. Quite different was the spirit of D. L. Moody, who at the height of his ministry for God would say, "There are better men here behind me on the platform to speak when I am through"—and he really believed it!

Shorter and simpler nightgowns and pajamas for women and children were decreed by the WPB. The order also applies to slips and petticoats.

FRIENDSVILLE

Services will be held Sunday, May 17, in the Christian church with Rev. Henry Knoell and Rev. Mark Smith in charge with sermons to be delivered at 11 o'clock and in the evening at 8:00 o'clock.

Social Happenings

Miss Nina Peck entertained Group B of the Jolly Workers class at her home Monday afternoon with an outdoor party. Games were the diversion and refreshments were served. The following members attended: Ruth and Mary Sisler, James Cover, Jr., Winston Teats, Jack Friend, Sterling Fundis, Robert Hook, Bobby Schroyer, Raymond Friend, Lonnie McCullough.

Mrs. L. L. Friend was honored at a surprise birthday party Tuesday evening in the Methodsit church recreation room following the regular meeting of the WSCS. The business session was conducted by Mrs. Manilla Friend. Mrs. Foster Speicher conducted the devotional service. The principal topic, "Children in the Home, Church and Community," was discussed by Mrs. Iva Rush and Mrs. R. L. Greynolds.

Members present included Mrs. Aleta Murphy, Miss Helen Miller, Mrs. Nellie Wheeler, Miss Eileen Frazee, Mrs. Faye Friend, Mrs. H. F. Glover, Mrs. Mona Teets, Mrs. Kathryn Holman, Mrs. J. W. Friend, Mrs. Beuna Vista Welch, Mrs. Mary Cuppett, Miss Nina Peck, Mrs. Julia Skidmore, Mrs. Jennie Miller and Mrs. Margaret Williams. At the conclusion refreshments were served by Circle 3 under the supervision of Miss Helen Miller, in honor of their president, Mrs. L. L. Friend. The honor guest was presented with a piece of Roseville pottery. The next meeting will be held on June 2.

On Mother's Day, May 10, an interesting and impressive Sunday school service was held in the Methodist church when one hundred twenty-seven persons were present—a record attendance in the history of this organization. Special music and reading appropriate for the day were presented. Following the Sunday school custom each mother received a carnation. Twenty-two floral tributes decorated the altar in honor of mother.

The school patrol boys parade was held at Cumberland on Saturday. The school here was represented by Simeon and Raymond Friend, Robert Kester, Gene Skidmore, Harry Holman, and William Havener. They were accompanied to Cumberland by W. J. Glenn and Q. A. Murphy. The boys paraded at 8 o'clock Saturday morning, had dinner and attendad a movie.

Hagar Dagmar Hamilton, Plaintiff, vs. Lloyd Edward Hamilton, Defendant No. 3642 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, State of Maryland.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for divorce "a vinculo matrimonii" for the plaintiff, Hagar Dagmar Hamilton, of Garrett County, Maryland, against her husband, Lloyd Edward Hamilton, defendant, of the State of West Virginia.

The Bill of Complaint states that on February 24, 1934, the said Hagar Dagmar Hamilton was married to her husband, Lloyd Edward Hamilton, with whom she resided in Allegany County, Maryland, until the month of July, 1936. That the said Lloyd Edward Hamilton has abandoned and deserted her without just cause or reason and that such abandonment has continued since July, 1936, uninterruptedly, and is deliberate and final and the separation of the parties is beyond any expectation of reconciliation. That the said Hagar Dagmar Hamilton and Lloyd Edward Hamilton have had two children born to them from said marriage, namely, Mary Ellan and Vida Dagmar Hamilton, and that the said Lloyd Edward Hamilton is a non-resident of the State of Maryland.

It is thereupon, this 18th day of April, 1942, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Garrett County, once in each of four successive weeks before the 22nd day of May, 1942, giving notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this Bill, warning him to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before the 6th day of June, 1942, to show cause, if any he has, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

LAW OFFICES OF JONES & JONES,

ASSIGNEE'S SALE
—OF—
VALUABLE REAL ESTATE
In District No. 14, Garrett County, Maryland

Under and by virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage executed by Thomas J. Browning, Herbert W. Browning, Charles C. Browning and Guy W. Browning and Goldie Browning, his wife, dated April 23, 1931, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 101, folio 498, one of the Mortgage Records of Garrett County, Maryland, default having been made in the payment of the indebtedness secured by said mortgage as provided by the terms thereof and other covenants therein contained, and the same having been assigned to the undersigned for the purpose of foreclosure, I hereby give notice that on

FRIDAY, MAY 29, 1942,

At the Hour of Eleven o'Clock A. M.,

in front of the Court House in the Town of Oakland, Garrett County, Maryland, I will offer and sell at public auction what is known as the Thomas J. Browning Farm, situate near Thayerville, about nine miles North of Oakland, along U. S.-Maryland Route 219, the same being composed of the following pieces and parcels of land, to-wit:

1. All that piece or parcel of land, containing 100 acres, more or less, which was conveyed unto the said Thomas J. Browning by deed from John L. Browning and wife dated March 3, 1884, and recorded in Liber W. H. T., No. 8, folio 422, one of the Land Records of Garrett County.

2. All that part of the tract of land called "Deep Creek Farm," containing 26½ acres, more or less, and also a part of the tract called "Davis' Discovery," containing 3½ acres, more or less, and being the same parcels of land which were conveyed to the said Thomas J. Browning by deed from Mary M. Porter and husband dated December 23, 1887, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 14, folio 84, one of said Land Records.

3. Military Lot No. 1744, containing 50 acres, which was conveyed to the said Thomas J. Browning by deed from William Groves et al., dated July 3, 1903, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 46, folio 59, one of said Land Records.

4. All that other piece or parcel of land containing 42½ acres, more or less, which was conveyed to the said Thomas J. Browning by deed from John F. Browning et al., dated November 29, 1904, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 49, folio 87, one of said Land Records.

The above parcels of land are the same which were also conveyed by said Thomas J. Browning to Herbert W. Browning, Lee Browning, Charles C. Browning and Guy W. Browning by deed dated August 23, 1935, and recorded in Liber A. G. R., No. 112, folio 565, Land Records of Garrett County.

Save and excepting the following parcels of land conveyed away by said Thomas J. Browning prior to the execution of said mortgage, to-wit:

(1) A parcel containing 22½ acres conveyed to Carter Browning by deed dated July 17, 1930, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 100, folio 541, one of the Land Records of Garrett County.

(2) 3.45 acres conveyed to Eastern Land Corporation by deed dated April 12, 1924, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 86, folio 574, one of said Land Records.

(3) 1 acre and 45 square feet conveyed to Columbus L. Paugh, et al., Trustees of Pleasant Valley M. E. Church, by deed dated November 14, 1901, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 40, folio 160, one of said Land Records.

(4) One-half acre conveyed to The Board of School Commissioners of Garrett County by deed dated June 4, 1898, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 34, folio 423, one of said Land Records.

(5) 1 acre and 145¾ perches conveyed to William M. Thayer by deed dated August 24, 1893, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 26, folio 73, one of said Land Records.

(6) A small parcel of land containing approximately 51 perches, conveyed to the Trustees of the Deep Creek Baptist Church, by deed dated August 30, 1892, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 22, folio 258, one of said Land Records.

(7) A right-of-way for electric transmission line granted to Associated Maryland Electric Power Corporation by agreement dated October 14, 1930, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 102, folio 70, one of said Land Records.

All of said land is contiguous and comprises one farm, containing 192 acres, more or less, as ascertained from the above deeds, the acreage given by the County Assessment Record however, being only 168 4-5 acres. About 80 acres are cleared and under cultivation and the balance is pasture and wooded land.

Said farm is improved by a good, two-story frame dwelling, a large barn and other usual and necessary sheds and outbuildings. The farm is fenced and well watered; is well located along the above improved road and is a very attractive property.

All annual crops pitched or cultivated on said land will pass to the purchaser under the terms of the said Mortgage.

TERMS OF SALE—Cash on day of sale.

Homemakers' Column

Edited by Miss Marianna Lee Long, Home Demonstration Agent, Oakland, Maryland.

RECIPES TO MATCH YOUR SUGAR RATION

Prepared by the Bureau of Home Economics, U. S. Dept. of Agriculture.

The recipes in this column suggest how homemakers can capitalize on the natural sugars in fruits and other foods, to spread their sugar ration. They are picked to illustrate foods that call for little sugar and also to show how to use substitutes IF and WHEN they are available.

Sugar-thrift rules to remember are:

Serve cooked fruits hot to enjoy their fullest flavor and sweetness.

Save sirup from canned fruit to sweeten other fruit, pudding sauces, or beverages.

A pinch of salt increases the sweetening power of sugar in cooked foods.

Be sure all sugar is completely dissolved to get its full sweetness.

The following table gives the sweetening power of different sirups, of honey, and of maple sugar, as compared with refined white sugar:

Sweetness equal to one cup of refined white sugar:

Maple sugar	1 cup
Maple sirup	1 cup
Honey	1 cup
Sorghum sirup	1½ cups
Cane sirup	1½ cups
Corn sirup	2 cups

Best rules to follow in shifting recipes from refined white sugar to other sweeteners are:

Cakes and Cookies

Honey: Replace sugar with honey, cup for cup, but use one-half the quantity of other liquid called for. That is, if the original recipe called for 1 cup sugar and 1 cup milk, use 1 cup honey and ½ cup milk. Other ingredients remain the same.

Corn, Cane or Maple Sirups: Replace sugar with sirup, measure for measure and reduce liquid only 1-3. Cookies made with corn and cane sirups are not as sweet as sugar cookies.

Sorghum Sirup: Follow the same rule as with the other sirups, but reduce the baking powder called for in the original recipe. Use ½ teaspoon of soda for every cup of sorghum. This quantity of soda and sorghum has leavening power equal to 2 teaspoons of baking powder.

Breads and Muffins

These call for little sweetening anyway so there's no problem in shifting from sugar to sirup, or to whatever sweetener is available. Replace one with any other in exactly the quantity called for by the original recipe.

Jams, Jellies, Preserves

Use honey in place of half the sugar called for in the original recipe and increase the cooking time a little to allow for the extra liquid to evaporate. Or replace up to one-fourth the sugar with corn sirup.

Canning Fruit

The best way to get around the sugar situation is to can fruit without any sweetening and add sweetening just before serving.

Dried Fruit Bread Pudding

1 quart milk
2 cups dry bread crumbs
½ cup sugar
2 tablespoons fat
1 cup dried fruit, cooked
3 eggs, beaten
¼ teaspoon salt

Scald the milk, bread crumbs, sugar, salt and fat in a pan over hot water. Add the cooked and drained dried fruit. Pour some of the hot mixture into the beaten eggs and mix well. Add the remainder, pour into a greased baking dish, and set in a pan of hot water.

Bake in a moderate oven about 1 hour, or until the pudding is firm in the center. When the pudding is about half done, stir well so the fruit will be mixed all through it.

Baked Custard

(Sugar, maple sirup, or honey)
4 to 6 eggs
1 quart milk
6 tablespoons sugar, maple sirup or honey
½ teaspoon vanilla
Butter
Nutmeg
¼ teaspoon salt

Heat the milk, sugar and salt. Stir the hot milk slowly into the lightly beaten eggs. Add the vanilla. Pour the mixture into custard cups, add a bit of butter to each, and sprinkle lightly with nutmeg. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) on a rack in a pan of water until the custards are set. When the point of a thin knife comes out clean, the custard is done and should be removed at once from the hot water to keep it from cooking too much. Serve either hot or cold in the custard cups.

Oatmeal Cookies

(With sorghum, cane, corn, or maple sirup)

½ cup fat
1 cup sirup
1 egg, beaten
1½ cups sifted flour
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ cup milk
1½ cups ground oatmeal or rolled oats
½ cup chopped peanuts
1 cup seedless raisins

Cream the fat and add the sirup mixed with the beaten egg. Sift together the dry ingredients, except the ground oatmeal, and add with the milk to the first mixture. Add the ground oatmeal, nuts, and raisins. Mix well. Drop by spoonsfuls onto a greased baking sheet. Bake to a golden brown in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.). Remove from the sheet while hot. This recipe makes about 60 cookies.

Two teaspoons of cinnamon may be added to the recipe if desired.

If sorghum sirup is used, omit the baking powder and add ½ teaspoon soda to the dry ingredients.

Official U. S. Treasury War Bond Quotas For May

The above map of Maryland shows the War Bond quotas, by counties, for the month of May, 1942. Total War Bond quota for the State is $9,078,500. Every income earner in the State is expected to step-up War Bond purchases on a basis of ten per cent or more of income. This is necessary to help America's armed forces take the offensive against the Axis powers. The American voluntary method of War Bond purchases must be successful in reaching the quotas set by the Treasury Department for every county in the nation. The job of every American now is to stop spending and save dollars to help win the War.

HIS BROTHERS AND SISTERS

A MESSAGE FROM THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY

THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY
WASHINGTON

May 1, 1942

TO THE PEOPLE OF MARYLAND:

This week a new campaign for the sale of War Bonds and Savings Stamps is under way throughout the Nation. It is the War Bond Quota Campaign.

It is urgently necessary that you double the rate at which you are now buying War Bonds and Stamps. This will mean the sale direct to individual Americans of War Bonds and Stamps to the amount of not less than one billion dollars every month.

One Billion dollars a month is the National quota. It is equal to one-tenth the combined incomes of all Americans.

This money is needed to buy the tools of war for your fighting forces. It will not pay for all of them. Our war expenditures now are at the rate of about FOUR BILLIONS a month, and they are growing daily. But a billion dollars a month direct from the people will make all-out production possible. Without it we cannot do our best; without it we cannot put forth our full effort.

It is desperately needed for another reason. We can't fight a war and at the same time live and spend as usual. There are not enough goods to go around -- the things we buy with money. If we go on spending at the 1941 scale, we'll be robbing the fighting man to add to our own comfort or pleasure. We'll be driving up the cost of living for all of us. We'll be imposing dire hardships on our neighbors.

What is asked of you is ten per cent of your earnings — a tithe for Liberty. It is not a tax; it is not even a contribution; it is a loan at interest, for your use and protection later.

Your Government asks you to cut down your expenditures, TO SAVE -- your boys on the firing line and in the training camps, through your Government, ask you to save so that they may have what they need to win YOUR WAR for you -- America asks you to save; to SAVE TO WIN THE WAR; to buy War Bonds and Stamps up to not less than ten per cent of your income.

Is Liberty worth it? Is Democracy worth it? Is America worth it? I think I know your answer.

Sincerely,

H. Morgenthau Jr.

FOR VICTORY BUY UNITED STATES WAR BONDS AND STAMPS

The above letter was sent to this newspaper by Secretary Morgenthau in Washington. We publish it in the interest of the War Bond Quota Campaign and earnestly recommend that all our readers do their share in the tremendous job ahead of financing the War effort.

DIED

MICHAEL P. SMITH

Michael P. Smith, aged 78 years, died at his home, about one mile from McHenry, on Saturday evening, May 9, at 6:15, after a lingering illness.

He was born February 9, 1864, at Accident, a son of the late Michael P. and Elizabeth Miller Smith, and had lived for 57 years on his farm. He was a member of Zion Lutheran church, Accident.

Surviving are his widow, three sons and five daughters, Fred G. and John Smith, Buckhannon, W. Va.; Walter Smith, at home; Mrs. Amelia Smith, Mrs. Prima Manvel, Mrs. Viola Sagle, Cleveland, O.; Mrs. Erma Dixon and Mrs. Clara Moats, Hagerstown; also 15 grandchildren, 2 great grandchildren, and a brother, Philip M. Smith, Accident.

A son, William P. Smith, was killed in the last war during the St. Mihiel drive, on September 27, 1918, while a member of the 37th heavy artillery. His body was shipped to Accident four years later and buried.

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Zion Lutheran church at Accident, with Rev. C. F. Dauphin, pastor, officiating. Interment was in the Accident cemetery.

MRS. LLOYD M'ROBIE

Mrs. Caroline Brown Knox McRobie, widow of the late Squire Lloyd McRobie, of Swanton, died about 7:15 o'clock Monday morning, May 11, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Francis Bittinger, Meadow Mountain. She had been a patient in Memorial hospital for five days, returning to her home on May 4. Death was due to a heart ailment.

Mrs. McRobie was born in this county May 8, 1857, and was aged 85 years. She was a member of the Dunkard church.

Surviving are one son, Jacob L. Knox, McHenry; and three daughters, Mrs. Mary Bittinger, Mrs. George Friend, Swanton; Mrs. Bell Broadwater, Avilton; and a large number of grandchildren and great grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the Lutheran church at Meadow Mountain, Rev. A. C. Curran, pastor, and Rev. Clarence W. Fraker, McHenry, officiating. Interment was in the McHenry cemetery.

WALKER WELLING

The remains of Walker Welling, aged 62, who died Thursday, May 7, in Washington, D. C., were brought to Oakland last Saturday afternoon for interment. Death was the result of an accidental fall, from which he fractured his skull.

Mr. Welling was born April 2, 1880, in Oakland, a son of the late David and Nancy Welling, and had resided in Washington for the past forty years.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Amanda Welling, and one son, Edward Welling; of Washington; two sisters, Miss Theresa Welling and Mrs. May Kemphfer, of Oakland; six brothers, Wiley Welling, Mt. Lake Park; George Welling, Max Welling, and Joseph Welling, of Oakland; Carter Welling, of Keyser, W. Va., and David Welling, Washington.

Rev. Minor Sprague, pastor of St. Paul's Methodist church, had charge of final rites at the grave. Pallbearers were Joe Cogley, Lee R. Mason, Harry West, L. M. Fraley, Phil Whittaker and George R. Welling, the latter a nephew.

MRS. PETER BROWN

Funeral rites were held on Sunday, May 10, at the English Lutheran church in the Cove, for Mrs. Emma Elizabeth Georg Brown, 67, who died suddenly at her home in that section on Wednesday, May 6. Her death was caused by a cerebral hemorrhage.

Rev. L. A. Wagner officiated and interment was in the Cove cemetery with six nephews serving as pallbearers.

Mrs. Brown, widow of the late Peter Brown, was born in Lonaconing, August 18, 1874, a daughter of the late John H. and Savilla Diehl Georg. She had resided in the Cove section for more than forty years, during which time she had been a member of the Cove Lutheran church.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Albert Griffith, Cove; Mrs. Harold Jenkins, Accident; two sons, Harry Brown and Mahlon Brown, Cove; three sisters, Mrs. Margaret Glover, Akron, O.; Mrs. George Hanft and Mrs. Harry Bach, Cove; four brothers, Melchoir Georg and Henry Georg, Keyser Ridge; Edward Georg, Boswell, Pa., and Mahlon Georg, of Iowa, and several grandchildren.

MRS. HARVEY FIKE

Funeral services for Mrs. Nora Fike, 56, of Friendsville, who died at her home last Wednesday night after an extended illness, were conducted on Sunday by Rev. R. L. Greynolds in the Methodist church. Interment was in the Friendsville cemetery.

She was the daughter of Mrs. Susanna Fike Friend and the late Oliver Cromwell Friend, Selbysport.

Surviving are her husband, Harvey Fike, two sons, Norris, Friendsville; and Melvin, at a government post in Virginia; three daughters, Mrs. Alberta Hone, Selbysport; Mrs. Elma Friend, Friendsville; and Mrs. Blanche Meese, Uniontown, Pa., also her mother, Mrs. Cromwell Friend; and four brothers, Samuel Friend, near Accident; Martin Friend, Oakie Friend and Fred Friend, all of Friendsville.

Pallbearers were Bliss Fike, Albert Miller, Norris Fike, Melvin Fike, James Fike and Arnold Sines.

MRS. FREDERICK G. SCHOCH

A message was received by relatives here on Monday announcing the death of Mrs. Ada Schoch, in Spokane, Washington, on Sunday. The funeral occurred Tuesday. Mrs. Schoch was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank O. Glotfelty, of Spokane, formerly of Oakland, and a niece of Mrs. Specht, Mrs. Hansen and Mrs. James Fazzalari, all of Oakland. The deceased was born in Oakland on September 17, 1899, and was aged 42 years. She is survived by her parents, a son Frederick G. Schoch, Jr., three brothers, Harry Glotfelty, Carl Glotfelty and Ray Glotfelty, all of Spokane, and one sister, Mrs. Gertrude Plotts, of Boston, Mass. Mr. Schoch died two years ago.

MRS. WILLIAM TEETS

Mrs. Isabel Zebley Teets, wife of William Teets, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William Bittinger, at Loch Lynn Heights, on Saturday, May 9, following an illness of three or four months from a heart ailment. She was aged 65.

Born in Fayette county, Pa., February 2, 1877, she was the daughter of the late James and Katherine Zebley. Her home was at Accident.

Surviving are her husband, William Teets, and one daughter, Mrs. Clara Crawford Bittinger; also two sisters, Mrs. Bert Gadd, Uniontown, Pa.; Mrs. George McNutt, Lamont Furnace, Pa.; one brother, James F. Zebley, Detroit, Mich., and five grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted Monday, with a short service at the Leighton Funeral home at 1 o'clock with Rev. J. C. Foster, Mt. Lake Park, officiating, the funeral party going from there to Shady Grove Park, near Uniontown, Pa., where other services were conducted in the Free Methodist church with Rev. James Foy in charge. Interment was in the church cemetery.

CHARLES M. SWIRES

Charles M. Swires, 53, of Mt. Lake Park, world war veteran, died at 7 o'clock Tuesday morning, May 12, in Memorial hospital, Cumberland, after an illness of several months. He first entered the hospital on March 14 for several weeks, and after being out for several days, entered the hospital again on April 29.

A son of the late Noah H. and Mary Elizabeth Swires, he was a native of Mt. Lake Park. He was a miner by trade but was retired after an accident about fifteen years ago.

In the World War Mr. Swires served in the 311th Machine Gun Battalion, 79th division. He was also a member of Garrett Lodge No. 113, Knights of Pythias, Oakland; Oak Lodge No. 8, I. O. O. F., Mt. Lake Park; and the United Brethren church in Loch Lynn.

Funeral services are to be conducted this afternoon at the U. B. church in Loch Lynn with Rev. J. C. Foster, pastor, in charge. Interment will be in the Pleasant Valley cemetery.

Mr. Swires never married and has no immediate survivors. His nearest relatives are a brother-in-law; S. S. Groves, Bedford Valley, Pa.; and a sister-in-law, Mrs. Nora Swires, Loch Lynn.

Single copies of The Republican may be obtained at the Hamill Book and Stationery Store, corner Third and Alder streets, where the current issue of the paper is placed on sale every Thursday afternoon. Price, 5 cents per copy.

With Our Men In the Service

Cadet Donald J. Elliott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jamie S. Elliott, Mt. Lake Park, is enrolled in the last class of aviation cadets to enter the huge air corps replacement training center (air crew) at Maxwell field, Ala., where he is taking pre-flight training at this time.

Elliott is a former student of Washington college, Chestertown, and was assisting his father in the piano and music business prior to being accepted as a cadet in the U. S. Army Air Corps.

After completing his course at Maxwell field, Ala., Elliott will be sent to one of the many primary flying schools located in the southeast for his first phase of his pilot training.

Record Trout Caught By Finzel Fisherman

The second largest trout ever caught in Maryland, so far as is known, was hooked Saturday in Piney Dam by Cecil Baker, of Finzel, Regional Game Warden Joseph A. Minke reported.

Minke said Baker's catch, a brown trout, was twenty-two and one-half inches in length and weighed five and three-quarter pounds.

The record was set last year by Charles Simpson, of Cumberland, when he pulled a 25-inch six-pounder out of Deep Creek Lake.

"LEGION OF DEATH"

I hereby wish to make my covenant along with others in Garrett county, pledging myself to subscribe to the defense of our country and our loved ones, if the need arises, and giving my life, if needs be, for the preservation of a free America.

I want to be listed as a member of the organization, "Legion of Death."

AURORA-EGLON

At 8:30 o'clock Sunday evening, May 10, at a quiet ceremony in the Lutheran parsonage at Red House, the Rev. A. K. Jones, pastor, read the vows uniting in marriage Mrs. Katherine Myrtle Howell, 46, of Aurora, widow of the late Rev. Loring M. Howell, former pastor of the Aurora Methodist church, and Reuben Elden Smith, 57, B. & O. Railway operator and agent at Petroleum, West Va. The couple will make their home in Petroleum.

Mr. and Mrs. George Harsh announce the birth of a son, Earl Calvin, on Wednesday, May 6, at their home in the Accident community. This is their first child. The mother was the former Miss Bernice Sell, daughter of Mrs. Grace Sell and the late Ray Sell, of near Eglon.

Sergeant John Arnett, who is stationed at Alburquerque, New Mexico, spent the week-end with relatives at Aurora.

Word has been received here that Mrs. Fike, wife of the Rev. Earle Fike, is a patient in a Staunton, Va., hospital. Rev. Fike was formerly of Eglon and a former instructor in the Aurora High school.

Mrs. Harvey Wolfe is quite ill at her home near Red House. Mrs. Wolfe was the former Miss Nellie Wotring, of near Brookside.

Lawrence Artis, of near Eglon, went on Monday to Potomac Park, Md., where he has employment.

Recent out-of-town visitors at the home of Mrs. Eva Davis at Aurora were Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Rickey, of Cumberland; Mrs. E. V. Anderson, Miss Fannie Anderson and Hal Anderson, of Terra Alta.

Miss Nettie Cole, who is at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Hathaway at Oakland, spent the week-end with her sister, Mrs. Wilmer Harsh, in Eglon.

Mrs. Homer Fike operated the Eglon telephone exchange on Wednesday while Mrs. Gertrude Snyder, the regular operator, assisted her daughter-in-law with the spring planting.

Dr. and Mrs. Harry Werner, of Akron, Ohio, were guests on Sunday at the home of the Doctors Miller, in Eglon.

Quinter Slaughbaugh, of near Eglon, and teacher in the Accident school, received his call for service in the armed forces and will leave Kingwood on Friday for a camp near Staunton, Va. His wife, the former Miss Eileen Forman, of Aurora, has secured employment near the camp and will go also on that day.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Evans, of Pennsylvania, came on Friday to the home of Mr. Evans' parents near Horse Shoe Run. On Sunday they visited at Mrs. Evans' home at Douglass and while there their automobile caught fire and was destroyed. They returned to their home in Pennsylvania by bus.

Mrs. John Shillingburg, who was a surgical patient in the Wenzel Hospital at Meyersadale, Pa., returned on Tuesday to her home near Brookside.

Week-end guests at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Ezra Fike, Eglon, were Rev. and Mrs. Joe Miller, Earle, Jr., and Betty Lou Fike, all of Broadway, Va.; Virginia Lois Fike, of Bridgewater, Va.; Mrs. Olive Huffman and two children, of Richmond, Va., who had been at the home for two weeks, and Dr. and Mrs. Jerome Arnett and infant, of Cleveland, Ohio. Dr. Arnett returned on Sunday to Cleveland, where he will have a few weeks yet of interne work in a hospital. Mrs. Arnett and child remained at Eglon where she will plant a garden preparatory to their locating there in the month of July.

Mrs. Myrtle Shillingburg, who has been a patient in a state hospital since November, returned on Sunday to the home of her father, Isaac Woting, Aurora.

Mrs. Catherine Kooken, of Hyattsville, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Abernathy, of Aurora, W. Va.

Visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Abernathy on Mother's Day were Mr. and Mrs. J. Kirk Cosner and family of Oakland; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Shaffer and family, of Pierce, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Otis Sell, of Pierce, W. Va.; A. R. Taylor, of Fairmont, and Mrs. Catherine Kooken, of Hyattsville. Mrs. Kooken returned to Hyattsville accompanied by Mrs. Ruth Smith and children, and Samuel Pettri, of Washington, D. C.

THE REPUBLICAN

VOLUME 66. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, MAY 21, 1942. NUMBER 13.

Confusion . . . . . .

By REV. A. B. LEAMER, D. D.,
Pastor St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Oakland.

The war will soon be over. It will end this year. The Germans can't hold out much longer because they are short on food. It will be a long war, for the Nazis have been storing food and materials for 20 years. The war will end in a stalemate—everyone will be exhausted.

We shall whip the Japs in no time. Hundreds of Nazi bombers shot down and thousands of other flying machines. Ships are sunk by the hundreds, and hundreds of thousands are being killed. Dozens, hundreds of our own ships are shot down and scores of vessels are sunk and whole armies are captured or killed.

This is the stuff we hear and read all the time and no one can know what is true and what is false.

It isn't much wonder that we cannot be stirred to a realization of the fact that we are in a war that takes in every nation in the world, in one way or another.

Truth is the thing that will stir us up and make us fighting mad and ready to fight and show our determination that no one will stop our progress or stamp out our freedoms.

We will continue to have a free press, free speech, free assembly, freedom to worship God and freedom to work out our own personal future.

The facts will rouse us to determination and bring us into action and woe betide the man or nation that stands in our way. America has ever fought to the open country of liberty and freedom and having won it we will not turn back nor retreat. Our spirit in America is the "Give me liberty, or give me death" type and he who interfers with our having it will be the loser.

We shall keep our country "the land of the free and the home of the brave" if we know the truth and are shown the real danger.

For it and our God we will sacrifice our everything and our all.

ASK ELIMINATION OF REAL ESTATE TAXES BY STATE

Commissioners Sign Resolution Seeking Governor O'Conor To Support Amendment To Change Constitution

At the regular semi-monthly meeting of the County Commissioners on Monday, May 18, in Oakland, a resolution was adopted requesting Governor O'Conor to advocate and support an amendment to the Constitution of Maryland, providing after 1943 for the elimination of real estate and tangible personal property taxes for the support of the State government or for paying the principal and interest on any State debt except such debts as would be outstanding January 1, 1944.

This request was made because of the fact that the bonded indebtedness of the State is being reduced rapidly and that a program has been proposed by the Governor for the reduction and eventual elimination of the entire bonded indebtedness, it was stated.

Such a step, it was pointed out, would leave that source of revenue for the subdivisions of the State entirely, and it was shown that neighboring States have already ceased to levy any direct taxes on real estate and tangible personal property for State purposes.

Paul M. Friend and Cheston H. Browning commissioners, signed the resolution. G. Blaine Giessman, third member of the board, was absent on account of illness.

The resolution in full reads as follows:

Office of
The Board of County Commissioners of Garrett County.
Oakland, Maryland.

WHEREAS, Under the leadership of Governor O'Conor the bonded indebtedness of the State will have been reduced from January 1, 1939, to January 1, 1943, from $48,000,000 to approximately $33,000,000; and

WHEREAS, Governor O'Conor has provided for the reduction in the tax on real estate from .2335 for 1941, to .14 for 1942, and to .1275 for 1943; and

WHEREAS, Governor O'Conor has proposed a program for the reduction of and eventual elimination of the entire bonded indebtedness of the State and has given voice at the meeting of the Real Estate Board of Baltimore, held on Saturday, February 7, 1942, as well as at other times, to his belief that the State tax on real estate "can and should be eliminated altogether," and "this source of revenue should be left for the subdivisions of the State"; and

WHEREAS, Many States have already ceased to levy any direct taxes on real estate and tangible personal property for State purposes, among them being our neighboring States of Delaware, Virginia, Pennsylvania, as well as New York, New Jersey, Ohio, Illinois and many other forward looking States; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That Governor O'Conor be requested to advocate and to support at the next session of the Legislature, an amendment to Section 34 of Article III of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, title "Legislative Department", to be voted upon by the legally qualified voters of the State, to become a part of the State Constitution, which amendment shall provide that from and after January first, nineteen hundred and forty-four, no taxes shall be levied upon real estate or tangible personal property for the support of the State government, or to pay the principal or the interest on any State debt except such debts as may be outstanding and unpaid on the first day of January, nineteen hundred and forty-four; and be it

RESOLVED, That a copy of this resolution be sent to Governor O'Conor and be published in the newspapers of the county.

With Our Men In the Service

Lt. Theodore R. Englehart, Meyersdale, Pa., was recently assigned to the Academic Department of the Infantry School, Fort Benning, Ga. Until his graduation April 20, Lt. Englehart had been a student in the Officers' Rifle and Heavy Weapons Course at the School. He will join the weapons group teaching "Scouting and Patrolling", and "Technique of Rifle Fire."

Lt. Englehart is a son of Mrs. Josephine Browning Englehart and the late Alvin C. Englehart. His parents were natives of this county.

Among those who were recently drafted, James Nordeck and Richard Roy are located in Camp Wheeler, Ga.; Irvin Feld, in Camp Lee, Va., and John Michael, in Biloxi, Miss.

Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Welling, Mt. Lake Park, have received word from their son, Private Forrest Welling, of Headquarters Squadron 318, Air Base Group, who is now at Barksdale Field, La., where he was returned from the combat area for recovery of wounds sustained during action over the southwest Pacific islands. He will take advanced training as an aerial gunner. Welling is a graduate of Oakland high school and enlisted some time ago.

Mrs. Margaret Martini, Mt. Lake Park, has received word that her son Arthur B. Martini, is now stationed at Fort Eustis, Va., with the anti-aircraft division of the army.

Elmer W. Ashby, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ashby, Crellin, who was called into the service in April, is now stationed at Will Rogers Field, in Oklahoma. Ashby was employed by the Celanese Corporation at Cumberland before his induction.

Swallow Falls CCC Camp Closed May 20

The Swallow Falls Civilian Conservation Corps camp, the only one remaining in Garrett county, was closed yesterday, May 20, and the enrollees transferred to Camp Rock Creek, near Washington, D. C.

Some of the camp's equipment was sold at public auction on Tuesday and the balance was sent to Rock Creek for use there.

The Swallow Falls camp was opened in June, 1934, and later seven other camps were established in this county. One by one they have been abandoned. The Swallow Falls camp was considered one of the most valuable in this area as the enrollees had made the State forest in that area available to visitors, having cleared many trails, constructed roads, picnic spots, etc., besides doing much forest work and assisting during the forest fire season.

Active Summer Season Indicated From Inquiries

Prospects of an active summer season here is forecast in the number of inquiries being received every day by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, it was stated yesterday by C. L. Briner, Jr., president.

"Right now we have about one hundred fifty letters from people in Maryland and surrounding states who are asking about available places in Oakland and along Deep Creek Lake," he said.

MRS. BYRON AGAIN IS A CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS

Seeks Renomination As Sixth District Representative In Surprise Move

Mrs. Katharine E. Byron, who was elected Representative from Maryland's Sixth Congressional District in a special election held last year to fill the unexpired term of her husband, has announced that she would be a candidate for renomination and re-election.

Her hunsband, the late William D. Byron, was killed in February, 1941, in a plane crash in Georgia.

Mrs. Byron's announcement caused some stir among Western Maryland Democratic political circles, as she had declared previous to her election last May that she would not seek re-election and that her only ambition was to fill out the unexpired term of her husband, as she had been acquainted with his desires in Congressional matters and wanted to see them carried out. She defeated A. Charles Stewart, Frostburg Republican, whom her husband had also beaten in the regular election held previously.

William Preston Lane, Jr., Democratic national committeeman, of Hagerstown, declared that Mrs. Byron's announcement came as a surprise to him. "I knew nothing about it," he said. "Mrs. Byron did not discuss the matter with me."

Her announcement follows:

"The greatest compliment paid me by the people of my district, was their having confidence in electing me to serve the unexpired term in Congress of my late husband, and I deeply appreciate their faith in me.

"After much thought and after talking with my friends in the district I have decided to announce my candidacy for reelection as representative in the Sixth District in Maryland.

Loyal To President

"It has been my privilege to loyally support our great President, Franklin D. Roosevelt, and I want my constituents to have the opportunity to support me so that I may continue to serve my country. It is the duty of every man, woman and child to do his part during this anxious and perilous time."

Voters of Montgomery, Frederick, Washington, Allegany and Garrett counties last May gave the 38-year-old mother of five sons a 1,115-vote margin over her opponent, A. Charles Stewart.

To Make Recheck on Cattle in This Area

A certain percentage of cattle in this area will be rechecked for the purpose of maintaining its rating as a modified accredited area, according to John H. Carter, county agent.

Dr. Clarke, a federal and state veterinarian, is here now and others will be here later to take tests for Bang's disease and tuberculosis in cattle. At least 20 percent of the cattle will be tested. Anyone desiring the test are asked to get in touch with Mr. Carter at his office. He pointed out that there was no charge for the work and that indemnity would be paid for any cattle found to have these diseases.

Deadline For Sugar Ration Stamp No. 2 Is Fixed For May 30

The No. 1 sugar ration stamp is now "dead," and the No. 2 stamp, like the first, is good for the purchase of one pound of sugar at any time during the period of two weeks—May 18 to and including Saturday, May 30.

The No. 1 stamp was good only until closing time May 16. Stamp No. 3 will be good for two weeks, beginning June 1.

Legion Proclaims Poppy Day, May 23

Proctor Kildow Post No. 71, American Legion, has proclaimed Saturday, May 23, as Poppy Day.

These poppies are made by disabled war veterans in various hospitals and the money derived from the sale of them locally is used for needy veterans and their families in Garrett county.

The Legion has obtained 500 poppies and the sale will be in charge of Earl Selders.

Holmes Browning and two sons, Bob and Charles, returned to their home in Charleston, West Va., yesterday following a visit of a week with Mr. Browning's sister, Mrs. Huldah Littman.

"Price Freezing" Goes Into Effect

The Office of Price Administratior order which "freezes" prices went into effect this week with no noticeable effect on local shoppers and the merchants. Few of the shoppers were aware of the "price freezing".

The OPA order fixes a ceiling on many items at the highest price for which they sold the identical merchandise during the month of March. Prime purpose of the order was prevention of any inflationary effects on the economy of the nation.

Garrett County War Bond Quota for May Already Surpassed

Rally Last Thursday evening Resulted in Sale of $7,925 In Bonds and $36 in Stamps

Garrett county citizens showing a renewed interest in pushing the sale of war bonds and stamps, have already oversubscribed the May quota of $14,200, set the first of the month by Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Secretary of the Treasury.

The total amount reported by the First National Bank, the Garrett National Bank and the Oakland postoffice was $16,186 and there are other banks and postoffices in the county selling them too.

Almost $14,000 of this amount was reported by the First National Bank which remained open last Thursday night during the rally on Second street. The American Legion drum and bugle corps from Westernport came to Oakland that evening for a parade to boost the sale of the war bonds and stamps and those who gathered were addressed by Mayor L. M. Fraley and Walter W. Dawson.

During the period designated there were bonds purchsedd amounting to were bonds purchased amounting to $36, more than half of the quota for the entire month.

The Legion drum corps came here voluntarily, the same as it has been doing upon several former occasions within the neighboring area. Members were entertained later by Proctor Kildow Post, American Legion of Oakland, in the city hall.

Autoist Drowned As Car Wrecks

John D. Hayden, 57, a member of the Rowlesburg city council and chairman of the defense organization there, was drowned in Cheat river on Monday when his car plunged over a bank into the swollen waters, about three and one-half miles north of the town. He was a former resident of Mt. Lake Park.

He had made a business trip to Kingwood and was returning to his home. Trainmen on the Kingwood branch of the B. and O. railroad, which is on the opposite side of the river, saw the car in the water and reported it.

State Trooper A. M. Hurst and Deputy Sheriff Jess Benson took the body from the water at 1:30 p. m. A watch in the man's pocket had stopped at 11:29 a. m. The body was in only two feet of water. Officers said the car had been in the ditch for 45 yards before it plunged over a 60-foot embankment into the river. It was the fourth accidental fatality in Preston county this year.

Mr. Hayden was a son of the late Capt. James A. and Letitia Savage Hayden, of the Park and resided at the park before locating in Rowlesburg about 25 years ago.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Lulu Smith Hayden, two sons, John Hayden, Jr., attending a United States Navy school in Houston, Texas; and James Hayden, in the U. S. Army, stationed at Camp Claiborne, La.; also three brothers, Gay Hayden, Mt. Lake Park; Grant Hayden, Westernport, and Lee N. Hayden, Roanoke, Va.

Funeral services will be conducted Friday afternoon at one o'clock in the Rowlesburg Methodist church, after which the body will be brought to Oakland where interment will be made in the Hayden burial plot of Oakland cemetery.

New Mining Concern Organized At Corinth, West Va.

A West Virginia State charter was issued last Saturday to the Princess Pat Coal Co., Inc., a mining concern at Corinth, Preston county, just across the Garrett county line from Hutton.

The $5,000 was incorporated by William L. Sherman, Camille J. Sherman and Carl A. Low, all of Cumberland.

F. A. THAYER, 87, DIES AT HIS HOME YESTERDAY

Was Dean of Garrett County Bar, Having Been Admitted To Law Practice In May, 1883

Frederick Augustus Thayer, almost 88 years of age, dean of the Garrett County bar, and well known Oakland resident for more than sixty-five years, died at his home on Oak street about 1:50 o'clock yesterday morning, May 20, after an illness of more than three months' duration.

Mr. Thayer was confined to his home with a heart ailment the first week in February and became bedfast in March. Previous to February he had been attending to his business regularly and going to the office daily in spite of his advanced age.

A man of varying activities during the early part of his career he served as State's Attorney, postmaster of the Oakland office, a bank director and president, court auditor, and was much interested in the work of the Methodist church and Sunday school, holding important positions therein.

Mr. Thayer was born in this county August 1, 1854, and acquired his early education in the public and private schools of this area and from private tutors. When he attained his majority he took up the study of law under the tutelage of Thomas J. Peddicord and was admitted to the bar in May, 1883. He immediately opened an office in Oakland and successfully carried on his practice for seven years when he gave it up and accepted the position of postmaster, having been appointed in 1890 by President Harrison.

After four years of service he resumed his interrupted practice.

For five years he was clerk to the board of county commissioners and for a similar period served as deputy clerk of the Circuit Court.

In 1895 he was nominated on the Republican ticket for the office of State's Attorney and was elected by a large majority. He served in this capacity for twelve years.

He was also one of the founders of the First National Bank, estabiished in 1900; has always been a director and member of the board and has been its president since its organization with the exception of about three years. He was president at the time of his death.

He had also been court auditor for many years, ever since the death of the late Edward H. Sincell, with whom he was at one time associated in the practice of law. He was a member of the Odd Fellows, Shealtiel lodge, of Oakland, which laid out the Oakland cemetery. The organization is now extinct.

For the past twenty-five or thirty years he has confined his activities mostly to office practice. Last year he was named by the Court of Appeals on a committee to formulate new rules of practice and procedure which went into effect September 1, 1941.

In religious activities he was the senior member of St. Paul's Methodist church; was a member of the Board of Trustees for many years, and president of that body at the time of his death. He was superintendent of the Methodist Sunday School for twenty years, succeeding the late Rev. J. M. Davis.

October 1, 1884, Mr. Thayer married Miss Maggie Peddicord, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Peddicord.

Surviving are three children, Dr. Rebecca Thayer, Wooster, Ohio; Ralph T. Thayer, Hagerstown, and Frederick A. Thayer, Jr., Oakland. Another child died in infancy. Mrs. Thayer died quite a number of years ago.

The body will be taken to St. Paul's church at noon tomorrow and funeral will be conducted at 2 o'clock, with Rev. Minor Sprague, pastor, officiating. Interment will be in Oakland cemetery.

Many Stores to Close For Memorial Day

Twenty or more stores in Oakland have announced this week that they will close their places of business on Saturday, May 30, in observance of Decoration or Memorial Day.

Those who have entered into an agreement to observe the day by closing their places of business are listed on page seven of The Republican today. These stores will remain open Friday evening, however, so that all who wish to make purchases of merchandise may do so.

The formal observance of the day by the Legionnaires and Knights of Pythias will be held Sunday afternoon with Rev. Garrett Evans, Mountain Lake Park pastor, delivering the oration at the Oakland cemetery.

Child Trapped In Burning Building Early This Morning

Loses Her Life in Fire Which Consumed Home of Mrs. Bertha Hoye

A three-year-old child, Barbara Ann Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Brown, was burned to death in a fire this morning about 7 o'clock, which consumed the home of Mrs. Bertha Hoye, west of town.

The child, granddaughter of Mrs. Hoye, was asleep in one corner of the one-story bungalow when the latter built a fire in the kitchen stove and then left the house to milk the cow in a nearby field. Happening to glance up she saw the house in flames..

Neighbors saw the flames about the same time and called the Oakland firemen, and pending arrival of the firemen, tried to rescue the child but the heat and smoke were so intense that they did not succeed. Firemen concentrated on the corner of the room where the child was located and by heroic effort made it possible for John Stevenson to reach her and bring her from the burning building, but she was badly burned and apparently had suffocated several minutes before. Stevenson was burned slightly about the face. Mrs. Hoye fainted in the excitement and was revived by members of the fire department. The house was entirely destroyed.

The child's father lives in Chestertown, while Mrs. Brown, the former Lucille Hoye, lives in Morgantown, W. Va. The remains were taken to the Bolden funeral home.

Oakland Masons to Observe Fiftieth Anniversary, May 27

Oakland Lodge No. 192, Ancient, Free and Accepted Masons, will be fifty years old on Wednesday, May 27, at which time the members of the organization are planning an appropriate celebration.

A special communication is to be held at 4 o'clock on that day, when a representative of the Grand Lodge of Masons will be present and the Master Mason degree will be conferred.

Following the lodge communication there will be a banquet for the members, their wives and invited guests, in the assembly room of the Methodist church, beginning about 7 o'clock. A program of entertainment will follow the dinner. Benj. H. Sincell will review the history of masonry in Oakland. Due to the small space for the dinner, it was not possible to extend general invitations to other lodges in the area. Around 150 are expected to attend.

Several Oaklanders Attend The Garrett--Allegany Bankers Meeting At Cumberland

H. C. Riggs, cashier of the Garrett National Bank in Oakland, was re-elected secretary-treasurer of Group 1 of the Maryland Bankers Association of Garrett and Allegany counties at a meeting held last Thursday evening at Cumberland.

John R. Hamilton, Lonaconing, was elected chairman, and Harold R. Fletcher, Cumberland, vice-chairman.

Charles A. Piper, president of the Liberty Trust Company, Cumberland, and a member of the Maryland War Savings Committee, spoke on the purchase of bonds and stamps, while Mr. Fletcher spoke on the loan regulations.

The guest speaker was D. Raymond Ehrensberger, College Park, who told of his experience in Russia.

Attending the dinner meeting from Oakland were Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Riggs, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Littman, J. M. Jarboe, D. Edward Offutt, Arthur Naylor, Miss Berylding Fulk, A. D. Naylor and Cecil A. Smith.

COMMISSIONERS WIN POINT ON PURCHASE LAW

Judge Sloan Issues Decree Giving Commissioners Right to Hire by Day or Hour to Unlimited Amount

The County Commissioners were given the right to hire by the day or unit to an unlimited degree in construction of roads in Garrett county, and won their point in relation to payment of certain bills by the State Roads Commission, in an opinion handed down this week by Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan, following a hearing in an equity suit in the Circuit Court here on Monday, May 11.

The County Commissioners had asked the court for a declaratory decree relating to subsection "H" of the Acts of 1941, Chapter 888, which made it mandatory to advertise for bids for material, equipment, etc., of a value exceeding $100.00 in the management of the county roads.

Because of the wording to the law which affected Garrett county alone, the State Roads Commission had held up payment of bills amounting to $6,797.62, for construction work done on the Rock Lodge and Smouse Roads, from money allocated to the county from the Gasoline Tax Fund for construction purposes.

The State Roads Commission, also anxious for an interpretation of the law, cooperated in the friendly suit and in their answer to the County Commissioner bill, prayed the interpretation of subsection "E" of the chapter as well, which related to requiring the State Roads Commission to advertise and contract for any construction costing more than $1,000, and in this matter also the judge's opinion gave the County Commissioners unlimited power, declaring that County Commissioners did not have to abide by this regulation, but could construct roads without asking for bids or making a binding contract.

Also Affects Other Counties

The interpretation of the latter subsection also affects ten other counties of the state who have been managing their own county roads, having obtained them from the state by legislative enactment.

The Judge declared, "It is a matter of common knowledge that for a long

Miss Helbig Heads Professional Women

Other Officers Named at Meeting—Dr. Baumgartner Talks To Group

Miss Mary Louise Helbig was elected president of the Business and Professional Women's club at the regular dinner meeting of the organization at the William-James hotel last Thursday evening. She will succeed Mrs. Leo Helbig who has served as president for the past two years.

Other officers named were Mrs. Dorothy Ogburn, vice-president; Miss Barbara Smith, secretary; and Miss Ann Dilgard, treasurer.

Mrs. Merne Kloss was elected as delegate to the State convention held in Cumberland over the week-end. Others attending were Mrs. Helbig, Mrs. Ogburn, Miss Helbig, Miss Dilgard and Miss Catherine Baker.

Following the dinner last Thursday Dr. E. I. Baumgartner delivered an address on the subject "The Health of the Community," and brought a number of facts and features of community activity before the group. Mrs. Russell Brown and Miss Dilgard rendered a vocal duet.

The program was in charge of Miss Catherine Baker, who has been chairman of the program committee during the past year.

Lions Have Returned Sailor As Guest of Honor

One of the most interesting meetings of the local Lions club yet held, took place at the William-James hotel Monday evening when Howard Smouse, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Smouse, Oakland, was the guest of honor. Smouse had just returned to the United States on the U. S. S. Cruiser Marblehead, which took part in a sea battle off the coast of Borneo. Members of the club spent some time asking him questions about his experiences and viewing souvenirs of his trip which has taken him to every part of the world.

Several local people were guests of members. These included, "Dick" Helbig, Edwin S. Lanzer, Carl Frazee, C. H. Browning, "Dick" Shaffer, Capt. C. E. Hoye and Francis Connelly.

Turning Over An Old Leaf

By Phillip A. Gladheim

"There were faces to remember in the Valley of the Shadow;
There were faces unregarded, there were faces to forget;
There were fires of grief and fear that are a few forgotten ashes;
There were sparks of recognition that are not forgotten yet."

Trout fishing is distinguished from all other out-door sports because its environment holds the assets of springtime in the mountains, the lush profusion of the rarest and most fragrant flowers, and the warbling of our sweetest singers, for it is mating time.

Of the many places we could visit in fancy let us limit ourselves to three.

In spite of being heavily fished, Bear Creek holds charm. It is the finest trout stream in the county, running gently through heavily wooded slopes. Unfortunately some of these slopes are yielding to the axe, and ever so often one runs into a saw-dust pile as he moves downstream. This is the tenth anniversary of Ralph Miller's supervision of the hatchery, located a short distance above the old Engle Mill. Ralph still continues his expert handling of the hatchery, the planting of trout in the various streams, and the planning for a larger future. The environs of the hatchery are attractively kept; and even though Ralph has always plenty of work to do he always finds time to be genial and helpful when fishermen and sightseers descend into his sylvan-stream retreat.

The last week in April in the lower part of Bear Creek I saw a trout feeding at the edge of a fast riffle in a boulder-framed pool. What I would like to pass on to the reader is a combination of sights when this large rainbow trout jumped for the gray-hackle fly into the glitter, where sunlight and riffles coalesce into a warm, diffused brilliance, and after landing him in a net, placing him in a the creel by a slope of painted trilliums. Or how would you like to see far down unfrequented Little Bear Creek (South Fork), beneath young beeches, in tender leaf, an almost solid blanket of white Bishop's Cap, interspersed with maroon trilliums, like knots in a quilt? These together with banks of mint and violet is what one can see if rambling on Bear Creek this season of the year

For the second place of breath-taking beauty, we will go to Big Star Run in Grant county. This stream has a precipitous descent on the east slope of Allegheny Front. Near its mouth has lived for fifty-five years Mr. and Mrs. Kem Arbogast, as fine a people as you would ever hope to meet. The past eight springtides I have never missed being with them, and at the end of a day's fish on Big Star (which always provides native 'brooks') unload the creel in Mrs. Arbogast's apron. Over a slow-coal fire in home-spun butter she would fry the trout for supper—and for dessert serve cherry-cobbler with thick cream.

The situation and character of this stream is comparable to a Swiss Idyll. It runs its course pell-mell thru a narrow, deeply-wooded ravine, decorated with every species of columbine. It is a series of cascades and deep, blue-green pools. It never muddies and remains an untarnished streak of silver thru the forest gloom. It plunges with an allegro tempo over red-shale patched at intervals with moss deeper and softer than a Persian carpet. Its bed makes a vivid contrast in color between the foamy whiteness of the spillways and the opalescent green of the pools, all within the halo of sparkling mist suggesting the leaping vitality of its furtive tenants. There is no measuring instrument to record the feeling-tones of the air, the fragrance of the forest in early bloom, the musical sounds from trees that stab the clouds, and the splash and contented gurgle of the brook. No wonder the pitch of excitement can be sustained from dawn to dusk, when every sense is kept alive by nature's harmless but seductive presentation of its own sensual glory.

Here in this setting, far removed from cow-paths, leaping out of a mountain almost perpendicular, 4,000 feet above sea level, in a series of iridescent stairways, framed by rhododendron in bloom, while sunrays filter thru virgin maple, pine and oak, I let the rest of the world go by. I have no audience save the recollections of a surface arena where I deposit, in spite of over-hanging branches, a Pink Lady that floats jauntily around in circles on the surface, like thistle-down. In the fraction of an instant there is a split of a flash of water and light, and the pool either becomes deadly quiet or is churned into pandemonium. Here in this miniature setting is presented the struggle for existence in its most dramatic tenseness. Warren Kolkhorst of Keyser, W. Va., is always ready with irrepressible laughter when I conclude my description of Big Star Run by saying 'this is the acme of Nature's sagacity.'

For the last scene we will climb back over the mountains to Blackwater. The time is June 15—and we are about one mile above Davis. It is late afternoon. As the sun descends on Canaan Mountain it is good to crawl down over boulders, assemble your tackle and go to work. Yet the glory of the river-banks is so overwhelming that in spite of your Waltonesque enthusiasm for trout you would rather, in this setting, sit down with a book, a jug of wine, a good companion, and dream. For on each bank one beholds in simultaneous bloom the White Azalea and the Pink Mountain Laurel. These large bushes of fragrance seem to purposely alternate with the Laurel. Who could not be inspired in such a setting! There is only one other place I have seen such a profusion of White Azalea and that is on the lower end of Stony River. But I must hasten to finish this description of Blackwater on this particular day. By dusk the guide (George Johnson) and I had come on a very famous pool. A hatch of Yellow Dragon May Flies, thick as a snow-storm, had crept unobserved out of the depths. The eerie Vesper song of the Kite took on an alarming momentum; and before we had time to gather our wits they swooped down on the river like bombers making a nose-dive near a landing field. They skimmed along the surface with beaks wide open, scooping up these large yellow May-flies. And as the Kites were having a picnic the trout began to churn the surface of the pool—and one after another leapt out the length of its body, greedily grabbing amuck with the Kites in this yellow swarm. I changed flies until my thumb was sore. Finally I discovered far down in a compartment of my fly box a Yellow May Fly Bivisible. This was the perfect fly for such a mad scramble. It worked—and George came out from shore with the landing net and scooped up a 12-inch rain-bow. Fortunately he did not take it off the hook because he slipped and went over backwards, and I had to retrieve the trout once more. It had now grown dark. The evening star in one horizon—the moon in the other—and in our nostrils the scent of White Azalea—and in the creel the evidence of a hard day's earnings on Blackwater. We slowly retraced our steps—thanked God for His creation—the day with its companionship and beauty and then departed. We have not since met—but only George and I hold the secret of June 15, 1938, when we stood waist deep in Blackwater at twilight, surrounded by swopping kites, jumping trout, a swarm of may-flies, and the fragrance of White Azalea.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS . . . .

Indefensible Abuse

Washington, May 19.

It has been charged that this Administration, while calling upon the people for great sacrifices, is unwilling to make any sacrifices itself. It has been charged that its insistence upon promoting New Deal social aims and playing New Deal politics (as in the recent New Jersey judgeship) interferes with a full concentration on the war effort.

* * *

These are ugly charges which, despite evidence, no one wants to stress. In a period such as this, nonpartisan support of the President is, of course, an obligation and a united nation is essential. But a distinction must be made between support of his Administration in every war measure and support of his indefensible domestic things which, using the war as a screen, are being done at home. Concurrence in these is neither patriotic nor wise; quite the reverse.

* * *

An example was given a few days ago in the attack upon House and Senate members who are leading the fight to reduce non-war Governmental expenditures. It first came with some degree of restraint from politicians close to the White House. Immediately the attack was expended and elaborated in various radical organs which reflect the New Deal view. These cast restraint aside and Senators Carter Glass, Walter George, Kenneth McKellar and Harry Byrd, along with Representatives Woodrum, Taber, Doughton and others were denounced as "wreckers" and "vandals," described as "vicious, mean and selfish men" who are, it is inferred, trying to lose the war.

* * *

The men against whom these allegations are made can afford to ignore them—and do. Except that they come from persons and papers regarded as Administration spokesmen, they would not be worth noticing at all. But the White House link provides a sound reason for considering this attack part of Administration political policy, fitting in with the unrebuked speech of Attorney General Biddle's, in which he insisted that it was necessary to fight on the New Deal political front at home as well as against our enemies abroad. Incidentally, some of those who attended the small dinner at which Mr. Biddle extolled New Deal policies are most active in the present effort to disparage the economy leaders.

* * *

The situation has reached a stage where it seems worth while to state again the facts. The first fact is that, excepting the politicians and the jobholders, everybody agrees the national safety demands that non-war expenses "be cut to the bone." Mr. Roosevelt urged this seventeen months ago. All the higher fiscal officials echoed his recommendation. Congress, believing he meant it, last year created a Joint Economy Committee, which, after months of work, made a report recommending cuts totalling over a billion dollars. Secretary Morgenthau signed this report. The New Deal spokesmen say he did so "with reservations," but the only reservation he made at the time was that the committee had not gone far enough. Instead of one billion, he though two billion should be cut.

* * *

Considering the President's own recommendations, the Morgenthau approval and the vital need for drastic reduction, there was every reason to expect the committee's report would receive Administration support. It would seem that it had acted in accord with the President's desire, after consultation with the financial officers of his Administration. One, of course, expected opposition from the jobholders, whom it is proposed to separate from the payroll, but after his clarion call for a "cut to the bone," one certainly had a right to expect cooperation from Mr. Roosevelt.

* * *

There has come from him nothing but hostility. And now his journalistic and political aides have begun personal abuse of the committee members. These men who have supported his foreign policy from the start, who have voted to give him every war power and all the money he asked and who are just as patriotic as Mr. Roosevelt and a lot more so than some who assail them are called "wreckers" and "vandals," "vicious men" who are trying to pull the props from under the country. Clearly there has begun a campaign within the Administration to knock out the committee's recommendation and peronally smear its members.

* * *

This state of affairs is deeply depressing to those who believe failure to regain control of our Federal finances weakens the war effort and menaces national stability. That members of Congres, working along lines suggested by the President, himself, should now be assailed by the President's friends, may be baffling to those who do not know the facts. Basic among them is the determination of the New Dealers not really to give up a single Governmental gadget, war or no war. Some of these may be curtailed, but others have already been greatly expanded. In face of this, the Economy Committee proposes complete abolition, for the duration, of NYA, CCC and the Farm Security Administration. A vast sum of money would be saved, but Mr. Roosevelt opposes it and the whole journalistic and poltical chorus is anguished at the suggestion.

* * *

These three agencies are especial favorites among the more ardent New Dealers and the proposal, even temporarily, to lop them off appears to them sabotage of the worst type. Their contention is that they are essential to the winning of the war, which, of course, is nonsense. The attack bodes ill for the economy program. It is difficult enough under any conditions to uproot entrenched agencies no matter how useless. To do so against White House opposition would be little short of miraculous. But it should be done and the men who are trying to do it deserve the greatest possible public support. Without that, the cause is hopeless.

May 28 to Be Get In the Scrap Day In Schools

County Superintendent of Schools, F. E. Rathbun, has designated Thursday, May 28, as 'Get in the Scrap' Day in the schools of Garrett county. Teachers in charge of home rooms and of each rural school are being asked to announce the program to their pupils as part of a nation wide campaign being conducted by A. Claude Stanton and M. S. Brookhart, Oakland implement dealers. On this day each student will be asked to bring to school with him as much scrap metal as he can carry. Pupils riding busses are cautioned to confine their junk to something as compact as possible so that no delay will arise that will disrupt bus schedules. The scrap metal will be piled on the school grounds from where arrangements will be made to transport it to some point where it can be marketed.

Any profits arising from sale of the junk over and above the cost of handling will be refunded to each school by Mr. Stanton and Mr. Brookhart.

In announcing the campaign last week Mr. Stanton and Mr. Brookhart have requested the assistance of every citizen of Garrett county in this program aimed at getting in the small quantities of scrap to be found on every farm and in every home and business place.

In commenting on the plan W. W. Dawson, local attorney said, "I know I could gather up fifty pounds around my home and if I looked a litle further I could probably make it a hundred." During the coming week it is planned to ask the mayors and town councils of the county's municipalities to set aside a spring scrap metal clean up day for the homes and business places in each village.

An earthquake in Ecuador killed 18 persons including the vice consul of the U. S. and his wife.

Electricity

Scarcities, priorities and other war restrictions make supplies of familiar products undependable. But there's one product you can depend upon—the electric current that comes steadily into your house to help you with your housekeeping. You can depend upon it for cooking and cleaning, for refrigeration and lighting, for washing and ironing, for radio entertainment. And you can depend upon it to help you save for War Stamps and Bonds, too.

A Prayer For Journalists

From a Church of England clergyman comes a "quaint and unconventional prayer for journalists," addressed to St. Francis de Sales, the patron saint of newspapermen:

"Dear patron of a harrowed tribe, grant us thy protection. Bestow on us a little more of thy critical spirit and a little less on our readers. Confer on our subscribers the grace of condescension in overlooking our faults, the grace of light in acknowledging our merits; and the grace of promptitude in meeting our bills. Make them less partial to compliments, more callous to rebuke, less critical of misprints.

"Give us beautiful thoughts, brave thoughts, so that we may have the courage to write as we think, and our readers the docility to think as we write."

* * *

Gas dealers in Allegany county have proclaimed that "We don't want to get Garrett county on the list; we want to get off." Last week they claimed most of the gasoline coming to Garrett county came through Cumberland, when gas distributors here pointed out that most of it came from West Virginia, and some from Pennsylvania, with only one company getting it from Baltimore, and consequently was trucked through Cumberland. It appeared that they were trying to get peared that they were trying to get tioned area.

* * *

Maybe?

A customer in a local store one day last week asked for a bottle of shampoo, and about ready to leave, thought of another item on the want list and asked for a clothesline.

"What are you going to do; wash your hair and then hang it out to dry?" asked the clerk.

* * *

And in the same store a customer purchased some shelving paper. On the wrapper were the words: "Feel the edge."

"I've done that; what do I do now?" she asked the clerk.

And he replied, "We'll just have to wait and ask the salesman when he comes in."

* * *

Getting Around The Rule

Usually we try to get our children to eat what is placed before them, as we don't want them to be like their "pappy" and turn up their noses at cheese, sauerkraut and a few other things on my "don't touch" list.

The other day Johnny had some stewed apples on his plate.

"How many of these can I have?" he asked his mother, and the latter pleased by the request, said, "Just as many as you may want."

"Well," came the surprise, "I only want about half of them."

Get Washington Into Line

All loyal citizens are giving up some luxuries and even some necessities. Most of us could be decorated with medals indicating regulations on rubber, gasoline, tooth paste, trouser cuffs, sugar, nightgowns, Shirttails, bicycles, bathroom fixtures. Taxes are higher and food is up. There isn't much kicking. Everybody seems willing to cooperate when they know that sacrifice is needed.

The Cumberland Daily News asked in an editorial, "What is Washington giving up?"

They wondered if members of Congress were stopping their abuse of the franking privilege to save railway mail space and postoffice truck tires—and paper.

They wonder if the yards and yards of red tape are being snipped, and if the Federal payroll is being rid of boondogglers, politicians' relatives and such.

And we wonder if they are serious about ending the war as soon as possible or prolonging it through another Presidential election, regardless of loss of life and the mounting debt?

The Government at Washington has as much responsibility in streamlining its bureaus and cutting down nondefense expenditures as citizens of the nation. People are becoming restless about Washington extravagances. It is time for an all-out effort from Washington as well as citizens.

* * *

Just a local example of gas and tire savings.

Last Thursday the county ration board received four cardboard filing cabinets.

They were sent here by truck from Baltimore, and it was a truck almost the size of a moving van. Two persons accompanied the truck.

Ration Chairman Dawson disgustedly asked if that was all they had brought.

Said the Negro driver, "Yassuh, boss; and I'se ashamed to unload them."

A little thought at Baltimore and mailing them by train would have saved considerable expense.

But maybe a lot of people on the Federal payroll are taught not to think.

* * *

Well, what are you doing to keep within bounds of the sugar quota?

Do you eat it sparingly and eat your grapefruit sour? Do you cut your supply in half in your coffee and stir twice as long?

Do you use substitutes in your cakes?

Have you cut down on home made chocolate candy?

How are you getting along? If you have a method which you consider worthy of mention, let this column know. Others would like to know of it too.

Washington Snapshots

By JAMES PRESTON

While Washington is awaiting the emergence of a clear-cut labor policy covering wage ceilings and the closed shop, it is also spending considerable time and energy talking about other aspects of the labor situation.

Latest news is that the War Manpower Commission is formulating a plan for what will amount to a labor draft. Already Chairman McNutt has warned that there must be a complete utilization of labor for war production. If the nation's factories are to continue to beat their promise on their scheduled output of munitions, millions of new workers must be found to man the production lines. McNutt places the number at 15 million—double the present supply. This means, he says, that workers must be transferred from one job to anothher and that large-scale migrations of labor will become necessary.

Exactly when this will begin to occur and on how large a scale—these are facts that have not been revealed to date, but present indications are that the labor shortage will become acute by the end of the year.

Attorney General Biddle's recent message to labor unions, advising them to accept "added responsibility" in return for the gains that labor has made in recent years, is thought here to have been intended to offset criticism of two of his recent public statements. One was his refusal to permit Assistant Attorney General Arnold to testify before Congress in connection with the bills to outlaw labor rackerteering, and the other was his statement that New Deal objectives must be supported irrespective of the war.

Admitting that "unfortunately there are still racketeering labor leaders," the Attorney General asked members of labor unions to "think of themselves as expressing the interests of the general public. Thus it would have a tremendously potent effect on the country at large if unions were not only willing to accept public accountability of their finances but themselves insisted on it."

Washington tax experts are busy trying to work out some formula that will provide a post-war refund to companies to help them change back from wartime to peacetime production and provide jobs for war workers and men released from the armed services when the guns cease firing.

Both the Ways and Means Committee and Treasury officials are seeking a plan to issue war bonds or certificates to companies in amounts of 10 to 20 per cent of the present excess profits tax. According to one point of view, unless companies are given such a rebate after the war on the taxes they pay now, the proposed war profits taxes "will seriously hamper the war effort."

At the present time the percentage of taxes that should be returned has not been decided. Treasury experts have suggested a figure of 10 per cent, but many members of the Ways and Means Committee believe that at least 20 per cent should be allowed—the amount England now allows on a 100 per cent excess profits tax.

The plan provides that the bonds would be paid off within five years after the war at a rate to be determined. Uses to which a company could put its refund would be specified and might include all business operations except payment of dividends.

Marvland Reported Facing Maple Sugar Industry Loss

Agency Warns Against Felling Of Sap-Producing Trees For Use As Lumber

A warning that unless the felling of maple trees in Maryland is stopped the State maple sugar industry will pass into history was issued by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Citing a growing shortage of maple trees in the State, the bureau blamed "the very great and increasing demand for maple lumber" for the disappearance of many trees and groves.

The warning was made simultaneously with an announcement that a twelve-year record high price for maple syrup produced by Maryland growers was set this season, despite the fact that the fewest number of trees on record were tapped.

Official records received by the bureau, it was said, show that the number of trees tapped in Maryland during 1942 is more than fifty per cent below the ten-year average of 1930-1939.

This year 38,000 trees were tapped, compared with 42,000 last year and 58,000 for the average during the period 1930-1939.

Nevertheless, the general increase in the price of maple products this year made it a relatively profitable season for producers. Syrup brought approximately $1.85 a gallon, and sugar 25 cents a pound, the highest prices received since 1930.

The season this year opened about March 7 and closed about April 14, lasting some five weeks, compared with only about three weeks in 1941.

Weather was good for operation in the groves, but not as good as desired for proper sap flow. Sap flows were said to be frequent but short in duration, thus producing more sugar to the tree.

Sap this season was not as sweet as usual, requiring more boiling with a resultant darker but, it is said, otherwise high quality syrup.

Most of Maryland's maple syrup is produced in Garrett county.

WHAT IS AN AMERICAN?
By RUTH TAYLOR

As always in a time of national crisis, the country is waking up to a realization of its "oneness". The same people who when asked what they were a few months ago proudly said: "I am a New Yorker, a Californian, a Kentuckian." Now with one voice proclaim, "I am an American."

But—what is an American? If it were dependent upon birthplace alone, America would collapse as an overheavy structure. If it were a mere matter of nationality, America would soon be one with Tyre and Sidon. Were it conditioned upon race, America would fall as did the Mongol Empire and all other countries founded upon recism.

Anyone—no matter of what race, nationality or color—can be an American. Accident of bith does not make an American. And an American-by-choice (wrongly called foreign born) is ofentimes a better citizen than the native born or American by birth who frequently more conscious of the importance and value of that citizenship.

To be an American is not just a matter of declaration—it is a challenge to act. Like almost all things worth while, being an American is not always easy. It means putting aside prejudice and intolerance. It means living so that not only has each individual an opportunity for life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, but that he concedes freely to every other individual the same privilege. It means fighting not only for one's own child alone but for all children—being willing to give up for the good of others—pioneering for progress and prosperity for a people as a whole.

If this yardstick were strictly used, we would perhaps find few individuals able to prove their Americanism—but it would find the great mass of people working toward that end.

To be an American is a thing of the spirit. It has nothing to do with birthplace, race, color or religious beliefs. It is a creed in which to believe—a standard by which to live, an ideal toward which to strive, a faith for which to die. And it is that spirit animating its citizens which will make America endure.

A Garrett Countain Urges The Buying of War Bonds By Garrett Countians Even If They Have to Practice Economy and Deny themselves Of Wanted Luxuries.

To the Editor of The Republican.

There is apparently considerable open and muffled speculation currently found among certain groups regarding the probable post-war value of the defense bonds we're now being urged to buy. That, I believe, rests almost entirely with the public. If we lose the war, it's certain that the bonds will be worthless; if we win—and we will if Americans cooperate—the bonds should be redeemable just as the Liberty Bonds were redeemable after the first World War.

This all-important business of bond buying to meet the $14,200 May quota for Garrett county gives us all a chance to (a) practice a bit of self-denial and invest every dollar in war bonds and stamps, or (b) turn our back on our country's need and contribute our share toward losing the war though selfishness and lack of confidence in the strength of the United States of America.

Surely, if out men in the service willingly give their life's blood for Amercia, we back home can squeeze out a few dollars for bonds and stamps without worrying abou the nation going bankrupt subsequently

A GARRETT COUNTIAN.

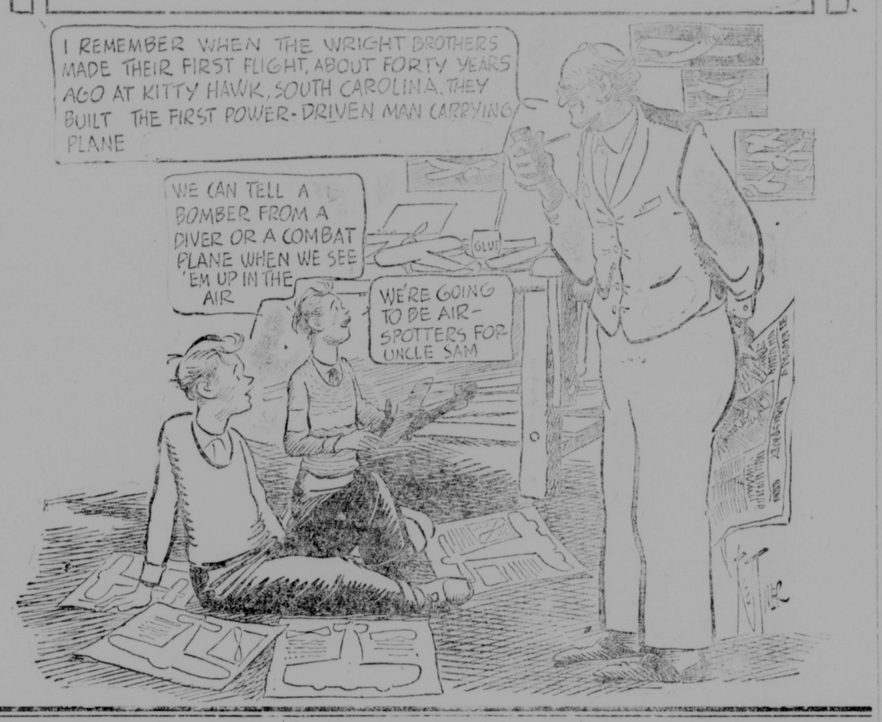
The Oldtimer



DIARY OF THE WAR

FRIDAY—Reds were advancing in greatest offensive around Kharkov and claimed to have broken through Nazi defense before Leningrad. Loss of Kharkov would imperil German forces in Crima, 400 miles to south. Reds emphasized use of allied tanks and planes. Japs continued to advance in outer China and Burma but at heavy cost. Vichy began to immobilize French warships at Martinique. It was hinted Germany may be using huge subs to supply u-boats nests along Atlantic coast. Civilian air travel in the U. S., except where essential to the war effort came to an end last Thursday. Shipbuilders in Oregon were aiming at a 60-day vessel, having already reduced construction of a Liberty freighter from 226 to 86 days.

SATURDAY—Reds claimed to be assaulting secondary German defenses of Kharkov, while battle of Kerch was still inconclusive. Diplomats in London said Hitler was so shaken he ordered Tokyo ambassador to persuade Japan to attack Soviets in Siberia. Germans claimed they sank a U. S. cruiser and destroyer in Arctic. Japs still advanced into outer China, but British troops in Burma reached India. Japs, stung by MacArthur's raiding air force, had bolstered number of planes and raided Port Moresby twice with 35 planes in one unit. A sub sank a U. S. ship just off New Orleans. Many Mexicans were urging a state of war on the Axis.

SUNDAY—It was reported a greater Jap fleet than was engaged in Coral sea battle, was enroute to northern Australia. Chinese claimed driving Jap force of 10,000 out of an eastern Burma town. Reds said they were occupying many communities around Kharkov but Berlin minimized this battle and claimed to have overrun Kerch in Crimea. The east coast was made a military area, including Maryland. Churchill said it would be premature to say "we have topped the ridge but we see that ridge ahead now." Germans were imprisoning many Dutch officers and cadets in Netherlands.

MONDAY—Broken German forces were claimed by Reds to be in disorderly flight around Kharkov. Germans claimed Reds had been hurled back there and that in the Crimea 68,000 Reds had been captured around Kerch. Reds said fighting still raged at Kerch. British planes roared by hundreds over occupied France and engaged swarms of German craft. It was the most air opposition encountered by British for some time. France said they would scuttle their merchant ships at Martinique if U. S. insisted upon seizing them. Hints of renewal of Coral Sea battle trickled in from Pacific. Allied bombers raided Lae in New Guinea and Deboyne island and caught Japs unaware. Chinese reported routing Jap columns thrusting north from Burma road, while U. S. and Chinese bombers struck in Burma and Indi-China.

TUESDAY—Red offensive appeared to be rolling on unhalted around Kharkov with 64 German planes downed with loss of 21. Reds also reported fighting continued near Kerch in Crimea. British claimed hitting German cruiser Prinz Eugen with two torpedoes but lost nine planes while downing five Nazis. Chinese said Jap advances from Burma had been halted at Salween river but other Jap columns were attempting to flank the Salween line. Australian prime minister declared the Japs were marshaling a powerful invasion force. A large U. S. force landed in northern Ireland prepared for offensive action. Tanks and artillery were included in the convoy. Himmler, Gestapo chief, was sent to the Netherlands to quell a surge of anti-Nazi resistance among Dutch patriots. He had 460 prominent people seized as hostages.

WEDNESDAY—Reds were threatening major lateral communications before Kharkov in a continued advance and reported heavy fighting continued on Kerch peninsula. Nazis claimed to have reached the Kerch strait. London observed that with arrival of more U. S. troops in Ireland the Allies could start a second front with 300,000 men. Chinese reported Japan was going to concentrate for an effort to drive China out of the war and appealed for more Allied help. Returning correspondents from Germany said people there felt the pinch of three winters and two bad harvests. Subs torpedoed two ships in the Gulf. French and British forces were engaged in an air and naval battle off Algiers. Further explanation of the raid on Tokyo revealed no planes lost there and that bombs hit their targets.

THURSDAY—Reds reported continued advance with new positions occupied around Kharkov and Nazi claims to occupation of Kerch peninsula were denied in Moscow. British cast down 40,000 incendiary bombs and many explosives over Manheim's industrial area. They daclared allies would soon be able to send over 1,000 bombers nightly against Germany. There was little activity in Pacific area save in China where Japs were still advancing in one section. Other points were at standstill because of heavy rains. Goering admitted to German people that "this is Reich's hardest war." Stafford Cripps in parliament announced plan for invasion of continent.

RED HOUSE LUTHERAN PARISH
A. K. Jones, Pastor

Next Sunday is the Day of Pentecost. The pastor will conduct the following services: Aurora, 9:30 A. M.; Holy Communion at Red House, 11:00 A. M., and at Lantz Ridge at 2:30 in the afternoon.

"The Work of the Holy Ghost" is the theme of the sermon. Our Lord promised to send the Comforter and He fulfilled that promise. We know the strange and inspiring experiences of the first disciples when this happened. What does God's Spirit do for Christians today? We are sure of the following: He helps to overcome their natural weaknesses, reinforces their powers, refines their instincts, aids in their search for good, improves their vision of all things true and beautiful, and nourishes their souls by the Word of God and the Sacraments.

RECIPES TO MATCH YOUR SUGAR RATION

Broiled Canned Peaches or Apricots

Drain halves of large canned peaches from the sirup, place in a shallow baking dish, pit side up, pour over them a small quantity of melted butter and add a very little salt. Broil under a flame or bake in the oven until the peaches are hot through and lightly browned. Serve hot with the meat course or as dessert. Save the sirup to sweeten other fruit, pudding sauce or a beverage.

Soft Custard

Four to 6 eggs, 1 quart milk, 6 tablespoons sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Heat the milk, sugar and salt in a double boiler. Beat the eggs lightly and mix in some of the hot milk. Pour back into the double boiler and stir constantly until the custard coats the spoon. Remove at once from the heat and set in a bowl of cold water. Add the vanilla.

Baked Indian Pudding

One quart milk, 1-3 cup yellow cornmeal, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ cup molasses, ½ to 1 teaspoon ginger.

Cook the milk, cornmeal and salt in a double boiler for 20 minutes. Add the molasses and ginger, pour into a greased baking dish and bake in a very moderate oven (about 300 degrees F.) for two hours. Serve with hot or cold top milk or cream.

Peanut Drop Cookies

With sorghum, cane, corn or maple sirup

One-half cup fat, 1 cup sirup, 2 eggs, beaten; 2 cups sifted flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup roasted peanuts, finely chopped.

Cream the fat and sirup and add the beaten eggs. Sift the dry ingredients together, add the peanuts and combine with the first mixture. Stir until blended. Drop the batter by teaspoonsful onto a greased baking sheet and bake in a moderate oven (250 degrees F.) for about 20 minutes. This recipe makes about 60 cookies. If sorghum sirup is used, change the baking powder to 1 teaspoon and add ½ teaspoon soda to the dry ingredients.

Orange Custard Pie

Two large oranges, 1 pint milk, 4 tablespoons flour, ¼ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoin salt, 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 to 2 tablespoons grated orange rind.

Peel the oranges, pull the sections apart and remove the membrane from each section. Chill. Heat the milk in a double boiler. Mix the flour, sugar and salt thoroughly. Pour some of the hot liquid into this mixture. Stir well and return to the double boiler. Stir until thickened, cover and cook for 15 minutes. Beat well. Pour some of the mixture into the beaten eggs, and add this to the mixture with the butter and orange rind. Pour onto a prebaked pie crust. When cool cover the top with the orange sections and serve at once.

Plain Muffins

With honey, serghum, cane, corn or Maple Sirup

Two cups sifted flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 egg, beaten; 2 tablespoons honey or sirup, 1 cup milk, ¼ cup fat, melted.

Sift the dry ingredients together. Mix the beaten egg with the sirup, add the milk and melted fat to the dry ingredients all at once. Stir just enough to moisten and give the mixture a rough appearance. Fill the greased muffin pans two-thirds full. Bake in a hot oven (400-500 degrees F.) for about 20 minutes. This makes 12 medium sized muffins.

Wants to Remain In Congress

MRS. KATHARINE E. BYRON

Gets Commission in Air Corps

ROBERT E. BROWNING

Robert E. Browning was one of six from Maryland among a large group of class 42-E fighter-flyers who received their war-wings and a lieutenant's commission at seven different pilot schools along the Gulf of Mexico yesterday. These flyers are now prepared to stream forth to every continent under the sun. The class was the largest in history.

According to custom wings were pinned on finished fledgings and simultaneously mailed to "honorary members of class 42-E" the mothers and girl friends of the ex-cadets back home.

Browning got his final training at Lake Charles, Louisiana.

He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Cheston H. Browning, Alder street. He attended school here and was graduated from Mercersburg Academy, later from the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia.

Legion of Death Is Making Progress

That the "Legion of Death" was progressing, as far as number of signers was concerned, was announced this morning by Dr. W. B. Love, of Mountain Lake Park, who two weeks ago put into writing what a number of the older men of the community felt in regard to fighting to the death if necessary for the preservation of liberty and freedom in this Republic.

Dr. Love said that scores had signed up and that papers had been left at various business places throughout the county. A number have also sent to this office their pledges as members using the blank that has appeared in The Republican the past two weeks.

The Legion of Death

By FRANKLIN C. GLAZE

The Legion of Death, they call them.
But they're more than that to me.
It's the same old spirit of seventy-six,
That won us our liberty.
How proud we should be of these oldsters,
That have the courage to die.
That the future of our Democracy,
Be secure after they've passed by.
Let this same courage inspire us
To do our utmost to serve,
That starry banner of freedom,
Forever to preserve.
Let no sacrifice be too much,
We each have so little to give.
Pledge our lives to the cause of freedom,
Without which it's no use to live.
Legion of Death, I salute you,
We'll win victory in this strife,
With courage like yours, I'll call you,
Not Legion of Death, but of Life.

The foregoing was inspired by reading the Legion of Death story in The Republican on May 7, according to the author.

The Republican is Garrett County's oldest, largest and best paper.

AURORA-EGLON

A daughter was born Friday, May 15, to Mr. and Mrs. Gay Loughrie, at their home in Aurora. This is their second child and daughter. The mother was the former Miss Elizabeth Stemple, daughter of the late Dr. George Stemple and Mrs. Bessie Stemple McClish.

Mr. and Mrs. Summers McCrum, Jr., moved recently from Aurora to Newburg, where Mrs. McCrum is a teacher in the school there. Mr. McCrum is also a teacher, but more than two months ago he suffered an attack of rheumatic fever and since then has been confined to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Summers McCrum, Sr., at Aurora.

Mr. and Mrs. Milan Evans moved Monday from Aurora to Elkins, where Mr. Evans has employment with the Western Maryland Railroad Company.

The annual Junior-Senior banquet of the Aurora High school will be held Thursday evening, at the Community building.

Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Wenzel, of Meyersdale, Pa., visited in Eglon on Wednesday, after which they went to their camp at Deep Creek Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hauser, two sons, Wade and George, a daughter, Miss Leah and granddaughter, Barbara, all of near the Grange Hall school house, motored last week-end to Akron, Ohio, where Mrs. Hauser plans to stay awhile with another son, Lester, and wife.

The household goods of the James H. Shaffer estate, a former hotel of Aurora, was disposed of at public auction, Thursday.

Dr. H. V. King, of Morgantown, was at Dr. Miller's office today performing tonsilectomies and examining eyes.

Ersel Lantz, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Lantz, of near Eglon, received a leg injury recently, when a motorcycle which he was driving turned over in a ditch.

A. R. Fike, of Terra Alta, was a business caller in this community on Monday.

Miss Elva Lantz, graduate nurse, of Baltimore, spent a few days recently with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lantz, of Aurora.

Doris Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wade Hauser, of near Aurora, was painfully injured about the head, one day last week, when she was thrust against the school building during an outside game. Her condition is not thought to be serious.

Mrs. Doris Gustafson, of Kingwood, spent a few days last week with her mother-in-law, Mrs. Lephia Gustafson, at Eglon.

Daniel Harsh of Akron, Ohio, came Sunday to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Harsh, of Stemple Ridge. Accompanying Mr. Harsh were John Snyder, Mrs. Gladys Snyder and infant, of the Accident community, who had been visiting relatives in Akron, for the past week.

A small child of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hauser, of Eglon, was taken, Tuesday, to the Wenzel hospital, Meyersdale, Pa., for examination.

P. F. King, of Kingwood, visited Sunday at the home of his mother, Mrs. Mary King, of Aurora.

A little son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Dumire, of near Horse Shoe Run, was painfully injured last week by a peculiar explosion, which occurred while burning trash. He was treated by Dr. Miller, Eglon, after which he was able to return to his home.

Mrs. Laura Parks is ill at her home, near Eglon.

Private David Hardesty, who is stationed at Camp George G. Meade, spent the week-end at his home at Aurora.

THURSDAY: THE LAST DAY WITH THE DISCIPLES

LESSON TEXT—Luke 22:14-30.
GOLDEN TEXT—This do in remembrance of me.—Luke 22:19.

The last day! How quickly it comes, and how fleeting yet meaningful its moments.

We do not know what our Lord did on Wednesday of Passion Week. In all probability He remained in Bethany to rest in fellowship with His friends. Surely He needed that day of quiet, for that which had gone before, difficult and strenuous as it had been, was as nothing to that which lay before Him.

Late on Thursday He and His disciples came to the upper room where Peter and John had already made preparation for the observance of the Passover (Luke 22:8). This feast had (since that great and awful night of Israel's redemption out of Egypt's bondage) pointed forward to the Christ and to His cross as the fulfillment of the type of redemption by the shedding of blood. But now the hour had come for Him to give Himself in that death, and so He set aside the Passover (because it has been fulfilled) to establish the great Christian feast of remembrance—the Lord's table, which now shows forth His death till He come.

I. The Final Passover (vv. 14-18).

Our Lord looked forward with intense desire to the Passover which He now observed with His disciples, for it was the last celebration of that feast recognized by God. All that it had foreshadowed of deliverance and hope was fulfilled in Him who now sat at the table. He had moved forward with resolute purpose to this day when His mission on earth was to be accomplished, and He was to become the Christian's Passover lamb (I Cor. 5:7).

The fact that He had looked forward to it with desire does not minimize the deep darkness of either Gethsemane or Calvary. Remember that, when in the garden He faced that hour and thought of the possibility of the cup being taken from Him, He said to the Father, "Not what I will, but what thou wilt." Praying concerning the same matter (in John 12:27), He said, "Now is my soul troubled; and what shall I say? Father, save me from this hour: but for this cause came I unto this hour."

II. The First Communion (vv. 19, 20).

Taking the unleavened bread and the unfermented wine of the Passover which had just been observed, Jesus established a new feast, the Christian feast of remembrance, which we call communion or the Lord's table.

His words are significant, "For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do show the Lord's death till he come" (I Cor. 11:26). At the Lord's table His followers find spiritual strength in recalling His death for them, but they also find joy as they remember that He is to come again. They thus testify to the world that they believe and cherish these truths.

This feast is rightly called "communion," for down through the ages and until He does come the saints of God have at His table sweet communion with Him and with one another. Let us not neglect it!

Our Lord also spoke of the cup as "my blood of the new testament." The word "testament" means covenant. The Lord's table therefore speaks of our allegiance to Him, of our loyalty to our Lord, and our devotion to His service. That is why the Christian Church speaks of communion as a sacrament, a word from the Latin sacramentum, meaning oath, and essentially an oath of allegiance.

III. The Folly of the Disciples (vv. 21-30).

Someone may say, "That point does not belong with the other two. Both the Passover and the Lord's Supper are for the joyful remembrance of deliverance and redemption." The objection is well taken except for one thing—we are dealing with human beings as they are, not as they should be and could be by the grace of God.

Here in the inner circle of the twelve there was one traitor. It seems impossible, but apparently Judas had maintained such outward conduct as to turn no suspicion in his direction, even though all along he had in his heart the blackest of treachery against his Lord. A sad and soul-searching fact is here revealed, that it is possible for one to make a high profession of faith in Christ and even so to live as to give no cause for criticism, and yet to be unregenerate and in fact the enemy of Christ.

What about the strife regarding position? Shameful as we agree that it was, it still goes on in the church. Not even the remembrance of our Lord's death and the reminder that He is coming again is enough to keep men from wanting to be greatest.

A gallup poll revealed that a third of U. S. adults had not bought war bonds or stamps.

Australians were on a buying spree to beat the rationing of clothes, to start soon on that continent.

GRANTSVILLE

Reported Missing

Mr. and Mrs. George D. Edwards received word from the Bureau of Navigation telling them that their son, G. Verl Edwards, 20, had been reported missing. According to the message, the Grantsville youth "was performing his duty in the service of his country in the Manila Bay area when the station capitulated."

There was no report of his death or injury, however, and it is presumed he was among those captured when the forces surrendered. It will probably be several months, the message stated, before definite information can be expected.

Young Edwards graduated from Grantsville high school in June, 1940, and enlisted in the Navy September 20, 1940. Following training in Norfolk, Va., he was sent to the Philippines and thence to the Manila Bay area, where he has since been stationed.

Since his enlistment he has received several promotions and at present holds the rank of storekeeper third class.

Stine Child Injured

The four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stine was treated at the office of a local physician for injuries suffered when she fell off a ladder while playing at her home near Jennings. Examination revealed the child had fractured both forearms. She was removed to her home after receiving treatment.

Pupils to Register

Frank J. Getty, principal of the high school, announced that seventh grade students from all of the schools in this area, who plan to enter high school in the fall, would register in Grantsville Friday, May 22. They will also be invited to take part in the track meet to be held here and will see the play, "Wings Over Washington," which is to be presented by the Dramatic Club on that date.

Violates Suspended Sentence

Violation of a suspended sentence resulted in a fine of $100 and costs for Harrison Wiland, fifteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wiland, near here, at a hearing before Trial Magistrate Charles S. Zeller last Friday.

Several weeks ago the youth was arrested and found guilty of obtaining a driver's license by misrepresentation of his age, but Magistrate Zeller suspended the fine of $10.

The boy was arrested again by State Trooper Graydon S. Dunlap, who charged him with driving after his license had been revoked. He pleaded guilty and the $100 fine was imposed, in addition to payment of the previous fine made necessary by the violation. The boy was released in custody of his father who paid the fine and costs.

Hit Telegraph Pole

Telegraph service in this section was interrupted for a time Friday night when a car crashed against a telegraph pole a few miles west of here, knocking it out of line and tearing the wires. The accident occurred about 8 o'clock when the machine failed to negotiate a curve and skidded on the highway made slippery by rain.

John G. Hurley and William E. Brand, occupants of the car, were enroute to Washington from Chanute Field, Ill., to spend a short leave at the former's home. Both were brought to the office of a local physician, who administered first aid and sent them to Miners' hospital, Frostburg.

Hurley, who was the more seriously hurt, suffered a possible concussion, as well as shock, and painful cuts and bruises. Brand suffered from shock and was badly bruised. Neither's injuries were thought to be serious, hospital attaches said. The car was practically demolished, damage being estimated at more than $450.

State police investigated.

Will Sponsor Program

Plans are being formulated for the annual Memorial day service which will be held Saturday, May 30 at 2 p. m. at cemetery here. The service is being sponsored by the firemen.

There will be a parade, as usual, which will form at the school and proceed to the cemetery, headed by the Accident Band. The Memorial service will be conducted by the Rev. Virgil R. Gillum, pastor of the Methodist church.

As has been their custom for many years, the firemen will place a wreath on the garve of one of their departed members.

MT. LAKE PARK

The Season Opening Early

Perhaps never in a great many Park seasons have the summer residents begun to arrive quite so early as this year. Generally speaking cottages are not opened until the middle of June or by July 4th, but this summer is going to be different—different in more ways than one. Even now if you happen to be at the station when a train arrives you are almost sure to see a few trunks put off. It's a long time since that happened here. Maybe we really are going back to the horse and buggy days—all of which reminds us that the big topic of conversation seems to be that increase in Welch's taxi rate which was announced in last week's issue of The Republican. People are funny—there isn't half as much kick over the raise in food prices as in that taxi service fare. On the other hand there are some who argue that an automobile and its up-keep at the present time warrants a raise, and that does make sense. Our chief worry as to transportation is shoe leather.

Brief Mention

Don't forget the rummage sale being sponsored by the Women's Bible class of Bethel Methodist church to be held on Friday (tomorrow) and Saturday in the Community store rooms next to the Princess Shoppe, in Oakland.

Personals

Dr. and Mrs. Logan Carr, who spent the winter in Baltimore and Florida, arrived here today and have opened their summer home for the season.

Mrs. Clayton Kitzmiller, Loch Lynn, had as her guest on Friday her aunt, Mrs. D. M. Dixon, of Mountain Lake Park.

Mrs. June Grimes, who came to the Park in recent days, has a number of persons employed in making ready the Mountain Lake Hotel for an early opening. Mrs. Grimes spent the winter months in Miami Beach, Florida.

Rev. Samuel McWilliams, Philadelphia, spent last week here with his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. Porter McWilliams and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles N. Ramsey, enroute from points in Florida where they had spent the winter, to their home in Beaver Falls, Pa., are now guests of Dr. and Mrs. W. B. Love.

Guests at Allenhurst on Sunday were Mrs. Ruth Lynch and sons and Mrs. Lilliam Mason, all of Clarksburg.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Frame and family, of Kingwood, were here on Sunday visiting Mr. Frame's grandmother, Mrs. Allie Haymond.

Albert Selden, his sister, Miss Ruth Selden and Miss Duckett, of Baltimore, are occupying the Wesley Rudisill property.

Mrs. Edward Kahl is recovering from an illness of several days.

J. D. Peck is in Cumberland where he is engaged in road work.

Miss Frances Grimes, Morgantown, was here on Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bushrod Grimes.

Mrs. Pat Morgan has gone to Tallehassa, Florida, for a week.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Fleming are here for the summer months.

Mrs. A. E. Brown has returned to the Park from Washington where she had spent several weeks with her husband, who is employed in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Callis, Mt. Lake Park, had as their guests over the week-end Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Pierce, daughters, Lavinia and Shirley, and son Harry, and Mr. Wright Bloom, all of Sparta, Mich. Mr. Pierce was in Oakland last year supervising construction of the Carnation plant.

Miss Anna Catharine Callis spent the week-end with Miss Bonnie Paugh, Deer Park.

Hagar Dagmar Hamilton, Plaintiff, vs. Lloyd Edward Hamilton, Defendant No. 3642 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, State of Maryland.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for divorce "a vinculo matrimonii" for the plaintiff, Hagar Dagmar Hamilton, of Garrett County, Maryland, against her husband, Lloyd Edward Hamilton, defendant, of the State of West Virginia.

The Bill of Complaint states that on February 24, 1934, the said Hagar Dagmar Hamilton was married to her husband, Lloyd Edward Hamilton, with whom she resided in Allegany County, Maryland, until the month of July, 1936. That the said Lloyd Edward Hamilton has abandoned and deserted her without just cause or reason and that such abandonment has continued since July, 1936, uninterruptedly, and is deliberate and final and the separation of the parties is beyond any expectation of reconciliation. That the said Hagar Dagmar Hamilton and Lloyd Edward Hamilton have had two children born to them from said marriage, namely, Mary Ellan and Vida Dagmar Hamilton, and that the said Lloyd Edward Hamilton is a non-resident of the State of Maryland.

It is thereupon, this 18th day of April, 1942, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Garrett County, once in each of four successive weeks before the 22nd day of May, 1942, giving notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this Bill, warning him to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before the 6th day of June, 1942, to show cause, if any he has, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

A. G. ROSS,
Clerk of the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

1. All that piece or parcel of land, containing 100 acres, more or less, which was conveyed unto the said Thomas J. Browning by deed from John L. Browning and wife dated March 3, 1884, and recorded in Liber W. H. T., No. 8, folio 422, one of the Land Records of Garrett County.

2. All that part of the tract of land called "Deep Creek Farm," containing 26½ acres, more or less, and also a part of the tract called "Davis' Discovery," containing 3½ acres, more or less, and being the same parcels of land which were conveyed to the said Thomas J. Browning by deed from Mary M. Porter and husband dated December 23, 1887, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 14, folio 84, one of said Land Records.

3. Military Lot No. 1744, containing 50 acres, which was conveyed to the said Thomas J. Browning by deed from William Groves et al., dated July 3, 1903, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 46, folio 59, one of said Land Records.

4. All that other piece or parcel of land containing 42½ acres, more or less, which was conveyed to the said Thomas J. Browning by deed from John F. Browning et al., dated November 29, 1904, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 49, folio 87, one of said Land Records.

The above parcels of land are the same which were also conveyed by said Thomas J. Browning to Herbert W. Browning, Lee Browning, Charles C. Browning and Guy W. Browning by deed dated August 23, 1935, and recorded in Liber A. G. R., No. 112, folio 565, Land Records of Garrett County.

Save and excepting the following parcels of land conveyed away by said Thomas J. Browning prior to the execution of said mortgage, to-wit:

(1) A parcel containing 22½ acres conveyed to Carter Browning by deed dated July 17, 1930, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 100, folio 541, one of the Land Records of Garrett County.

(2) 3.45 acres conveyed to Eastern Land Corporation by deed dated April 12, 1924, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 86, folio 574, one of said Land Records.

(3) 1 acre and 45 square feet conveyed to Columbus L. Paugh, et al., Trustees of Pleasant Valley M. E. Church, by deed dated November 14, 1901, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 40, folio 160, one of said Land Records.

(4) One-half acre conveyed to The Board of School Commissioners of Garrett County by deed dated June 4, 1898, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 34, folio 423, one of said Land Records.

(5) 1 acre and 145¾ perches conveyed to William M. Thayer by deed dated August 24, 1893, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 26, folio 73, one of said Land Records.

(6) A small parcel of land containing approximately 51 perches, conveyed to the Trustees of the Deep Creek Baptist Church, by deed dated August 30, 1892, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 22, folio 258, one of said Land Records.

(7) A right-of-way for electric transmission line granted to Associated Maryland Electric Power Corporation by agreement dated October 14, 1930, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 102, folio 70, one of said Land Records.

All of said land is contiguous and comprises one farm, containing 192 acres, more or less, as ascertained from the above deeds, the acreage given by the County Assessment Record however, being only 168 4-5 acres. About 80 acres are cleared and under cultivation and the balance is pasture and wooded land.

Said farm is improved by a good, two-story frame dwelling, a large barn and other usual and necessary sheds and outbuildings. The farm is fenced and well watered; is well located along the above improved road and is a very attractive property.

All annual crops pitched or cultivated on said land will pass to the purchaser under the terms of the said Mortgage.

Prizes Offered To Farm Boys and Girls

Two hundred ten farm boys and girls have an opportunity to win valuable prizes in a big farm safety and fire prevention contest now being conducted by the Leighton Lumber Company, in cooperation with a new farm magazine, "The Business of Farming."

There is no entry fee. The contest is for the best 150 word essay. A choice of two subjects is given: "How to Prevent Farm and Home Accidents"; or "How to Prevent Fire on the Farm." Contestants may write on either subject or on both.

First prize winners who write on the first subject will receive a yearling beef heifer. Second prize is a six month beef heifer; third prize, an early spring gilt; fourth prize, a late spring gilt; and fifth prize, 20 U. S. Approved pullets. In addition, there will be 100 honorable mention prizes of a dollars worth of Defense Stamps.

Prizes for those who write on "How to Prevent Fire on the Farm" are: First, yearling dairy heifer; second, 6 month dairy heifer; third, yearling ewe; fourth, spring lamb; and fifth, 20 U. S. Approved pullets. There will also be 100 honorable mention prizes of $1.00 in Defense Stamps.

Choice of representative breeds will be given the winners. Judges will be selected by "The Business of Farming." Entry blanks may be obtained from Leighton Lumber Company. The contest closes on June 15, 1942. Winners of all awards will be announced in the September issue of "The Business of Farming" magazine.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS . . . . . .

Delaying The Inevitable

Washington, May 16.

As, with inexcusable slowness, the 1942 tax bill takes shape in the House committee, the inherent disinclination of this Administration to face realities is again being demonstrated. It is not easy to estimate what this trait has cost in the past two years but certainly the loss in time and money has been very great.

* * *

In the present instance what the Administration refuses to face is the inevitability of the sales tax. That our situation makes this tax unescapable is the opinion of practically every competent economist in the country. Even some Administrationists who publicly oppose it agree it cannot be avoided. If it does not come this year it certainly will next year. There just is nothing else to do.

* * *

Yet, the Administration continues to oppose it. It also continues to shrink from the various forms of withholding taxes and forced savings (though such suggestions have come from some of its own fiscal officials) and it approaches a further lowering of exemptions falteringly and with obvious distaste. Before we are through with this war, all these taxes will have to be adopted if we are to keep our heads above water—and there is hardly an informed man anywhere who does not know it. The refusal to admit the facts and to act promptly is easily understandable from ordinary politicians in normal times.

* * *

In normal times the political instinct is to avoid any direct taxes that bear upon the great mass of the voters and concentrate upon ways and means of "soaking the rich." But these are not normal times. These are exceedingly perilous times in which, for the national safety, political considerations should be pushed aside and the usual demagogic attitudes abandoned. At this moment the heads of government, from the President down, are acutely aware of the danger of an uncontrolled inflation. They know that the basic cause for inflation is the vastly increased purchasing power resulting from the war billions, largely in the hands of the great bulk of the people and untouched by income taxes.

* * *

It is agreed that unless some method is found to reduce this purchasing power, the proposed price control will be futile and disastrous results to us all are bound to follow. Experience has proven that such results are always more disastrous to the poor than to the well-to-do. There is no argument about these things. Nevertheless, those in authority avoid the indicated action. Pointing out the danger, the President a few weeks ago announced an anti-inflation program but omitted among other things, any plan to deal with the vital essential of reducing purchasing power, without which the other things he proposed will be ineffectual.

* * *

Both the Treasury and Mr. Leon Henderson, Price Control Administrator, publicly oppose the sales tax, though certainly Mr. Henderson realizes its necessity. So, of course, do most of the others. Why, then, do they flinch from the suggestion? They flinch, for one reason, because back in 1933, just before his inauguration, Mr. Roosevelt killed the plan of the Democratic Senate to enact a sales tax and expressed himself as "horrified" at the idea. Apparently he cannot now bring himself to change his position, though arguments which justified it then have disappeared, nullified by the war expenditures and the inflation threat.

* * *

In normal times, the two arguments against the sales tax were—first, that it falls most heavily upon those with lowest income; second, that these need all their income to maintain even a minimum standard of living. Both of these arguments have now lost their validity. Since 1940 taxes in the upper income brackets have so risen that it is no longer true that a sales tax would be disproportionately borne by the lowest income group. Nor is it true that this group now has to pay its entire income to live. As a result of the war, millions who have never paid any income tax have had their incomes greatly increased.

* * *

The assertion now that these cannot afford to pay a sales tax is no longer an argument that we must not undermine their scale of living; it is an argument that their scale of living should be raised because of the war. The situation has completely changed since the days when Mr. Roosevelt was "horrified" by the sales-tax suggestion. The more clear-headed New Dealers know this to be true but, so long as the White House declines to recognize it, they are afraid to, and the fiction is maintained that the sales tax is just a tax on the poor. That never was true.

* * *

Soon or late, the sheer weight of economic realities will force adoption of this tax, along with the others suggested for siphoning off the increased purchasing power of the untaxed masses. But so long as the President remains rigid, it is unlikely that Congress, on its own, will find the courage to act at this session. In another year it cannot be stopped. Of course, the delay greatly enhances the difficulties of handling the problem. Years hence, historians are likely to agree that the most incredible and inexplicable thing about this period was the extraordinary delay in taking the obvious, logical and unescapable steps.

Mountain Lake Park Tax Rate Remains At 60 Cents

At the regular meeting of the Mayor and Town Council of Mt. Lake Park last Thursday the tax rate for the year was set at 60 cents per $100 of assessable property.

A budget of $3,000 was also approved. H. L. Bittner was welcomed into the council to fill the unexpired term of John Bayliss, former president.

The budget included the following items: 1942 elections $10, printing $50, clerk and collector $225, attorney $25, lights $1,000, road repairs $500, Mickey's Band $50, Oakland fire department $200, Oakland Rotary club $25, and contingent fund $915.

The council also voted to remove all household goods assessments from the books to conform to the new law that was passed for the county, according to Dr. C. Oscar Hall, mayor.

The proposed voluntary registration of women this summer has been dropped by federal officials.

Maryland Is One of 14 States Listed As East Military Area

Lieut-General Hugh A. Drum, commanding general of the Eastern Defense Command and First Army, proclaimed a military area for the entire eastern seaboard covering fifteen States, part of Florida and the District of Columbia.

The declaration entitled "Public Proclamation No. 1" put into effect previously announced plans to set up an eastern military area as a security measure by direction of the President and the Secretary of War.

Affects Lighting

All restrictions and orders issued from the four corps areas involved in the military area for the effective control of artificial lighting along the coasts were made a part of the proclamation.

Wilful violation of the orders by an alien enemy will be deemed cause for expulsion, interment or prosecution under terms of the proclamation and similar violations by persons other than alien enemies will be cause for expulsion or prosecution.

General Drum specifically requested that state and municipal police and other officials and civilians within the area assist the agencies charged with enforcing restrictions by reporting to them the names and addresses of all persons believed to have violated restrictions.

Must Be Posted

States affected by the proclamation are Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, North Caroline, Georgia, the District of Columbia and all of Florida except the extreme northwestern end.

The proclamation was issued from headquarters of the eastern defense command and first army at Governors Island, N. Y.

Copies were sent to every newspaper office and also to every local selective service board, postoffice, court house and town hall within the area and at these public places were directed to be displayed.

Call It Even

SHORTLY after the death of his Uncle Moe, young Kilburn Blake was advised that he had been mentioned in the old gentleman's will. "—To my nephew, Kilburn Blake, I bequeath my Wimple automobile . . ."

The news did not set Kilburn's heart a-flutter with palpitations of fondness. The Wimple automobile, to be sure, was a beautiful specimen of machinery. But the cost of owning and operating one was prohibitive, unless a man's yearly stipend was in the five-figure class. Which Kilburn's wasn't. Indeed, on $30 a week one would no more think of buying a Wimple than investing in a $15,000 house.

Kilburn's first thought was to offer the Wimple as down payment on a smaller and less expensive car. Investigation, however, revealed that the trade-in value of Wimples was next to nil, due to their lack of resale value.

It was all rather disheartening. Here he was stuck with a piece of machinery he couldn't use and for which he was paying garage rent and taxes. Why not have the thing stolen and collect the insurance? Well, why not? A noble thought. The premium was paid for six months in advance; the $800 for which the car was insured would buy a new and smaller machine, with money to spare.

Kilburn had all kinds of faith in human nature—so he drove the Wimple up town the next day and left it parked in a vacant lot with the key in the ignition. When he came for it that night—it was still there.

The following evening, Kilburn took his girl to the movies, and left the Wimple, key in lock, on the adjacent side street. Hopefully he returned to the spot after the performance—and not only found that the automobile was present and intact, but a ticket tucked under the windshield wiper, informed him that the side street had parking laws and he'd better show up at the police station. As soon as he was able to buy gasoline again, he drove the vehicle into that section of the city known as the slums, the underworld, the tough district. Parking it before a pool room he strolled away with hopeful nonchalance.

Refusing however, to permit himself to become too optimistic, he remained away from the locale until after midnight. He had read somewhere that crime addicts worked better in the wee small hours. Returning to the pool room at 3 a. m. he discovered to his disgust that nothing had happened to his legacy.

A fortnight later Kilburn drove to the neighboring town of Ridgefield to attend a party. At 12:30 it occurred to him to go home, but upon attempting to put the plan into execution, he met with an obstacle. The Wimple, which he had parked in front of his friend's house, was missing.

At first, Kilburn was elated. Concern, however, followed. There remained the matter of getting back to the city, 18 miles distant. The last bus had gone, the party had broken up and his friend's house was dark. There remained but a single alternative and Kilburn was forced to take it. He located a taxi stand and negotiated for the necessary transportation for a consideration of $7.00. Before leaving, however, he apprised the local police of the loss of his car, and during the ride home he revived his spirits by thinking of the $800 insurance money he would receive.

The next morning he notified the insurance company of the theft, and went jovially to work. That night the Ridgefield police called and advised him that they had located what was left of the Wimple.

"How do you mean, what's left of it?" Kilburn asked.

"Someone took it for a joy ride and ran into a stone wall. It's pretty badly demolished."

"Oh," said Kilburn, and hung up. After a moment's thought he searched the classified section of the telephone directory and presently called a number.

"Is this the Ridgefield junk yard?" he asked.

"Yes."

"My car was smashed up last night on Brant street. How much'll you give me for it for junk?"

"Oi!" So it vas your car? Vell, Oi'll tell you. That car is on my land already. It will cost you $10 for leaving it there."

Kilburn said something under his breath. Aloud: "Now, wait a minute! Do I understand that whoever it was smashed up my car chose your property on which to do the smashing? And you're trying to charge me for storage?"

"Vell, Oi'll tell you. Ve'll call it even. I'll take the car an' charge you not one penny. Ve'll call it even."

Indignation and anger welled up within Kilburn's breast. But presently it subsided and was replaced by a profound sense of relief, and well being. His mind flashed back, mentally totalling the items of expense caused by his ownership of the Wimple. He sighed.

"Call it even," he said.

Commissioners Win Point On Purchase Law

Judge Sloan Issues Decree Giving Commissioners Right to Hire by Day or Hour to Unlimited Amount

time, more years than anybody can remember, boards of County Commissioners everywhere have had charge of the repair, construction, and reconstruction of roads and that a very large part of the work has been done by the County Commissioners through road supervisors and road engineers. It has been held in several cases that the unvarying construction given a statute by public officials, who may be charged with the execution or administration of it, ought not to be disregarded. * * * I am therefore of the opinion that subparagraph "e", the Act of 1941, chapter 888, has no application to construction and reconstruction of any road undertaken by the County Commissioners by the authority of that Act and that they are not forbidden to do such work when the estimated cost exceeds $1,000," Judge Sloan said he would sign a decree to that effect when presented.

When the estimated cost of an improvement or the materials to be used in the construction exceed $1,000, the State Roads Commission must advertise and must contract, but Judge Sloan declared his construction was that "it is not mandatory for County Commissioners, when they undertake the construction of a public road, to follow the procedure of Article 89B, Section of the Code, but that they can do it that way if they choose."

Worth Lot to County

Commissioners Cheston H. Browning and Paul M. Friend said that this decision was worth thousands of dollars to the taxpayers, which would give them the right to construct highways at a cost of $10,000 to $12,000 per mile, rather than $30,000 to $40,000 per mile when forced to make a contract.

In his declaration concerning the requirement of asking for bids on all items of more than $100, Judge Sloan said, "To me it is perfectly plain that under subsection "H" of the Acts of 1941, Chapter 888, if the County Commissioners have the power to construct roads and reconstruct roads themselves, hire the employes and rent equipment, they can do so, provided they do not enter into a contract to hire any employe or rent equipment for a certain, definite time, the aggregate of which time, multiplied by the number of days employed, would exceed $100."

The County Commissioners had contended that they could hire a man and his truck for so much per day and that even though after a certain number of days the amount would reach or surpass $100, that it was not necessary to advertise for bids in such case. This hiring by the day or hour was done in several instances in constructing both the Rock Lodge and Smouse roads, and payment of the bills was held up by the State Roads Commission pending an interpretation of the law.

The opinion of Judge Sloan not only upholds the contention of the Commissioners in this regard but gives them and commissioners of ten other counties the right to construct roads as they desire. Plans of all proposed construction, with location and approximate cost, however, must be approved by the State Roads commission, it was pointed out.

DIED

JOSHUA H. TURNER

Joshua Hammond Turner, 47, well known Garrett county farmer, of near Avilton, died in Allegany hospital, Cumberland, on Sunday afternoon, May 17, after a brief illness. He was admitted to the hospital last Thursday and underwent an operation for appendicitis Friday evening.

Mr. Turner was born in Shade Mill on October 14, 1894, a son of the late Henry Turner, and Mrs. Mollie Turner, Baltimore. His entire life had been spent in the Avilton section.

For many years he operated a large farm in Avilton and also operated a saw mill near Grantsville for several years. He conducted a general store at Avilton and has served as postmaster of the Avilton office for the past eighteen years.

On October 24, 1916, he married Miss Sara A. Garlitz, and they continued to reside on the farm near Avilton, which was her birthplace. Since early childhood Mr. Turner had been a member of St. Ann's Catholic church, Avilton. He was also a member of the Grantsville Camp No. 41, Woodmen of the World.

Surviving are his widow, his mother, four daughters, Mrs. Marvin Warnick, Baltimore; Mary Kathleen and Anna Ruth Turner, at home; five sons, James, Joshua, Charles William, Robert and Frank Turner, all at home; three sisters, Mrs. Guy S. Stanton, Grantsville; Mrs. Daniel Hummel, New Germany; and Mrs. Bayard McKenzie, Avilton; and one grandson, Marvin William Warnick, Baltimore.

Rev. Hilary Liehr, pastor, conducted high mass in St. Ann's church on Wednesday and interment was in the adjoining cemetery. Pallbearers were Otho S. Fike, Jesse Merrill, Orville Stark, Julius Wilhelm and James Green, Avilton, and Charles Durst, New Germany.

GEORGE S. COCHRANE

Funeral services were conducted on Wednesday at Hagerstown, for George S. Cochrane, 62, former resident of Loch Lynn Heights, who died suddenly Sunday, May 17, at his home at Hagerstown. Interment was in Rose Hill cemetery, Cumberland.

A native of Baltimore, he was the son of the late George W. and Susan E. Pritchard Cochrane, and had resided in Hagerstown for three years. He was a representative of the Arts Bronze Company, Kentucky.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Nora Cochrane, and one brother, Dr. Charles S. Cochrane, of Mannington, West Virginia.

MRS. A. R. HENDRICKSON

Mrs. A. R. Hendrickson died Friday, May 15, in St. Vincent's hospital, Toledo, O., following an illness of several days.

She had been a resident of that city for many years. She was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Kelso, of this county and was well known here, having spent some time each year here with her sister, Mrs. Nina S. Dixon.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. E. K. Huffer, and Mrs. Ronald Moore, Toledo; and her sister, Mrs. Dixon, Oakland; and a brother, A. I. Kelso, of Las Cruces, New Mexico.

CHARLES M'HENRY HOWARD

Charles McHenry Howard, leading lawyer in Baltimore, and former president of both the Baltimore Bar Association and the Maryland Bar Association, died in Baltimore in Johns Hopkins hospital, after an illness of about ten days.

He had spent much of his summers at his summer home on Alder street, Oakland, for many years.

For many years Mr. Howard had been regarded as a top-ranking American authority on testamentary law, wills in general and deeds of trust. His professional standing in these lines was nation-wide in scope. Mr. Howard was a member of the council and executive committee of the American Law Institute and was a member of the American Bar Association.

He was born May 8, 1870, in Baltimore.

Surviving are three sisters, the Misses Mary, Frances and Elizabeth Howard, all of whom are summer residents of Oakland.

THE POCKETBOOK of KNOWLEDGE BY TOPPS

FILES REPORT OF GAME KILLED IN GARRETT COUNTY

Total Of 15,196 Accounted For In This County; 23,018 In Allegany County

A report of game killed in Allegany and Garrett counties during 1941 was made by Fulcher P. Smith of the Game and Inland Fish Commission.

The summary discloses that at least 23,018 pieces of game were killed in Allegany as compared to 15,196 in Garrett county.

Smith pointed out that 1941 was the first year the law requiring hunters to report their kill was effective, adding that no effort would be made to enforce violations for that period. He emphasized, however, that failure to report in the future will result in a fine of $2 on conviction.

Of a total of 2368 county resident hunting licenses issued in 1941, 2336 hunters made reports.

More deer, ruffed grouse, woodcock and wild ducks were killed in Garrett county than in Allegany, but the latter led in reported kill of ten other kinds of game.

Here are the county figures:

Ringneck pheasants	9
Grouse	1,133
Rabbits	5,990
Wild turkeys	3
Bob White (quail)	29
Squirrels	7,445
Turtle doves	3
Chukar pheasants	2
Raccoons	88
Opossum	124
Woodcock	112
Wild ducks	92
Wild geese	3
Deer	163

Allegany reported 11,687 rabbits, 1,083 quail, 8,589 squirrel, 120 raccoon, 120 opossum and 48 deer.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

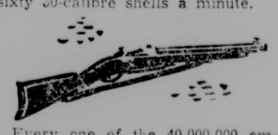
The Garand semi-automatic rifle, which is the standard issue today for the U. S. army, is superior to the old Springfield rifle in many respects. We literally need millions of these fast shooting powerful rifles to equip our army. They cost $85 each and are being manufactured at the rate of one a minute. They fire sixty 30-calibre shells a minute.



Every one of the 40,000,000 employed persons in America could easily buy one of these rifles for the army. Not that we need that many, but the reserve could go into shells and other much needed supplies. Buy more and more War Bonds and top the quota in your county by investing at least ten percent of your income every pay day.

"LEGION OF DEATH"

I hereby wish to make my covenant along with others in Garrett county, pledging myself to subscribe to the defense of our country and our loved ones, if the need arises, and giving my life, if needs be, for the preservation of a free America.

I want to be listed as a member of the organization, "Legion of Death."

Industry on the Job . . . . .

The miracle men are still at work on America's factory front, and industry is on the job.

Our country needs planes and tanks and ships—needs a lot and needs them quickly. So our industries roll up their sleeves and go to work. They cut production corners, work hard, long hours, and deliver the goods. It takes time for them to do it, of course, but it takes less time than most people dreamed it would a year or two ago.

Pearl Harbor blew the lid off American war production. Since that Sunday production has soared to new highs, and more is yet to come. In the last four months one company has doubled its output of one type of heavy bomber badly needed by the United Nations. The automobile industry alone has delivered $580,000,000 worth of guns, tanks, planes, and other combat instruments to the Army and Navy since the first of the year. Two companies making airplane engines report that they are far ahead of schedule on their contracts. Recently the biggest bomber plant in the world was finished a month ahead of schedule and started turning out vast numbers of huge planes to carry the war home to the Axis. A shipbuilding company has completed plans to use a secret method of assembly line production which should make it possible to send a merchant ship down the ways in about 1-30th of the time required a few months ago.

Examples like that, spectacular as they are, by no means tell the whole story. There are plenty of others in the news reports, and there are plenty more that never break into print because of censorship. Whether we see them or not doesn't change the fact that production is going up fast. Industry is on the job and will remain there until the Axis is defeated.

MEMORIAL DAY SERVICES WILL BE HELD SATURDAY

Change is Made As Majority of Business Places Are Closing That Day

With the announced closing of most of the business establishments in Oakland on Saturday, May 30, the American Legion and Knights of Pythias made arrangements to have Memorial services on that day, instead of on Sunday, May 31, as previously planned.

Legionnaires have been instructed to gather at the City Hall at 10 o'clock a. m., on Saturday, while the Knights of Pythias members have been asked to meet at Castle Hall at 9:30.

Other organizations and school children have been asked to participate in the procession to the cemetery, which will start from the City Hall at 10:30. Both the Legion and Knights will have their own services at the cemetery where graves of departed members of the latter organization and all veterans of past wars will be properly marked.

Rev. Garrett Evans, Methodist pastor at Mt. Lake Park, will deliver an oration during the memorial services there.

Many citizens also make it a custom to remember deceased relatives and friends upon this occasion and mark their graves with flowers and other tokens.

Business establishments which are closing on Saturday have announced that they will remain open on Friday evening. The Oakland postoffice will observe the usual Saturday hours, closing at noon, and having only one delivery upon that day.

Members of the American Legion have also accepted an invitation to attend Divine worship at the Episcopal church on Sunday morning, May 31, at 11 o'clock. They will assemble at the City Hall at 10:30 a. m., and march in procession to the services. The sermon will be delivered by Rev. H. K. Jones, rector.

Savage Dam Delay Causing Concern

Delay in the construction of the Savage River dam project is causing concern to Allegany county groups interested in the even flow of the Potomac river at all times.

The work of moving 940,000 cubic yards of dirt for completion of the dam embankments has been held up as the result of the lack of sufficiently high priority ratings for machinery and machine parts.

Bids for the work were duly advertised for but no bids were received as no contractor would risk the chance of getting stuck for lack of the necessary machinery.

Priority Ratings Sought

The War Production Board has failed to allow the priority ratings needed despite vigorous efforts of the Upper Potomac River Commission to obtain them. These efforts are being continued, however, and commission members are making repeated trips to Washington in behalf of the project.

Work on the spillway at the dam is continuing under the usual WPA program.

Expect Work to Resume

Work at the Crellin mines was expected to get under way again today after having been closed for several days along with other mines in the northern West Virginia area because of price levels set by Federal authorities in Washington.

With Our Men In the Service

Corporal William B. Faherty, Crellin, and Corporal Charles L. Davis, of Vindex, were among the enlisted men recently promoted at Chanute Field, Ill. Faherty, who enlisted September 20, 1940, was promoted to the rank of sergeant. Davis enlisted September 21, 1940, and was also promoted to the rank of sergeant.

Private Robert S. Hahn, son of Bliss R. Hahn, Crellin, and Private John H. Wilson, of Oakland, are among the soldiers stationed at Will Rogers field, Okla., the army air force bombardment base. Both entered the army April 20 and prior to reporting to Will Rogers field were on duty at Fort George G. Meade, near Baltimore. Before entering the army Hahn was employed by the Stanley Coal company, while Wilson was employed by E. S. Evans to do farm work near Oakland. His wife, Leoth Wilson, resides at Eglon, W. Va.

John Nelson, a son of Mrs. Lulu Nelson, Oakland, and nephew of Robert Coffey, is stationed on the U. S. S. Prairie as a deep sea diver. This is the same ship upon which the son of Wendell Willkie received his commission several days ago.

The Armored Force News, Fort Knox, Ky., for May 25, carries the caption, "Sergeant Tops Grads in Tank Mechanics," which concerns Clarence T. Jones, Red House. Jones completed the course in Tank Mechanics in a class of 127 last week, with an average grade of 91. Another member averaged 90, and three were tied for third with 89. Sgt. Jones is teaching one phase of light tank maintenance and continues further study of the machines used by the United States in the armored force. Jones is a son of Rev. and Mrs. A. K. Jones.

Jack E. Weber left for Battle Creek, Mich., on Sunday after visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Weber, for a day at their home here. Weber received his commission as a second lieutenant in the U. S. Army air corps last Wednesday at Valdosta Field, Ga., and at Battle Creek he will be engaged in air transport service.

William Tillett, who has been stationed in Panama with the United States army forces, is at the home of his parents here for a 30-day leave of absence.

John Wood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Costello Wood, Mt. Lake Park, who is a member of the 84th Engineering Corps USA, stationed at Fort Belvoir, Va., is still confined to the hospital, but is improving slowly from an illness of several months.

Corporal Arthur Calhound, Company M 71st Infantry Rifle Corp. APO 44, is now at Portland Air Base, Portland, Oregon. Calhoun is a son of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Calhoun, Mt. Lake Park.

Joseph Whorton, who enlisted in the armed forces several months ago, was recently promoted to the rank of corporal. He is stationed in Oklahoma at the present time.

Mrs. Byron to Have Opposition in Primary

Mrs. Katharine E. Byron, who last week announced her intention to be a candidate for re-election to Congress, will have opposition in the Democratic primary as E. Brooke Lee, Montgomery county political leader, announced Saturday that he would seek the nomination from the Sixth district.

Lee is a former state comptroller and one-time speaker of the Maryland House of Delegates. He served in the first World War as captain and major and was decorated for courage in battle. He is a member of the national committee of the American Legion.

KILLED BY ACCIDENTAL DISCHARGE OF SHOTGUN

Chauncey Arthur Savage, Crellin, Dies at His Home Last Friday—Sought to Kill Cat

Chauncey Arthur Savage, 27, was killed at his home at Crellin last Friday afternoon, by the accidental discharge of a shotgun, according to county authorities who investigated the incident. The charge entered the man's neck and penetrated the head.

J. W. Owens, sheriff, declared that Savage had obtained the gun for the purpose of killing a cat that had eaten some steak off the table the day previous. There was no other person present at the time, his wife having gone to a neighbor's house.

There is a short step from the kitchen into an adjoining room and it is assumed that the man stumbled there or caught the gun in some manner causing it to discharge. Owens said apparently the man was still on his feet when the gun went off. Others investigating the case were J. W. Mitchell, deputy sheriff; and Dr. E. I. Baumgartner, county medical examiner. The latter declared the death was accidental.

Savage had lived at Crellin for a number of years where he was employed as a miner by the Stanley Coal Company. He leaves a wife and infant son. Also surviving are his parents, Noah and Sara Sliger Savage, of Crellin; four sisters, Miss Sadie Savage, Mrs. Mabel Fike, Mrs. Dessie Kesner, all of Crellin; Miss Betty Savage, at home; three brothers, Oliver Savage, Friendsville; Billy and Albert Savage, Crellin.

He was a member of the Woodmen of the World.

Funeral services were conducted Sunday afternoon from the Methodist church at Crellin, with Rev. U. R. Hinzman, Corinth, W. Va., in charge. Interment was in the Blooming Rose cemetery, near Friendsville.

I. O. O. F. Veterans Receive Jewels At Meeting Last Week

An interesting program was carried out last Thursday evening at the I. O. O. F. hall at Loch Lynn when 21 veteran members of the organization were awarded 25 to 40-year jewels.

Speaking to the 92 people who were present was E. Ray Jones, who spoke on Oddfellowship, illustrating the links of the order, friendship, love and truth.

Jewels were presented to the following: U. G. Ford, John W. Ream, H. Z. Gibson and C. V. Harvey, 40 years; William A. Hauser, O. J. Harvey, O. H. Poling, H. V. Leighton, C. P. Martin, Allen Moon and George Walters, 35 years; E. Ray Jones, J. W. Glotfelty and Melvin Lee, 30 years; Joe Callis, Clyde W. Shipley, Emory Freeland, Ray Bittinger, C. H. Beckman, C. F. Cope, and Herbert C. Leighton, 25 years. J. W. Ream accepted the jewels for all those who were honored. The jewels were given out by Ray Bittinger on behalf of the order.

Jim Simms, only living charter member of Oak lodge, gave a short talk, as did Dr. C. Oscar Hall, youngest member. Walter W. Dawson was toastmaster and Rev. Garrett S. Evans gave the invocation. The Oakland quartet, composed of H. C. Leighton, J. J. Ashby, Rev. Minor Sprague and Cecil Smith, and William L. Gibson, accompanist, gave several selections including an exhibition of mountain music. Women of the Rebekah lodge served the dinner.

Civic Club Members Hear About Victory Gardens

Those attending the regular meeting of the Oakland Civic club on Tuesday afternoon in the Masonic clubroom, heard Miss Marianna Lee Long, home demonstration agent, tell of the Victory Garden program in this county.

She said that there were 532 such gardens registered in this county and many more which were not. She urged everyone to do all the canning possible as probably one-third of the output from all canning factories was to be reserved for the government, for use by the armed forces. Miss Long said her office was ready to supply people with leaflets on canning, helping in insect control, and food storage and drying.

She pointed out that the purposes of the victory gardens were production, preservation and consumption. She also spoke briefly on gardening for beauty.

The program was in charge of Mrs. E. I. Baumgartner and Mrs. O. T. Graser. A large number of women attended.

Seventeen Take Exams For Free Scholarships

Nine people took the examination for free scholarship in Western Maryland College, Westminster. The examination was held in the Oakland High School, Saturday, May 23. They were Ruth Ann Dolores Yutzy, Crellin; Helen Virginia Lawton, Oakland; Lottie Elizabeth Patton, Grantsville; Rebecca Ruth Hutson, Kitzmiller; Corlista Pearl Murphy, Star Route, Frostburg; Ruth Marie Scrogum, Accident; Elizabeth Jane Beachy, Grantsville; Mary Virginia Filsinger, Deer Park, and Helen Lucille Glotfelty, Accident.

Eight took the examination for free scholarship in Washington College, Chestertown. The examination was also held in the Oakland High School last Saturday. Gordon Jerome McKenzie, Grantsville; R. Ross Holliday, Essex; Robert David Bittle, Oakland; John William Evans, Box 535, Kitzmiller; Charles Custer Bender, Grantsville; William Max Buckel, Bittinger; William Bowen Stemple, Oakland, and Edward William Lipovec, Kempton, W. Va.

Get In the Scrap Day Is Named By Mayors of Towns

Unanimous response has been given by the mayors of Garrett county towns to a request by the Garrett Truck & Implement Company to set aside a 'Get in the Scrap' day in each of their respective villages. Because business places in Oakland will be closed on Saturday, Memorial Day, Mayor L. M. Fraley has named Friday, May 29, as the day when Oakland citizens will gather up all the scrap metal they can find around their homes and business places and pile it out in front so that a junk dealer can pick it up. Market prices will be paid.

Mayors Leslie B. Sharpless of Kitzmiller, Adam Richter of Accident, R. L. Schold of Deer Park, Dr. C. Oscar Hall of Mt. Lake Park, R. O. McCullough of Friendsville, and Jack Miller of Grantsville have named Memorial Day, May 30 as the day when, as Mr. Sharpless said, "Every home should have a pile of scrap metal in front of it."

Definite plans have been announced by A. Claude Stanton and Mr. Brookhart, sponsors of the campaign, for marketing the scrap that is being gathered by Garrett county school children today in a plan announced by F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent of schools, last week.

John Baker, Oakland scrap dealer, will call at the schools in the Kempton, Oakland, Kitzmiller, Swanton, Deer Park, and Mt. Lake vicinities. Ray Bevine, of Friendsville will cover the Accident, Friendsville, Selbysport, Keyser Ridge, Bittinger and Grantsville areas. The dealers will contact the principals and teachers of each school, weigh the scrap metals and pay the market price as the junk is loaded.

A summary of the amount of scrap gathered will be published after the campaign ends this week-end.

June Tire Quota Less Than for May

The tire quota for June was announced this week by the state rationing board and shows a reduction in the number over the month of May. For passenger cars there will be allowed only 6 tires, 22 retreads and 14 tubes.

Trucks will fare much better, the quota being 56 tires, 82 retreads and 70 tubes.

Eighteen persons obtained certificates from May 21 to May 28, for all kinds of tires and tubes.

Truck tires, tubes and retreads went to Harold Hetrick, Orval G. Rush, Simon Russell Wright, Paul Glotfelty, Gerald H. Glotfelty, Floyd Jones, Arnold Friend, Arnold Humberson, State Roads Commission, Paul Orendorf, John A. Menges, Alonzo Warnick, Courtney Wilson.

Passenger tires went to William Owens and Rev. B. F. Bragg, the latter also obtaining one tube, while E. Ray Porter, George Street and Alvey Dewey Shaffer got retreads.

Oakland High to Present "Krazy Kapers" Tomorrow

"Krazy Kapers" will be presented by the Oakland High School Glee club and Dramatic club as their annual performance, on Friday evening, May 29, in the high school auditorium.

"Krazy Kapers" is on the order of a minstrel, having a little bit of everything including jokes, dances, songs, etc.

The performance begins at 8 o'clock.

Elementary Parent-Teacher Association to Meet Tonight

The regular meeting of the Oakland Elementary Parent-Teacher Association, will be held this evening, May 28, in the elementary auditorium, Mrs. Delbert Davis, president, announced.

Election of officers will take place during the business session. As part of the entertainment Bruce Jenkins' students will give a science demonstration and each room is to have an art exhibit.

This is the last meeting of the present school term.

Youths Obtain Taste Of City Government

Youth Week Mayor and City Council Having Session Today To Discuss Community Problems

The Boys' Week observance here, with young people serving for a day in the capacity of mayor and councilmen, etc., has been definitely changed to Youth Week or Boys' and Girls' Week.

The reason—at the election held at the high school last Friday, five of the six elected to the city council were girls. The entire school voted at the election, but only seniors were eligible for positions.

James Lyons was elected mayor. Councilmen were June Spear, Eloise Griffith, Marilyn Compton, Dorothy Spencer, William Graham, Mildred Kline. Others elected: Ruth Martin, treasurer; William Lantz, chief of police; Virginia Lawton, clerk. Eugene Rook was appointed as attorney and Robert Bittle as fire chief.

These youthful leaders took office today at 10 o'clock and held a meeting in the city council chamber under supervision of regular city officials and members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of the project.

Among the questions up for discussion are "What would you do about the erection and maintenance of a Community building?" "Many Oaklanders have petitioned the town to sell the golf course and club house and apply the money to the water and sewerage bonded indebtedness. Would you sanction this?" Members will bring up other questions for the betterment of Oakland and discuss them around the council table.

The Oakland Jaycees will give each one a certificate showing the office to which he was elected or appointed.

Final Rites Held For F. A. Thayer

Final rites for Frederick A. Thayer, 87, veteran attorney here, who died last Wednesday morning, May 20, were conducted on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock from St. Paul's Methodist church, with Rev. Minor Sprague, officiating. The services were largely attended.

Interment was in the Oakland cemetery. Active pallbearers were Delbert Davis, Cecil Smith, George Littman, Harley Dawson, J. J. Ashby, and C. Milton Sincell.

Honorary pallbearers included directors of the First National Bank, members of the Garrett County Bar Association along with Judge William A. Huster, Albert A. Doub, Jr., Robert Jackson and Estel Kelly, of Cumberland, and the following citizens, Owen Treacy, W. A. Sturgiss, J. E. Harned, A. G. Ross, D. E. Offutt, Charles F. White, C. F. Hammond, Dr. W. W. More Sugar Allowed For Home Canning

Sugar allotments for home canning have been liberalized.

Under a new regulation, home canners will be entitled to one pound of sugar for every four quarts of canned fruit, and an additional pound of sugar for each member of the family to make jams, jellies, preserves and fruit butters.

Previous regulations restricted each sugar ration cardholder to five pounds for home canning. If this amount has already been used in putting up early fruits and berries, it must be computed in any new canning allotment.

The liberalization was made, Price Administrator Leon Henderson said, to conserve fruit which might otherwise be wasted and to supplement commercially canned supplies, thereby reducing the burden on transportation facilities.

Maryland truck dealers still have 2,000 new 1942 trucks which are "frozen" by government edict.

Gets Appointment As Technician

Jack Lawton, who has been employed in the Lockheed airplane factory in California, was recently notified that he had been chosen from among the vast number of workers for the work of a technician and contact engineer in foreign service. He is expecting to be ordered to Ireland next month.

Lawton has been on the west coast for four years and most of the time has been with Lockheed. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lawton, Pennington street.

Here to Attend Thayer Funeral Aged Man Dies

Arthur L. Stull, of Wilkes Barre, Pa., 79 years old, who had come to Oakland last Thursday evening for the purpose of attending the funeral service for the late F. A. Thayer, was found dead in his room on Friday morning.

He had not been in good health and Dr. E. I. Baumgartner, county medical examiner, who was called to investigate, said that death had been due to a heart attack. He was found lying on the floor, fully clothed, and it was assumed he had suffered the attack shortly after he went to his room Thursday night.

Mr. Stull was chief stockholder in the Preston Lumber and Coal company which owned timber and coal lands in this county and also in Preston county, W. Va. He came to Oakland two or three times each year.

His remains were shipped to Wilkes Barre on Friday night, where funeral services were conducted. His wife and several children survive.

To Instruct in Cleaning and Repairing of Sewing Machines

Miss Helen Shelby, clothing specialist, and A. V. Krewatch, specialist in agricultural engineering, University of Maryland, will be in Garrett county on June 4 and 5, for the purpose of giving instruction in cleaning and repairing sewing machines.

Two schools are to be conducted, one at Grantsville on June 4, and one at Mt. Lake Park on June 5, according to Miss Marianna Lee Long, home demonstration agent. Miss Long said that a limited number of women who were not members of Homemakers clubs would be eligible to attend, but that anyone desiring to do so should contact her first.

Kitzmiller Students Plan Mexican Fiesta Friday

A Mexican Fiesta will be in progress on the school grounds at Kitzmiller, Friday, May 29th from 5 to 8 o'clock.

All pupils of the elementary school are taking part in the Fiesta which is expected to be a colorful affair.

Mexican dinners may be bought for 25 cents at the food booth. There will also be flower, beverage and animal booths.

After the dinner there will be an entertainment of Mexican dances, songs and games for the public.

REGISTRATION IS SET FOR YOUTHS 18 TO 20 YEARS

President Summons About 3,000,000 to Sign Up June 30; May Be Used in War Industries

President Roosevelt has summoned about 3,000,000 of America's young men to register on June 30 and complete the survey of manpower available for fighting or making the weapons for combat.

The final batch of registrants under the selective service act will be youths of eighteen and nineteen, plus those who have become twenty years old since the first of the year.

Four previous registrations took care of men twenty through sixty-four years of age, nearly 40,000,000 of them.

Those eighteen and nineteen years old cannot be drafted for military service under existing law, but some of them might be mobilized along with older men for service in war plants.

It has been estimated that as of April 1 there were 2,483,000 men in that age bracket, while probably 500,000 who have turned twenty also will register on June 30.

The army and navy have been urging voluntary enlistments of youths 18 and 19, and those who have joined the armed forces will not have to register.

From the pool of nearly 43,000,000 men who will have signed up with local selective service boards by July 1, approximately 22,500,000 will be withdrawn for military duty or for work in war factories. Paul V. McNutt, commissioner of war manpower, asserted that an additional 10,500,000 war workers would be needed this year and 7,500,000 by the end of 1943.

May Lower Draft Age Soon

A proposal to lower the minimum age for compulsory service in the armed forces to 19, and possibly 18 years, is expected to be put before Congress soon. When Congress revised the Selective Service Act in the first month after Pearl Harbor, the War Department recommended that 19-year-olds be made subject to the draft. The Senate agreed but the House voted to put the minimum age at 21. A compromise permitted the 20-year-olds to be drafted.

Large Area Here Bequeathed to State

Bequeathing an estate estimated at $640,000 that will eventually be distributed among Peabody Institute, the Johns Hopkins university and Emanuel Protestant Episcopal church, all in Baltimore, the will of Charles McHenry Howard, attorney, was filed in the Orphans' court in Baltimore by the Mercantile Trust company, executor.

He left the bulk of his estate in trust with the company to pay the income equally to his sisters, Misses Elizabeth G., Mary and Julia McHenry Howard, during their life.

State to Get Land

A large area of land approximately 2,000 acres, in the fourteenth and seventh districts of Garrett county that was owned by Mr. Howard is to be given to the State of Maryland for use as a game and forest reserve and an agricultural experimental station, or for some kindred purpose.

He left the State the right to sell part of the land if the proceeds from the sale are used for development of the remainder of the property.

Upon death of his sisters, the residue goes to the three institutions mentioned.

The Howards have a summer residence on Alder street.

School Calendar for 1942-43 Announced by Rathbun

With all schools busy with preparations for ending their terms about mid-June, announcement has been made by F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent, of the tentative school calendar for 1942-43.

Pupils will be expected to attend school for 187 days next term, beginning Tuesday morning, September 8. An all-day teachers' meeting is scheduled for Friday, September 18.

All schools are to be closed on Election day, Tuesday, November 3. Thanksgiving holidays are from Wednesday afternoon, November 25, to Monday morning, November 30. Christmas holidays are from Wednesday afternoon, December 23, to Monday morning, January 4, 1943. Easter holidays are from Thursday afternoon, April 22, to Tuesday morning, April 27. Schools will close for the year on Friday, June 11, 1943.

Turning Over An Old Leaf

By Philip A. Gladheim

"There were those in prosperity in the Valley of the Shadow,
There were those in tragedy, there were those in sorrow;
There were those of grief and fear
That are a dim forgotten ashes;
There were shades of recognition
That are not forgotten yet."

The first and last lines of the above verse apply aptly to Frederick A. Thayer. And for a Scriptural passage a verse from one of the Responsories in the Russian Liturgy would be appropriate: "Thy memory shall be in peace."

Mr. Thayer passed on in Ascensiontide, 1916. Both these men—Frederick A. Thayer will remain served together almost a half century one of Oakland's best traditions. People Warned to Be Wary of Wood Ticks

Possibility of Contracting Spotted Fever From Infected Insects

Ticks are back again in the Maryland woods. The possibility of contracting "spotted fever"—popularly known as tick bite fever—from infected insects brings this warning from Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Health Department to all whose work or recreation takes them into tick-infested areas.

"Spotted fever—or tick bite fever—is contracted" Dr. Riley said, "from the bite of infected insects or from absorbing the infectious material into the system, through a scratch, an open sore, or break in the skin. The disease does not spread from person to person.

"While not all ticks are carriers of the infectious material, it isn't safe to take any chances with any of them. They are all possible sources of danger, and you must act accordingly.

"Remove any ticks found on the body without delay, but very carefully, so as not to absorb any of the infectious material through a possible scratch or break in the skin.

"Protect the fingers with a bit of soft cloth or paper. If the insect is deeply embedded in the skin use small forceps if possible, to withdraw it.

"Swab the place with iodine; dip your fingers and the forceps in alcohol and wash your hands with soap and water, thoroughly, afterwards.

"If you are camping or working in a tick-infested area protect yourself with suitable clothing. Search your clothing and any possible hiding places on your body for the insects, twice a day—oftener, if necessary.

"Children playing in uncleared places, or in woods along shores should be looked over very carefully. Don't forget to search behind the ears, on the head and in the hair.

"A vaccine that has been found to be of help in preventing the disease, if given early in the season, can be obtained without charge through your County Health Officer."

In its early stages tick bite fever may resemble measles, influenza, typhoid fever, meningitis or typhus, Dr. Riley said. On that account it is very important that a doctor be called whenever suspicious symptoms develop after a person has been exposed to ticks. The presence of the disease can be confirmed by laboratory tests.

A leaflet on Spotted Fever, which answers many of the questions that people ask about the disease, has been published by the U. S. Public Health Service. Copies of it can be obtained by writing to the U. S. Public Health Service, Federal Security Agency, Washington, D. C.

While We Remember Those Who Gave Their All, Let Us, The Living, Carry Their Victories To Posterity With War Stamps and Bonds

VICTORY BEGINS RIGHT HERE

What's Up to the U. S. is Up to Us

This war belongs to all of us—to fight, to finance, to finish! As the President has said: "We are all in it—all the way. Every man, woman, and child is a partner in the most tremendous undertaking of our American history." Your part is clear—to put every dime and dollar you can possibly spare into uniform—to buy U. S. Savings Bonds and Stamps regularly—so that our boys will have the guns and planes and tanks they need to put the enemy on the run. Take part of your change in U. S. Savings Stamps every time you shop—your 25-cent Stamp may buy the machine bullet that sends an enemy bomber crashing in flames. Turn Stamps into Bonds as fast as you can, that is the American way—the volunteer way—to preserve our freedom and safeguard your home, your family, and your future. Remember that you can start buying U. S. Savings Bonds for as low as $18.75 (for the $25.00 Bond) and Savings Stamps for as little as 10 cents.

THIS SIGN means "Defense Stamps sold here." There's one on each of our cash registers.

Carnation Cow Gains Fame for Production

Achieves Figure of 41,943.4 Pounds of Milk in One Year For New World's Record

The official all-time world's record for milk production for cows of any breed was shattered on May 20 with Carnation Ormsby Madcap Fayne, a Holstein-Friesian cow on the Carnation Milk farm near Seattle, Washington, achieved the figure of 41,943.4 pounds of milk in one year.

She gave nearly 21 tons of milk in the 365 days of her test, her daily average being 115 pounds or 54 quarts. On one day she gave 146.5 pounds, about 69 quarts. Her year's production equals that of 9 ordinary cows. The U. S. average is 4,742 pounds per cow.

This production is the outgrowth of a scientific breeding and feeding program begun by Carnation in 1910. The present champion is 9 years old and weighs 1,750 pounds.

An average day's menu while on test was 18 pounds of grain, 35 pounds of hay, 20 pounds of silage, 40 pounds of beets, 10 pounds of kale, and 15 gallons of water. During seven months she was also fed grass. She was milked every six hours.

L. E. Finke, local manager of the Carnation Company receiving station, said that the bull purchased here sometime ago by the two local banks for the purpose of improving the herds of dairymen in this section, was of the same strain as the champion cow.

The Carnation company is now receiving around 55,000 pounds of milk daily from farmers of this territory and Mr. Finke stated that the number of customers was steadily increasing, over 150 new ones having been added just this month. Farmers are now receiving $2.10 per hundred for milk with 4 percent butter fat content.

Let GAS Cooking help you save Vitamins and Minerals for Maximum nutrition

The country is aroused to the need for better nutrition. It's not only that we must eat the right foods, but we must store and prepare them properly so as to serve all the vitamins and minerals we buy. In accomplishing this, modern Gas cooking plays a big role—through low-flame simmer cooking and low-temperature roasting. As a result, your Gas Company has tied in strongly with the Government's nutrition program because we realize we hold a special responsibility for showing our customers how to get better meals at less cost.

For complete guidance on this important home problem, get in touch with the Home Service Department of your Gas Company.

Former Judge Aibert A. Doub Pays Tribute To The Late Frederick A. Thayer.

To the Editor of The Republican:

A few days ago, my friend, Frederick A. Thayer, an aged resident of Oakland, was called from his earthly vineyard. Although he lived to a great age, not many realized that he was very old for he lived a life preeminently useful almost to the very end. He has long been a great figure in Garrett County, respected and esteemed by all, so as one who has known, admired, and loved him for fifty years it is fitting that I should make this brief memorandum of his character and attainments as I knew them.

It is not an exageration to say that he has been one of the outstanding men of his day and generation. However, I knew him best as a lawyer. I sat beside him at the trial table as an associate in many cases and observed him from the bench in many more. He was always dignified and courteous to the Court and to his opponents. His arguments were always forceful and brief and to the point, but they threw light on the issues of the litigation and gave help to the Court in the solution of its problems. He was well versed in the law, the decisions of our courts, and the literature of the profession and so he was wise in counsel to his clients and in argument to the court. He lived up to the best traditions of the bar, and he had no interest in an undeserved victory at the bar. For many years he was one of the leaders of the bar not only of his county but of this state. He was not only a fine lawyer, but an outstanding citizen whose life counted for a great deal in Oakland and the whole county. High ideals, modesty and sincerity were predominant traits in his character and associated with these were rugged integrity and unyielding loyalty to duty. He seemed to care little for the honors that most men covet and for which many sell themselves, because there were no prizes in the form of wealth and dignities that had attraction for him. No unworthy motives actuated him for he was insensible to the allurements and ambitions of most men. Fearless and unafraid he listened to his convictions and public opinion did not affect his disposition to express them. His aim was to be right and to do right and to promote righteousness in all the activities of his busy life.

He dearly loved his family, his church, his profession, and the people of his community, who were all his friends. He has left a place vacant that will not be filled for a long, long time. Tall, dignified and handsome, his very presence made an impression wherever he went. He had a keen sense of humor that made him interesting in any group of which he was a member, and yet his kindliness attracted the humble and the prominent.

Above all Mr. Thayer was a Christian and his religion was the most serious thing in his life. His friends can well say of him what St. Paul at the end of his eventful career said for himself:

"He has fought a good fight, he has finished his course, he has kept the faith, henceforth there is laid up for him a crown of Righteousness which the Lord, the righteous judge shall give him that day."

ALBERT A. DOUB.

Attend Woodmen Circle District Convention

Ladies from Garrett county who attended the Mountain District convention of the Woodmen circle in Cumberland one day last week were Mrs. Odessa Bishoff, state and district president; Mrs. Myrtle Sollars, state attendant; Mrs. Ruth Lohr, district assistant attendant; Mrs. Elizabeth Walter, Mrs. Irene Racey, Miss Evelyn Hauger, Miss Ruth Bittinger, Mrs. Ira Rush, district junior counselor, Mrs. Ocie Rush, Mrs. Mary Murphy, Mrs. Ethel Metheny, Miss Ethel Simpson, Mrs. Elsie Shaffer, district secretary.

Ladies of the Crellin and Oakland degree staff joined with the Cumberland staff to help in the ritualistic work.

Mrs. Henrietta Snider, state manager for Maryland, Virginia and the District, was the principal speaker, discussing local and state problems for the ensuing years. She stressed proficiency in the work and urged all subordinate groves and members to purchase national defense bonds.

The winter district meeting will be held in Oakland early in October, with Deer Park and Crellin groves, joint hostesses.

T. B. Clinic Scheduled

The regular T. B. clinic for June has been scheduled for Wednesday morning, June 10, at the health department office, beginning at 9 o'clock.

DIARY OF THE WAR

FRIDAY—Russians claimed a major break in German line before Kharkov but Red advance was slackening and the Nazi counter-offensive to the south was said to be dangerous. In Crimea Reds said fighting still continued on Kerch peninsula across from Caucasus. Guerilla forces were active at other points. The Japs landed in force near Foochow, important Chinese city, with 25,000 men, and there were 125,000 troops in provinces of Chekiang, Fukien and Kiangsi, in attempt to occupy territory that might be used as allied air bases for attacks on Japan. Chinese however reported recapture of town in Yunnan. London said 45 former U. S. destroyers were still fighting for Britain. Mexico was on verge of war with Germany because of ship sinking.

SATURDAY—Reds claimed their offensive was rolling on but Germans were threatening Russian initiative. Italians claimed sinking a U. S. battleship off Brazilian coast and Nazis said her cruiser Prinz Eugen had made her way back to Kiel though damaged in recent attack. Jap invaders were making progress along coastal China but troops were defeated along Min river by Chinese. Moscow declared Nazi air-borne troops were being wiped out as fast as they arrived in Kharkov area.

SUNDAY—U. S. leaders were fearful that people here were oversure on their war attitude. Japs landed again on island near Foochow in force and increased threat to all China's eastern seaboard. Reds were facing 3-to-1 odds in the Kharkov fight and acknowledged their troops had evacuated the Kerch peninsula. Red circle wing insignia on American army planes has been changed to a white star within a blue circle to avoid confusion with Jap plane markings which are orange-red circles. British planes swept over France in large numbers. Nazis executed 20 hostages in France and Greece. Greek guerrillas were active. U. S. navy patrol was keeping sharp watch on French island of Martinique. Allied planes were evacuating many from Burma war trap.

MONDAY—Reds again crept forward after stopping German counter attacks south of Kharkov, and claimed many German dead. Russians said withdrawal at Kerch had been orderly and Nazi loss had been heavy. Japs continued attempts to knock China out of war. Allied bombers raided Amboina in Netherlands Indies and at Lae, New Guinea. Air fighting increased over Libyan desert. The week's U-boat toll was 19 ships, and 210 since Pearl Harbor.

TUESDAY—Reds reported slow advances around Kharkov but were on defensive to the south where Nazis claimed encirclement of three Soviet armies. Chinese said Jap attack against Kinhwa had been thrown back. Fighting was confused and inconclusive in Burma and Yunnan. Mexico's president called for meeting of Congress Thursday to vote on declaration of war. England's labor party was overwhelmed in support of Churchill government. Brazil announced a U. S. patrol plane had sunk a sub May 23 off their coast. German Gestapo nabbed 100 in Paris for attempted sabotage.

WEDNESDAY—Chinese described their situation as grave but said Japs were held off at Kinhwa in spite of fiercer battles. Reds claimed new advances around Kharkov and declared they were holding off violent Nazi blows upon flank. They were digging in after gains. Swarms of Nazi parachutists were being shot down by sharpshooters. A second Axis sub was sunk near Brazil. A U. S. destroyer was torpedoed off Martinique but it reached port. In London, Hitler was believed to be gaining use of Vichy French fleet as Italy made demands for some French territory. Allied officials were thought to be planning European invasion.

THURSDAY—War in north Africa sprang to life with sudden armored thrust in Libya by Nazi tank columns. British planes concentrated on these tanks. Nazis bombed island of Malta again. Reds again reported beating down German counter-offensive south of Kharkov and to be consolidating positions around that city. Big improvement was noted in China especially along Burma road and Yunnan province. Chinese said they had caused over 15,000 casualties in Jap army of 100,000 around Chekiang on east China coast. Spirit of revolt on Continent was illustrated by attempt in Czechoslovakia to assassinate the hated Gestapo "protector" Reinhard Heydrich. Germans said he was wounded but expected him to live. London was seeing more signs of plans for an American-British invasion of the continent. A bomber sank an Axis sub off Martinique, supposedly the one which hit the U. S. destroyer.

A large-scale movement of oil and gasoline to the East coast by barges operating on the inland waterways was indicated as bids were sought on construction of wooden barges.

Philip Murray was named president of the CIO union at $20,000 a year.

Administration talk of extending gasoline rationing to the whole country has brought protests in Congress. Gas rationing has been cancelled for Oregon and Washington, scheduled for June 1.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS . . . .

Russian Secretiveness

Washington, May 23.

Although this is the greatest war in the history of the world, less is known about it by the people in the countries involved—or, for that matter, in those not involved—than any previous conflict. Information of what goes on concerning both civilian and armed forces is more restricted than in the last war. And a good deal that is known isn't so.

* * *

Partly, this is because the censorship is tighter. Partly, it is due to the development in propaganda technique and volume. Partly, it is due to the numerous and immensely distant fronts, the difficulties in getting news and the obstacles, other than censorship, in transmitting it. And, partly, it is because so much of modern warfare is in the air, where what happens is impossible to check.

* * *

Take the whole combination and it is easy to understand why knowledge is limited among the people generally and not always complete with our military and naval authorities. But, in respect to one of our allies—Russia—there is an additional reason, to-wit, the inherent, ingrained, calculated and cultivated secresy with which the rulers of Russia envelop all their activities. This secretiveness marked them in peace; it is much more marked in war. An eminent and reliable man recently returned from Russia summed it up this way: "They will not tell anybody anything about anything at any time anywhere."

* * *

Perhaps that is an exaggeration, but it is true that it is harder to get real news out of Russia than out of any other country with which we are not at war. What comes out of Russia is strictly limited to what Russians want to come out. There is no leeway for correspondents, no chance to get anything beyond the official communiques. It is possible to elaborate upon those, but not much, and it is impossible not only to send out additional information, but to get additional information to send out. No American or English correspondents have yet been permitted to go to the Russian fronts, but, then, neither diplomatic nor military observers have been permitted to go there, either. Russian control over information is more complete than that of any other nation and up to date it has never been relaxed. Perhaps, there is merit in this method. Certainly, it prevents any leakage to the enemy, but it likewise is somewhat misleading to its friends.

* * *

Undoubtedly Russian secresy is why both here and in England the Russian generals, the Russian army, the Russian air force and the Russian resistance were so greatly underrated last summer when the Germans attasked. At that time no one could be found in our War Department who was not convinced Russia would crumble within a month. Military experts pointed out that the Russians had no mechanical ability and, therefore, were not equipped for modern war. They also pointed out that they had not fought well against the Finns and, of course, would be helpless before the Germans.

* * *

These and other alleged weaknesses were stressed by the supposedly informed. They were just all wrong. So far as mechanical ability is concerned, there is testimony that the Russians have taken our newest and most complicated bombers, sent over under lend-lease arrangements, assembled them and flown them expertly in four days—a very considerable feat, indeed. As for fighting against the Finns, what apparently we failed to understand was the difference between the Russians fighting abroad and the Russians fighting on his own soil against an invader. The difference is enormous. A volume could be written about it.

* * *

On all these matters both we and the British grossly underestimated Russians, but, then so, to his devastating undoing, did Hitler. That sinister and misguided individual had grown accustomed to driving his mechanized forces through opposing lines and having the beaten army fold up and surrender. The Russians did not do that. When their lines were pierced last year Hitler found them carrying on a guerrilla warfare in the rear. They retreated and fought on, retreated again and fought on. No one now thinks there is any more prospect of Russians surrendering on their own soil than there is of the British or ourselves. It just isn't in the Russian to surrender to the invader; he may die but he will not give up.

* * *

That is now the conviction of the very men who a year ago were sure Russia could not stand up beyond July. They may not be a hundred per cent right now, but there is reason to believe they are much less wrong than they were then. At any rate, both the British and ourselves know that but for the Russians, Hitler might easily have won the war by now; that Russia's magnificent fight has given us the time so vitally needed; that our self-interest lies in aiding her with everything we possibly can.

* * *

The fact that she is secretive about her military and internal affairs is relatively unimportant. The truth is that the Russians distrust both the British and ourselves. And both of us distrust the Russians. Partly, this is due to mutual distaste for an opposing economic system and resentment toward a clashing conception of government; partly, to the offensive activities of Communist agitators in our midst; partly, to misunderstandings. But, all these things sink into insignificance beside the overpowering fact that Russia is in a death grapple with a foe who embodies the greatest threat to our freedom that has ever arisen. We do not have to love Russia or trust her to appreciate that her fight is our fight and that to withhold anything she needs that we can supply would be incredible folly.

3,905 in Maryland Get Social Security Benefits

Awards of monthly benefits under the Federal old-age and survivors insurance system were made to 3,905 persons in Maryland, during the year 1941, according to Henry M. Millhouser, manager of the Cumberland office of the Social Security Board. These awards represent benefits totaling $66,643 a month, he said. In addition, awards of lump-sum death payments totaling $230,939 were made to 2,147 individuals in the State last year.

Total payments made to people in Maryland during 1941 under the old-age and survivors insurance system amounted to $1,344,000, including $624,000 to retired workers, $87,000 to aged wives, $211,000 to children, $50,000 to aged widows, $125,000 to widows with young children, $6,000 to parents of deceased workers, and lump-sum death payments totaling $241,000.

AURORA-EGLON

Funeral services were conducted last Thursday, at Stemple Ridge church, for Miss Theo Hebb, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Hebb of near Ledmine, who died following an acute illness of only a few weeks. Burial was made in the church cemetery.

Mrs. Walter Spiggle, of Aurora, went Wednesday to Cleveland, Ohio, where she plans to spend the remainder of the week with her two daughters and their families.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Harsh and little boy motored to Morgantown, Sunday, where they visited Mrs. Harsh's brother, George Cole and family.

Mrs. A. K. Pitzer and Mrs. Lelah Wotring, of Grafton, were callers in this community on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Helmick and two children, of Dayton, Ohio, came Saturday to the home of Mrs. Helmick's foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Fichtner, Eglon. Mr. Helmick and little boy accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Cora Helmick, of Eglon, returned to Dayton Monday. Mrs. Helmick and little girl plan to stay for several weeks, during which time she will have dental work done.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Fike and family, of Cash Valley, went Sunday to Accident, where they visited at the home of Mrs. Fike's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. A. King.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Rembold and infant, of Pittsburgh, Pa., came Saturday to the home of Mrs. Rembold's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Harvey, of near Eglon. Soon after their arrival Mr. Rembold became very ill, but he improved rapidly and they were able to return to Pittsburgh, on Monday.

G. B. Hamstead, of Eglon, attended the funeral rites on Friday, at the Bismark church, for Mrs. John Reel, who died at her home near Bismark, last Wednesday. Rev. D. B. Spaid, of Eglon, was in charge of the services.

George B. Wotring, who works at Elza Bland's lumber mill, near Aurora, stepped backwards off the dock, Saturday, and fell about eight feet to the ground. The only injury was that a small snuff box which he carried in his hip pocket was badly battered. He replaced his hat, climbed back to where he had fallen from, and resumed work.

The Women's Bible class of Maple Spring Sunday school held a short religious service, Sunday afternoon, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Washington Fike, of near Brookside, in honor of Mrs. Fike, who is an invalid.

Miss Blanche Vought, Eglon, who had been employed for the past six months in the home of Mrs. Etta Bush, of Oakland, returned recently to her home.

The baccalaurate sermon was delivered Sunday evening at the Aurora high school by Rev. Durst, of Belington, W. Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bush, of Cincinnati, Ohio, were visitors last week in the home of the Drs. Miller, Eglon. Mrs. Bush was formerly Miss Effie King, of Eglon.

Miss Virginia Lois Fike, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Ezra Fike, who was a student at Bridgewater College, the past term, returned Sunday to her home, at Eglon.

Mrs. Anna Hauser, of near Aurora, who has been a patient in the Grafton hospital since March 27, suffering of a dislocated hip, was able to go to the home of her son, Virgil Hauser, at Flemington, last week-end.

Labor unions would be subject to prosecution under the 1934 anti-racketeering act in a bill sent to the house by the judiciary committee.

Draft boards were informed that men irreplaceable in war production should be deferred and remain at their work benches.

DIED

MRS. LAURA SELBY MILLER

Mrs. Laura V. Selby Miller died Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock at Mt. Lake Park, where she had resided for a number of years. She was the widow of the late Elias Miller who died April 3, 1913.

Mrs. Miller was born October 22, 1845, in this county, a daughter of the late Richard and Rebecca Selby, and was aged 98. Five years ago she fell and broke her hip and had never been able to walk since that time.

She was a member of the Methodist church, and in her earlier years was considered a talented contralto singer.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Mary Speicher, Piedmont, W. Va., and Mrs. Rebecca Kesner, Farmington, W. Va.; one brother, Luther Selby, Clarksburg, W. Va.; ten grandchildren and six great grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the Bolden Funeral home, with Rev. J. C. Foster, United Brethren minister of Mt. Lake Park, officiating. Interment was in the Paradise church cemetery, between Deer Park and Sand Flat.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN BROWN

Funeral services were held Tuesday, May 19, for Benjamin Franklin Brown, 47, of Friendsville, who died May 15, at the state hospital at Sykesville.

Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Fred Friend and Mrs. Martin Friend; four brothers, John Brown, Jones Mills, Pa.; Austin, Marshall and Martin Brown, Friendsville. He was the son of the late William Brown, of the Cove.

Rev. R. L. Greynolds, Methodist pastor at Friendsville, conducted the funeral rites from the Savage Funeral home in Friendsville. Interment was in the Hetz cemetery, Cove.

HAROLD WILSON PAUGH

Harold Wilson Paugh died at his home in Ralph, Pa., last Friday evening, May 22.

He was born June 9, 1903, at Oakland. He was a son of the late James and Victoria Paugh.

Surviving are his widow, Mary Fabian Paugh, two daughters, Mary Elizabeth and Dolores, at home; a brother, Oliver, of Star City, W. Va.; two sisters, Mrs. Pearl McCrombie, Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Dorothy Powell, Everettsville, W. Va.

MRS. HENRY J. SHAFFER

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Shaffer, wife of Henry Joseph Shaffer, died at her home on Mason street on Tuesday night, May 26, at 9:45 o'clock, following an illness of several months.

Mrs. Shaffer was born January 26, 1861, in West Virginia, a daughter of the late Conrad and Theresa Nau, and was aged 81.

She was a devout member of the Catholic church and a member of the Sacred Heart society.

Surviving are her husband, three sons, Leon Shaffer, Elmer Shaffer and Robert Shaffer, all of Oakland; two daughters, Mrs. Paul Beckwith, Cresaptown; and Miss Josephine Shaffer, at home; also two sisters, Mrs. Theresa Colson, Baltimore; Mrs. Kate Onestreet, St. Louis, Mo.; one brother, Henry Nau, Westernport; 13 grandchildren and 5 great grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted Friday morning at 9 o'clock from St. Peter's Catholic church with Rev. John C. Broderick, pastor, in charge. Interment will be in the Catholic cemetery.

JAMES C. FOLEY

The body of James Carroll Foley, 57, a victim of the Osage mine disaster, was recovered last Thursday and taken to Terra Alta, W. Va., where funeral services were conducted Saturday from the Tent chapel at Mt. Lake Park, with Rev. Garrett Evans officiating. Interment was in the Harvey cemetery.

His survivors are his widow, Rose L. Foley, and children, John, James, Patrick, Robert, June and Fern, Deer Park, and Mrs. Madison Tucker, Steyer.

JUDSON HOLLIDAY

Judson Holliday, 65, died Tuesday morning, May 26, at his home in the Cove section. He had been an invalid for more than twenty years.

A son of Mrs. Mary Gower Holliday and the late Elijah Holliday, he was born November 6, 1876, at Fort Hill, Pa. He operated a small farm at Cove before his health failed.

January 5, 1900 he married Miss Mary Georg and they were the parents of thirteen children. Navy School at G.E.

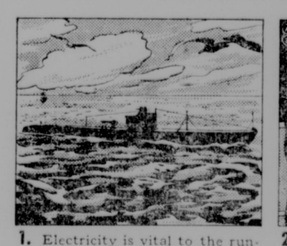
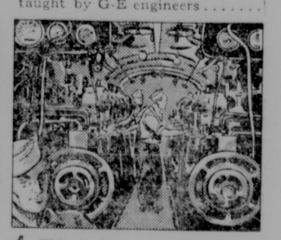
Just one evidence of the cooperation between the armed services and our vast industrial army—a school for submarine electricians conducted at one General Electric factory.



1. Electricity is vital to the running of every submarine. It does an amazing variety of important jobs, from turning the propeller to cooking the coffee.

2. For that reason, there must be well-trained electricians on every underwater craft. At this school, Navy electricians attend classes taught by G-E engineers . . . . . .

3. . . . . and go out into the shops where they watch workmen construct the same kind of electric equipment that will some day be put in their charge.



4. This is but one proof of the thorough training which the U.S. Navy gives its men, so that the vital equipment of war will always be ready for action.

General Electric believes that its first duty as a good citizen is to be a good soldier.

RED HOUSE LUTHERAN PARISH
A. K. Jones, Pastor.

Church services will be held at Gnegy and Red House in the morning and at Aurora in the evening. The Sunday schools will meet at the usual time.

Next Sunday is the Festival of the Holy Trinity. The Gospel for the day tells of two great teachers, and of a conversation they had one night. Both were firm believers in God, the Father Almighty. One of them was specially interested in the other as a "teacher come from God," a worker of miracles. Their conversation turned to the work of the Holy Ghost, the Lord and Giver of Life. This is a great theme for these tragic days, and deserves careful consideration.

MARRIED

PAINTER-ZIMMERMAN—Mr. and Mrs. Roy Zimmerman, Oakland, have announced the marriage of their daughter, Lena Leota, to Mr. Roscoe Van Buren Painter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Archie R. Painter, of Luray, Va. The ceremony took place on Saturday afternoon, May 2, in the Primitive Baptist church, in Washington, with Elder J. B. Jenkins officiating.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father, was attired in light blue with navy blue veil and wore a shoulder corsage of white roses.

Mrs. Marie Rice, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and wore a dress of navy blue with white accessories and a shoulder corsage of yellow rose buds. Mrs. Vera Painter, sister-in-law of the groom, was bridesmaid and was dressed in pink with white accessories and wore a shoulder corsage of yellow rose buds. Buford Painter was his brother's best man. Mothers of the couple were dressed in navy blue and wore corsages of pink roses, and the grandmother of the bride, Mrs. William Sowers, was dressed in light blue and wore a corsage of pink roses.

A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Roy Harding, in Washington. Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Roy Zimmerman, Mrs. William Sowers, Mrs. Marie Rice, all of Oakland; Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Painter, Medford; Bruce and Isabelle Painter, all of Luray, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Kirby Painter, Wilmington, Del., and other friends and relatives.

The groom is formerly of Luray and has been employed in Washington for the past three years. The bride has also worked in Washington for the past two years. The couple will reside at 1329 Staples St., N. W., Washington.

M'MANUS-KALBAUGH—Miss Virginia Kalbaugh, Oakland elementary teacher, became the bride of Mr. Ray McManus, of Kempton, W. Va., at a quiet ceremony performed last Friday evening at 6:30 o'clock in the Lutheran parsonage at Red House, Rev. A. K. Jones, pastor, officiated.

The bride, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Kalbaugh, of Luke, has been instructor in the sixth grade here for several years. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. James McManus, of Kempton.

The couple will reside in Oakland.

Card of Thanks

Mrs. Bertha Hoye and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Brown wish to thank relatives and friends who were so kind following the sudden and tragic death of Barbara Ann Brown.

They express their thanks to the Oakland Fire Department and especially to John Stevenson, Jr., who through special effort succeeded in recovering the body of Barbara Ann from the burning building.

WAR HEROES

That these men shall not have died in vain—let liberty's torch be borne high to illumine the skies and earth with the light of a United Nations victory.

The sacrifice we at home may be called upon to make is small indeed compared with the supreme sacrifice which they have already made for us.

We must all purchase war bonds and stamps to the limit of our ability. That is our solemn pledge as we join in honoring our war heroes on this Memorial Day.

FRIDAY: THE DAY OF SUFFERING

LESSON TEXT—Mark 14:32-34, 44-46; 15:1-5.

GOLDEN TEXT—Not my will, but thine, be done.—Luke 22:42.

Suffering such as no man ever faced came upon our Lord in the night between Thursday and Friday as He prayed in Gethsemane. Hatred and condemnation were poured upon Him as He went through the mockery of false trials on Friday.

The important events of last week's lesson had taken place, the precious words of comfort and assurance had been spoken, and now as midnight brings the darkness of night to its deepest hue, the Son of Man goes alone into the depth of the garden where we see Him

I. Sorrowful unto Death (14:32-34).

This Scripture portion uses many words to convey the depth of His soul's agony, as though it were impossible to express it in the faulty medium of speech. So it is, for our Lord here experienced something far more serious than a dread of physical death. He was not a coward. He was not afraid to die. But now His soul was about to have put upon its spotless sinlessness the stain and dishonor of the world's sins.

As Krummacher says: "Something approached Him which threatened to rend His nerves and the sight of it to freeze the blood in His veins." Little wonder that He was "sorrowful even unto death" (v. 34). It should break our hearts to see His loving heart break!

Since this was the road the Master trod, should not His servants tread it still? Service for Christ may call for passing through deep and chilling waters, but never as deep or as cold as those of Gethsemane.

Jesus took with Him into the garden the three who were closest to Him in the circle of disciples. He counted on their fellowship and sympathy in His hour of anguish. Merely to have them near Him, to know that they were there to watch and pray even though they could not share His holy burden, was to be a comfort to Him.

How ignominiously they failed. The spirit was willing (v. 33), but the flesh took the upper hand, and they slept! He was alone with His Father when He prayed that if it were possible the hour might pass from Him, but in true and beautiful submission said, "Not what I will, but what thou wilt."

II. Betrayed With a Kiss (14:44-46).

To betray the one who had done nothing but good, who had loved him and served him even in the washing of his feet, this would have been far more than one could have expected of even the sin-blackened heart of a Judas. But he filled the measure of his ignominy to overflowing by betraying his Lord with the sign of affection—a kiss.

We know that we may not stand on the same ground as our Lord even here, for, whereas He had done nothing to merit betrayal, we at our best are not able to stand forth without fault. Nevertheless, great is the hurt when we face the betrayals of life. It may be one whom we have befriended, who has been the object of our loving thought and care, and who in the hour when he thinks to gain himself some advantage or avenge some fancied wrong strikes us in the back, even as he smilingly professes to be a friend. Shall we be embittered in soul and give like for like? God forbid! Let us rather say as Jesus did to Judas, "Friend, wherefore art thou come?" (Matt. 26:50).

III. Condemned by Hatred and Cowardice (15:1-5).

We have only a partial picture of the betrayal of Jesus in our lesson, but it is typical of all that took place, for it reveals the hatred-inspired false witness of the Jews, which, combined with the cowardice of Pilate, resulted in His being condemned to death.

Pilate was convinced of His innocence, but because of the pressure by Jewish leaders he was in a difficult position. He was afraid to follow his convictions, feeling that it was more expedient to yield to the will of the populace. So he lost his great opportunity to write his name large among the heroes of history.

Many there are who follow in Pilate's steps. They know what they ought to do with Jesus, but fearing the comments of friends or the possible loss of earthly advantage, they let Him be crucified afresh by their unbelief.

The Jewish leaders and those whom they had misled hated Jesus with a malicious hatred which made them relentless in their determination to destroy Him. Now they had their quarry at bay and they were determined to close in for "the kill."

They have their present day counterpart in those who have so long rejected Christ that they have become embittered against Him.

Floods in Pennsylvania caused the death of 29 persons.

The House passed a bill authorizing wire tapping in anti-espionage purposes.

MINERALS

We frequently hear the statement "Eat fruits, vegetables, and milk to supply the protective food elements—minerals and vitamins." Perhaps you are interested in knowing more about the first of these.

Needed Vitamins

At the present there are thirteen recognized indispensible chemical elements which we call minerals. These are calcium, phosphorus, iron, iodine, magnesium, sodium, chlorine, manganese, sulphur, copper, potassium, and possibly zinc, and cobalt. To secure these is not an impossible task. If we assure ourselves a supply of the first four named, the others will also be present in the amounts needed.

Functions of Minerals

1. Minerals are essential for the contraction of muscles of the body.
2. Minerals determine the irritability of nerves. Nerves will not respond to stimuli unless the necessary minerals are present in the correct proportions.
3. Minerals assist in the coagulation (clotting) of the blood.
4. Minerals control the movements of liquid in the body.
5. Minerals are essential for the digestive processes.
6. Minerals keep the blood neutral, that is neither acid nor alkaline.
7. Minerals take part in the transporting of oxygen from the lungs to the cells of the body, and carbon dioxide from the body tissues to the lungs.
8. Minerals enter into the composition of every living cell of the body.
9. Minerals are essential to the structure of certain complex chemicals which profoundly influence growth, maintence of health, and rate of development.

Iron

A mineral of great importance to us is iron. It is an essential constituent of hemoglobin—the red coloring matter of blood. (The function of hemoglobin in the body is the transporting of oxygen and carbon dioxide). The blood rich in hemoglobin gives the normal bloom to the youthful skin. Pale lips and skin reveal the presence of anemia.

Anemia may be caused by several factors: (1) Deficiency of iron, copper, or calcium in the diet; (2) inability of body to manufacture hemoglobin of red blood cells; (3) loss of blood through excessive bleeding. To combat anemia food sources are added to the diet under the direction of a doctor. To prevent anemia, we secure the necessary minerals by following the diet previously recommended—emphasis on milk, fruits, vegetables, eggs, lean meat, and liver.

Iron—Red meats, liver, egg yolk, green vegetables.

Copper—Nearly all natural foods contain traces of copper.

Calcium—Milk.

Following are two recipes for the preparation of liver which was recommended for use at least once a week.

Liver Friend in Butter

Quoted in the words of Mrs. W. P. Mortenson, former head of home economics extention work in the College of Agriculture at the University of Wisconsin:

"I put a tablespoon of vinegar in a cup of boiling water and pour it over the liver. I let this stand for five minutes. This takes away the strong flavor and makes the liver easy to handle. Then I cut it in slices about as big as my finger with the kitchen shears, roll it in flour and cook it in butter for five minutes. It not only tastes good, but it looks nice this way, too. Like French fries, only darker."

Liver Loaf

1 pound liver
1 cup tomatoes
4 cups boiling water
2 tablespoons flour
1 small diced onion
2 tablespoons fat
⅛ teaspoon pepper
½ cup rice
2 teaspoon salt

Cook rice in boiling water until tender and water is used, leaving a sticky mass of rice. Wipe liver with a damp cloth. Mix salt and flour, roll liver in it, and cook in melted fat 3 minutes. Grind or chop liver. Brown onion in fat, add flour and tomatoes and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Mix all ingredients thoroughly, place in a greased baking dish and bake in a moderate oven about 30 minutes.

I SEE BY THE DAILIES THAT

Rain, hail and wind caused damage at Cumberland last Friday.

Government began laying plans for rationing of passenger space on trains and buses.

Passenger service on American airlines to Elkins, W. Va., is suspended because of the war emergency.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was awarded an honorary degree of doctor of laws at commencement exercises at Washington college, Chestertown.

The War manpower commission decided to "freeze" workers in critical war industries to their present jobs to prevent "labor pirating."

Episcopalians marked the 250th anniversary of establishment of the church in Maryland on Monday.

GRANTSVILLE

Fire Destroys Saw Mill

Damage estimated at between $7,000 and $10,000 was caused last Thursday morning when the saw mill just east of town operated by the Marquette Bailey Lumber Company, was leveled by fire. The blaze was beyond control when it was discovered shortly after 2 a. m. Grantsville firemen were on the scene within a few minutes after the alarm sounded and their prompt action enabled them to save the stock lumber. The building and machinery, however, including a new Diesel engine recently purchased at a cost of approximately $3,000, were completely destroyed.

The cause of the fire could not be definitely fixed as, according to reports, there had been no fire in the boiler for several days, but it was thought to have originated in a pile of lumber. Much of the damage, however, was covered by insurance.

Club Has Meeting

Mrs. C. Lee Beachy was hostess to members of the Community Club at its May meeting last week. Miss Marianna Lee Long, county home demonstration agent, addressed the session on the subject of "Foods of Today, and the Canning Budget." The preparation of foods, the quantity of canned food necessary for family needs, and garden soil problems were features of the discussion.

The local group decided to join other Homemakers clubs in the county in sponsoring a clothing project. All persons in the community are asked to contribute their discarded clothing for the project. The club members, together with volunteeers, will then make the garments over into wearable clothing which will be distributed among the needy families in this section.

The small house on the property of Mrs. Ida Harshberger will be used to store the contributions, which may be left with Mrs. Hobart Speicher.

Firemen Receive Donation

At a meeting of the local firemen Friday night, announcement was made of the receipt of a contribution of $11.25. The donation was made by members of the Young America Victory Club, comprised of students from the seventh grade of Grantsville school.

For several weeks the young people made a house to house canvass collecting old newspapers, magazines, etc., and C. O. Bender provided a truck in which they took the collection to Cumberland.

Prospective Freshmen Register

Seventy-eight seventh grade students registered at the Grantsville school Friday in the pre-school registration held for those planning to enter high school in the fall. Of this number thirty-six were from rural schools in this area and forty-two were from the local elementary school.

Assisting in the work of registering the new students were members of the student council, for which two are chosen from each class, namely, Charles Bender, president; Max Buckel, Ruth Curran, Glenn Stanton, Robert Glotfelty, Margaret Beachy, Georgie McKenzie and Anna Railey. Each member of the council spoke to the visitors on the various school activities and conducted them on a tour of the different classes.

An assembly program, presented by students from the elementary school, was also given in honor of the prospective freshmen. At that time county championship medals were awarded to Fay Miller, Jr., Jack Stowell, Gordon McKenzie, Max Buckel, William Wright and Norman Patton, Jr., for winning the County Basketball Championship. William C. Grimm, coach, made the presentation.

Badges and other awards for outstanding athletic achievements were made to quite a number.

WSCS to Meet

The May meeting of the Women's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist church will be held this evening. A covered dish supper will feature.

Brief Items

The last meeting of the Teachers bridge club for this season was held Saturday evening with a dinner party and bridge at the Chalk Hill hotel. Mrs. Scott Holliday, Somerfield, Pa., won the prize for high score, and floating honors went to Mrs. Frank J. Getty.

Other guests included Miss Jean Young, Wilkinsburg, Pa., Miss Kathryn Speicher, Accident, Mrs. Evangeline Glenn, Friendsville, Miss Viola Broadwater, Miss Emma Caulk, Miss Margaret Renstrom, Miss Lucy Palmerino, Mrs. Hayward F. Broadwater, Mrs. William C. Grimm and Mrs. Julius Renninger.

Hagerstown Attorney Seeks Judgeship In 4th Judicial Area

Ellsworth R. Roulette, a Hagerstown attorney, has announced his candidacy for associate judge in the Fourth Judicial Circuit, which comprises Washington, Allegany and Garrett counties. His candidacy is subject to the Republican primary in September.

The associate judge, under the law, must come from Washington county this election, and the one elected will fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Frank G. Wagaman. Joseph D. Mish, who was appointed to the vacancy, is expected to be the Democratic nominee.

Mr. Roulette, in making his announcement, said he believed "it is the duty of a judge to respect the law as it is, administer it as he finds it without fear or favor and leave any changes to be made to the proper legislative authorities."

He declared that the time was now here when "we must go back to the fundamental principles of government that have made us the greatest nation on earth, rather than theories that constitute no part of the American system.

Mr. Roulette is 51 and resides near Funkstown with his wife and son. He was graduated from the University of Maryland in 1917 and since February, 1918, has practiced law in Hagerstown. He has served as State's attorney for Washington county and city attorney for Hagerstown.

MT. LAKE PARK

Brief Mention

The date of the Mickey's Band Auxiliary meeting in the Ladies' Aid hall, Loch Lynn, has been changed to the first Tuesday night of each month. There are now 39 members of the band, which is a most satisfactory number to Professor Mickey and those interested in the new band. But what is not satisfactory is the fact that the parents of many of the band boys are failing to cooperate with the organization. It is with this in mind that through this column all members of the auxiliary are urged to attend thee regular meetings. It is pointed out that if the parents are not interested then how can the band be a success, and this community can support, and does need a good band. Mickey's band is a good band. So try and get to the meetings of the auxiliary.

Monday will be another day for putting out your garbage and your trash. Again it is emphasized that you place all garbage in containers in order that one person may handle it. For many reasons there will be only one man on the wagon. Ted Woods, the collector, asks that you cooperate with him.

There will be a special school of instruction held on the evening of Friday, June 5, at 8:00 sharp in the I. O. O. F. hall, Loch Lynn, at which time the Lake Lynn lodge 97, Rebekahs, will have as their guest, State instructor Miss Bertha Hughes, of Baltimore. A social hour will follow and refreshments will be served.

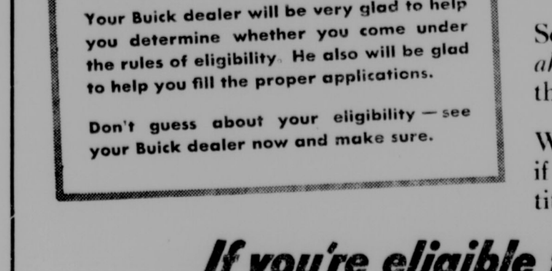
Really NEED a New Car?

Liberalized rules may let you get one



IF your work is connected directly or indirectly with the prosecution of the war, you may be eligible to buy a new car—right now.

Under newly liberalized rationing rules it is easier than most people think to replace cars now in use with brand-new, long-lived, gas-thrifty 1942 Buicks.

Maybe you can wash out worries about tire-life by starting afresh with a complete new set—tires that will last longer, if they're on a Buick, because new Broadrim wheels both ease the ride and lengthen tire-life.

Remember, the 1942 models your Buick dealer now has ready for immediate delivery were built to serve you through the duration and beyond.

They are wartime tough, durable beauties built to last, built to go a long, long way with a minimum of upkeep.

So if you're eligible, you may be money ahead getting a new Buick now rather than trying to make an old car "do."

Why not drop in, talk it over and see if the new liberalized rules do not entitle you to a new automobile now?

Who is Eligible to Buy a New Car?

There are seven major classifications for persons eligible to buy new cars under basic rationing rules.

These include persons engaged in the production of war materials or in the prosecution of the war, directly or indirectly physicians, nurses, clergymen, veterinarians; car-owners engaged in public service, such as fire departments, public health, highway maintenance, etc.; owners of taxicabs and other means of transportation; farmers; newspaper wholesalers; and traveling salesmen in certain fields.

Your Buick dealer will be very glad to help you determine whether you come under the rules of eligibility. He also will be glad to help you fill the proper applications.

Don't guess about your eligibility—see your Buick dealer now and make sure.

If you're eligible for a new car—

Better Buy Buick!

VOLUME 66. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, JUNE 4, 1942. NUMBER 15.

Listen From Within . . . .

Thomas Edison's deafness was not a handicap—it proved to be one of the secrets of his success. "It has been a blessing to me," he said, "because it has forced me to listen from within."

When you "listen from within" you draw on your subconscious mind. You put to work your great storehouse of recorded impressions. Emerson recommended that every man should have a Quiet Room away from noise, distraction and confusion where he can be silent and think. Steinmetz had a shack in the woods. So did Elbert Hubbard, Thoreau and other great thinkers.

The great scientist Von Helmholtz divided creative thinking into four steps: Preparation, Incubation, Illumination and Verification. Incubation means to relax and "listen from within." Then comes the illumination—the flash of inspiration.

Those who work only with their conscious minds are shallow thinkers. To plum the depths, to soar to the heights, we must learn to "listen from within."

—The Silver Lining.

YOUTHS SERVE AS CIVIC LEADERS JUST FOR A DAY

Decide to Retain Golf Course and Vote "Bonus" To All City Employes Who Helped Them

The "Youth Week" Mayor and Council of Oakland decided unanimously last Thursday to retain the municipal golf course because of its recreational facilities and attraction for tourists, and voted a "fifty dollar bonus" to the duly elected Mayor and Council and other municipal officers for their assistance and cooperation during their day's activities as rulers of Oakland.

Those in authority for the day included James Lyons, mayor; Dorothy Spencer, Mildred Killius, Eloise Griffith, Marilyn Compton, June Spear and William Graham, members of council; Eugene Rook, city attorney; Robert Bittle, fire chief; William Lantz, chief of police; Ruth Martin, treasurer; Virginia Lawton, clerk-collector. June Spear was made council president. The mayor and members of council had been named at a high school election previously with the entire student body voting but only the seniors eligible to hold office.

Council appointed Charles Butts as water and street superintendent, and Paul Custer as assistant. Water and street, golf and finance committees were also named from among council members.

Howard White appeared as a representative of the Junior Chamber of Commerce and suggested they sell the golf course and take the proceeds to redeem and pay outstanding water and sewerage bonds. Lawrence Fraley appeared for the business men to explain that the golf course was essential to the town not only for recretaion and tourist travel but also as an asset to the water works of the municipality. Undesirable building erected on the course, if sold, would cause damage to the water system, he contended. He also pointed out that the water bonds were not collectible at this time and showed a letter from the State Board of Health in 1925 advising the town to purchase the property where the golf course is now located.

At one o'clock the youthful leaders were taken on a tour of the golf course, the club house and water works and upon their return immediately brought up the matter for disposal and voted unanimously not to sell the property.

They then voted the "bonus" to the town's employes and called for a shorter working day each Saturday for them.

The Youth Week activity was sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce to give the young citizens an insight into the affairs of local government.

Oiling of County Roads to Be Restricted

That the oiling of Garrett county roads would be seriously curtailed this summer was indicated when the County Commissioners received a favorable report on only one out of nine roads which they had recommended as needing resurfacing to preserve the base.

The road which received a favorable report was the Bloomington Hill road.

Paul M. Friend and Cheston H. Browning, Commissioners, returned to Oakland Saturday night after spending some time in Baltimore and Washington with State Roads and Federal highway officials.

The Commissioners also made application for 50,000 gallons of material for spot patching, but whether or not this would be forthcoming, was not known. The oil used in resurfacing is needed in the war effort.

Decree Is Signed

The Commissioners said that Judge Sloan had signed the decree which made his opinion binding in regard to construction of county roads in Garrett county, and the interpretation of the regulation requiring advertising for bids on all items amounting to more than $100. Both opinions were in favor of the County Commissioners.

Esso Marketers Hear Of Synthetic Rubber At Dinner Meeting

Dealers Hear F. R. Washington Give Insight Into Tire, Gas And Rubber Situation

An insight into the various ways in which the Standard Oil Company and other petroleum organizations were helping in the war effort, a discussion of the reasons for the gasoline and tire situation, and the possibilities of synthetic rubber in supplying the needs of the civilian population were brought out by F. Ryland Washington, of Washington, D. C., in an address to around seventy-five Standard dealers, their wives and employes, at the William-James hotel on Tuesday evening.

All were guests of the company at a chicken dinner, served at 7 o'clock, and this is just one of a series of dinners being held throughout the entire territory for the company's dealers. Harry Weigand, Elkins, W. Va., district salesman, presided as toastmaster, and Ralph R. McCoy, Hagerstown, district manager, presented Mr. Washington, who has made a special study of the synthetic rubber program which has been conducted by the company for several years.

Other Standard officials there were Robert Stanton, local sales agent, and M. L. Willard, of Hagerstown, who will take Mr. Stanton's place here this month. Mr. Stanton is a volunteer in the selectees who are to be inducted June 19.

Mr. Washington, in pointing out that the gasoline shortage along the seaboard was real, stated that ordinarily that area used 1,500,000 barrels daily, and that since the tankers could not be used along the Atlantic coast, that methods of transportation now being used were only supplying 900,000 barrels daily.

In regard to the rubber situation he gave figures to show that United States had used normally 811,000 tons of rubber, almost two-thirds of the world's supply, and most of which came from countries now controlled by Japan.

His studies in the synthetic rubber industry led Mr. Washington to believe that it would take until 1945 to make 600,000 tons of synthetic rubber, which still didn't leave much for civilian use with the rapidly expanding mechanized forces of the army.

He defended the position of the company in regard to charges being made by some agencies of the federal government that the company did not reveal vital information on the synthetic rubber program.

Mr. Washington had letters from army officials to prove that his concern did urge the government to get behind the synthetic rubber program several years before they acted. He also pointed out other ways in which the company was aiding materially in the war effort, such as providing 100 octane gasoline that would enable U. S. planes to fly higher and faster, and perfecting an oil that would be usable in planes regardless of the temperature of the atmosphere. He also told of the synthetic product for TNT, used in making bombs and other explosives, developed by his company.

He urged all dealers to make motorists conscious that they must conserve tires and gasoline.

Mr. McCoy felt that gasoline rationing might read this area by July 1.

Knights to Elect

Members of Garrett Lodge No. 113, Knights of Pythias, will have their semi-annual election of officers at the regular meeting on Friday evening. Past Chancellors' night will also be observed at that time, and a large attendance is expected.

The committee on arrangements has announced refreshments and a smoker after the business session.

Boy Scout Court of Review

The Boy Scout leaders will conduct a Board of Review on Friday evening at 8 o'clock in the City Hall, for scouts of the Oakland, Mt. Lake Park, Deer Park and other troops who wish to be examined for advancement in the rank or for merit badges.

SENATOR TYDINGS WILL SPEAK AT JAYCEE DINNER

Meeting On Tuesday, June 23, Will Be Open To Public With Number Limited to 150 Persons

Senator Millard S. Tydings has accepted a speaking engagement at a dinner meeting of the Junior Chamber of Commerce on Tuesday evening, June 23, which will be open to the public, it was announced by Charles L. Briner, Jr., president of the club.

The dinner is being limited to 150 persons, and tickets may be secured for $1.25 each. Lewis R. Jones will be in charge of the program.

Plans for the affair are to be made at a dinner meeting of the club this evening at the Mt. Lake Hotel.

Mr. Briner said he had written Senator Tydings several times urging him to come to Oakland, and that the latter had at last found an open evening on his busy calendar of activities.

Senator Tydings has been one of the few independent men of the Senate in recent years and has spoken gainst the useless spending of the government upon numerous occasions.

Just this week he made public a study of the publicity output of governmental agencies and assailed the practice as one of the most wasteful activities of the Federal bureaucracy. His report disclosed that the outpouring of publicity material was such that a single large paper received 2,039 pages of it free, by mail, in a single week. He also showed that one week's distribution to a single newspaper would be sufficient to fill nearly three times over all the news space in the daily editions of The Sun.

He also assailed the quality as well as quantity, saying the releases seemed to assume that the entire population of the United States had a mental level of about ten, and that the releases were too frequently propaganda articles to promote a particular theory or point of view which was often highly controversial.

Senator Tydings has spoken in Oakland upon several previous occasions and is well known to most of the people of the county.

He was successful in being re-elected to his office several years ago at a time when the higher officials in government were attempting to "purge" those who did not always agree with the administration.

Senator Tydings' address will deal with some phase of the government's activities or the war effort. His title will be "The General Outlook."

Want McHenry School Fund Used to Help Build North Glade

Solons Recommend Transfer of $10,000, As McHenry No Longer Intends to Erect School

County Representatives in the State Legislature have written to the County Commissioners recommending that the money appropriated for the construction of a school at McHenry be transferred to the fund for the construction of the North Glade school, inasmuch as it was "definitely certain that McHenry no longer determined to obtain a new two-room building."

The letter was presented by a delegation before the Commissioners on Monday evening, and was signed by Senator Clifford Friend and Nelson Brenneman, one of the delegates. The Commissioners were told that M. L. Groves would sign the letter too as soon as he could get to Oakland.

A law was passed at the 1939 legislature ordering the County Commissioners to levy in 1942 the sum of $8,000 for a two-room school building at North Glade, and $10,000 for a two-room school building at McHenry.

The school at McHenry was recently closed on account of the small number attending, and the pupils are being transported to Accident.

The Commissioners said that the lowest bid for the construction of the North Glade school, plans and specifications for which were completed sometime ago, was in the neighborhood of $14,000. They said it would be possible to transfer the funds to the North Glade school by resolution, which would give a total of $18,000 available for that building. "There is no doubt about North Glade needing a new school building and needing it badly," said Paul M. Friend, one of the Commissioners..

No action on the matter was taken at the meeting this week.

A huge wave on Lake Erie, 15 to 20 feet high, drowned three persons and damaged many small boats.

Blacksnake Parks On Hat Shop Steps– But Not For Long

This time it wasn't rabbits on the postoffice steps, but it was a blacksnake on the steps of Harvey and Owens hat shop and beauty salon.

Whether the purpose was for a beauty treatment or a new summer straw hat, has never been determined. In fact the people who saw the reptile there last Saturday morning just after the Memorial Day parade, didn't waste much time in that vicinity.

Then appeared Robert Coffey with a great big stick and "smote him on the head," and Corporal Thomas Currie arrived in his car and bore him (the snake) without the confines of the city and there rid himself of the remains.

It was reported that the snake had been previously captured by two men from Kempton, who stopped here Saturday morning. The snake escaped from the automobile and came to rest on the Alder street steps.

New Tire Permits Issued Sparingly

More Than Fifty Get Truck Tubes in Week's Listing of Ration Board

Certificates for new truck tires were issued sparingly this week but quite a number were allowed to purchase truck tubes and some retreads, according to the weekly report of the rationing board. No passenger tires were issued but four got retreads and three got tubes.

New truck tires went to Archie Bittinger, Charles Ray Teets, Charles Pattison, Wilmer W. Margroff, Fred Humberson, and the Wolf Den Coal company..

Retreads were granted Iven V. Harvey, Edward R. Harris, Nellie B. Harvey, Florence Gilbert, Boyd E. Shaffer, Stanton's Mill, Allen Murphy, Wilbur Hinebaugh, Lenwood F. Bittinger, Harry A. Harmon, Earl Caton, Perry O. Wilburn, Emory E. Nail, Walter W. Richter, T. O. White, Glen D. Folk and Henry Patton. Some of these men were also allowed tubes.

Those getting tubes only included William Sharpless, Alex Harvey, Alex Wilson, Audley Brenneman, Burchdorf and Frankhouser, Wade H. Broadwater, Elmer Duling, Thurman Everly, Clarence A. Friend, Winifred P. Friend, Oliver B. Frazee, Earl F. Spiker, Jackson Thomas, Stanley Coal Company, William Lower, Kermit Glotfelty, Southern Packing Company, C. L. McKenzie, John Rawlings, Carl Richter, Fred Humberson, Henry L. Gibson, Clyde A. Glover, Harry A. and Harry W. Lytle, Albert W. Frazee, Ralph and Glen Kolbfleisch, Ivan E. Miller, Gladys L. Rodeheaver, Foster E. Frazee, Russell Glover, Conley Lewis, Perry E. Glotfelty, Lewis A. Purnell, Charles A. Nedrow, Oscar Uphole, State Roads Commission, Oakland Baking Company, W. A. Johnson, William H. Holtschneider, Gary Ray Friend, J. Edward Helbig.

Passenger tubes went to Milton M. Frazee along with 2 retreads, Rev. Lewis A. Wagner, Alonzo P. Fike. Retreads went to Cecil R. Michael, Arnold Friend and Amos Martin.

Mayor L. M. Fraley motored to Baltimore this morning.

FARM LOAN ASSOCIATION MOVES OFFICE TO KEYSER

The National Farm Loan Association, which has had headquarters for Garrett county in the office of Stuart F. Hamill, local attorney, with Miss Mary Louise Helbig as the secretary, has moved its equipment to Keyser, West Va., where a regional office has been set up.

All farm loan business for Allegany and Garrett counties in Maryland, and Mineral and Hampshire counties in West Virginia, will be handled in the future from the Keyser office, according to present plans.

Home Canners Must Make Application For Sugar Certificates

Persons desiring sugar rationing certificates for home canning must file their applications at the office of the Garrett County Rationing board, above Gonder's pharmacy, Second street, it was stressed today.

Under new regulations, home canners may obtain one pound of sugar for every four quarts of finished canned fruit, and an additional pound of sugar for each member of the family unit for the packing of preserves, jams, jellies and fruit butters during the spring canning season until July 1.

The applicant must bring with him the war ration books of the entire family unit and must be prepared to tell how many quarts of a certain fruit were canned the previous year, and how many quarts remain on the shelves. It is necessary to get the serial numbers of the ration books as issued.

According to those in charge of the ration office, it is not now possible to get sugar for canning cherries, peaches, or the like. Strawberries and rhubarb are about the only fruits to can at this time. Applicants will have to make another application when cherries are ripe, and another when peaches are ripe, etc.

The ration board will issue a sugar purchase certificate to the applicant which will indicate the amount of sugar he is entitled to purchase and the storekeepers may redeem these certificates the same as war ration stamps.

Fishermen Allowed Only One Hook on a Line

The interpretation of a fishing regulation by the Attorney General's office may change the practices of a number of Garrett county fishermen.

The opinion was sought because wardens at various times arrested persons fishing with rod, hook and line with two hooks on each line, and the alleged violators have contended they were not guilty, as the regulation provided "it shall be lawful to fish with rod, hook and line not to exceed two in number when in the immediate control of the angler."

The ruling was to the effect that the phrase "not to exceed two in number" referred to the unit of rod, hook and line, thus limiting the angler to but two hooks in the aggregate, one on each line.

So E. Lee LeCompte, State game warden, has issued a warning that any person found fishing with more than two rods at any one time will be prosecuted, and any person found fishing with more than one hook on either line attached to said rod will be prosecuted. The fine ranges from $25 to $100.

Jack O'Donnell Gives Japs Battle at New Guinea; Returns to Base on One Engine

Lieut. John C. O'Donnell, 22-year-old bomber pilot from Mountain Lake Park, has given the Japs a battle on one engine and has returned safely to base, according to a news story from there.

O'Donnell was suspicious of his left engine on a recent mission over Lae, New Guinea. Japanese Zero fighters jumped O'Donnell's twin-engined plane and its flying mates over the target, starting a running air battle which lasted 35 minutes.

The right engine was machine-gunned and cannon-shelled into silence, but the suspected left one kept the bomber in the air while its two gunners shot down four Zeros.

Then it pulled the plane home safely despite hits in the tail and other places. Never before has a bomber of this type been known to fly so long on one engine.

O'Donnell said tail gunner Pvt. Ivan W. Henderson, South Bend, Wash., bagged three of the enemy fighters and Sgt. Harry Berg, of Cedarville, N. J., downed the other. Lieut. Louis McCord, 24, Montgomery, Ala., was co-pilot. Bombardier Lieut. R. L. Callaway, 26, of Seguin, Tex., said: "When Henderson reported he had shot down three Zeros we asked him on the phone what it was like. He shouted: 'Just like shooting clay pigeons.'"

Another navigator, Lieut. Cecil Riddle, 24, of Ashland, Ky., reported an exciting moment for himself and the radioman, Corporal A. J. Capello, of Rochester, N. Y.

"A bullet came through the fuselage," he said, "and hissed around like a Fourth of July pinwheel. It spent itself without touching either of us."

Still a long way from base and having a difficult time coaxing one engine to do the work of two, O'Donnell radioed he probably would have to make a forced landing. Too short on power to climb over mountains, he edged along the coast in order to crash-land on the beach if necessary.

Back at the home runway, officers had about exhausted their hope and scanned the sky just once more, then scored O'Donnell's plane as missing. But in a few minutes, he roared in and sat her down. The left tire was flt; it had been punctured by a bullet.

The plane spun off the runway and back on again and crunched to a stop with all hands safe.

O'Donnell is a son of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. O'Donnell, of Mt. Lake Park and Washington, D. C.

Former Resident Is Ordained As Priest

Fred Duke, former resident of Oakland, was ordained as a priest in the Cathedral at Baltimore by Archbishop Curley on Saturday, May 30.

A special celebration is being held Sunday in St. Peter's Catholic church when Father Duke will sing the 10 o'clock mass. A reception in his honor is being planned for Sunday afternoon in St. Peter's Hall, at 4 o'clock.

Father Duke is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Thomas Duke, now residing in Hyattsville. Mr. Duke was formerly manager of the C. and P. Telephone company here.

Many Occupational Questionnaires Still Are to Be Sent Out

Blanks Now Going to Those of First and Second Registration

With the mailing next month of occupational questionnaires to the residents in the State who are over military age, local boards in Maryland are speeding to completion the State's inventory of manpower for war production.

These occupational questionnaires are to guide the War Manpower Commission, in cooperation with the Selective Service System, for the mobilization of workers for war industries. Blanks have been sent to the men who registered on February 16, 1942, in the third registration. The mailing of questionnaires to members of the third registration in this county has been completed, according to Harland L. Jones, draft board clerk.

The local Board is also preparing to mail 400 or more this week to those who registered in the first and second registrations, who have not already been inducted into the armed forces. After this group has been covered the questionnaires will be sent to men 45 to 65 years of age.

It is estimated that the nation will have pressing need for around 10,500,000 additional war workers by late autumn and it is from men beyond military age that the War Manpower Commission expects to obtain most of the male recruits for this work. Many war workers also will be obtained from classes deferred for physical defects as many who are unfit for military service are well qualified for civilian activities.

Boats Must Stay 1,000 Feet From Hydro-Electric Dam

A public notice by the Pennsylvania Electric Company in The Republican today is notifying the public that all boats and other craft on Deep Creek Lake will not be permitted to come within 1,000 feet of either the breast of the dam or the intake tunnel.

Officials said this is being done to comply with a ruling of the Federal Power Commission and the War Department with respect to vital units of property.

Markers have been placed on the shore and in the water and will be kept in place for the duration of the war, it was stated.

There have been floodlights on this area at night and guards have been on duty there for several months.

To Form New Classes In Acetylene Welding

Registration Will Be Held in Oakland High Tuesday, June 9

Two classes in acetylene and electric welding will be organized next Tuesday, June 9th, in the Oakland High School at 8:00 p. m., F. E. Rathbun, County Superintendent of Schools, has announced. Full details will be given at this meeting. One class is to meet ten hours on Saturdays and ten hours on Sundays; the other class is to meet from 6:00 p. m. to 10:00 p. m., from Monday through Friday, inclusive, each week.

These classes are to be open to any person above the age of sixteen, and are to be given free of charge, under the sponsorship of the Board of Education and the Board of County Commissioners.

A class in "Machine Shop Training" is also being planned and will begin as soon as the necessary equipment is received. Enrollment for this class will begin at a later date.

All of these classes after being organized next Tuesday evening in the High School, will be conducted in the National Defense Training Center, located along State Road No. 219, in the North end of Oakland.

FIFTY-ONE MEN TO BE CALLED JUNE NINETEEN

Is Largest Number Yet Ordered For Induction at One Time; Two of Group Are Volunteers

Fifty-one young men, the largest number yet called into the armed forces, are to be inducted on Friday, June 19, it was announced yesterday by the County Draft Board.

These men will leave Oakland early that morning for the induction station at Baltimore.

Two of the group are volunteers, Robert James Stanton, Oakland; and Edward Albion Bateman, Swanton.

Others who are being called include Robert Edison Hicks, Mt. Lake Park; Lewis Hawkins Burgess, Shallmar; John Hamill Hutson, Kitzmiller; Harold Edwin Setzer, Grantsville; Clemens Hudson Frazee, Friendsville; Howard Mason Warnick, Bloomington; Bennie Howard Kitzmiller, Deer Park; Russell Boyd Rowan, Mt. Lake Park; Olin Cecil Rounds, Grantsville; Roy Munroe Myers, Selbysport; Clarence Floyd Poling, Oakland.

Anthony Michael Erouches, Kitzmiller; Hurley Lavan Blamble, Oakland; Roy Melton Simmons, Crellin; Cletis Harland Beckman, Oakland; Herbert Allen Yow, Swanton; Harry Doddridge DeCost, Shallmar; George Hubert Glotfelty, McHenry; Edward Thomas Stanton, Bittinger; Ralph Bowser, Selbysport; Willis George Younkin, Grantsville; Everett Oney Brenneman, Grantsville; Louis Edward Mallau, Accident; James Dean Rush, Accident; Bert L. Hardesty, Deer Park.

Marvin V. Schlossnagle, Accident; Ross Dale Sowers, Kitzmiller; Woodrow Taylor Sines, Friendsville; Marshall Charles Harvey, Swanton; Garland Okey Durst, Jennings; James Stephen Stump, Westernport; George Rupert Williamson, Oakland; Bruce Daniel Smouse, Oakland; Raymond Orval Sweitzer, Swanton; Lawrence Wiley, Grantsville; Paul Russell Poling, Oakland; Lester William Ross, Grantsville.

Leo Clayton Smith, Deer Park; Alonzo Woodrow Broadwater, Grantsville; Harry Denver Fike, Selbysport; Claude Wilbur Fike, Selbysport; Lee Talmadge Crowe, Avilton; Glenn Calvin Broadwater, Avilton; Cecil Eugene Resh, Accident; Harvey Ray Fazenbaker, Grantsville; Elmer Bowser, Somerfield; Lewis Mason Barrick, Kitzmiller; William Stephen Woods, transfer from Williamson, W. Va.; William Milavec, Shallmar.

Big Sendoff Planned

Charles L. Briner, Jr., said that a big parade and sendoff would be held Wednesday evening, June 17, in honor of those who are leaving, and that the occasion would be in conjunction with the campaign for funds for the United Service Organization and Navy Relief. Mr. Briner is chairman of the campaign committee for Garrett county.

He said a meeting of the county committee would be held on June 12, to make plans for the drive. Mr. Briner said he was attempting to get the famed drum corps from Johnstown, Pa., on June 17, but that there was nothing definite as yet.

At the meeting on June 12, V. A. Rule, state representative of the USO, and J. Hambleton Ober, joint state treasurer, USO, will be present. Mr. Briner said that two more members had been added to the county committee, F. R. Shaffer, for the Legion, and Dr. C. Oscar Hall, Mt. Lake Park.

Harland L. Jones, draft board clerk, said that new regulations had been issued providing that after June 30 every inducted man would be released from active service at the induction station for a period of about fourteen days, unless he preferred to proceed directly to the reception center.

There were indications too, that the induction calls in the future would continue to be heavy.

To Present First Aid Certificates

Red Cross First Aid certificates will be presented to those who completed the course the latter part of March, on Tuesday evening, June 16, at 8 o'clock in the Knights of Pythias hall, it was announced this week.

A public program is being planned for that evening. Dr. E. I. Baumgartner, instructor in the course, will present the certificates to the 55 men and women who passed the examination.

The formation of a first aid medical unit for emergency purposes is to be discussed at the meeting, Dr. Baumgartner said.

Featuring Onions

A taste-exciting odor from something a-cooking in the kitchen? More often than not, there's an onion involved.

Maybe it's a suggestion of onion in the hashed potatoes . . . golden onion rings to serve atop steak . . .tangy onion soup. Or it could be one of hundreds of dishes. For the onion has almost unlimited culinary possibilities.

As every good cook knows, the chief value of the onion is for its flavor. Perhaps it is most appreciated by women who must plan meals using certain bland but nutritious foods day after day. Onions help them to vary their menus inexpensively.

However, onions are not at the foot of the class as far as food value is concerned. In their raw state they have a little vitamin B1, riboflavin, vitamin C, iron, and calcium. Young, green onions are fair sources of carotene, which the body can change into vitamin A. All onions are high in water content, low in calories.

There are many varieties of onions on the market. But they all fall into two classes, the strong and the mild.

Typical mild type of onion is the Bermuda—large and flat in shape. Bermuda onions are on the market only during the spring.

Next in importance to the Yellow Bermuda onion on markets now is the Crystal White Wax variety. Also plentiful are numerous other varieties known as "yellows". Small onions known as "boilers", are plentiful.

If you're buying mature onions, look for those that are dry, bright, clean, hard, and well-shaped. Check for moistness at the stem end of the bulb. Moistness here may mean the onion is decaying inside. Naturally, avoid onions that have started to sprout or those that are so misshapen they are wasteful to use.

Buy green onions that have fresh green tops—and medium-sized, well-bleached necks for at least 2 or 3 inches up the root.

Store mature onions where it is cool, dry and dark. Wash fresh green onions put them to crisp in your vegetable box. If you want to keep onion odor from getting into the rest of the foods in the vegetable box, wrap the onions loosely in wax paper.

Onions in Various Guises

Onions fit into the meal all along the line, with the obvious exception of dessert. Try them in soups, serve them with meat, mix them with other vegetables in all sorts of dishes.

To start off a meal, try appetizing onion soup with meat broth. Chop 6 medium-sized onions fine. Brown them lightly in 2 tablespoons fat. Add 1 pint boiling water and simmer the onions for about 20 minutes, or until they are tender. Add 1 quart meat broth. Thicken the soup with a mixture of 4 tablespoons flour mixed with 4 tablespoons cold water. Add salt and pepper, cook for a few minutes. Pour soup into bowls, put a slice of toasted bread on top, sprinkle on cheese over all if you like. This makes 6 good servings.

For a quick onion and potato soup, use this method. Dice 3 tablespoons of onions, and two cupsful of potatoes. Add 1 quart of milk. Cook slowly until the potatoes and onions are tender. The starch from the potatoes will thicken the milk somewhat. Thicken more if you like a soup with a little more body to it. Season to taste.

To give cream soups the flavor of onion without spoiling their smooth texture, leave several large slices of onion in the soup during the cooking. Take them out just before you serve the soup.

Onions may be used to the limit of your imagination in salads. Most families consider them "musts" in vegetable salads. Favorite salad partners are cucumbers, finely chopped salad greens, radishes, tomatoes.

Some families like a salad of plain very thin onion slices, with or without cucumber slices, served with a little vinegar over them. If you want to take out some of the strong onion flavor before hand, soak them for a while in salt water. Add these "vinegar" onions to other salads for a little different taste.

A good-looking salad and one that's a favorite with a number of persons is made of plain orange slices and plain onion slices—arranged alternately on a lettuce leaf.

To brighten up bland boiled potatoes or rice, try an onion sauce. Cook a cup of chopped or finely sliced onions in 2 to 3 tablespoons of fat. After the onion turns a little yellow add 2 to 3 tablespoons of flour and stir until it is well blended. Then gradually add a pint of cold milk. Stir and cook until it is smoothly thickened. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Just before you serve the sauce, add chopped parsley or chopped celery tops if you like them.

Fry sliced raw onions with carrots. Combine sliced raw onions with canned tomatoes in a stewed or scalloped dish. Scallop boiled, sliced onions with ground peanuts. Put alternate layers of the onions and the peanuts and the sauce. Cover the top with buttered crumbs and make in a moderate oven for about 20 minutes.

For a dish that's worth the little extra time it takes—try onions stuffed. Skin large onions and cut them in half, crosswise. Simmer these onion halves in salted water until they are almost tender. Remove the center rings without bothering the outer layers of the onion. Chop the onion centers fine. Cook some celery or parsley in fat for a few minutes. Add bread crumbs, salt, pepper, and the chopped-up onion. Bake in a moderate oven for about 30 minutes—until the onions are tender. For a more filling dish, use chopped meat or fish or baked beans in place of the bread crumbs.

Many a good onion dish starts with plain boiled onions. Boil onions in a large amount of salted water and cook them only until they are tender. Serve them buttered. Or cream them by using white sauce.

A Bridges For A Browder

Washington, May 30.

The CIO union which telegraphed President Roosevelt asking him to reverse Attorney General Biddle's order deporting the alien, Communistic labor leader, Harry Bridges, misconceives the facts. What they ask is that the President reverse himself. What they assume is that Mr. Biddle made this decision without consultation with or approval from the President.

* * *

Of course this is a mistaken assumption. No person capable of reasoning clearly will believe that in this highly controversial and important case Mr. Biddle, independently and upon his own initiative, took an action which seems directly to clash with Mr. Roosevelt's own action of last week when "in the interest of national unity" he released from prison the Communist Browder. It is unthinkable that Mr. Biddle would not have apprised the President of his intention to issue the Bridges order, or that he would have issued it had the President disapproved either of the order or his strong indictment of the Communist party as subversive.

* * *

Cabinet members who desire to stay in the Cabinet do not act in such mattres without full Presidential knowledge and approval. It would be unintelligent and improper not to conform to this recognized rule. Certainly, in this case it was not violated. To think otherwise is to be naive and it can be accepted as fact that Mr. Roosevelt's responsibility for the Bridges deportation order is exactly equal to his responsibility for the Browder order. In the one, he acted himself; in the other, he used his Attorney General. But in both instances the action was his and it is silly to ask him "in the interests of national unity," or for any other reason, to reverse the Biddle ruling.

* * *

These being the facts, the President's course in these two cases is not easy to reconcile with reason. It is, of course, conceivable that in the Bridges case the decision was made wholly on the legal merits. It is conceivable that Mr. Biddle, putting aside all thought of political effect, reached a decision and made a recommendation to the President. And it is conceivable that the President, putting aside all thought of political effect concurred in the recommendation. Those things are conceivable, but it must be admitted they do somewhat strain the credulity.

* * *

For one reason, Mr. Biddle has given proof in a recent speech that he considers New Deal politics not incompatible with the conduct of the war. For another, Mr. Roosevelt has given proof, in his appointment of Mr. Hague's candidate for judge, that the war has not banished practical politics from his mind. For another, there was no pretense that the Browder release was based on anything except the President's desire to promote national unity. For still another, the Biddle decision overrules not only that of Dean Landis, made two years ago, but also that of the most recent board to reviciw the Bridges record a year ago. So that the legal merits can hardly be wholly clear.

* * *

Considering all these things, it therefore seems reasonable to assume that questions of public policy and national unity entered into the Bridges decision as in the Browder decision. How, then, is the Administration attitude of pro-Communist in one and anti-Communist in the other to be explained? In the absence of any other explanation, it does not seem farfetched to believe that the second was intended, at least partially, to balance the first. So far from promoting national unity, the release of Browder did the reverse, as the President must have realized from the widespread and almost unanimously unfavorable comment with which it was received.

* * *

The general view was that in releasing Browder, whose guilt was not questioned and whose sentence was not extreme, the President has made a mistake. Instead of increasing national unity it created national resentment. Certainly, it strengthened the unfortunate feeling that this Administration has always been too tenderly inclined toward those with Communistic affiliations. The Bridges order goes a long way to counteract that feeling. Resentment of it comes wholly from the Communists, the CIO radicals and the uninfluential but very articulate Communist publications. On the other hand, the numerous citizens who were irritated by the Browder release are temporarily gratified at the prospect of deporting Bridges. It is to be hoped "in the interests of national unity" that the courts will sustain the Biddle order and that there will be no weakening in the Administration now it has been issued. There is no way accurately to measure them, but it is safe to say that there are one hundred people in this country who approve the Bridges order to one who resents it.

* * *

If the President had kept Browder in jail, where he belongs, and in addition, had ordered, through Mr. Biddle, Bridges to be deported, the favorable reaction would be in the same comforting proportion. Incidentally, the men here best informed about Russia are completely convinced that Stalin, our ally, has a very low opinion of the Communist leaders in America and is not in the least interested in what happens to them. What he is interested in are the planes, tanks, guns and other war materials which we are sending to help him repulse the invading Hitler. So long as we keep them flowing, for all he cares, we can put the whole Browder family back in jail and deport every one of the little Bridges who infest our labor unions.

RULING IN SAVAGE RIVER DAM SUIT IS ANNOUNCED

Commission Cannot Be Named Defendant, Appeals Court Decides

The Maryland Court of Appeals, in a recent decision, ruled that the Upper Potomac River Commission, the governmental agency in charge of constructing the Savage River dam, could not be made defendant in court action by individuals for alleged damages developing from charges of negligence against the Commission.

The ruling was made after a demurrer was filed by counsel for the Commission, to the suit brought by Marion Lohr, Garrett county school teacher, who claimed redress for damages allegedly suffered when her automobile struck a pile of debris on a road located on the Savage River dam site.

See That Youngsters Are Ready for School

Parents Urged To Give Children Physical Check-Up Before Fall Term

"If your youngsters are reaching school age and will start to school this fall, don't wait for the Summer-Round-Up to see that they are in good shape physically. Take them to your own doctor or to the nearest child health conference just as soon as possible—this week, if you can—for a thorough check-up. If the doctor finds anything that needs to be attended to, have it done at once so that the children can enter school in the best possible health, free from disabling handicaups." Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Health Department, gives this advice to the parents of the girls and boys in the counties of Maryland who are looking forward to the great adventure of "going to school."

"Check-ups of this sort have been found to be both health conservers and time savers," Dr. Riley said. "The school records show that the children who have had the benefit of special care of this kind and who enter school free from avoidable physical handicaps have fewer illnesses, get more fun out of school and make the grade better than the children do for whom these services have been neglected.

"Particular attention is paid in the health examinations to certain 'points' that have a special bearing on the physical fitness of the youngster, and that are resposible for bad health if neglected. Undernourishment as indicated by underweight, decayed teeth, trouble with the nose or the throat, bad hearing, or imperfect vision, have an unfavorable rating. When conditions of this sort are found, parents are urged to take the child to the family doctor, the dentist, or to the eye or ear doctor, for the necessary follow-up advice or treatment.

If the prospective first graders have not been vaccinated against smallpox or protected against diphtheria, now is the time to have it done, Dr. Riley said. "According to the State law," he continued, "children MUST be vaccinated against smallpox before they can be enrolled in any public school in Maryland. Largely as a result of this law, there have been very few cases of smallpox in Maryland over a long period of years—none at all for over ten years.

"Diphtheria can be prevented as readily as smallpox, but there is no State law which requires parents to have it done. Accordingly, every year there are always some children who have the disease because their parents have neglected to have them protected against it. It is always possible to have the children protected against both of these diseases, through the County Health Departments.

"Health examinations of prospective first-graders have been held in a number of counties recently in connection with the school health services. Others are being arranged in connection with the child health conference that are a part of the regular program of every County Health Department, throughout the year. Complete information as to the dates and places for these conferences and for the health department clinics for protection against smallpox and diphtheria can be gotten from the office of your County Health Department."

GRANTSVILLE

"Service of Remembrance"

The worship service in Grantsville Methodist church Sunday morning was a "Service of Remembrance", honoring the young men of the Methodist churches in the Grantsville charge who are now serving their country.

Rev. Virgil R. Gillum, pastor, spoke on "What Do They Expect of Us."

Comprising the roll of honor are George Verl Edwards, James W. Crowe, John Grove, George Vitez, Stanley C. Michael, Robert M. Nicklow, Paul Hetz, James M. Vitez, John Pullin, Harry Merle Bowser, Edward C. Hetz, Marshall O. Durst and George P. Smith, Jr.

Commencement Exercises

Commencement exercises for Grantsville high school will be held in the school auditorium at 8:15 o'clock Wednesday evening, June 10, Frank J. Getty, principal, announced today. The address to the graduates will be delivered by Lieut. Com. R. D. Hill, of the Office of Public Relations, Navy department.

A member of the Garrett County Board of Education will present the diplomas to the forty-two seniors, and Mr. Getty will make the presentation of awards. The Rev. A. J. Forry, pastor of St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church will deliver the invocation.

Baccalaureate services for the graduating class will be held at 11 o'clock Sunday morning, June 7. The Rev. Samuel D. Sigler, pastor of Grantsville Lutheran church, will deliver the address and the Rev. Virgil R. Gillum, pastor of the Methodist church, and the Rev. A. C. Curran, pastor of the Bittinger Lutheran church, will pronounce the invocation and benediction, respectively. Hymns will be sung by the Glee club.

Women's Society Meets

The May meeting of the Women's Society of Christian Service, held Thursday evening, had as the lesson topic, "Suffer Little Children to Come Unto Me." Miss Ethel Broadwater served as leader. Readings were given by Mrs. George D. Edwards, Mrs. Stewart Rodamer and Mrs. Leonard B. Schaefer.

200 Attend Prom

Approximately 200 persons attended the junior-senior prom of Grantsville high last week. The students were assisted in arranging the affair by their class adviser, Miss Emma Caulk. The auditorium was decorated in the class colors of blue and gold. Gold shields bearing the class numerals, and blue lights, were also features of the decorations. Peck Mills' orchestra, Cumberland, played.

Honored at Party

Margie Kelly, six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harper Kelly, was the honor guest at a birthday party given by her mother, last Wednesday.

Among those attending were Donna Yommer, Sally Ann Gnagey, Grace House, Genevieve House, Jane and Patty Kelly.

Games and other amusements provided entertainment for the children, after which refreshments were served.

Brief Mention

The annual Memorial day service was held in Grantsville cemetery Saturday afternoon. The principal address was made by the Rev. Virgil R. Gillum, pastor of the Grantsville Methodist charge. The Accident band furnished music for the affair, which was sponsored by the local Firemen.

Approximately thirty-six men and women took their final examination Friday night, completing a ten-weeks course in first aid. Certificates are to be awarded by the Red Cross. Dr. Norman R. Davis supervised the course and instructed the men, while Mrs. Joseph F. Fahey conducted the women's class.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. John Folk are visiting their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Archie Wenrich, in Hopewell, Va.

Miss Alma Maust, Greenwood, Del., visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Maust, at Springs.

George Simpson, Richards, W. Va., visited his mother, Mrs. Mary Simpson.

Mrs. Joseph F. Fahey has accepted a position with the Garrett County Health Department as county health nurse for this section, effective Monday.

Emmons Younkin and son, Pittsburgh, spent the holidays here with Mr. Younkin's mother, Mrs. Barbara Younkin, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Glotfelty.

Clyde F. Bender left Saturday for Rock Creek Park, near Washington, where he has accepted a position as project assistant at the Defense Camp there. Mr. Bender has been connected with the CCC Camp at Swallow Falls.

Miss Mary Louise Paynich, Eastern Shore, and Miss Mary Piesinger, Ann Arbor, Mich., visited Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Fahey, and other friends. Miss Paynich was formerly located here as county health nurse.

David Broadwater returned to Baltimore after a short visit here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nevin U. Broadwater.

Firemen Respond To Call

Oakland firemen answered an alarm on Sunday afternoon when it was feared that fire from a burning sawdust heap at a stave mill, just west of town, would spread to parts of the mill. No damage, however, resulted.

HORSE-AND-BUGGY REVERIE—

Once again has quiet settled down on rural New England. Almost like the horse-and-buggy days, as sitting on the porch of country stores, New Englanders look up and down the silent street and say, "We would never have believed it." No longer the diversion of counting the number of cars per hour or enumerating the number of out-of-state licenses seen within the day.

Time has rolled back, bringing with it once again the peace and quiet of New England's village. Cattle crossing Berkshire highways with no urge of honking horns. An old horse jogging along in the middle of the road with sudden spirit of rejuvenated pride. An occasional lone car moving slowly without need of warning, "School ahead." The village store and post-office take on new life as pedestrians breeze in with market baskets on their arms.

Sunday once more a day of rest and gladness. With no roaring motors making the up-grades, folk hear the church bells ring. Time to attend service, and in the afternoon time to read the paper if we have gas enough to get one or enjoy a book long put aside for uninterrupted leisure. Time for watching the birds splashing in the bird bath. Time to rediscover selves and families.

"Sure," said a New England woman walking for the first time in years from her house the short distance to the church, "we can't go places. But isn't the quiet of our village street this morning really wonderful? Maybe gas rationing will do us good."

And perhaps it will. Who knows?

THEY DESERVE PROTECTION—

Recently several associations interested in child welfare in the United States have advanced the major theme at their annual conventions that younger children must not be a war casualty. Psychologists, psychiatrists, and educational authorities have emphasized three points for home and school which are commonsense foundation stones for as near a normal childhood as can be expected in this era when the type of civilization we shall have for generations is swaying on the scales:

First, both parents and teachers must not neglect the children because of outside pressures. The many essential and vital activities—whether of parents as air-raid wardens or of teachers in gasoline rationing—must be organized so children will not suffer.

Second, adults can control their talk in the presence of immature, emotional minds. Loose talk is reprehensible anywhere; particularly injurious it is to excite needlessly dread and fear in the minds of the very young.

Third, even with young children adults can use the situation to motivate patriotism and a desire to uphold justice and humanity.

The tow-heads and the curly-heads, in drooping knickers or in pinafores, are not responsible for what their elders have done—or left undone. They should suffer as little as possible.

RUNNING RACES WITH THE LAW—

Eastern newspapers on last Thursday carried three interesting items having some connection with the racing industry and race-track gambling.

In Boston the Massachusetts Public Utilities Commission suspended the chartering privileges of three bus companies after they admitted having continued bus service to a dog race track in violation of State orders designed to save gasoline and rubber. The commission heard charges that the Taunton Greyhound Association, operators of the track, had influenced the bus operators to disobey the orders.

In Mineola, New York, the Nassau County Director of Civilian Protection issued a formal warning to the Westchester Racing Association that he would close its fashionable Belmont Park unless it promptly lived up to an agreement it had made to provide various facilities for the safety of its crowds in event of air raids. He declared track officials had neglected the prescribed training of employees and grossly misrepresented the park's state of preparedness.

In Washington the United States Parole Board decided to parole Moses L. Annenberg, Philadelphia publisher, who has served part of a three-year sentence in a Federal penitentiary after pleading guilty in Chicago to income tax evasion. Mr. Annenberg, who is now repaying the Government in installments $8,000,000 of back taxes and penalties, made most of his millions from the operation of a nation-wide leased wire racing information system which served poolrooms and other gambling establishments.

The coincidence of the three items suggests a meaningful question: Is there something about this racing business, with its attendant gambling, that makes its members characteristically inclined to disregard, or gamble with, the law?

DIARY OF THE WAR

FRIDAY—Axis tanks in Libya had thrust to within fifteen miles of Tobruk, although thrown back on both British flanks, but were being methodically destroyed by British flyers. Russia declared a Nazi counter-offensive south of Kharkov was halted while Reds moved ahead on other Ukranian fronts. Brazilian planes took to the air to destroy an Axis sub. American subs in the Pacific sank a large Jap ship and a medium cargo ship and damaged a heavy cruiser. U. S. destroyer Blakeley reached a British port in St. Lucia after beating off a second attack of Axis subs, with the probable sinking of one. The battle for Kinhwa in China was still raging, although Japs claimed it had fallen. Six persons were executed in Prague in reprisal for attack upon Heydrich, Nazit protector.

SATURDAY—An invasion of the European continent was promised by Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, in speaking to West Point graduates, and Marshall said the army would total 4,500,000 men by the end of this year. Hitler was said to be in personal direction of the Kharkov front. There was Nazi pressure in Donets basin.

SUNDAY—The Mexican Senate approved a declaration of war on the Axis, completing all congressional action necessary. Sweden reported the Reich was war weary. Hitler addressed 10,000 men in service and told them that the fate of Germany depended on them. Reds claimed Germans had lost 90,000 in Kharkov fighting. U. S. tanks were aiding in Libyan battle which was going in favor of the British. Chinese confirmer fall of Kinhwa. Reprisal executions for wounding of Heydrich were on increase in Slovakia. British bombers pounded Paris industrial plants and German ships in convoy.

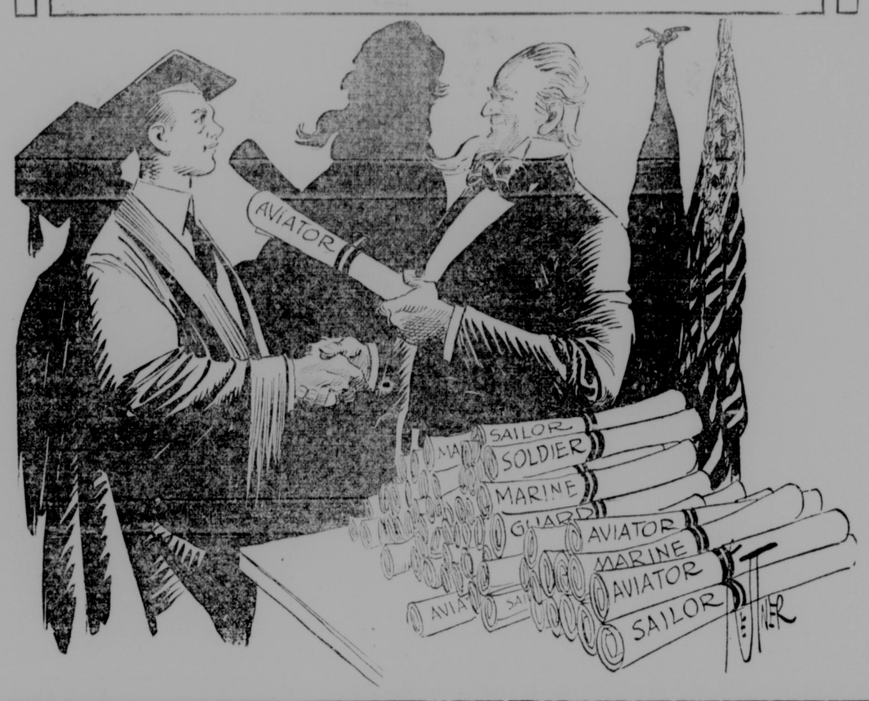
MONDAY—Torpedoing of four ships in eastern U. S. waters was announced by Navy. Three mysterious explosions blew a hole in a tanker at Tampico, Mexico, but it remained afloat. The Libyan battle definitely was veering to the Allies. The British aim was still one of destruction. Food riots broke out in Paris. Six thousand British flyers in 1250 planes blasted German city of Cologne for 90 minutes, destroying three-fourths of the city. It was the greatest raid in all aerial warfare, dropping 6 million pounds of bombs. Churchill said it was only a herald of what Germany would receive, city by city. They lost 44 planes. Chinese launched a large attack on a new front. Australia called 300,000 more war workers. Allied bombers raided a Jap seaplane base. Reds claimed capture of important enemy lines in Kalinin sector.

TUESDAY — Remnants of two German tank divisions tried to escape annihilation in a British desert trap Tobruk in Libya. Some units had escaped. A German general was captured but Rommel flew out of the trap by plane. As aftermath of Cologne bombing Germany put the Gestapo chief in charge of air-raid precaution services. British flyers said smoke was still dense over the city. Germans cried for reprisals. Many were trying to move from the Rhineland. British blasted supply trains in France and Holland. Japs opened a new offensive in South China striking north from Canton. Chinese claimed successes on the middle Yangtze. U. S. bombers struck from India and sank a Jap tanker and damaged others at Rangoon and bombed an airport there. An exchange liner brought 908 people to a U. S. port. Three midget Jap subs which attacked the harbor at Sydney, Australia, were destroyed. Reds and Nazis were quiet on the Russian front.

WEDNESDAY—A second mighty overnight British air raid on Germany was directed against Essen and vicinity with 1,036 planes raiding the Krupp munitions works and metal plants. The attack cost 35 bombers. In Libya the Axis tanks were trying to break out of the trap. British had broken Rommel's thrust for Tobruk and knocked out 260 tanks. Berlin claimed 3,000 British prisoners. Reds were striking out around Kalinin with improvement of positions around Moscow. Japs in eastern China continued advances on three fronts but around Cheekiang the Chinese announced recapture of five towns. Australia's prime minister, in launching a liberty loan there, dared the Japs to try an invasion there. British planes also sprang a big daylight attack on many points. Navy announced sinking of three ships off East coast.

THURSDAY—Jap planes in small force bombed Dutch Harbor on Aleutian islands but few details were available. U. S. forces said this time they were prepared. British made series of daylight raids and declared they were preparing to cast 2,000 planes at Nazis in a single night, and 30,000 in a month's time. Tank armies continued smashing at each other in Libya. Two of Rommel's columns had torn a nine-mile gap in the British line in attempting to get out of a British trap. British in meantime had seized an Axis stronghold on Axis supply line. Japs were threatening a railway center in China, attacking from three sides, but Chinese were counter-attacking. There was no general ground fighting in Russia but Soviet airplanes were active.

Class of '42



Mrs. Lemuel Reed, aunt of George Coddington, of Oakland, with whom she makes her home, submitted to a major operation at Memorial Hospital Tuesday. Her condition is said to be satisfactory.

I SEE BY THE DAILIES THAT

The House refused to pass a bill authorizing construction of an oil pipeline across Florida and a barge canal there.

President Roosevelt has asked Congress to declare war on Axis satellite nations, Bulgaria, Hungary and Rumania.

Leaders of Protestant and Catholic churches in the Netherlands have circulated statements condemning Nazi principles as a threat to religion.

Italian industries were reported suffering from shortage of man power and raw materials. A shortage of labor was also said to be Germany's greatest bottleneck.

New Deal Senators were complaining to President Roosevelt that Leon Henderson, price administrator, had ignored their wishes in filling important jobs in the price control agency and in a few cases had appointed their political enemies.

Mississippi, with production of 92,000 barrels of oil daily, is becoming one of the nation's largest crude petroleum producing states. It is now eighth on the list.

The House passed and sent to the Senate three resolutions declaring war on Bulgaria, Hungary and Rumania, which was recommended by the President.

Filling station attendants were being subjected to bitter and often abusive complaints and angry outbursts from customers about the gasoline supply, in Baltimore.

President Quezon of the Philippine government addressed the House of Representatives, saying that nothing had lessened the Filipino's faith in America.

The CIO through its executive board denounced its founding father and former president, John L. Lewis, for "attempted sabotage of our national defense."

Town Council Meeting Of Short Duration

The regular monthly meeting of the Mayor and Town Council on Monday evening was of short duration and the order of business was mostly routine.

Reports of the treasurer, clerk-collector, water and street superintendent, etc., were read and approved.

Mark Gower was awarded the contract for garbage removel at the sum of $85 per month. B. B. Nethkin, night policeman, was authorized to purchase a new uniform.

Borrowing of $1,000 from the Garrett National Bank was authorized.

Collections were considered as being good, the sum of $2,863.49 being received, but expenditures were $4,198.79, which included water and sewerage bond No. 32 of $1,000, and coupons of $725; reservoir bond coupons of $220; golf course, $69.80, and club house, $809.86.

Water collections totaled $350.82; taxes, $1,905.11, and other receipts of $607.56, which include rent for the Helbig house of $100, and beer licenses of $332.50.

Allegany County Jury Awards Garrett County Farmer $300

Claude O. Rohrbaugh, a Garrett county farmer residing in the eastern section of the county, was awarded $300 damages by a Circuit Court jury of Allegany county on Tuesday in a right-of-way case against the C. and P. Telephone Company.

Rohrbaugh claimed damages of $100 a year for four years, during which period twelve poles belonging to the company stood on his property, just outside the fence. They were erected in 1938 and removed this year.

Thomas A. Gracey, attached to the right-of-way department of the telephone company, testified that four years ago Rohrbaugh told him he would not object to the poles being erected "on the other side of the fence." It was also brought out at the trial that other property owners in the neighborhood granted the company permanent right-of-way for erection of poles on their properties in exchange for nominal sums.

War Department Honors Maryland By Opening A Spectacular War Show In Baltimore Stadium June 12th, 1942

". . . that our people may see their Army and be inspired to greater effort in supporting it with full confidence in its leadership and purposes."

Maryland, birth place of the Star Spangled Banner—whose sons have distinguished themselves in each of the Nation's wars has been signally honored by the War Department in being selected for the national premiere of the Military Spectacle, "Here's Your Army."

Every man, woman and child would gain a new pride and a new understanding of America's might if they arranged to visit the War Show at the Baltimore Stadium on June 12th, 13th, 14th or 15th.

In outlining the purpose of the War Show, sponsored by the War Department of the United States, we can do no better than to quote Major General A. D. Surles, Director, War Department Bureau of Public Relations. He says:

"The purpose of these expositions is to assist in raising money for Army Emergency Relief. They will also serve to educate the civilian population of the United States in the equipment, facilities and needs of the various branches of the service.

"They will be an aid in the war effort by reasurring the parents of the soldiers as to methods taken by the Army in the care of the enlisted men. Each phase of the feeding, housing, clothing, medical care and similar services will be shown."

Tickets, selling for 55 cents (tax included) cover both the exhibition and spectacular night show in the Baltimore Stadium when 1,000 picked men will demonstrate the weapons that are the arsenal of Democracy.

AURORA-EGLON

Word has been received here that P. E. Hamstead, son of the late Seymour Hamstead, formerly of near Eglon, and who now resides in Morgantown, is a patient in a Charleston hospital. His condition is described as being serious.

Ray Evans, of near Horse Shoe Run, had the misfortune of losing a valuable horse on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Gnegy, of near Eglon, and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Beegly, of Sunnyside, left Monday for a fishing trip for a point on the Chesapeake Bay. Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Fichtner, of Eglon, are remaining at the Beeghly home during their absence.

Mrs. Katherine Howell Smith, of Aurora, moved her personal property on Monday to Petroleum, West Va., where she will be at home with her husband, Reuben E. Smith, who is a railway operator and agent in that town.

A revival meeting was begun, Sunday, at the Gladeview Brethren church by Rev. Wendell Flory, of Bethany Bible school, Chicago. The services will be held each evening throughout the week. Rev. Flory plans to continue pastoral work in this community during the summer months.

A gathering will be held Sunday, June 7, at the Memorial Tabernacle of the former Child Rescue Home, near Gnegy church, in honor of Rev. and Mrs. Phineas Fike, of West Plains, Mo., who are expected to arrive here this week-end. A basket lunch will be served. The Fikes were formerly of this community and they hope to meet many of their friends and relatives while visiting here.

Mr. and Mrs. Allison Parrack, of Aurora, moved, on Tuesday, to the property vacated by Mrs. Katherine Howell Smith.

W. C. Spiggle, of Aurora, who was driving a pick-up truck, was involved in two wrecks last week. One, on Wednesday night, near Parsons, and another on Thursday night, near Aurora. His truck was damaged but he escaped injury.

Mrs. Homer Fike, of Cash Valley, went on last Thursday night by bus to Washington, D. C., where her daughter, Miss Viola Fike, had undergone an appendix operation in a hospital of that city at noon Thursday. Mrs. Fike returned to her home on Sunday.

Mrs. Saloma Slabach is ill at her home at Eglon, having recently been attacked by a rather rare disease—shingles.

George Arnold, who is an electrician in the naval force, and is now stationed at Brooklyn, N. Y., spent a few hours, Sunday, at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Arnold, Horse Shoe Run.

Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Harsh were week-end visitors at the home of Lloyd Harsh, Eglon. The visitor has employment with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company at Grafton.

Keith Parks, of New Jersey, spent several days recently at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Parks, near Eglon.

ON THE OFFENSIVE

AMERICA!

★ ★ ★

Wars are won by attacking, not by sitting in a fort!

And today America is taking the offensive against the Axis with hard-fighting, non-stoppable men and materials!

We're taking the offensive, too, against the enemy at home—the inflationary 6th column that blows prices sky high.

You can help in both fights by saving at least 10% of your money in U. S. War Bonds every pay day. Attack the Axis with your dollars today.

You can start with as little as a 10c War Stamp and you can get a $25.00 War Bond (maturity value) for only $18.75—at your local post office, bank or other convenient sales agency.

DIED

MRS. EDWARD W. HELBIG

Mrs. Della Florence Helbig, wife of Edward W. Helbig, died very suddenly on Sunday afternoon at four o'clock at the family home on South Third street. Mrs. Helbig became ill following dinner which terminated in a heart attack and her death.

Mrs. Helbig was born in Oakland on July 8, 1881, being a daughter of the late John T. and Florence L. Browning. She was aged sixty years.

The deceased woman was a devout Catholic and was a member of the Sodality of the Blessed Virgin Mary.

Surviving are her husband, two sons and one daughter, Fred Helbig, Oakland, and Donald Helbig, second class seaman on the U. S. S. Monadock, somewhere at sea; Mrs. Edwin E. Michael, Oakland; also one grandson; three sisters and two brothers, Mrs. Andrew Helbig, Miss Zaidee Browning, William R. Browning, Oakland; Mrs. Fannie Mountain, Hollidaysburg, Pa., and Frank Browning, Akron, O.

Funeral services were conducted on Thursday morning from St. Peter's Catholic church with Rev. John C. Broderick, pastor, officiating. Interment was made in the family plot of the Catholic cemetery in Oakland.

Pallbearers were nephews, J. Edward Helbig, Deer Park; C. C. Helbig, Leo Helbig, Robert Helbig and Joseph E. Helbig, Oakland, and Bud Helbig, of Cumberland.

NANCY LEE O'LEARY

Mrs. Blanche Hoey, at Kitzmiller, received word of the death of her granddaughter, Nancy Lee, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank O'Leary, of Middle River, near Baltimore.

The child, two years old in March, was struck by an automobile on May 27. An operation in a Baltimore hospital failed to save her life and she died from head injuries while on the operating table.

Surviving besides her parents are one sister, Mary, her grandmother, Mrs. Hoey, and her great great grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Finch, Kitzmiller.

ROBERT L. CROWE

Robert L. Crowe, retired farmer of Garrett coutny, died Tuesday, June 2, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Henry Michael, Avilton, where he had been ill for the past six weeks.

Mr. Crowe was a son of the late Henry and Harriet Durst Crowe, and was a native of this county.

Surviving besides Mrs. Michael, are another daughter, Mrs. Charles Durst, of Long Stretch, and a brother, George Crowe, Avilton.

Funeral services will be conducted from the New Germany Methodist church Friday, with the Rev. V. R. Gillum, pastor, officiating.

The next Union circle will be at the home of Mrs. Elza Biser and the Red House Lutheran circle will meet at the church on Wednesday.

Harold Hauser, of Morgantown, visited in this community on Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Koblentz visited Mrs. Ira Yoder on Monday. The former had been located in an army camp in Arkansas.

John L. Lewis ousted Philip Murray, president of CIO, from his $8,000 a year job as vice-president of the United Mine Workers, and his decision was upheld by the executive board.

A Russian girl sniper was cited for killing 257 of the enemy on the Sevastopol front. She declared, "I'll get more."

MARRIED

GEORG—AFFOLDER—Miss Dorothy Affolder, Fort Wayne, Indiana, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Affolder, became the bride of Rev. Howard Georg, Salisbury, Md., son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Georg, Accident, at a ceremony performed Sunday evening, May 17, at 7:00 o'clock in the Zion Lutheran church in Fort Wayne, Ind. The Rev. P. L. Dannenfeldt officiated, using the ring ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of slipper white satin, made on princess lines, with a heart shaped neckline and long Elizabethan sleeves and a court train. Her tulle veil fell from a coronet of gathered tulle which was fastened with blossoms on either side. She carried a bouquet of white carnations, roses and lilies of the valley.

The bride had as her matron of honor her sister, Mrs. Louis Volcher, who wore a green organdie dress with accessories to match. She carried a bouquet of matchless roses. Ford Fike, brother-in-law of the groom, of Markleysburg, Pa., was best man.

The church was decorated with palms. A reception followed at the home of the bride. Attending the wedding from Accident were the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Georg, and Mrs. Luther Keller; Ford Fike, of Markleysburg; Mr. and Mrs. Reggie Vellenoweth and daughter, Mrs. Roy Keller, of Wadsworth, Ohio.

The bride attended South Side High school at Fort Wayne and was employed at the Fort Wayne Tailoring Company. In the past year she was active in Walther's League in Fort Wayne. The groom was graduated from Corcordia College in Fort Wayne and from Concordia Seminary at St. Louis, Mo. He is now serving as pastor of the Bethany Lutheran church in Salisbury, where the couple will reside.

State Police Qualify In Pistol Tests

Every state trooper stationed at the LaVale substation, qualified as expert, sharpshooter or marksman when pistol qualifications required by the state police department were fired on the range at LaVale last Thursday afternoon.

Expert rating was given to Troopers A. M. Spioch, Joseph White, Harry Harrison, Graydon S. Dunlap and George M. Browning, with scores of 235 or better out of a possible 300. Corporal Thomas Currie qualified as a marksman. Three qualified as sharpshooters, one of them being Sgt. John H. Doud, who is active in Garrett county.

The Treasury Department said the war bond quota throughout the country would be increased an average of one-third for June.

In the Service With Our Men

Milton Leon Wilson, son of A. R. Wilson, of Deer Park, was recently advanced to Aviation Machinist's mate, second class, at the Naval Air Station at Pensacola, Florida. Wilson enlisted in the Navy at Elkins, W. Va., in January, 1940, and was sent to the Naval Training Station at Norfolk, Va., for elementary training. He was transferred to Pensacola in April of that year and was assigned to duty with the ground crews of one of the flying squadrons stationed at the "Annapolis of the Air." Wilson has taken advantage of the opportunity offered by the Navy and is building his future in a profitable, established trade while serving in the country's fighting forces. Radio, electricity and aviation mechanics are among the 45 courses open to enlisted men entering Navy service schools to become specialists.

* * *

Irvin Feld, stationed at Camp Lee, Va., spent several days here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Feld. He is at the Medical Replacement Center and his training is consisting of actual maneuvers illustrating medical and evacuation problems encountered on the battlefield as well as basic military work.

* * *

Stuart F. Hamill, Jr., has returned to Fort Belvoir, Va., after a brief furlough which he spent in Oakland with his parents and sister. He is anticipating a call for foreign service in the near future.

* * *

James Nordeck, stationed at Camp Wheeler, Ga., writes that "army life isn't so bad after you once get used to it, but they certainly are pushing us. We drill about ten hours every day, either on the range or out in the fields." He expects to have ten or eleven more weeks of Basic training before being moved.

* * *

Nordeck Shaffer, yeoman in the Naval Building, Washington, D. C., and Harry Sanders, U. S. N., stationed also at Washington, were at their homes over the week-end. Shaffer is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Shaffer, while Sanders is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Sanders, both of Crellin.

NAVY HAS LARGE SCALE RECRUITING PROGRAM THIS WEEK

The U. S. Navy department has organized a large scale recruiting program to culminate on Sunday, June 7, which will be known as "Avenge Pearl Harbor Day."

Sunday at 2:25 p. m. will be just six months after the treacherous attack on the Hawaii Naval base, and a public oath ceremony at that time will take place in every town in the nation where a main navy recruiting station or substation is located. The nearest one to Oakland, is Cumberland.

The Navy is seeking a large number of enlistments on that day. The officer in charge of the Baltimore recruiting station, Lieut. Paul R. Warmee, said, "If every Navy Recruiting Main Station and Substation can enlist this week and swear in on Sunday a good group of recruits, it is obvious that this nation is to a greater extent every day standing up and showing the Axis powers that we have got what it takes and that freedom and decency shall not perish from the earth."

Still Time to Enter Essay Contest

There is still time for boys and girls in this community to enter the essay contest on Farm Safety and Fire Prevention, being sponsored by the Leighton Lumber company.

The contest closed June 15, and is being conducted by the United States Gypsum company, in cooperation with a new farm magazine, "The Business of Farming."

Contestants are expected to write 150 words either on "How to Prevent Farm and Home Accidents," or "How to Prevent Fire on the Farm." They can write on both if they prefer.

Entry blanks may be secured from the lumber company.

HOMEMAKERS' DAY IS SCHEDULED FOR JUNE 17

Farm women from all sections of Maryland will attend the Homemakers' day at the University of Maryland, June 17, at which time one of the principal speakers will be Dr. Liu Chieh, counselor of the Chinese Embassy in Washington.

The program replaces the regular Rural Women's Short Course, a week-long affair called off this year because of a shortage of farm labor and tire and gasoline rationing.

A special meeting of the State Council of Homemakers' executive board will be held at the university, June 16, when officers will be elected and directors and project chairmen appointed.

Other speakers will include Dr. Paul S. Douglas, president of American University; George P. Waller, former diplomatic officer in Europe, Asia, Africa and Central America; Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the university; Dr. T. B. Symons, director of the university's extension service; Mrs. Edwin Fry, president of the Associated Women of the Maryland Farm Bureau; Mrs. Walter Kriel, president of the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Algernon Carter, president of the State Council of Homemakers' Clubs.

Laborer Position at Pearl Harbor

The expanding program at Pearl Harbor has created additional openings for laborers, the Fourth United States Civil Service District Office announced today.

The wage rate is 62 cents per hour, and transportation is furnished from the point of residence to Pearl Harbor.

Only American citizens, in good health, between the ages of 18 and 62 will be considered. Applications may be secured from the Secretary, Local Board of Civil Service Examiners, Oakland, or the Manager, United States Employment Service Office.

LIST OF MEN IN FOURTH REGISTRATION IS PRINTED

Draft Board Announces 1832 In County Between Ages Of 45 And 65

The official list of all those who registered in the fourth registration, was released last week by the Garrett County Draft board, and shows a total of 1832 in Garrett county between the ages of 45 to 64 inclusive.

These men, under present draft law regulations, will not be called upon for service in the armed forces but might be used in war industries and various defense work.

They will be required to fill out the occupational questionnaires just as those in the first three registrations, so that officials will know for what a person is best fitted.

They have been given serial numbers but no order numbers.

Many of the names were published last week. The balance of the entire list follows, which includes six more names added to the total since last Thursday's issue.

Official U. S. Treasury

MARYLAND

WAR BOND QUOTAS FOR JUNE

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 1.—Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Secretary of the Treasury, today made known June War Bond quotas for the 3,070 counties in the nation to all State and County War Savings Staffs.

The June quota for the State of Maryland is $12,002,100.

The county quotas, based upon a substantial increase over May quotas, are expected to reach ten per cent of income when the nation goes on a billion-dollar-a-month War Bond basis in July to help meet the war cost. "Everybody, every pay day, ten per cent," is the battle cry throughout the country. You can buy War Bonds at your Bank, Building & Loan Association, Post Office and at many department stores.

Quotas by counties are:

Allegany, $361,600; Anne Arundel, $231,400.
Baltimore, $213,800; Baltimore City, $9,322,000.
Calvert, $29,400; Caroline, $32,900; Carroll, $122,700; Cecil, $71,300; Charles, $39,600.
Dorchester, $53,900.
Frederick, $186,600.
Garrett, $22,300.
Harford, $115,100; Howard, $20,900.
Kent, $36,400.
Montgomery, $232,900.
Prince Georges, $219,900.
Queen Annes, $25,600.
St. Marys, $19,000; Somerset, $50,000.
Talbot, $94,000.
Washington, $301,000; Wicomico, $127,700; Worcester, $72,100.

District of Columbia June quota $8,074,500

FRIDAY: THE DAY OF SUFFERING (II)

LESSON TEXT—Luke 23:33-46; Mark 15: 33, 34.

GOLDEN TEXT—But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed.—Isaiah 53:5.

Dark and distressing days have often come upon the earth, but the darkest day of all history was that day when cruel men with wicked hearts laid unholy hands upon the Son of God and crucified Him. And yet, by the grace of God, it was a day of bright hope for the sinful sons of men, for on that day complete redemption was wrought out. The veil was rent and the new and living way into the holy presence of God (Heb. 10:20) was opened for you and for me.

The cross is popular as an ornament on a church or on a golden chain, but it is far more than that. It speaks of the black hour of the Saviour's cry, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" and it also tells us of the One who became sin for us that we might know the righteousness of God (II Cor. 5:21).

Three thoughts emerge from our lesson.

I. Crucifixion — Bringing Life (Luke 23:33, 34a).

"There they crucified him"—four words summing up the almost unbelievable thing that took place on Calvary. He died; but in that death life and immortality were brought to light (II Tim. 1:10).

As believers in Christ, we are interested in all that took place at the crucifixion, for we know that as we contemplate Him on the cross we can say with Luther, "For me, for me!" And yet it was not for us alone that He died—it was for all mankind. So we turn to our unconverted friends and direct them to "the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world" (John 1: 29). He was crucified that they might live eternally. He who had only a plea for the forgiveness of His persecutors (v. 34a) tenderly offers His forgiveness to men today.

II. Rejection—Bringing Acceptance (Luke 23:34b-43).

Those who appear around the cross afford an interesting and striking picture of humanity. There were the indifferent ones, those not interested at all in who was being crucified, but only eager to share in the division of His garments.

There stood the people "beholding"—perplexed, unable to believe that the miracle-working Christ was about to die. Verily, they were as sheep without a shepherd.

Then we see those who scoffed. They knew His claim to be the Son of God and hated Him for it. Now at last they had their chance to rail at Him, to ridicule and taunt. More ignorant and yet equally derisive, we see the mocking soldiers.

Even one of the thieves by His side "railed on him" (v. 39), ridiculing His claim. But here is the marvelous thing—the other thief, rough and wicked person that he was, saw in Christ a Saviour to whom he turned in faith, which was quickly and fully honored (vv. 42, 43).

The picture is thus complete. The Rejected One is "the way" to acceptance for all who believe (John 14:6). He said, "I am the door: by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved" (John 10:9).

III. Darkness — Bringing Light (Luke 23:44, 45; Mark 15:33, 34).

Physical darkness fell over the scene at the cross, as though all nature would go into mourning, or sought to shield the suffering Saviour from the curious and hateful eyes of men. Then, too, it was God's sign that this was not the death of any ordinary man, even as it spoke of the judgment of those who had laid violent, sinful hands on His Son.

But deeper yet was the spiritual darkness into which Jesus went, as bearing the horrible load of the sins of the world He "was made sin for us" (II Cor. 5:21), and God the Father turned away from Him. We cannot fathom the full meaning of that hour, and we dare not attempt to explain it. We can only accept it and thank God that because He was made sin for us we may by faith be "made the righteousness of God in him."

Out of the darkness of that hour shone forth the one light which nothing in time or eternity can dim.

Route to Happiness

The truest and happiest of earthly lives, proven over and over again by hard actual experience, is that life which accepts and observes most nearly St. Paul's great postulate, "Here have we no continuing city, but we seek one to come." Rightfully pursued, it in no way interferes with the intensest enjoyment of our time here on earth. We have but to see that we do God's will in everything.

John Barrymore, 60, famous actor, died at Hollywood, of pneumonia.

Bernard M. Baruch, prominent in the first World's War, has become an adviser on the army's ordnance program.

RPB—MA-37

The Army's newest poster, shown at the right, is a reproduction of a composite painting by Sergeant Dan V. Smith and Private First Class Albro F. Downe, of the U. S. Army Recruiting Publicity Bureau, Governors Island New York.

The two soldier artists, both members of the Regular Army, are shown above, Sergeant Smith (standing) and Private Downe, as they put the finishing touches on their painting.

The new six-color poster is one of the most popular of recent times, judging from the number of comments received from civilian and military sources by the Recruiting and Induction Service.

Portraying symbolically the ascendant air power of the United States Army, and carrying the slogan, "Keep 'Em Flying Is Our Battle Cry!" its message, "Do Your Part for Duty — Honor — Country," cannot fail to appeal to every American.

Members of Friendsville high school home economics department held their annual mother-daughter banquet in the school auditorium last Thursday night.

Miss Mary Virginia Bolden, instructor, was in charge of arrangements and Louise Glenn supervised the decorating. Betty Coddington directed the making of favors and menus. Alverta Jenkins served as toastmistress and assisted with the planning of the refreshments.

Susanna DeWitt and Rhetha Jean Rush were in charge of the style show. At the conclusion of the banquet introduction of guests was made by Lenore Sisler. A play, "Plain Jane Steps Out," was presented by Jean Rush, Ruth Friend, and Betty Coddington in connection with the style show, at which time twenty-five students modeled clothing made by members of the department during the school year.

Guests included Mrs. John H. Carter, Oakland; Miss Helen Miller, R.N., Mrs. C. B. Miller, W. J. Glenn, and Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Miller. Approximately seventy-five mothers, daughters and guests were present.

Hold Memorial Program

A special Memorial day program was presented by Friendsville high and elementary schools Friday afternoon in the school auditorium. Ruth Faucett and Lott Grove, members of the seventh grade led the assembly in pledge to the Flag. Grade one presented two patriotic acts under the direction of Mrs. Frances Richardson. The "Fishing Song, a western skit and dance were given by members of grade five.

A mystery story, "Sunset Hill" was under the direction of Miss Velora Swauger and presented by the seventh grade. The elementary glee club under the direction of Miss Swauger sang several folk and patriotic songs. Group singing concluded the program.

The Home Hygiene class of the Friendsville high school and the Accident high school motored to Hopemont, W. Va., last Friday, where they visited the sanitorium. The class under the instruction of Miss Helen Miller, R. N., studied "Child Care, General Nursing and Disease, and Care of the Sick" for the past 10 weeks. Approximately 25 girls from this school and 25 from the Accident school attended with their instructor, Miss Miller.

Annual Outing

Members of the Friendsville high school junior and senior classes held their annual outing at the Recreational area at Bittinger, last Tuesday evening. Games and contests provided entertainment for the evening. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the evening with Jean Rush, Robert Kester and Wendell Umbel, in charge. About 75 students, teachers and guests were present.

Frostburg College Summer Term To Open On June 22

The State Teachers College at Frostburg will open its summer term on Monday, June 22, and is offering to high school graduates and to teachers in the service a splendid opportunity to increase their qualifications for larger service to themselves and to the public. The college has an accelerated program that makes it possible for the high school graduate to finish four years of work by using three regular school years and three summer sessions.

The great shortage of elementary teachers is making a serious threat to the efficiency of public education over the next few years. It is hoped that outstanding high school graduates will recognize the opportunities of the emergency and prepare for this outstanding service.

The Dr. Albert S. Cook Loan Scholarship of $100 for freshmen is available at the college, and anyone interested should make application to President John L. Dunkle.

The college will offer Spanish during the summer term in keeping with our "good neighbor policy" in the Americas. The course will be offered by Miss Beulah L. Wilson of Geneva College, Beaver Falls, Pennsylvania. This course will be open to the general public, and anyone interested is urged to contact the college.

More than forty experienced teachers have already completed their enrollment at the college for securing their degrees during the two emergency summer sessions that are being offered. This is a splendid service that the local college is able to offer to the public and to these former students of the college.

The House appropriation committee has asked Congress to abolish the Civilian Conservation corps.

THE ONE TALENT

By ELIZABETH GREENE

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

RELUCTANTLY Lydia led the visitor into the luxurious living-room, flooded with sunlight.

Sinking gratefully into the massive rocker by the window, the new minister's wife fingered her little black bag nervously, awed a little by the magnificence about her.

The minister hadn't approved of her coming; but surely, heaven had given her this chance to help Lydia Merrill's darkened soul into the sunlight! The faith in her heart was so great—

"I've come on a special errand," smiled the visitor. "I've just learned today that you sing."

The scar on Lydia's cheek burned painfully. So they had begun their tattling about her! Well, she had expected it.

"Someone has misinformed you," said Lydia coldly. "Folks get things twisted sometimes," she added grimly, "here in Putney."

In the silence the minister's wife gazed thoughtfully from the window. "I used to wonder," she said presently, "why the Lord did not give us all the same talents; but I know now," she added, "that if He had we should have missed much of the joy of life."

So that was the minister's wife's little game, to come here and preach to her! Likely the church folks had set her up to it.

"If they've sent you here to preach to me," blazed Lydia, "it won't do a bit of good—"

The visitor crossed to Lydia's side. "My dear," she said gently, laying a hand upon the girlish shoulder, "no one has sent me here. Through some old papers left in the parsonage I learned, quite accidentally, that you sing. I've come to ask," she added, earnestly, "if you'll go with me this afternoon to see poor little Dick Mason?"

"Dick Mason!" exclaimed Lydia, in astonishment.

The other nodded. "Yes; the little fellow is to be operated upon tomorrow. He got run over, you know—"

"No; I didn't know anything about it," answered Lydia coolly. "Gossip never interests me."

The minister's wife regarded the haughty, scarred face before her compassionately. How deep the hurt had gone into that young heart!

"This isn't gossip, dearie," she sighed gently, seating herself beside Lydia. "The doctors fear little Dick is hopelessly crippled. His mother is broken-hearted, for he is all that she has."

Lydia stirred restlessly. "Really, Mrs. Hale, I don't see how all this has anything to do with me—"

"I was coming to that," smiled the minister's wife. "You see, Dick is very fond of music and I thought," hesitantly, "if you'd come and sing to him today," she pleaded eagerly, "it might help him to face better the dark tomorrow."

Amazement held Lydia dumb. Was it possible that the minister's wife thought that she, Lydia Merrill, would go down to those poverty-stricken Masons and waste her glorious voice on a—a little insignificant brat? In the hot anger suddenly possessing her the scar throbbed agonizingly.

"I'm afraid I must decline your invitation, Mrs. Hale," said Lydia tersely. "I no longer sing, and if I did," she added significantly, "it wouldn't be in a place like—the Masons'!"

The minister's wife rose quietly. "I'm sorry, dear child," she sighed softly. "'Tis a pity that being able to sing means so little to you—"

"So little!" repeated Lydia sharply. "Why, it meant everything to me!" she cried passionately. "It—it was the only talent I had—"

Very gently the other took Lydia's warm, soft hands. "The Bible tells about a man who had only 'one talent'," said the minister's wife slowly, "and he buried his—"

"Oh, you don't understand!" interrupted Lydia impatiently. "Don't—don't talk about it!"

As the unwelcome visitor passed slowly from the garden, Lydia sighed heavily. Why don't folks let her alone? Why did they want to come prying into her misery?

If only she could take her little motherless Barbara and go far away from gossiping tongues! But Ned, her brother, would never consent to leave Putney, thought Lydia disconsolately; neither would he give up Barbara . . .

Barbara! Lydia caught her breath sharply. What would she do without Barbara! Since that awful scar had wrecked her own youth, there had been only Barbara to live for!

A broken sob escaped Lydia's quivering lips. Why had that auto accident happened to her? She had loved life so, and the future had been so bright! Now, in the darkness, was she to be blamed for singing no more, for burying the talent that a hideous scar had ruthlessly made profitless—for who would pay to hear her sing now, who would pay?

"Are you ready, auntie?"

Lydia started guiltily as Barbara, radiant from her walk from school, entered the room eagerly.

"Yes, dear, we'll go at once," replied Lydia, hastening for her wraps. She had almost forgotten that this was the day that she had promised Barbara the new hat.

Spring and the blossom-scented air awoke no joyous response in Lydia's embittered heart as, with Barbara tripping merrily at her side, she descended the hill that led down into Putney's noisy main street.

It took some time to find a hat lovely enough for Barbara's shining curls; but at last a heavenly blue one—all fluffy and silken—was decided upon.

Radiant with joy, little Barbara chattered happily beside Lydia as they proceeded again on their way.

But suddenly a frolicking April breeze snatched Barbara's hat from her silken curls and sent it whirling into the busy street.

Gaily, the child sprang after it straight into the path of a speedily advancing truck.

With a warning cry Lydia hastened after her, but she was too late. Horrified, she heard Barbara's frightened scream as she fell, and the sound of grinding brakes as the heavy truck came to a stop.

Fighting back a nauseating faintness Lydia watched eager hands lift Barbara, her own precious Barbara, from the pavement.

"She's all right," reassured a sympathetic voice at Lydia's elbow. "The truck only grazed her and knocked her down; all it ran over was her coat."

Softened by the miracle—she would always call it that—Lydia held Barbara's moist little hand tightly, as they walked slowly homeward in the fragrant day.

After all, God was good. He had saved Barbara from being hurt. Barbara, who was all that she had—

All that she had! Why, that was what the minister's wife had said about Dick!

Lydia stood suddenly very still, her eyes resting upon a gorgeous mass of blossoming daffodils in a florist's window opposite her. A beautiful inspiration came.

"Barbara dear," she smiled, "wouldn't you like to take a bunch of those lovely daffodils to little Dick Mason, who got run over, too, and is dreadfully hurt?"

It was a tear-stained, but surprised little woman who admitted them into the Mason cottage.

"Dickie'll be so pleased with th' flowers—he ain't never had nothin' so han'some," sobbed Mrs. Mason, taking the daffodils Barbara extended. Then, turning to Lydia, "Would ye like to see my poor boy, Miss Merrill?"

Bidding Barbara wait outside Lydia followed Mrs. Mason into the tiny bedroom where Dick, swatched in snowy bandages, lay patiently.

"Dickie, my boy, here's Miss Merrill to see ye, an' she's brung ye all these pretty posies!" Tenderly Mrs. Mason smoothed the boy's pillow, as she spoke.

To Lydia, watching the two, came slowly the revelation of the great truth. Love was the same divine thing in the cottage, as in the palace; it was all that mattered—the greatest thing—in life!

Bending swiftly she kissed Dick's freckled, amazed face.

"Dickie," she smiled tremulously, "I've come to sing to you!"

"Through a world made new," Lydia once more walked homeward with Barbara. Gone, like magic, was the old bitterness and despair; for in unselfish service to others, spring had come at last to Lydia's heart, bringing with it the blossoms of joy and peace.

Paris Also Has Leaning Tower as an Attraction

The Leaning Tower of Paris—not Pisa—soon may rank with other leaning towers of the world. The crooked tower of the Church of Notre Dame de Bonne-Nouvelle has not yet rated Baedeker's guide, but it is decidedly on the slant and is attracting more and more visitors who find a leaning tower more interesting than an erect one, writes a Paris United Press correspondent in the Chicago Tribune.

Every year the crack grows wider between the tower and the side of the church to which it is joined. Once a rectangular clock, fixed in the side of the tower, told the time to everyone for miles around, but when the tower got such pronounced inclinations the clock could not adjust itself to the situation. So someone compromised things by hanging the clock on a wrought iron bracket extending over the sidewalk.

When the tower of Bonne-Nouvelle began leaning, nobody knows. Anne of Austria laid its cornerstone back in 1593 and Anne laid the stone straight. What she and no one else realized was that Bonne-Nouvelle hill was nothing but a city dump—the uninhabited back yard of Sixteenth century Parisians, who threw so much rubbish away that their rubbish pile grew into a hill.

So, while chicken coops and flimsy shacks did quite well on the new hill, heavy structures were really too much for the shifty soil. The Church of Notre Dame de Bonne-Nouvelle is now one of the few stone structures still standing. The others have been razed or have fallen down.

Several years ago, at the instigation of the Beaux Arts, the tower of Bonne-Nouvelle was stabilized by a compensating arrangement in its basement, but it still leans. It is not 15 feet out of line, as is the Tower of Pisa. Nor has it the glamor of the imperial leaning Bottle Pagoda of Pei-Hui in Peiping. But at least Paris can compete with the towers of Ems, Asinelli, Ulm, St. Moritz, and Garisenda when it comes to offering groggy buildings to sightseers.

Governor Considers Pardon Application

Hearing Called Last Thursday; Twenty-Six Persons There To Affirm Belief In Physician's Innocence

Governor O'Conor took under advisement at Annapolis last Thursday the pardon application of Dr. Clift P. Berger, Oakland physician, convicted two years ago of perverted sexual practice.

Presiding at a hearing attended by prominent medical men, a clergyman and others from Garrett county, O'Conor promised Dr. Berger the "most thoughtful consideration of which I am capable."

Dr. Berger's application, supported by a recommendation of clemency by State Parole Director Herman M. Moser and affidavits from numerous Oakland citizens, asks a "complete pardon." The physician was convicted by the Garrett County Circuit Court in 1940 on one of four indictments.

Two Are Opposed

Of the twenty-eight persons attending the hearing, only State's Attorney Neil C. Fraley and Garrett County Sheriff J. William Owens voiced opposition.

Whereas Moser and numerous Berger supporters reported a "question of doubt exists as to the applicant's actual guilt," Fraley told O'Conor he personally investigated nine alleged offenses, saying, "all nine of the victims could not have been lying as the defense charges."

Fraley also maintained Dr. Berger received a fair trial and that Sheriff Owens and his own investigations failed to disclose any evidence of a "frame-up" against the physician.

The creditability of testimony given during the trial by Mrs. Minnie Smith, of Oakland, whose charges resulted in Dr. Berger's conviction and six months' House of Correction imprisonment, was attacked by Attorneys William Gunter and Walter W. Dawson, Oakland, former Garrett county state's attorney.

Character witnesses for Dr. Berger included Dr. Arthur H. Hawkins, of Cumberland; Dr. Oscar B. Hunter, Washington pathologist; Dr. William D. Chase, Leesburg, Va.; the Rev. and Mrs. William Orendorff, Frostburg; Stuart F. Hamill, Oakland; Mrs. John Berger, the convicted physician's mother, and Dr. J. Stewart Nagle, his brother-in-law, both of Schuylkill Haven, Pa.; Mrs. Marie Rice and Mrs. Paul Kemphfer who said they were Dr. Berger's patients, and Ray Zimmerman, Mountain Lake Park, Mrs. Smith's cousin. A number of others were ready to certify in his behalf.

Speaking briefly, Dr. Berger said, "My position is exactly the same as it has always been. I am not guilty." He charged, however, there were several instances when "members of the Smith family tried to blackmail physicians in the past."

Fraley's arguments mainly defended his position in opposing the pardon.

Matter of Public Opinion

"Ordinarily," he said, "I wouldn't oppose a pardon unless it was a matter of public concern. I am convinced such is the case in this matter. If Dr. Berger's license is restored and he returned to Garrett county to practice a great majority of people do not believe he should practice in Oakland.

"During my investigation I never found a bit of evidence to suggest Dr. Berger might have been 'framed.' If I had, I'd be the first person to aid him in obtaining a pardon.

"There was no miscarriage of justice in this case," Fraley said.

Dr. Hunter told O'Conor that during the past month Dr. Berger was appointed "resident pathologist" at a Washington hospital and that from his long acquaintance with the convicted physician "there is no doubt in my mind that he is innocent and the victim of a miscarriage of justice."

Moser, in his report to the governor said, that the trial judges Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan and Associate Judge William A. Huster "have no objection to the granting of a pardon."

More Pre-School Clinics

Four more pre-school clinics have been added to the list of those published last week, according to the health department office.

All will be held on Monday, June 8, as follows: Sand Spring, 9 a. m.; McCabe, 10:30 a. m.; Selbysport, 1 p. m.; Rich Hill, 3:30 p. m.

Last week's list included clinics on June 9 at Johnson, Avilton, Jennings, Bittinger, Beachy, Sang Run, Hoyes Run and Bray, starting at Johnson at 9 a. m.

Parent-Teacher Group Elects Its Officers

At the final meeting for the present school term of the Oakland Elementary Parent-Teacher Association, Mrs. Delbert Davis was re-elected president of the group. Others elected included Mrs. Melvin Kight, vice-president; Mrs. Felix Robinson, secretary; and Mrs. George Hanst, treasurer.

Students of the fifth grade gave a science demonstration and each room had an art exhibit.

Single copies of The Republican may be obtained at the Hamill Book and Stationery Store, corner Third and Alder streets, where the current issue of the paper is placed on sale every Thursday afternoon. Price, 5 cents per copy.

Prisoners Start Mutiny in Jail At Kingwood, W. Va.

Three prisoners started a mutiny last Thursday in the Preston county jail at Kingwood, W. Va., causing an uprising and near riot among the other prisoners, but soon were quieted by Sheriff L. F. Silbaugh and his deputies who locked them in cells and permitted them no liberties of the range.

The three men who started the affair were Alva Martin, of near Oakland, held for the June grand jury on a charge of robbery; Walter Messenger, recently brought back to the jail after an escape, and Harold Riley, jailed on a misdemeanor count.

Sheriff Silbaugh said the men tore their bunks from the walls and placed them across the corridors, permitting no one else to enter their "block." They tore plumbing from the walls and had several bricks in their possession which they had taken from the walls. Blackjacks had been made by placing bolts in a sack. Silbaugh said the riot did not last long and that a "bread and water" diet probably would cure the men.

A fireman has gotten his picture in Ripley's "believe it or not." The reason—He has been a fireman for twenty-five years and has never played a game of cards.

I venture the assertion that none of the Oakland firemen could qualify for such a picture.

Expressing Oneself

One is always hearing of people who criticize how other persons rear their families. This is true in Oakland as well as over the entire world, I guess.

Parents many times make a mess of the job, but probably more times than that they do a good job, and know quite a bit more about their children's problems than the onlooker who never fails to criticize when the opportunity arrives.

This week I am reminded of a family, who when their children were small ten to twelve years ago, was criticized by some. Many tales were scattered by the wagging tongues of the town on how the parents allowed their children to "express themselves," to the extent of damaging furniture, clothing, or whatnot. The mother was a writer of articles about children, published in national magazines.

From persons who knew the family it was a fact that they may have expressed themselves, and what children don't, yet they never went beyond a certain point where strict discipline was maintained. But nevertheless the stories circulated and no doubt many got satisfaction in spreading them as far as they could and each time adding a little bit of imagination.

Well, it looks like one of these children is still "expressing himself"—at the present time in Australia, where he is a pilot of a big bomber. The lives of seven or eight others are entrusted to his care and a story coming from there this week shows how he expressed himself by bringing a bomber back to base that had one of two engines shot away, how he maneuvered the ship that had a flat tire from a machine gun bullet and part of the under carriage shot away, so that he landed safely.

May he continue to "express himself" in such a manner, which shows he has that American spirit of knowing what to do under difficult conditions. Oakland today salutes Jack O'Donnell.

NEW QUARTERS FOR LOCAL WAR RATION BOARD

The War Ration Board moved into new quarters this week, obtaining rooms over the Gonder Pharmacy which were formerly occupied by Dr. Thomas A. Gonder. Prior to moving to the Gonder building the board had rooms in the Court House for several weeks.

MT. LAKE PARK

The hobby and art exhibit, given last Friday night at the Mt. Lake school, proved more than successful. There is a great deal of interest being shown in this yearly event. Mason Callis, principal of the school, had charge. Among the interesting articles shown were some fine examples of woodcraft sent in by A. L. Fike, and others. Handwoven baskets, crocheted bedspreads and a large afghan, knit by the pupils of the elementary grades under the supervision of Mrs. John Stevenson, Sr. This event each year is now a part of the May Day school program.

The WSCS of Bethel church are meeting today (Thursday) at the home of Mrs. Wiley Welling. Hostesses assisting are Mrs. Pat Morgan and Mrs. John Stevenson, Sr.

The sewing machine clinic under the supervision of the County Homemakers clubs will meet at the Mt. Lake Bowling Alley, on Friday afternoon, June 5.

A wedding was solemnized quietly last Thursday afternoon, May 28th, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gay Hayden, at which time Miss Vera Florence Pifer, of Rowlesburg, became the bride of James A. Hayden, son of Mrs. Lulu Hayden and the late John Hayden. Because of the recent death of the groom's father, only the immediate families were present. Dr. W. Blake Love performed the ceremony. Attending were Mrs. John Hayden, mother of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Gay Hayden, Willard Hayden, John Hayden, Mrs. Charles Burkholder, and Miss Margaret Wilson, all of Rowlesburg. Mr. and Mrs. Hayden left for Louisiana, where Mr. Hayden is technical mechanic for the U. S. A. His brother, John Hayden, left for Houston, Tex., where he is stationed as a first class radio engineer with the armed forces. Mr. Hayden is the grandson of the late Captain James A. Hayden and Mrs. Hayden, pioneer Park residents..

Report Made on School Lunches at Elementary

Mrs. Delbert Davis, president of the Oakland Elementary Parent-Teachers' Association, made a report of the school lunch program to the County Commissioners on Tuesday morning.

The serving of school lunches began in the school after the Christmas holidays and continued until about two weeks ago. The Commissioners furnished funds amounting to $118.24 to pay a person to prepare and serve the food and it was estimated that surplus commodities amounting to at least $1,000, was furnished the school free.

Mrs. Davis said that from 125 to 150 pupils were served each day, and she felt sure that many had benefited from the food in growth and increased energy.

THE REPUBLICAN

VOLUME 66. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, JUNE 11, 1942. NUMBER 16.

Remember Those in Service

Remembering those in the service of our country is a responsibility of those who remain at home.

An especially nice gesture was suggested the past week by Emeric Dusic to members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and they are going to carry it through with the cooperation of the drug stores and the Hamill Stationery store, in Oakland.

They are going to select the name of one person each week from among the fifty or more who have entered the service from Oakland. During the week they are asking that citizens at some leisure moment, while they are in one of the three drug stores or at Hamill's, that they write this person a letter, short or long, depending uopn the time they have, on pads that will be provided for that purpose; that they also purchase, if they feel inclined, some small item as a gift, such as razor blades, toilet articles, magazines, etc.

These letters and items will be collected each week and sent to the one who is named for that period, and a new name will be selected for the following week.

Senator Tydings will draw the name of the first boy to be so honored on Tuesday, June 23, and he will write the first letter, following his address here that night.

As the list of those in the service from Oakland is not complete from available records, people are urged to send either to Emeric Dusic, C. L. Briner, Jr., or some other member of the Jaycees, the names and addresses of relatives and friends serving our country.

There is no way to measure the satisfaction that would come to a person in some army camp who would get a week's supply of greetings and gifts from his friends at home.

Other towns in the county would do well to adopt this suggestion. Let's make it worthwhile.

426 ELEMENTARY PUPILS RECEIVE THEIR DIPLOMAS

Decrease From Previous Year; Closing Exercises Being Held This Week In Centers

Four hundred twenty-six seventh-grade pupils of the elementary public schools of the county are receiving or have already received certificates of graduation this week, signifying that they have passed the necessary requirements for entrance into high schools when the term opens in September.

Closing exercises are as follows (8 o'clock P. M., unless otherwise noted):

Tuesday, June 9, Friendsville.

Wednesday, June 10, Oakland, Crellin, Kitzmiller at 2:00 P. M.; Mt. Lake Park and Loch Lynn Heights, at Mountain Lake Park.

Thursday, June 11, Accident, Grantsville, Deer Park at 2:00 P. M.; Bloomington, Red House.

Friday, June 12, Swanton.

The number graduating from the elementary schools this year is 79 less than last year when 505 received their diplomas, and the least for several years. In 1940 there were 434 listed; in 1939, 484; in 1938, 458, and in 1937, 466.

Of the number receiving diplomas this week 259 are from schools of the northern supervisory unit, and 167 from the southern supervisory unit.

Among the larger schools, the following received diplomas: Oakland,

Ten Dollar Bill Lost–Returned By Honest Finder

Advertisement Brings Results For Mary Lipscomb, of Route Two

Proof that there are still honest people in this world was clearly demonstrated the past week, as well as showing that it pays to advertise.

Last Thursday morning Mary Lipscomb advertised in The Republican the fact that she had lost a ten-dollar bill in Oakland, and offered a reward. On Saturday Noah D. Schrock, route 2, Oakland, phoned to say he had found the bill and would be in on Monday. In the meantime it was learned that as soon as Mr. Schrock had found the money he had gone to the bank to determine what course would be best in an effort to find the owner.

Mr. Schrock arrived Monday and wouldn't even accept the reward, saying that he wanted the girl "to have the full amount."

The successful conclusion was reached yesterday when the girl appeared to claim the bill and declared she would surely "see the man personally and thank him before I return home."

Firemen Called to Bayard Early This Morning

Local firemen were called to Bayard, West Va., at 1:30 o'clock this morning. A dwelling there was consumed before the department reached the scene as it required a lapse of 45 minutes after the fire started until the message was relayed to the firemen here.

With Our Men In the Service

Harry Lee Porter, Jr., of the U. S. Navy, stationed at Washington, D. C., is spending an eight-day furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Porter, south of town.

Claud F. Friend, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claud Friend, Deer Park, has been promoted to Corporal, it has been announced. He is stationed at Fort Bragg, N. C.

Swallow Falls CCC Camp Made Exit Just in Time

Action of the House of Representatives in voting to abolish the Civilian Conservation Corps after July 1, came just shortly after the eleventh and final camp passed out of existence in Western Maryland.

Eleven camps were established and disbanded in Garrett and Allegany counties from the time CCC was inaugurated in 1933 until the camp at Swallow Falls passed out of the picture last month.

During the nine-year period there were eight camps in this county located at Tasker's Corners, near Deer Park; Piney, near Sang Run; Bloomington, Bond, Sand Spring, New Germany, Swallow Falls, and at a point above Lonaconing.

There is a possibility that the Swallow Falls camp site will be used as a camp for conscientious objectors, the object being for them to fight forest fires and do conservation work, the same as the CCC enrollees did. Nothing definite was known about the decision, however.

SEPTEMBER 8TH SET AS PRIMARY ELECTION DATE

Walsh's Ruling Nullifies Plans To Hold Election on September 14

A ruling made last Friday by Attorney General William C. Walsh, setting Tuesday, September 8 as the date for the primaries in the fall election, nullified plans of the state chairmen of the Democratic and Republican parties to stage the primaries Monday, September 14.

Walsh's ruling gave assurance to Maryland voters in military service that their mailed vote would be received and counted in time to figure in nominations for the general election in November.

In his opinion, which was given to John J. Nowakowski, Chief Clerk of the Board of Supervisors of Elections of Baltimore City, Judge Walsh quoted Chapter 198 of the Acts of 1941, title "Elections, Sub-title "Voting by Mail", which provides as follows:

"Whenever, in time of peace or war, the Maryland National Guard, or any of the units thereof, the Maryland Naval Militia, or any of the units thereof, or any units of the armed forces of the United States, shall be called into active service, or citizens of this State shall be inducted into the armed forces of the United States under any Federal Conscription laws, and by reason of such circumstances, duly qualified voters of the State are absent from the ward or election district in which they reside on the day set for any general, primary or special election, whether Presidential,

Clifford Phillips Heads Pythian Order

Elected Chancellor Commander Last Friday—Other Officers Chosen

Clifford Phillips was elected Chancellor Commander of Garrett Lodge No. 113, Knights of Pythias, at the semi-annual election of officers last Friday evening.

Others chosen were J. William Owens, vice-chancellor; Russell Pancake, prelate; Leonard Hathaway, master of work; Walter Hardesty, keeper of Records and Seal; Milburn W. Mann, master of finance; A. G. Gortner, master of exchequer; Robert Sheckells, master at arms; Reaford Purbaugh, inside guard; and Lewis R. Jones, outside guard.

Wade Mason and Virgil Kelley were elected as delegates to grand lodge meeting, with Paul DeWitt and William McRobie as alternates.

The evening was also observed as Past Chancellors' night with twenty-seven past chancellors present. The Pythians have organized their own minute man unit known as the Pythian Minute Men, and the lodge now has about 60 members enrolled.

After refreshments a smoker was held.

May Register for Sugar for Canning At Various Places

Arrangements for the registration for sugar for canning purposes are being made by the Rationing Board in a number of places throughout the county, it was announced this morning.

It was stated that such arrangements were being made to relieve the people of the county from the necessity of traveling to Oakland each time they must make application. It is understood the work in the various places throughout the county will be done by volunteers.

Thus far the ration board has the following schedule arranged:

Kitzmiller, Friday, Monday and Tuesday, 1 to 3.

Grantsville, Monday and Tuesday, 9 to 3:30.

Accident, Thursday afternoon and Friday.

Crellin, Sang Run, Deer Park and Vindex, and Friendsville, time to be announced later.

It was stated there may be other localities added later. The local ration board has been "swamped" within the past two weeks, with applicants for sugar for canning.

Dr. and Mrs. E. I. Baumgartner are in Atlantic City, N. J., this week where the former is attending a meeting of medical men.

Parade Plans for Big Sendoff Next Week Progressing

Plans for the big sendoff to the fifty-one men called for induction next week, are progressing, Charles L. Briner, Jr., announced this morning. The young men will leave on Friday, June 19, but the celebration is scheduled for Wednesday evening, June 17.

Mr. Briner said that thus far he had secured the Oakland and Mt. Lake bands, the American Legion post, and the Oakland firemen to participate in the parade in addition to the draftees.

Col. Victor A. Rule, state representative of the USO and Navy Relief, will be present to officially open the campaign for funds for these two organizations. He will speak briefly from some point on Second street following the parade.

Mr. Briner said plans were being formulated for "hanging Hitler" from a pole, and perhaps Mussolini and Hirohito.

FIFTH REGISTRATION TO BE HELD IN HIGH SCHOOLS

Six Centers Designated by Rathbun for Signing Up Youths June 30 for Possible Military Service

The six high schools of the county will serve as registration centers for the fifth registration which is to be held on Tuesday, June 30, it was announced this morning by the local draft board.

At that time all men born on or after January 1, 1922, and on or before June 30, 1924, will be registered at the high school most convenient for them or even at some high school in an adjoining county, if that is most convenient. The hours of registration will be 7 a. m. to 9 p. m. Registration cards will be gray in color.

The centers have been designated by F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent, who has been named by the local draft board as chief registrar:

Oakland High, F. D. Bittle, Registrar.

Grantsville High, F. J. Getty, Registrar.

Friendsville High, W. J. Glenn, Registrar.

Accident High, B. O. Aiken, Registrar.

Kitzmiller High, O. P. Jones, Registrar.

Kempton, Asa Lewis, Registrar.

Instructions have already been mailed to these registrars with orders to obtain as many assistants from among the teachers as they believe might be necessary.

Praised by Governor

"It is most gratifying that the schoolteachers of the State and of Baltimore city, who have given so generously of their time and services in previous registrations, again have made themselves available for this new registration of our young manhood, Governor O'Conor said.

"I am sure the people of the State appreciate as fully as I the patriotic contribution that has been made by the teachers, a contribution that will be enhanced greatly by their work in connection with the coming registration of the young men of 18 and 19 and those who have become 20 since January 1."

Official Opening Of Golf Clubhouse Planned for Sunday

The club house at the Municipal golf course will be officially opened on Sunday afternoon with ladies of the Oakland Golf club preparing and serving a buffet supper to the members and guests who are expecting to attend, according to Mrs. Emroy Bolden, president.

While there is still a lack of furniture, dishes and other equipment, many articles are being donated by the members. The clubhouse itself, both exterior and interior, has been completed by workmen, the plumbing installed and everything is now in readiness for use.

Mrs. Bolden said that serving would begin about 4 o'clock and would continue through the regular evening meal period.

Trout Placed In Streams

Twenty-five hundred trout were released this week in Evitt's Creek, in Allegany county, and in Pursley Run, in Garrett county, according to Fulcher P. Smith, member of the Inland Game and Fish Commission.

DIPLOMAS GIVEN TO 240 SENIORS OF HIGH SCHOOLS

Commencement Exercises Tonight at Oakland and Kitzmiller To Conclude Activities

Two hundred forty seniors of the six high schools of the county are concluding their activities this evening, with only the formality of returning for their report cards tomorrow remaining for them in their high school career.

Four of the schools had their commencement exercises last night, Grantsville, Accident, Friendsville and Kempton, while this evening Oakland and Kitzmiller are having their graduation programs.

Oakland High graduates number just half the entire total for the county, with 120 scheduled to receive their diplomas this evening from a member of the Board of Education.

The address will be delivered by James E. Spitznas, State supervisor of high schools, who also delivered the address to the graduates at Friendsville last evening. Hugh M. Frampton is scheduled to address the Kitzmiller graduates tonight in the Methodist church there. The Oakland High program will be in the school auditorium.

Lieut. Commander R. D. Hill, from the office of public relations, U. S. Navy department, was the speaker at Grantsville last evening, while Richard T. Riser, supervisor of high schools in Allegany county, delivered the address at the Accident ceremonies last night.

The entire list of the graduates of the six high schools is given.

Keyser Man Drowns In Deep Creek Lake

Frederick A. Sheetz, 21, Lost His Life When Thrown From Motor Boat He Was Testing

The body of Frederick Allan Sheetz, 21, Keyser, W. Va., was recovered from Deep Creek Lake last Saturday about 12:10, after having been thrown from a motor boat 200 feet from shore about 8:30 o'clock that morning.

The body was found by Howard Hanna, Westernport, in fifteen feet of water, near Green Glade, at the east end of the lake, after two and one-half hours of searching.

Thrown from Boat

The accident occurred when Sheetz was testing a new outboard motor boat and while doing a reverse turn was thrown from the boat. His wife, Anna Ruth Elsey Sheetz, who was watching the trial, was unable to swim and could offer no assistance because there were no other boats available. She screamed for help as her husband sank from sight. Several people appeared and a call was put in for help from Cabin Lodge. Hanna responded and when he arrived on the scene began to dive and was later assisted by a youth who managed his boat while he continued diving.

Was Good Swimmer

Sheetz was said to have been a good swimmer and apparently was struck by the boat and stunned. The boat continued to run in circles for half an hour after the accident.

Sheriff J. W. Owens, Deputy J. W. Mitchell, and Dr. E. I. Baumgartner, county medical examiner, investigated the accident. Examination of the body failed to show any marks and death was declared to have been due to drowning.

Sheetz was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Dalton Sheetz, of Keyser, and was born in that city and spent all his life there. He was graduated from Keyser high school and the Hourden Diesel school, Pittsburgh, and was employed on the Cumberland division of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad as a fireman. Besides his parents and wife he is survived by a brother, Douglas, at home.

If it is not used by that time it becomes void.

War ration stamp No. 4 will purchase sugar from June 15 to 27, inclusive.

Seeks Republican Sheriff Nomination

THEODORE E. SINES

Theodore E. Sines, of Election district No. 14, whose home is near Swallow Falls, announces his candidacy today for the Republican nomination for Sheriff of the county.

Mr. Sines is a young man who has his full life to offer for the service of the people here, and declares he has been interested in the welfare of the county for several years.

He has taken great interest in the elections for the past several years and has remained loyal and steadfast to the Republican party. He is known to be trustworthy and to be depended upon to perform whatever he undertakes to do.

He is considered useful and active in his community and has always taken part in any movement that was of benefit to his community, and has won general respect among all who know him.

School Children Throw 21,220 Pounds Iron at the Axis

Incomplete Check Shows "Scrap Day" in Schools Netted Over 10 Tons

School children of the county within the past few days, threw 21,220 pounds of iron at the Axis nations—in a sort of roundabout way. And the biggest heave from small communities came from the school children of West Vindex, who fired one and one-half tons at them.

This was all the result of a "scrap day" in the schools in connection with a scrap metal collection campaign conducted here by A. C. Stanton and Maurice Brookhart, implement dealers.

Forty-nine out of 74 schools in the county have been checked, showing that almost eleven tons of metal was collected on that day by the school children.

While West Vindex led other elementary schools, Grantsville graded and high school collected the largest amount, pupils there being credited with having brought 5,100 pounds.

Kitzmiller children brought in 2000 pounds; Oakland, 1835; Friendsville, 1223.

Casselman led the one-room schools with 1100 pounds, while Red Oak was not far behind with 1000 pounds. McCabe and Beachy schools had 700 pounds each. Shallmar had 600 pounds to report; Swanton, 450 pounds; Loch Lynn, 400 pounds and Lynndale 400 pounds.

Scrape dealers cooeprated by gathering the metal at the schools and paying cash at the time at the rate of 50 cents per hundred pounds.

Uniontown Man to Get "Break" in Song World

The Song Hit Guild Advisory Board, which several months ago selected the lyrics for a song written by Emeric Dusic, Oakland, in a prize contest, and for which he received $200 and the opportunity to earn more, providing the song became popular, has selected six more manuscripts for publication in contest No. 6, and this time one of the winners is Eddie Lyon, of Uniontown, Pa.

Lyon has collaborated with Dusic in writing lyrics for 30 or 40 songs, but this is the first "break" for Lyon. Further, his song, "Sun Valley Rose," had the music written by Carmen Lombardo, and it will be introduced by Guy Lombardo's orchestra on Saturday evening, June 13, at 8 o'clock, over the Colgate program, CBS.

Dusic's song, "I Keep Forgetting We're Through," is expected to come more into popularity in the post-war period.

GARRETT COUNTY IS INCLUDED IN 3-HR. BLACKOUT

Test Is to Be Made Next Tuesday Evening, June 16, from Nine to Twelve o'Clock

Oakland and all of Garrett county will experience a blackout test for Tuesday evening, June 16, cooperating with a number of Maryland counties, Virginia and the District of Columbia.

In Allegany, Garrett, Washington, Frederick, Harford, Carroll and Baltimore counties, the blackout will begin around 9 p. m., and continue through midnight. In Montgomery, Prince George's, Charles and St. Mary's counties and in Virginia and the District of Columbia, the blackout will continue from darkness until dawn, on June 17.

This will be the second test for Oakland and a few other communities, but the first one for most of the county.

The order for the blackout has been given by Col. Henry S. Barrett, director of air raid precautions for Maryland, in pursuance to a request from the First Interceptor Command, New York, and the office of regional director of the third civilian defense region, in Baltimore.

No Alarm to Be Given

No alarm is to be given to enforce this blackout. Ample notice is to be given through the newspapers and through handbills. Normal activities will not be interrupted. Automobiles will be allowed to move with the down-beam and street and traffic lights will be left burning. But all homes, stores, signs and industrial establishments not engaged in defense work will be blacked out during the entire period.

At the start of the blackout wardens are to start patrolling their areas and to see that people conform to the blackout rules and regulations prescribed by each community. They are asked to impress upon people beforehand the necessity for fixing some one or two rooms in their home where they can remain during the blackout.

The real purpose of the blackout is to determine whether the people can blackout on notice or alarm for a long period of time as a prelude to an all-night blackout, probably unannounced.

Sometime during the period a test air-raid alarm will be sounded from each control center to the public, to test the efficiency of the entire warning system. During this test lights on vehicles except emergency vehicles, all traffic and street lights will be extinguished and traffic will stop. Pedestrians will move off the streets and seek shelter. When the test-raid is over the all-clear signal will be given but the blackout will last until 12 o'clock.

Vacation School to Begin on June 15th

The Vacation Bible School, conducted by the Episcopal, Methodist and Lutheran churches of Oakland for the past several years, and which has been a valuable aid in the educational work of the church, will be held again this year in the Methodist church.

The sessions will begin Monday morning, June 15, at 9 o'clock, and will close at eleven-thirty o'clock. The school will continue for two weeks, Monday through Friday, but there are no afternoon classes. A picnic will be held on the closing day at the playground at Terra Alta, and a program and work display the Sunday following.

The course covers a complete study of the Bible and is arranged in a careful manner for children of all grades. This year a course is being offered for children of high school age. There will also be a course in Christian art, taught by Miss Catherine Baker, which should prove worthwhile.

The school will be under the direction of Rev. Minor Sprague, pastor of St. Paul's Methodist; Dr. A. B. Leamer, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran; and Rev. H. K. Jones, rector of St. Matthew's Episcopal. All children in the community are invited to attend this worthwhile school.

Teachers are being selected from the workers in the three churches. Helping in this work will be Miss Elizabeth West, Mrs. William McRobie, Miss Virginia Lawton, Mrs. Newton Coplin, Miss Dorothea Fridinger, Miss June Spear, Miss Nancy Bolden, Mrs. Roy Hauser, and others. The three pastors will take an active part, with Rev. Sprague as director; Dr. Leamer teaching a class of seventh graders, and Rev. Jones leading the worship period each morning for the junior department.

Scoop's Column

By Scoop Himself

Seems to me that years ago there was a song something like "You can't keep daughter down on the farm," but now it looks like the government is going to do something about it.

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard is urging rural families to keep their daughters on the farm to help with war food production and cure the labor shortage.

So gals, you'd better stay put.

Wants Owners to Advertise

Noah D. Schrock wants people who lose articles to advertise more than they do. After bringing in the ten dollars he found on the streets of Oakland to the office here, to return it to its rightful owner, he remarked that he wished that more people who lost articles would advertise for them.

"Not so long ago," he said, "I found a real good pocket knife in my hen house."

"But I never did find the owner of that," he mused.

Someone Ought to Know

Someone ought to be able to tell me:

Whether or not to purchase an auto use stamp for five smackers before July 1, when we don't know whether there is going to be national gasoline rationing.

It's a plain stick-up if the government waits until after people have purchased these stamps and then orders the gasoline supply cut off. The matter of gas rationing should therefore be decided within the next week or so—or be left open for several months.

An Oklahoma paper says in regard to this rubber and gasoline question, that the people there had prepared themselves to accept any war privation cheerfully but they have been stirred to disunity by a confusion of counsels and contradictory explanations.

"Do not blame the people for being confused," it said. "They are not any more confused than those who are governing the country."

Also

Then I'd like to know how Garrett county farmers and others can conserve gasoline and tires when they are required to come to Oakland every time they want a little sugar for canning purposes.

They must come to the rationing board office for sugar for strawberries and rhubarb and cherries. They must come again when the apple season is here. Then they must come again when peaches are ripe.

And not only gas and tires, but time is a big item.

Surely there is some better way to do this, especially when the government asks that everyone do as much canning as possible to conserve food.

Looks like they are trying to make it tough for everyone.

Arrangements Being Made

The Rationing Board has evidently felt the same way about the matter, and they have done something about it. They are making arrangements with volunteers to conduct registrations at various places in the county.

To continue in the same manner as the past two weeks would have caused enough headaches to make a big explosion.

Increase In Summer Visitors Expected By Business People

Garrett county business men are looking forward to one of the best summer seasons in a number of years, due to a number of reasons, principal of which are the gasoline and rubber situation, the necessity of dimouts and blackouts along the seashore and the danger of possible attacks there.

The resort travel is also expected to take a somewhat backward trend, back to the old days when people arrived on trains, brought their horses and carriages and spent the entire summer here with the "heads" of families coming for week-ends whenever possible.

It is not expected that it will go so far backward that the horses and carriages will be unloaded, but real estate people report that many inquiries are being received for cottages, with the expectation of renting for one, two or three months.

Instead of week-end jaunts they are planning to "bring their trunks" this year, and spend several weeks.

Charles L. Briner, Jr., president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, said that his organization had received hundreds of letters of inquiry in regard to all kinds of accommodations. Agents at Mt. Lake Park report the same activity there.

The three hundred or more cottages around Deep Creek Lake and the managers of groups of cabins there, are all optimistic of the summer prospects and have already opened for the season. Many of the cabins along this big lake are privately owned but are rented at reasonable rates to desirable tourists.

The unusual thing about the large number of inquiries is that they are coming from Baltimore and the Eastern seaboard this year, whereas in past years they seem to have come in the main from West Virginia and Pennsylvania.

Garrett county is also optimistic about the continued freedom from gasoline rationing in this area which is expected to have its effect in inducing others to come here for the summer.

Dimouts and blackouts along the shore resorts and the timid souls who fear the possibility of air raids are expected to swell the total.

A $50-a-month minimum pay scale for armed forces had approval of Congress.

Taxes on beer and liquor face increase in a new bill before the House Ways and Means committee.

GORTNER

Miss Leona Dodge returned to her school at Bridgewater, Va., on Sunday where she will become a student in the summer course of study.

Asa Murray visited Ross and Mary Lichty on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Riley and daughter, of Ohio, spent the week-end at Keyser.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Brubaker and three sons, of near Altoona, Pa., spent Saturday night with Noah Slabach and family. The Brubakers greeted many of their old friends and neighbors at church on Sunday morning, after which they enjoyed a picnic dinner with their host and family at Swallow Falls.

Mrs. W. E. Spoerlein has had as visitors since her return from a hospital, Mrs. Ernest Gortner, Mrs. Elwood Schlossnagle, Mrs. Jacob Swartzentruber, Mrs. Artie Dodge, Mr. and Mrs. Harsh and daughter Flora, of Eglon, Mrs. Anna Bittinger, Louise and Elaine Spoerlein.

Miss Mary Lichty and Mrs. D. L. Swartzentruber accompanied Mr. Swartzentruber to Negro Mountain, near Meyersdale, on Thursday where he was employed in the construction of a barn on the Floyd Bender farm. The party visited their old home place near there and spent the night with their relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Evan Miller.

Miss Peggy Shaffer, of Red House, was calling at the home of her uncle, S. W. Slabach, on Monday evening.

Wendell Flory, of China, who is now a student at Bethany Bible school, in Chicago, and summer pastor on the Maple Spring charge, was the guest of Mrs. Mary Crowe one day last week. Mrs. Crowe and son George and Pastor Flory visited with the Otho Friends, Elwood Schlossnagles, Harry Beeghleys, S. W. Slabachs, Ed Hesses, Isaac Beckmans, Thomas Crowes and Ernest Spoerleins.

The Sunday school contribution for China relief on Sunday was $7.68.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Fulk and children were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Revy Beckman on Sunday.

Mrs. Albert Sisk spent Sunday afternoon with Mrs. Robert Paugh in Plesant Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Lee and children and Miss Florence Deem were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Smouse at Loch Lynn on Sunday evening.

AVILTON

A series of meetings, to continue for two weeks, will begin at Cherry Grove Sunday evening, June 14, at 8:00 o'clock. The Rev. Lawrence Bianchi, of Pennsylvania, will conduct the meetings.

Jesse Merrill is home recovering from a tonsil operation.

Asa Wilhelm went to Cumberland on Sunday to consult a physician.
